W. a short distance below the lower crossing with such force as to break the stone into several pieces. N. G. Klumpp who witnessed the phenomenon says that the object descended with a loud whizzing and made a terrific noise when it reached the earth. Mr. Klumpp has two of the pieces which are oblong in shape and of grayish color. The larger is nearly twelve inches long and the other about half that length. When first found they were comparatively soft, but in a few hours became harder.

Another Pike and a Ferry Proposed.

It is proposed to establish a ferry in this county on the Ohio river below Taylorsport at a point known as the Webb farm, which is know owned by Charles Hempling. If the ferry materializes a pike will be built to connect it with the pike recently built from Hebron into the Francesville neighborhood, and the two improvements will be a great benefit to that part of the county.

State News.

On February 21 Mrs. N. J. Moore set a hen on fifteen eggs, and on Monday, March 13, the hen came off with a brood of nineteen little biddies. This is no joke, but true. Who can beat it? Speak up. —Jackson Times.

E. P. Campbell and Dick Cobb shipped a carload of Estill county hogs to the Cincinnati markets last week, realizing 10.10 for the more choice ones. Mr. Campbell states that many of them showed up "soft." This was due to being mast fed. The corn fed hogs were all accepted as first-class.—Irvine Sun.

The men engaged in excavating for the new hotel this week encountered a place where it is thought a sawmill was operated years ago, as the soil appeared to have been composed of rotted sawdust and deep down in the ground two old rotten sawlogs were found. This space was in what was originally the yard of the old Gilcher House. The old logs had probably been buried 75 years.—Danville Advocate.

J. W. McIntosh sold the large eagle he got at Maloney a couple of months ago to Baggagemaster Fletcher of the L. & N. "Mac" says the bird got to be too heavy on the rations and it required the services of two men most of the time catching rabbits and chickens to feed it. The bird's wing has recovered from the injury it received at the time of its capture, and it was a splendid specimen. —Clay City Times.

C. M. Yellion, of Lenoxburg, has five cows, from which he has sold $250 worth of cream in 12 months, besides raising 5 calves and feeding chickens, pigs and other things on the skim milk. In other words his cows netted him $50 each, over and above all expenses in keeping, as the skim milk fed to the calves and hogs will pay for the feed of the cows. He is getting 37 cents a pound for butter fat at the present time.—Falmouth Outlook.

W. J. Mountz has invented a new method of catching rats that is very successful. Recently he had a can of sardines that had been opened, and not been used, and by way of experiment put them in a rat trap that had been lying about the place for some time. Next morning he was more than surprised to find a number of rats in the trap and tried the same method again. In four nights he caught 34 rats—eleven being in the trap at one time. This, we think, is a record for a small wire trap. —Clay City Times.

John W. Neal, a well-known farmer of Piqua pike, near the town, brought to town two of the largest hams of meat that break the record for size. One weighed 54 pounds and one 48 pounds. He sold them to Mrs. E. M. Case at 15 cents per pound. Mr. Neal also sold one sid out of this same porker that balanced in the scales at sixty-eight pounds. He has in all sold $35 worth of meat, the product of this one hog, and in addition to the sausage meat he has seventeen gallons of lard. It has been no great many years ago that one could buy a large fat steer for $35.—Mt. Olivet Democrat.

The hog market in Adair county has been exceedingly brisk for the last six weeks, and a vast total sum of money has been paid for them. One firm has purchased about $15,000 worth, and, summing up what has been paid by other dealers, the sum total reaches $35,000. This information we get from the two banks of Columbia. The hogs were all sold on the Louisville market, and it is our information that the dealers are well satisfied with prices realized, the market at this time being active. This money all remains at home, which is an evidence that Adair county is not on the verge of starvation, but stands ready to loan meal to friends at any time. —Adair County News.

At Shakertown the furnishings of the houses are famous for substantiality as well as elegance, and some of the articles of furniture owned by the Shakers are quite interesting. As an example there stands in the worship room on the first floor of the Center House a grandfather's clock that was stationed here in 1828, close to a century ago. The case is of black walnut and of fine workmanship. It is about eight feet high, and has a dial plate that not only indicates the hours, minutes and seconds, but also shows the day of the month and the changes of the moon. The timepiece is in excellent condition and does as accurate work as it did the day it was installed.—Auburn Standard.

Money Order Ruling.

Heretofore rural patrons of the postoffice have found some difficulty in purchasing money orders from their carriers for the reason that the Department does not permit the carriers to accept checks in payment for them. The Third Assistant Postmaster General, Mr. Dockery, has recently issued an order allowing this to be done with the understanding that the check is to be subject to the approval of the postmaster. Postmaster Morris informs us that, in his opinion, this will be a great convenience to rural patrons of his office and that he has instructed his carriers to accept checks on the above condition, provided they are on local banks. —Oldham Era.

The February term of the Owen circuit court came to a close Saturday. The term lasted but two weeks, but Judge Sidney Gaines will hold a special term here early in April. The new Judge made a fine impression on the bar and people generally, and the opinion prevails that he is going to be a popular and capable official.—Owenton News-Herald.

GERM CAUSES EPILEPSY

Discovered by Dr. Charles A. L. Reed, of Cincinnati, 'Tis Claimed at Western Meeting.

The discovery of a germ which he asserted caused epilepsy was announced by Dr. Charles A. L. Reed, of Cincinnati, in an address before the Medical Society of the Missouri Valley. The germ was called the bacillus epilepticus, and the speaker asserted that, like the germ of lockjaw, it probably exists in the soil and enters the body thru the stomach and intestines, where it continues to live.

Dr. Reed contended that clogging of the alimentary canal, always present in epileptic cases, forced the germ from the intestines into the blood, where it was also self-perpetuating.

"When this germ is taken from the blood of epileptics and injected into the veins of rabbits," said he, "it caused them to have epilepsy, generally in fatal form.

"Rabbits fed on food contaminated with the germ develop epilepsy. One rabbit developed epilepsy from which it died as the result of licking blood containing the germ from the ear of another rabbit."

Dr. Reed said that there was abundant evidence tending to show that the disease often had been communicated from one person to another.

Pellagra Prevention.

A faulty or restricted diet at this season of the year is the chief factor in the production of pellagra. Measures to prevent the development of the disease should be instituted during the early spring months, according to a circular of information issued by the United States Public Health Service. While the manifestations of pellagra are in most cases not in evidence until June or July, the condition invariably dates from a faulty diet of earlier months. Therefore, if due precautions are exercised by individuals at the present time the havoc wrought by this scourge may be greatly lessened, if not entirely eliminated.

The report further calls attention to certain danger signals which should be recognized by those who reside in pellagrous districts or those who have had previous attacks of the disease. Among such warning symptoms are extreme nervousness or change in the mental characteristics of the individual. Weakness or debility, a disinclination to undertake the ordinary daily tasks, and unexplained digestive symptoms may all be premonitory signs. These symptoms do not, of course, necessarily mean the development of pellagra, but taken in connection with the history of a one-sided, monotonous, diet, they serve as a definite warning of the possibilities of its onset.

The diet recommended by the health service for the prevention of pellagra will not produce results if followed for a week or ten days only, but if continuously and consistently used, under circumstances similar to its administration in the various institutions where the experimental tests have been performed, it will protect the individual against the development of the disease. Necessarily, a rigid unvaried diet is wholly undesirable and the menu recommended is only to indicate in a general way the character of the food to be prescribed. Frequently the element of poverty, inaccessibility to market supplies, or even personal idiosyncrasy, may require some modification of the diet table, so that strict adherence to its components may not in all respects be practicable. The object of the diet as submitted is to minimize the consumption of the carbo-hydrate, starchy or sweet foods and to increase the amount of fresh animal protein and of fresh legumes, peas and beans.

The breakfast, for example, should consist of oatmeal and cream, without sugar, with either ham or breakfast bacon and two eggs. Not more than two thin slices of whole wheat bread should be taken, preferably untoasted. Hot bread or biscuits are inadvisable. A glass of fresh milk is to accompany the breakfast and either oranges or grape fruit may be the initial course. The dinner should consist of either pea or bean soup, prepared from dried peas or beans, with a meat stock. The meat may be beef, pork ham, chicken, veal or mutton, prepared in whatever manner is the most appetizing, preference being given to roasting or broiling rather than frying. Hamburger steak, meat, hash, or fish may be substituted to afford variety. Care should be exercised that the meats are not overdone. Of vegetables, Irish potatoes, boiled in the jacket or baked, cabbage, turnip or mustard greens, collards and lettuce, are to be recommended. For dessert, stewed, fresh or dried fruit will prove sufficient. The dinner should be accompanied by not more than two thin slices of whole wheat bread and a glass of buttermilk. The supper should consist of pork and beans, or baked beans properly seasoned, the usual amount of bread and a glass of buttermilk. If preferred, eggs, scrambled or otherwise prepared, may be substituted for the more substantial ingredient of the meal.

A diet such as the above is not prohibitive as to cost, at least to but few of the residents of the country, affords a sufficient number of heat units, if taken in reasonable quantity, and will effectually prevent the development of a disease which alone caused 3,000 deaths in the United States during the past year.

Writes His Own Obituary

Wm. Threlkeld Ficklen of Paris, 88, bachelor, philosopher and humorist, realizing, as he puts it, "that my body will soon return to the earth whence it came," has made the most minute and unprecedented arrangements for the disposal of his body in a codicil to his will containing full directions for his funeral. Saying that it was the fortune of few men to be able to read their obituaries before death, he was especially desirous that it should appear in print. After disposing of his real and personal property, he makes the following unique suggestions as to his funeral:

"I wish my funeral services to be conducted at the Paris Grand Opera House, and that either or both Dr. J. B. Wilson of Cincinnati and Mrs. Josephine Henry of Versailles, noted free thinkers, be requested to deliver an oration over my casket. I want no crepe or other symbol of mourning to be used in connection with my funeral, but I wish every one to attend and enjoy themselves, and, if possible, to be benefitted by what they hear. When the funeral procession starts for the cemetery, my final resting place, I wish it to be preceded by a brass band playing 'Way Down South in Dixie,' 'America,' 'Yankee Doodle' and other national airs."

In addition to the other arrangements for his funeral Mr. Ficklen has planned to have his picture carved on a marble slab to be placed at the head of the grave, and has had printed several hundred funeral notices containing his photograph and a synopsis of his life.

The original Fenian flag which was carried in the invasion of Canada fifty years ago, was displayed in the show window of a business house on Main street as a St. Patrick's day exhibit. The flag is the property of Capt. John A. Geary, was made by the Irish women of Lexington, and was presented to Capt. Geary at the big Irish picnic and rally held at Clay's woods, near this city, in 1866. Capt. Geary was then organizing a force of local Irishmen to join in the Fenian movement and soon afterward proceeded north with his men, and crossing the United States border, took part in the attack on the British troops who were mobilizing at Ridgeway, Canada. Capt. Geary is the father of E. A. Geary, superintendent of the Nicholasville Water Company.—Jessamine Journal.

Progress in Indiana.

Across the Ohio a man who hauled "more than 2,500 pounds in a wagon with tires less than three inches wide" has been fined $25.

What is being done about it on the Kentucky side?

Net loads of two tons or more upon wagons with narrow tires are commonly hauled on Kentucky roads. In soft weather the tires injure the road seriously by breaking the waterbound or oilbound surface and admitting the water to the body of the metal, softening and rotting it. In February and March deep ruts are thus cut in roads which bear up under the strain of heavy traffic and alternate freezing and thawing.

One of the worst enemies of road improvement is the owner of the narrow-tired heavy-draught vehicle. He pays no special taxes which entitle him to destroy the roads. Automobilists do pay special taxes. A majority of them are not inclined to resent special taxation, but all of them resent the injury of roads by vehicles which to avoidable damage which is obvious and which the law should not permit.

Our Indiana neighbors are altogether right, when, after spending money for road improvement, they refuse to allow heavily loaded, narrow-tired jolt wagons to undo the work they have done.

Automobiles demand good roads and wear out good roads. But they pay for the damage they do. Farm wagons and heavy delivery wagons from cities need good roads to make their work economical. They ruin good roads by using narrow tires. They do not pay for the damage they do.

Every wagon capable of carrying a ton of freight should be upon broad tires. Such tires economize mule power on unimproved roads and lessen injury to roads of all kinds.—C. J.

Don't Talk Too Much.

Recently a voluable salesman was trying to close a deal with a good customer, says Farm Machinery. The salesman was doing all the talking, and the buyer was becoming not a little annoyed. Several times the customer started to speak, but the salesman would choke him off, and start on another line of argument. Finally the manager saw what was up, and suggested to the seller that he allow the buyer to say something. This the buyer did, and quickly. He said that he had been trying for half an hour to tell the salesman that he would take the goods.

A period of from two to three years will be necessary, it is said, to complete the work of cutting the cedars from the old battle grounds at Blue Lick Springs, near Carlisle, and hauling the timber to the railroads. It will be shipped from Carlisle to Memphis to be used in making lead pencils. Cutting away the trees is changing the old Blue Lick battlegrounds appearance and former summer resort.

FOR BETTER ROADS

ESTIMATING COST OF ROADS

Much Depends on Type of Construction and Amount of Grading to Be Done—Some Figures.

The cost of a road is dependent upon not only the type of construction but the amount and character of grading to be done, the cost of labor and materials, the width and thickness of surfacing, the character and amount of drainage required, and other factors of equal variability. Based upon general averages, it has been ascertained by highway specialists of the department that under average conditions macadam roads can be built in southern states at from $4,000 to $5,000 per mile, gravel roads at from $1,500 to $2,500 per mile, and sand-clay and topsoil roads at from $800 to $1,500 per mile.

In New England and the other eastern states macadam roads are reported at from $6,000 to $9,000 per mile, gravel roads at from $3,200 to $5,000, and bituminous macadam from $8,000 to $13,000, according to the character of construction, whether surface treated, penetration or mixing method. The bituminous type is quite general in the eastern states.

As indicating costs in other sections of country, the state highway commissioner of Michigan reported that in 1913 the average cost for macadam roads was $4,300 per mile, clay-gravel roads $1,500 per mile, and concrete roads about $10,000 per mile. The average cost of state highways constructed in Ohio two years ago was $8,383. According to types, in 1912 the brick-paved highways averaged $14,650 per mile and the macadam highways $5,950.

In California the first 356 miles of the state system of highways cost an average of $8,143 per mile and consisted principally of thin concrete with a thin coat of bitumen. The maximum and minimum figures given are not absolute, but are intended to present the usual range of costs. The rates given include grading, drainage, surfacing and engineering costs.

"DIRT ROADS" AND RAINFALL

Easy to Be Seen That Good Roads Proposition Gets Down to Question of Dollars and Cents.

Back in the boom days of railroad building many a county in full many a middle West and western state voted hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of bonds to get a railroad to cross its boundaries. This was in the old days of pioneer poverty when lands were selling anywhere from $1.25 to $15 an acre. Some counties are still paying off railroad bonds, some repudiated the debt and others have had half a century of litigation over them. However, for the most part the roads were built and agricultural development followed their coming.

Something like three-fourths of all the freight hauled by railway lines must, first or last, pass over public highways. It has been shown over and over again that every ton so moved costs 23 cents a mile. It is easy to see that the good roads proposition gets down to a matter of dollars and cents.

Next March, or maybe April, when we have to walk to town across the fields; when it takes a six-horse team to move a load of hay a mile; when the mail carrier cannot get around for a week and the children miss school on account of the mud—then we are all for good roads. As the mud dries and the chuck-holes fill, we get lukewarm. When the road-bond proposition comes up we begin to talk high taxes and either stay away from the polls or vote against it.

Good roads will never come till we change our views and keep them changed. Left to themselves a dirt road and a rain will always mean mud. —Farm Progress.

Economic Maintenance.

The split-log drag has contributed to a large extent toward the economic maintenance of public highways. It is an improvement which can be built or purchased at a low price and is easily operated by anyone who can drive a team.

Good Roads Would Help.

It costs $2 to haul a ton of freight a hundred miles by rail. It costs $2 to haul a ton ten miles on the ordinary country road. Would good roads help?

Is Gasoline "Passing?"

Gasoline, formerly a waste product, which was gotten rid of at expense in making kerosene, now is the virtually universal fuel for internal combustion engines. Its existence and its sale, at prices not prohibitive, will be the sine qua non of the automobile industry until a substitute is discovered. Is there a discoverable substitute?

The Society of Automobile Engineers, after an investigation, reaches the conclusion that within fifteen years there will be no more gasoline unless new sources of supply can be discovered, or better refining methods developed. The 15-year limit of the existence of gasoline under the conditions of its present production is based upon the continuance of its consumption at the present rate. Unless it should be demonstrated—so clearly as to deter persons who otherwise would buy motor vehicles or stationary gasoline engines—that there soon will be no more gasoline its consumption will increase.

The Rittman method of producing gasoline—a discovery of a Government chemist announced a few months ago—might supplant the old style methods and treble the amount of "gas" produced from a given quantity of crude petroleum without lengthening to any extent the "expectancy" of gasoline provided the increase of its use should continue for the next decade in proportion to its expansion since 1906.

Gasoline is a munition of war as well as a fuel highly important to various industries including agriculture. The ancient Asiatic method of avoiding famine by forbidding the export of foodstuffs is suggested, seriously it appears, by the engineers, as a means of deferring the passing of gasoline and the everlasting stalling of millions of engines for the want of fuel. But the result would be temporary and the remedy will not be applied.

Kerosene, it seems, is not to be regarded at present as an exhaustible commodity. It has been used in automobile engines. It is used in considerable quantity in stationary engines. But if it is as good a substitute in practice as it appears on paper to be, why does the adoption of the kerosene carburetor lag while the price of gasoline soars? Why has no automobile manufacturer put out as a 1916 bargain an engine warranted to burn coal oil at 8 or 9 cents a gallon while other machines are using gasoline at 24 or 25 cents?

If gasoline is approaching its demise what is being done about it? Electricity seems to be the ultimate answer to the cost-of-fuel question. But electricity for general purposes as a supplanter of gasoline is not yet practical. Nobody can say when it will be practical. In the meantime the automobile industry faces a difficult, if not a crippling, situation if the findings of the automobile engineers are correct.

WILSON BRYAN'S CHOICE.

Lincoln, Neb., March 23.—William Jennings Bryan here last night opened the campaign in Nebraska speaking in favor of a State prohibition amendment. Mayor Charles W. Bryan, of Lincoln, brother of the former Secretary of State, is a candidate for Governor.

A dispute between Mr. Bryan and John G. Maher, a local politician, in which the lie was passed to Mr. Bryan in a hotel lobby, enlivened the informal meetings previous to last night's gathering.

The dispute arose over a question of Mr. Maher as to whether one of the speakers from the East who was on the program, was getting paid for his services. Mr. Bryan remarked that Mahers' motive was mercenary. This provoked the retort and Mr. Maher followed it with other charges.

Mr. Bryan departed for a considerable time from the prohibition question and discussed national questions and his relations with President Wilson. Upon renomination he declared he favored. There would be, he said, no other candidate at the St. Louis convention.

"I am a candidate for delegate-at-large to that convention," said Mr. Bryan, "but if any of my friends who have suddenly become friends of Woodrow Wilson can serve him better than myself let them send some one else to the convention.

"If Woodrow Wilson owes me anything he has more than paid it back by giving himself to the nation as President instead of Roose welt."

Clip the Work Animals.

Work animals should be clipped in spring as soon as danger of cold weather is over. Otherwise they are apt to take cold when stabled for the night with sweaty coats. Horses and mules with long hair sweat profusely on warm days. To put them in the stable with a thick, wet coat of hair has about the same effect as stabling them in a wet blanket. Their skin is open, they soon lose the heat of work, and are apt to take cold at night.

Of course they should not be clipped as long as there is danger of a cold snap unless good stables are had. Every farmer who has several work animals can afford to buy a clipping machine. They can be had for less than ten dollars. In case it is not advisable or possible to clip animals, H. G. Clayton, assistant animal industrialist to the University of Florida Experiment Station, recommends that they be fed a ration that will help them get rid of the surplus plus hair. A bran mash once a week of a little linseed meal twice a week will start them to shedding.

British Vicar Avers Spouse Described Figure as Caught on Plate.

The claim to have photographed a ghost is made by Rev. Charles Tweedale, Vicar of Western, York shire, in an affidavit made before the Commissioner of Oaths, which is supported by Mrs. Tweedale and their son.

Mr. Tweedale, who a few years ago attracted attention by reports of physical phenomena at the Western Vicarage, told the correspondent of the Yorkshire Post that on December 20th last his wife their son and himself were at luncheon, when suddenly his wife cried out that she saw the apparation of a man with a full head of hair and beardstanding at the other side of the table, to the left of their son.

Mrs. Tweedale directed attention to the figure, but neither the father nor the son could distinguish it. Telling his wife to keep it there, although on reflection he admits he does not know how Mrs Tweedale could compel the figure to remain, he got his camera, which was loaded with quarter-plate slides.

The vicar then placed the camera on a window sill and focussed it upon the room, the distance between the camera and the position where his wife said she still saw the figure being about three and one-half yards. The light not being favorable for aninterior picture, he gave an exposure of 25 seconds. Mrs. Tweedale described the figure as that of a little man and said that the top of his head appeared to be about on a level with her son's shoulders.

Mrs. Tweedale and the boy sat at the table while the plate was being exposed. The reluctant negative appears to have corroberated Mrs. Tweedale's vision. Mr. Tweedale explained that he personally developed the plate shortly afterward and it had not left his possession in the mean time.

The negative is a quarter-plate size and reproduces the corner of the room. In the foreground is the dining table, the white cloth of which reflects the light into the corner. Sitting at the table is Tweedales' son and opposite him there is a shadow but distinct impression of the head and shoulders of a little old man with an abundance of hair and a flowing beard.

The figure which appears to be in a semi-recumbent position, almost hides that part of the furniture and a piano which lies behind it, and this in Mr. Tweedales' opinion, conclusively proves that the apparition had definite objectivity, although invisible to the normal vision of himself and his son.

In response to the suggestion that the camera may have played a trick upon him, the vicar said he had carefully examined conditions as they were at the time. The camera is in perfect order. No person of similar appearance ever had been photographed by him and none of the family recognized the figure disclosed on the negative. His wife, he said, clairvoyntly saw the figure which she described, and upon the sensitive plate being exposed a figure was disclosed and was recognized by Mrs. Tweedale as being like the man she saw. —London Cor. Chicago Herald.

A Scout's Opinion.

James H. Cook, who was chief scout for the Eighth U. S. Infantry in 1885, when the Mexican and American troopers were cooperating in an effort to capture Geronimo and suppress the Apaches, gives a Denver correspondent of the New York World his opinion of what may be expected in Mexico:

"A veritable zone of death will have to be traversed by the American troopers. They will have to go over some of the worst country in the world. If Villa chooses, he can fight as Geronimo and his followers did—go back into the mountains, kill horses, scatter on foot and pick our soldiers off one by one from behind rocks. The Mexican army, which promises to help us, is a joke. It may take us months, even years, to get Villa.

"But no men on earth are better for the task than the officers in charge of the American expedition. I personally know Lieut. De Rosey C. Cabell, now Chief of Staff to Gen. Pershing. He was with me on the Geronimo expedition and knows the country as well as any white man.

"The aeroplane will assist our troops in the campaign, but it cannot match with all the difficulties of the region. Between the peaks are deep canons, sometimes 1,000 feet deep and less than forty feet wide. These ravines cannot be crossed by any except the old Indians of the country. They can get over on a trail.

"The only thing that makes the expedition look hopeful to me is my faith in the men who command it."

The picture of the difficulties awaiting the United States troops is highly colored, but the history of the campaigns against the Apaches is unique as a narrative of the success of a handful of savages in keeping far stronger forces engaged for a period of years, and in keeping up, in the meantime, a series of murders and robberies almost within hailing distance of the pursuers.

Villa will be taken if he lives. But at what cost in time, in money, in men, nobody can forsee.

Submarines mines are of three types: First, ground mines, which are usually of great size and laid directly on the bottom of shallow seas; 2nd, anthored mines, which are attached to a cable to a weight on the bottom, and are designed to float at a predetermined depth, so that they will touch and be detonated by passing ships, and 3rd, floating mines, which are dropped on the surface of the water.

ANOTHER WHEAT PEST.

Stripe Rust, a Cereal Disease New to this Country, Reported in Northwestern States Last Year.

The season of 1915 marked the first recorded occurrence of what in Europe has long been regarded as one of the most destructive of known cereal diseases. Reference is here made to the stripe rust (Puccinia glumarum), a fungus closely related to the well-known stem rust which has so often taken big tolls from American wheat bins. Stripe rust, in the United States, so far as careful observation has thus far shown, is confined to the Pacific coast and tributary inter-mountain States. It has been reported as being very abundant in certain of the wheat producing valleys of Montana and was particularly marked as an epidemic in certain parts of Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

We have at our disposal no effective method of preventing or controlling outbreaks of grain rust in the sense that we may prevent or control the occurrence of oat smut or the sinking smut of wheat, but in the case of the stripe rust we may possibly delay its appearance in the Mississipi Valley if the farmers avoid planting wheat known to have been grown west of the 106th meridian, a line passing thru eastern Montana.

It is a well-known fact that thousands of carloads of wheat from Montana and the Pacific Northwest were shipped during the fall and early winter to Minneapolis, Duluth, and other midwestern points. Some of this wheat may have been purchased as seed in thos e parts of the Mississippi Valley where winter wheat is grown, and there is a slight possibility of the stripe rust having been introduced, or in future of its being introduced through the planting of such wheat. On the other hand, it seems not improbable that the stripe rust may have been present in the United States to an inappreciable extent for several years, and that prior to 1915 it had had opportunity to establish itself in sections east of its present eastern limits, but because of possible unfavorable conditions may have failed to do so.

The stripe does not confine its ravages to wheat alone, but is known to occur on barley, rye, emmer, and certain wild grasses. Unlike the stem rust, it has no known secondary host, and is, therefore, probably propagated solely by means of its summer or uredo spores. This fact in itself diminishes somewhat the probability of the rapid spread of this rust over great distances, for it is true that its uredo spores can not endure prolonged drying.

In parts of this country where stripe rust was most severe, the actual damage resulting to the crop did not seem serious. However, in regions of high humidity it might prove far more destructive than stem rust, and for this reason it is a matter of great importance to keep it out of the great wheat-growing States of the Mississippi Valley.

The symptoms of the stripe rust are peculiarly characteristic, and the observer is not likely to experience much difficulty in distinguishing it from other cereal rusts. The uredo or summer spores develop in more or less well-defined lemon yellow stripes on the leaves, leaf sheaths, and glumes. In cases of severe infection the many stripes on a leaf may be so close together as to appear to unite laterally to the extent of involving the entire leaf. The telcutospore or black-spore stage appears later in the season in the form of long, black or dark gray stripes on the leaf sheaths, culms, and sometimes the glumes.

WARNS FARMERS TO TEST SEED CORN.

Assistant Secretary Vrooman Declares This to Be Necessary Precaution This Year.

Washington, D. C.—Farmers who take the advice of Carl Vrooman, the Assistant Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture, will test every ear of corn this year before they plant it. The seed corn situation, Mr. Vrooman says, is probably more serious now than it has been for years. On account of the late cold season and the heavy frosts in the early part of last October, very little corn, especially in the northern half of the corn belt, ripened naturally and at the time of the first hard frosts much of it still contained a very large amount of moisture.

"Testing seed corn is always a wise precaution," said Mr. Vrooman, "but this year it is a necessary one. Every farmer should test his seed this spring by the individual ear test. No matter how much confidence you have in the man you buy seed from, make a test and know for yourself that the seed is good. If the seed is not good, you can get some other that is.

"A number of seed men who have well constructed seed houses report that they find the early picked seed tests very satisfactory, but the seed picked later, even if properly dried, is very unsatisfactory. One test in North eastern Nebraska showed 90 per cent of the early field-picked seed to be good while only sixty-eight per cent of the crib selected seed germinated. In many sections of Northern Iowa and Illinois the percentage of good seed is much lower, even when the seed was picked before frost and properly dried, while seed picked from the wagon at husking time, or from the crib is practically worthless as seed. One reason for this is that many farmers in this section are raising corn of a very large variety which requires a full growing season, and this corn did not ripen before the early frosts.

"Under these circumstances, testing each ear is simply good insurance. One ear of corn will produce about five bushels—if all the grains grow. With corn at sixty cents a bushel, planting a dead ear or an ear that will produce only weak unproductive stalks, means a loss of $3.00. If you catch only one bad ear, your testing has paid you a good day's wages. If you catch the average number, you've saved a week's pay in a winter afternoon."

The Farmers' Mutual Telephone Directory says, I handle any kind of rubber tire; and that I have the exclusive agency of the Republic Rubber Tires. That contract just cost me $200 of which of some of my customers will attest. I guaranteed those tires and I filled same to the letter. Now, right here I do most solemnly promise and swear that I will never again change the old and tried for any new thing whatsoever. Furthermore, that I will not use any Rubber Tire except Kelly's Springfield—the first rubber tire ever made and the best. I ought to know for surely I paid last year to find out. It is just like a boy changing the old girl for the new or a man leaving his old and tried wife for a new one. Now, isn't it a fact that they always go back to the old and tried love, is it not so boys? That's what I have done with Kelly's Springfield Rubber Tire—gone back to my old love. While they cost me more money they will cost my customers $12.00 per set or $3.00 per tire; these tires I give a guarantee on for being as represented. They will not stuff out nor will they peel, but will wear smooth like a good tire should.

Now, in regards to repainting: I have tried to get a quick system and do good work, but I find it a failure so I give it up and must stick to the old system. All my work I guarantee to be as represented. I do anything in the carriage line. Bring me your work if you want it done right. I solicit your trade.

No Opposition in Sight.

It looks at this distance like President Wilson will encounter no opposition for a renomination as the Democratic candidate for the presidency. Under existing circumstances his renomination should be equivalent to an election if the nation appreciates his success in saving the lives of thousands of its citizens and preventing the expenditure of millions of dollars, while losing the thousands of lives.

Don't Let'm Tear up the Grass.

Before a very prominent gentle man moved from the Locust Grove to the Beech Grove neighborhood, recently, he and one of Burlington's muscular gentlemen agreed upon next Monday as the date and the court house yard as the place to decide as to which is the best man by wrestling a two best out of three match. The gentlemen to whom was assigned the duty of making all arrangements for the contest have everything in readiness except stretching the ropes for the ring, and they hope to make the match the event of the day.

An Artful Dodger.

The hunt for Villa is somewhat on the order of searching for a needle in the hay stack. The United States soldiers are not familiar with the country while the outlaw knows every inch of it and may lead the pursuers from this side of the line into a trap and massacre the whole bunch. The Carranza troops are the better prepared to make life miserable for Villa and his band because of their knowledge of the country and being use to the climate. If the expedition proves successful it will, no doubt, require considerable time, and cost many an American soldier his life.

Of Interest to Teachers.

All teachers who plan to attend the K. E. A. are asked to communicate with the County Superintendent. The party from the northern part of the county will leave on the steam boat from Cincinnati at 5 p. m., Tuesday April 18. The same regulations as in former years will govern the employment of those teachers who attend. Those who are interested in printed statements of the disbursement of school funds will call at the office and get same. The State Department of Education prints these statements every two years and has done so for a long time but we find very few calls for these biennial report's.

Keep Your Temper.

During the month of April a large number of bills will be sent to those owing the Recorder on account of subscription and it is hoped the responses will be prompt. The Recorder has always been very lenient with its subscribers but the high price of material, and its continued advance, makes closer collections a necessity. Since the last issue the paper on which the RECORDER is printed has advanced one cent a pound, while gasoline, which is in constant use during working hours, has advanced two cents a gallon in the same length of time. The prices of other articles that are required in the publication of a paper have advanced—in fact there has been an upward move all along the line and there is no telling where it will stop. If you are one who receives a statement do not get mad and say something ugly, but look at the dates and ask yourself this question: "If the RECORDER owed me a like amount how long would I let it run before presenting a bill for it?" and then act as you would expect the RECORDER to act towards you under like conditions.

They are Opposed to Bonds.

Is Pharaoh in our free country or is it his supposed angels who are clamoring to rule the people. Our liberty and freedom is being drawn from us slowly but sure.

I have voted no other than the Democratic ticket because of its freedom which was preached by the servants then and supposed servants at the present time. As I was arguing with a good old Republican a few years ago he told me if the Democrats had full power they would do just like we are doing or worse. I have wondered for the last two or three years how he knew. Have come to the conclusion that he knew. The servents of the Republican and Democratic parties and money-eyed politicians of England kept working so close together that they finally thru debts and bond issues on the people they owned the largest part of the land, then ceased to be servents but became rulers and established a king. It looks like it is unjust, an imposition and undemocratic to take the rights of the people. Then some moneyed men of Cincinnati have had the audasity to come out here and tell you what you should do as a blind for their own interest. A bond is a mort gage. If it cannot be paid anyother way you could be sold out of house and home. Then why would you want to put your children under bondage and at the mercy of the money changers in the future for something that you don't want to stand for in the present? Now my friends let us reason together. If you help to raise the tax on the property owner won't he raise the rent on his property, then won't the merchant raise the price on his goods, then won't you have to pay more than the man with the money who can buy his goods for less by the quantity? What right or how can a legislature mortgage your property unless it assumes the power of a king? God's love and our freedom are the most precious gifts of earth.

SCANDAL IN ROAD BUILDING.

The friends of good roads have before them a task more imperative than to protect the country treasuries against the raids of corrupt contractors.

The Maysville special to the Evening Post yesterday tells of the report of the Lewis county grand jury to the effect that $109,000 of the total issue of $150,000 had been spent, "and that, with the exception of one mile of road, to the top of Kinny Hill, the roads are in a worse condition than when the reconstruction began."

A contractor and a sub-contractor have been indicted in Lewis and stories from other sections indicate a like condition of demoralization.

There is no reason to suppose that road builders will be any more scrupulous than early railroad builders, when counties, cities and States were plundered and only phantom roads secured.

The greatest scandals in city government have related to street contracts, bond issues and elections.

Every county should require open bidding, with competition between contractors and between materials, and road specifications should be drawn with the greatest care.—Louisville Evening Post.

Recovered $100 for the County.

When the last vote was taken on the whisky question in this county, one J. B. Smith was operating a saloon in the Cahill property in Florence, and had to discontinue business. Under the law he was entitled to a rebate of $100 on his saloon license which the county paid to him, and at the last session of the Legislature Representative Cropper got thru a resolution requiring the State to refund the $100 to Boone county.

GOOSE RAISING IS PROFITABLE PURSUIT

Flock of Toulouse Geese—Best Breed for Average Farmer.

The value of these geese has diminished during the last decade. Notwithstanding this fact, goose raising remains a profitable pursuit, provided the conditions are suitable.

Only two breeds are bred to any extent in this country, the Toulouse and the Emden. Since these combine all the requisite economic characteristics it is unnecessary to go further afield. The Toulouse is the largest of these two varieties; in fact, it is the largest breed there is, but it is rather a slow grower. At a time when the Emden, the more rapidly maturing variety, is fit for killing, the Toulouse is tall and lanky and quite unfit for marketing. The Emden, therefore, is the breed for the early trade, while the Toulouse is used almost exclusively for supplying the Christmas markets.

Goslings are the easiest of all kinds of poultry to rear and the percentage of deaths among the young stock, provided they are reasonably well looked after, is extremely low. They are so hardy they seem able to thrive anywhere, and they can withstand treatment which would be fatal to other kinds of fowls. At the same time they respond very readily to good treatment. The fact that goslings are so hardy is often made an excuse for neglecting them, and this results in slow growth, stunted development and unsound constitution. Very little brooding is necessary and goslings can dispense with the hen when they are a week or ten days old. When they are this age they should be placed in flocks of a dozen or fifteen and accommodated in a small dry shed.

It is extremely important that they should not sleep on a wooden floor, which tends to produce leg weakness. The earth itself makes the best kind of floor it is possible to have. In rearing goslings the fact should never be forgotten that the youngsters must be liberally provided with green food. If possible they should have access to a good meadow, but if the herbage is insufficient they must be supplied generously with cabbage leaves, onions, the outer leaves of lettuce or other garden produce, green food being essential to their health and vigor. As soon as the grain is harvested allow the goslings to run over the stubble.

MEANING OF POULTRY TERMS

Pullet Is Female Under One Year Old—After Attaining Full Maturity She Is Termed a Hen.

There seems to be a somewhat hazy notion among amateurs as to the exact meaning of the terms used to designate young and old stock. A pullet, strictly speaking, is a female under one year old. After she has attained her full maturity she is a hen, but in the trade we speak of a fowl as a pullet until she has completed her first year's laying. Therefore, it is correct to speak of her as a pullet until she is eighteen months old, or has begun her first molt, says Farmer's Guide.

A cockerel is a male bird under one year old, but he is usually spoken of as a cockerel until he has at least entered well upon his first year as a breeding cockerel.

Cocks are older males, usually having passed through one season's breeding. If you order cockerels for breeding purposes, you will get birds that have been used for breeding. When ordering pullets you will get females that are under eighteen months old, at the most.

A cockerel should never be used to breed from before he is a year old. A pullet, if she begins to lay at six months, may be bred at nine months of age.

BUTTERMILK GOOD FOR HENS

Acts as General Aid to Digestion and Develops Vigor and Vitality to a Marked Degree.

Perhaps no feeds are so general and yet put to such slight actual use on the average farm as buttermilk or skim milk. Both are about the same in feeding value, particularly after the latter has become sour. The full value of buttermilk or skim milk does not lie so much in its food value as in its effect on other foods and general aid to digestion. Buttermilk also develops vigor and vitality to a marked degree as well as promoting unusual growth at the same time.

Milk, added to the ration, increases the consumption of other foods and experiments have shown the greatest increase or gain with chickens was made when most skim milk was being fed.

Buttermilk is also very valuable for laying hens, having a very high feeding value, particularly during the winter months. Either may be fed in mash mixtures or in a drinking fountain.

Dust Bath Is Essential.

Remember that the dust bath is essential to the healthfulness of fowls, especially of the chicken kind; hence facilities for a dust bath should always be provided. A liberal supply of ashes in the bath makes it better, and if lice or mites are feared, pulverized sulphur may be mixed in it to great advantage.

Prevent Egg-Eating Habit.

The egg-eating habit is usually prevented by the use of trap nests. Practically, the hen is a machine for making shell and flesh from raw materials.

MOST EFFECTIVE DUST BATH

Finely Screened Coal Ashes Suffocate Vermin in Fowl's Feathers—Other Advantages.

Finely screened coal ashes make the most effective sort of a dust bath for the hens. The fine dust penetrates the fowls' feathers, and, coming in contact with lice serves to stop the breathing passages of these parasites, causing them to suffocate and die. Wood ashes are even better for this purpose, because the particles of dust are finer; but here again the lime is objectionable, since it tends to take the gloss off the plumage.

Coal ashes should be used freely on the floors of poultry buildings, for they will penetrate cracks and crevices, and will assist in destroying mites and other vermin, in dissipating noxious odors and in improving conditions generally. Still another advantage: Large quantities of the cinders will be eaten by the birds as grit, and will contribute some of the mineral nutrients. Small bits of coal will be eaten also, and will be digested.

Dust removed from a road during dry weather, which is only an annoyance to travelers, will be found beneficial in the dust boxes. Every poultry farm should have a supply on hand for winter use; for, unless dirt floors are used, these artificial means of supplying the fowls' toilet requisites must be provided. A dust bath is quite an essential to the well-being of poultry as is the regular soap-and-water variety to the human.

KEEP POULTRY HOUSE CLEAN

Fatal Disease, Commonly Called "Lungers," Can Be Prevented by Attention to Quarters.

Many deaths among poultry, particularly among chicks, come from moldy feed and moldy litter in poultry houses. The mold when eaten by the fowls causes a fatal disease commonly called "lungers." The fowl stands in a drowsy manner and eats but little. The wings droop, breathing is quickened, and a white diarrhea is present. Death is caused directly by soft, yellow growths that clog the air passages of the lungs.

There is no positive cure for the ailment, but since it is caused by moldy feed and litters, it can be entirely prevented by keeping poultry under sanitary conditions. This is only one of the many troubles arising from unclean conditions. Include the chickenhouse in the spring cleaning and avoid them all.

Way to Carry Fowl.

The old method of carrying fowls by the feet, heads down, is a cruel practice, and very seldom seen on a practical farm nowadays. The proper way is to allow the bird's body to rest on the arm, holding the feet firmly with the hand.

Grain Feed at Night.

This is the season when a good grain feed at night is worth while, and more corn can be used to advantage now than at any other season. It's wonderful how a full crop at night helps to carry the fowl in comfort, despite a freezing temperature.

The Kentucky Delegation Is A Power at Washington.

Washington, March 25.—While the representatives in Congress from the State of Kentucky always are prominent in the framing of national legislation, it is a matter of comment and a cause for gratification on the part of all Kentuckians here, that the recognition of Kentucky Democratic members of Congress, has fortunately placed them in positions where they have been called upon during the past several months to do such work in support of administration plans, and for the interests of the country at large, as seldom fails to the representatives of any one State.

Naturally, the stirring events connected with the various international problems which have confronted the administration in the recent past, and especially those problems which recently have had to do with Mexico, stand out more prominently than any of the latter often are. In the Senate, Senators James and Beckham, in their respective capacities, have been able to aid the administration to an extent probably which two Senators from no other one State have been able to do.

Senator Beckham is now engaged with his colleagues on the Senate Military Committee in framing a program under which the committee's army bill may be put thru in satisfactory shape. Senator Beckham as heretofore pointed out, has given practically all of his time this winter to attendance upon both day and night sessions of his committee, while the arguments before it were being heard and, since the arguments were closed, upon executive sessions framing the bill. Now that the bill is ready, the attention naturally, of the committee is confined to plans for its presentation on the floor of the Senate. This work not only has been arduous, but it also has been trying as a result of unusually dry and technical character of the matters submitted. The fact, however, that Senator Beckham has a record for faithful attendance upon those committee meetings, said to be equaled by no other member of the committee, has put him in a position where his advice and counsel will be of very great value to Chairman Chamberlain and the administration during the time this bill is being considered.

Senator James, who is one of the leaders on the floor, has likewise been prompt in his attendance on sessions of the Senate, and always ready, when the occasion required, to take the lead in supporting and advancing all matters in which the administration and the country were interested. Senator James' influence and his knowledge of parliamentary situations have resulted in his being called upon several times to take the initiative in handling important matters which have come up, and he also has been called upon to preside over the Senate on occasions when vital matters were at stake.

In all instances in which matters affecting international affairs have reached a critical stage at this session, and where a voice was necessary, Kentucky's two Senators have been found voting with the President.

Representative Swager Sherley has long been recognized as one of the authorities, if not the leading authority, in the House, on all legislative matters having to do with the national defense. Mr. Sherley, in his capacity as chairman of the sub-committee on fortifications, has occupied a position which calls for frequent conferences with the army and navy heads, and he has just returned from the South with a delegation of naval officers, where they went for the purpose of witnessing tests of efficiency on the part of naval officers and men, off the coast of Florida. Mr. Sherley's speech on a motion to favor the McLemore resolution, made as the representative of the administration, was one of the notable efforts during that historic debate.

Representative J. Campbell Cantrill, in his capacity as a member of the Rules Committee, was frequently called upon by the administration during the recent tense situation which prevailed over the warning resolutions, and he did much in that capacity to aid in forming a rule which met with the President's desires, and he also spoke for the committee in defense of the President's program.

Representative W. J. Fields, a member of the House Military Committee, gave up his time almost entirely during the period of several weeks that the militia bill was being discussed and in process of framing, and his advice and suggestions were valuable in getting this bill into shape. Mr. Fields, like Chairman Hay, a strong friend of the State militia organizations, had them in mind during all of this work. He also spoke as a member of the committee when the bill was up for discussion in the House. Mr. Fields at all times backed the administration in its program.

The other Democratic members of the House from Kentucky, Messrs. Ben Johnson, A. B. Rouse, Harvey Helm, A. W. Barkley, R. Y. Thomas and D. H. Kinchloe, while doing capable work on their respective committees, have also been right back of the administratino in connection with the many matters it has had up touching international affairs.

One-Cent Letter Postage.

The movement for one-cent letter postage appears to be making some progress. Fifty-three separate bills calling for a one-cent rate on letters delivered in the city in which they originate have been introduced in Congress during the present session, fifty-four of these being introduced in the House of Representatives, twenty two by democrats and twenty-two by Republicans. In the Senate two Democrats have presented similar bills, and seven Republicans have fathered measures for the lower letter postage rate. It may thus be seen that the campaign has no political significance, but that it is being waged on behalf of the letter users of the country in an earnest effort to lower the present rate charged for carrying letters. One-cent postage would save a lot of money for the letter writers of this country, but it probably would mean an indefinite continuance of the postal deficit. The department now is in a measure self-sustaining—and as Uncle Sam is needing money for his preparedness program these facts may militate against a reduction.

Missouri has forged ahead of Kentucky as a bluegrass State. Also as every other kind of a State.—Springfield, Mo., Republican.

LITTLE BUT A MEMORY

Famous Battleship Oregon Has Had Its Day.

Seventeen years ago the name of Oregon was on the lips of every American. It had rounded the Horn on a record-breaking voyage of 18,000 miles and then won additional renown in the battle of Santiago bay. The Oregon was the pride of Uncle Sam—the queen of the seas. For years, however, it has been out of date. Officially it has been rated as a second-class vessel; by the more flippant as junk. Now the navy department has got rid of it by presenting it to the state of California for use by its naval militia. So runs the world away—for battleships as well as for men, observes the Sioux City Journal.

Who that recalls the war with Spain will ever forget the Oregon? Foreseeing a break with Spain, Washington ordered it to sail from Mare Island navy yard at San Francisco to Key West. The long distance run proved to be a most spectacular undertaking. War was declared while the Oregon was on its way, and fears for its safety were entertained until it hove in sight, reports having been set afloat that Spain had sent out a fleet to intercept it. The long trip was remarkable for the fact that the battleship stopped nowhere except for coal and was not delayed an hour by any breakdown in its machinery. Capt. Charles Edgar Clark was in command, and his name became almost as famous as that of the Oregon. He is one of the few of those who took leading roles in the Spanish-American war who are still alive.

Nor did the Oregon rest on its laurels after it had steamed into Key West late in May, 1898. It had been brought from the Pacific to the Atlantic for business, and that business was to fight. It proceeded at once to Santiago and in the battle of July 3 with Admiral Cervera's fleet was in the thick of the trouble from the first to last. To the Oregon belongs credit for forcing the surrender of the Vizcaya and the Christobal Colon and possibly for saving the Brooklyn, the flagship of Commodore Schley.

Yet today this one time bulldog of the navy is not considered of enough account in the national armament to be kept in the service! So many changes have come about in the making of battleships the once wonderful Oregon is now a fit subject for scrap heap. It was a great vessel in its day, and around it cluster hallowed memories, but more than that cannot be said for it.

Let anyone who has a notion that the United States navy has not been growing in the last 20 years compare a list of the vessels which then made up our defense at sea with a list of the vessels of 1915. Where then the Iowa, the Indiana and others stood proudly at the head of the procession now they humbly fall in far behind the Arizona, the Pennsylvania and others of later make and more generous proportions. Yet the Arizona's day and the Pennsylvania's day also will come as has come that of the Oregon, and as came that of the Monitor and that of Old Ironsides.

USEFUL AT ALL TIMES

DRESSING SACQUE THAT WILL BE FOUND GREAT CONVENIENCE.

Suggestion Well Worth Adopting by the Woman Who Likes to Have Pretty Things to Wear—Material of Many Kinds.

To be really at home, a woman should have a number of dressing sacques, "sault-de-lits" and negligé jackets, which are elaborate enough to wear when informal callers drop in unexpectedly, or when they are donned as dinner jackets on the occasions when one is dining quite en famille and must dress after dinner for some function.

This design can be used for making up all these various kinds of sacques and jackets. As a dressing sacque it could be made of flannel, embroidered or braided around the borders, or it could be decorated on the edges with a wash satin border, or with an attractive lace ruffle. All these styles wash, and the dressing sacque demands washing, because it is worn when the hair is being dressed and the hands manicured, and morning letters answered.

Since this sacque is worn in rooms of varying degrees of warmth and chilliness, it is needful to have a set of sacques in several materials. Flannel, cotton corduroy, which is much worn—Chinese and Japanese printed silks, American wash silks, Japanese cotton crepes, and some of the English chintzes. For the summer, the thin silks and crepes and dainty lawns, with ruffled edges make up charming dressing sacques.

The sault-de-lit is more elaborate than a dressing sacque and is made of lingerie, delicate silks, and any soft, fine cotton weaves, trimmed with lace and ribbon. It is worn over the low-neck nightie and also when sipping tea in bed of a morning. The sault-de-lit is generally cut shorter than the dressing sacque.

When this design is used as a negligé for informal reception of woman guests and for the quiet dinner, before the opera, there should be a sash, or belt of ribbon, worn around the waist, and the sacque should be of Chinese or Japanese-printed silk, or chiffon, or lace, all very much trimmed and colorful.—Washington Star.

CONSIDER THE WALLPAPER

Decoration That Will Go Far to Make or Mar the Appearance of Large or Small Room.

Dark days and lack of sunlight bring out some defects in house furnishing that we never realize during the summer. Take, for example, a room with a northern exposure that has been papered in grayish tones—one of those sensible papers that will not show dirt. How chill and melancholy it looks in the winter, even though well-warmed and lighted. If the gray paper were replaced with buff or soft yellow the room would have a cheerful look at all seasons. In such a room ecru curtains are preferable to pure white, as they give a sunny tone to the room.

A small room is always made smaller by an elaborate, heavily-patterned wallpaper, that seems to project right out into the room, and when dark colors prevail in the heavy pattern the effect is very unrestful. Modern taste is shown more and more in wall papers of simple or restful design and coloring in textures that will not harbor dust. The winter gives a good opportunity for studying such improvements if they are to be made at the time of the spring cleaning.

Tulle Much Used.

Great quantities of tulle are being used on evening gowns this season, not only for fashioning the gown, but for trimming purposes, in wisps of draperies, scarfs and in one gown as a train. A black and gold evening frock shows a wide piece of tulle, caught across the back of the frock and held with jet bracelets to the wrists.

Capes of Fur.

Capes of fur are to be worn this winter. Some new models noted were of kolinsky. These had attached cravats, the long ends of which fell down its front or were thrown carelessly over the shoulder. A small flat muff of the fur accompanied the cape.

OPERATION ON A PEAR TREE

Roots Grafted and With Fresh Life Brought to It Tree Returned to Its Previous Record Crops.

The startling operations performed upon human bodies by advanced surgical methods find their counterpart in tree surgery. How a pear tree was supplied with new roots after its own had been destroyed is an example. The disease which required the drastic treatment of removing the roots of a well-grown pear is "pear blight," which can be eradicated only by cutting away all affected parts. So dangerous is this tree disease that even the knife which is used in cutting away the bark, wood or roots must be sterilized after each use, in order to prevent the contagion from spreading to sound parts of the tree.

Should the disease attack the roots, as in the instance shown in the photograph, it is necessary to supply nourishment to the tree by grafting to the trunk a number of healthy young "suckers." These are well rooted and are set into the ground about the diseased tree, while the upper ends are grafted upon the trunk, so as to carry the sap from the ground by healthy channels.—Popular Science Monthly.

MICE DAMAGE YOUNG TREES

Expert of Ohio College of Agriculture Recommends Removal of All Litter Around Trunks.

The damage to trees, particularly young trees, from the gnawing of mice during the winter time is very great. Last winter in particular there was an unusual abundance of field mice. When the snow thawed, the burrows of mice could be seen extending in all directions.

Many young trees planted in sod or where manure or mulch came closely around their bases, were completely girdled by these pests. As a precautionary measure Professor Paddock of the Ohio College of Agriculture recommends that litter of all kinds be removed from around the trunks of young trees, and that a six-inch mound of earth be thrown about the trunks of such trees. This protection of earth also safeguards to a certain extent against winter injury.

One does not want to go to the other extreme, however, and remove all covering from the young tree roots. Rabbits are always present and the possibility of injuries from them should also be guarded against.

One of the ways to prevent rabbits from gnawing trees is to protect the trunks with some form of tree protector. This may either be a cylinder of fine-meshed woven wire, or a strip of wood veneer. In some neighborhoods it is the practice to wind the trunks of trees with cloth.

COVERING FOR SMALL FRUITS

Any Strawy Manure, Chaff, Etc., Will Provide Sufficient Protection for the Plants.

It is a common observation to see clover and other plants heaved on clayey land, by frosts. Small fruits are among the plants affected by the alternate freezing and thawing in the spring. Nature usually prepares the brambles and other small fruits for this experience by throwing about them leaves of trees and other material, but it often occurs through the interference of man that this practice of nature is frustrated and the plants are exposed to the elements. Man, however, can atone for his intervention by giving the exposed plants a substitute covering. Any strawy manure, chaff, leaves, etc., forked about the plants will provide protection such as nature intended them to have. The same covering will better insure the plants against prolonged cold spells.

Aid Strawberry Runners.

If strawberry runners are not rooting well, throw a little dirt over ends of the runners or places at which plantlets have started.

ALENE'S ROMANCE.

By CATHERINE CRANMER.

Alene settled herself in the scratchy plush seat of the local train, pleased with the prospect of spending her two weeks' vacation on a farm. Her many visits to the movies, where broad-shouldered, good-looking young farmers or cowboys were the heroes had caused her to picture a farm as the place of all others offering the romantic possibilities for which her young soul yearned.

She had been rather nettled more than once at Will Egger's seeming oversight of the romantic in the various movies to which he had accompanied her. He was always figuring how the plot worked out, and frequently when the most adorable hero had rescued the heroine from the villain Will would only give a grunt about it being the "same old gag."

At this stage of her day dream, the porter stuck his head in the door and shouted: "Waynesburg! Waynesburg!" That being her destination, Alene grabbed her suitcase and as she tripped down the steps she became the center of interest to the dozen listless-looking people. The prospect for adventure was far from promising.

Just then the eyes of all left Alene and went in the direction from which came the sound of a rushing automobile and excited and laughing voices. A big touring car swerved from the main road on the open space at the end of the station and a young man sprang from the machine to grasp the handrail of the last coach just as the train moved past the station.

Alene hoped she would be taken into the automobile to be conveyed to Rural Retreat farm. She was accosted at that moment by a tall, lank young fellow.

"Are you waiting to go to Rural Retreat Farm?" The face from which the nasal voice leaked out was sunburned almost to a hister. His mouth oozed the brown liquid and the damp odor proclaiming the tobacco chewer. As they jogged along the dusty road, she made casual inquiry about whether the occupants of the automobile were stopping at Rural Retreat.

"Well, I guess not!" he ejaculated. "They're a lot of swells a-visitin' up to Randolph's mansion."

Alene's appetite was not tempted by the midday dinner. In the big yard after dinner, Alene found little of interest save a hammock made of barrel staves and padded with a bedquilt.

The long afternoons dragged insufferably, and the day before the end of the week, for which she had paid her board in advance, she was so desperately lonely that she asked to be taken to the train. As the boy was driving her along in his buggy, she saw three galloping horsemen approaching, and for an instant there revived within her the hope that her movie dream was coming true after all. As the riders drew near, she recognized one of them as the youth who had driven the touring car to the station the day she arrived. But, alas for her dream! The three horsemen went galloping by the slow-moving buggy without even a glance at the occupants, and the last hope for a romantic adventure died out of Alene's heart.

Not until she was well on her journey home did her sense of humor come to her rescue. Then she saw how she had foolishly allowed her imagination to get her into a predicament. She reached home that evening just as her mother and father were sitting down to a dainty, but simple dinner in the darkened dining room of their little flat. They laughed heartily at her accounts of her disillusionment about the retreat and the rustic hero she had expected to find there.

"And now we're going to celebrate my return from the rural regions by going to a picture show, but I hope they won't show any rustic heroes," said Alene.

"That reminds me," exclaimed her mother. "Did you hear about Will Egger winning a thousand-dollar prize for the best scenario picturing a modern business romance? Isn't that great?" Before Alene could reply her father called her from the front door, bidding her come to greet an old friend. She was not surprised greatly when she found the "old friend" to be Will Egger.

"Oh, Will, but I'm glad to get back to civilization," said Alene after the first greetings were over. "I'm inclined to think the rustic romances are all on the films."

"I came by to ask your parents how you liked your retreat," laughed Will, "but maybe you'll go to the picture show with me."

"I'll go if you'll guarantee no rustic adventures," asserted Alene.

"I can safely promise that," said Will, "for they are giving the first run tonight of a modern business romance."

"Oh, and congratulations on your home run for the big prize! Mother was just telling me about it when you came."

"What I want to tell you, Alene, is that I've been hoping that thousand I won might help make a little home, if you'll help me run it."

What Goode & Dunkie

have to say about cream separators this week

IT will be worth your while to find out what some of your neighbors who use De Laval Cream Separators think of their machines before you buy any separator.

About the best thing we can say for the De Laval is that all the farmers around here who use it are boosters.

It does good work for them and pleases them, and we know it will please you.

Make it a point to ask your neighbor about his De Laval

There are nearly two million satisfied De Laval users throughout the world. More De Laval Separators are in use than all other makes combined. It isn't the cheapest, but the majority of separator users have found out by experience that it is the best and by far the most economical separator to own.

We want to tell you about an arrangement we have whereby you can make partial payment at time of purchase and pay the balance on such liberal terms that the De Laval will save its cost while you are paying for it.

Come in and see us the first time you have a chance and talk it over.

Sooner or later you will buy a DE LAVAL

Hamilton, who was recently called as the pastor of the Walton Baptist church, preached for the congregation last Sunday night and has arranged to move his family here from Louisa, Lawrence county, and is expected here this week. Wm. H. Metcalfe, Dawson Chamchambers, J. Wm. Rusk and M. M. Lucas, of Kenton county, spent a part of last week at Germantown, Ohio, looking over the fine herd of Holstine cattle owned by the Zehring Brothers, and bought nine head for their dairy interest in Kenton county. Mr. Metcalfe states that he has been investigating for a couple of years as to the best dairy cattle to purchase, and he believes that the Zehring Bros.' herd is unqualifiedly the best.

H. M. Herndon, of Folsom, Grant county, was a visitor here and at Crittenden last Saturday. Mr. Herndon has bought a farm at Campbellsburg, Henry county and will move there this week. Grant county loses one of its best citizens and high class gentlemen in the departure of Mr. Herndon. Walton wanted him very much and offered to kill the fatted calf and do a lot of other things if he would cast his lot with us but he was offered better advantages at Campbellsburg.

The residence of Isaac H. Lunsford, on his farm near Goshen, Kenton county, was entirely destroyed by fire last Saturday. The family was absent at the time, having gone that morning to Crittenden to do some trading, and everything in the house with the exception of one feather bed was consumed by the flames. The origin of the fire is a mustery as there was apparently no fire about the premises, and the fire in the cooking stove had died out some time before the family left the house, but is supposed that it must have caught from the flue. Mr. Lunsford had $500 in the Kenton County Insurance Company on the building, which was worth about $1,500, and the loss on the contents was about $1,500, making the net loss aboyt $2,500. The house was a two story with six rooms.

Robert O. Powers Dead.

Boone county lost another of its valuable citizens last Saturday in the death of Robert O. Powers, of Verona, who passed to his heavenly reward after a long illness of Internal cancer. Death gently closed his eyes in that dreamless sleep as the sun had reached its meridian, and this useful life touched its zenith. In his long suffering he was patient and uncomplaining and met his fate with a fortitude that only the bravest can exhibit. Mr. Powers was a son of John Powers, one of the pioneers of the Verona neighborhood, and his entire life was spent in that locality. He was sixty-one years and four months old at the time of death. He was married to Miss Belle Myers, daughter of Joseph Myers, of near Verona, and their thirty-five years of wedded felicity witnessed their greatest happiness and pleasure. The widow and five children mourn the loss of a dear husband and most affectionate father. The children are Omer K., J. Cloyed, Mrs. Bessie Conrad, of Dry Ridge, Misses Blanche and Ruby Powers. Two brothers and two sisters survive viz: J. M. Powers, of Verona, and Geo. B. Powers, of Walton, Mrs. J. C. Byland and Mrs. Jesse Franks, of Covington. His children and grandchildren were his heart's delight and nothing was more pleasing to him than to be with them. He was a good and faithful citizen and honorable in all his transactions and his loss will be keenly felt by a large circle. Mr. Powers had been a consistent member of the New Bethel Baptist Church for many years, and his funeral took place from the church Tuesday morning at 10:30, the service being conducted by Rev. A. Kirtley Johnson, of Walton, and Rev. H. C. Wayman, of Louisville, the house being filled to overflowing with sorrowing relatives and friends.

Pasteurized Milk.

That there is no valid objection to pasteurization when properly performed and that the process makes safer even the most carefully handled and inspected milk is the conclusion of a new professional paper of the Department of Agriculture, in which are set forth the most recent conclusions of scientists in regard to this matter. It seems probable, says this paper, that within the next two years a large proportion of the milk supply in the large cities will be pasteurized. There is already a marked tendenct in this direction. About ten years ago only five percent of the milk supply of New York was pasteurized. In 1911-12 88 per cent was treated in this way. At the present time 80 per cent of the milk supply of Boston is pasteurized, and there are corresponding increases in many of the smaller cities.

Before the value of pasteurization as a hyglenic measure was as well recognized as it is today, it was practiced in secret by a number of milk dealers as a means of preserving milk and preventing it from souring. Its commercial value in this respect is undoubtedly great, but its chief function is the destruction of disease-producing organisms. Proper pasteurization should destroy about 99 per cent of all the bacteria in the milk, although when the bacterial count of the raw milk is low the reduction may be somewhat smaller. Tho efficiency of the process, it is pointed out, can not be based on the per cent. but rather on the character of the bacteria destroyed.

Did The Proper Thing.

The fiscal court at its session Tuesday leased to the Big Bone Springs Water Co., the county's land at Big Bone Springs for a period of twenty-five years at an annual rent of $50. It appears to the RECORDER that the Fiscal Court did the proper thing. The property has not in the memory of man yielded the county any revenue of consequence and the action of the court Tuesday may lead up to a development in the Big Bone neighborhood that will be of considerable consequence to the entire county. The only objection to the lease was urged by Esquires R. H. Tanner and Wm Stephens, and they objected only to the length of time for which it was leased.

Stories From American History

There is no more interesting document connected with the history of the Revolution than the original order book of General Washington, now in the possession of a New York State woman, extracts being printed as showing how Washington controlled his army and some of the rules he made for its guidance: "The Captain of the Guard will go the rounds once, and the Sergeants twice at least, each night, and see that the sentries are alert, and keep a good lookout"

"The General is sorry to learn that notwithstanding his orders, respecting the property of the inhabitants, some soldiers have destroyed the fences and taken the fruit near the camp, and he strictly forbids such conduct for the future"

"Hugh Cahaggon, a transient person, and Richard Kief, a Nicles on's regiment, are convicted of stealing a coat and several firelocks from Dicken's company They are sentenced to 39 lashes each, to be executed tomorrow morning at guard mounting, after which Cahaggon shall be turned out of camp"

"The practice of sentries sitting down while on their post is so unsoldierly that I am ashamed to see it prevail so much in the army"

"Officers and men will be careful in case of damp weather to have their arms kept dry and fit for action"

"Jacob Jones, of Capt Stenrod's company, shall receive 30 lashes for being found sleeping at his post"

"The General directs that for the future the men report to their respective alarm posts at 4 o'clock in the morning and attend prayers at half after five"

"Whereas, the soldiers bathing themselves in water in the heat of the day tends to destroy their health, the General orders that no soldier go into the river between the hours of seven in the morning and six in the afternoon"

"It shall be the duty of officers to see that no infamous rascal skulks in time of action, and that if he hide himself or retreat from the enemy without the orders of the commanding officer, he will instantly be shot down as an example of cowardice"

"The tatto in the future shall be at nine o'clock in the evening. Prayers for the future will be attended immediately after beating the retreat"

"August 14, 1776 The General orders three days' provisions to be immediately cooked, that the soldiers have their canteens filled, and be ready to meet the enemy at a short notice"

"The General is sorry to hear that the practice of playing cards greatly prevails in this camp He orders that such practice be wholly laid aside for the future"

"As the barracks and grounds in this camp continue to be dirty and filthy, and since a regard to decency and the preservation of th eir health will not induce the men to be suitably clean, the General desires and directs that the officers exert themselves to keep the camp clean"

"August 23, 1776 The enemy have now landed on Long Island, and the hour is fast approaching in which the honor and success of this army and the safety of our blessed country depends Remember, officers and soldiers, that you are freemen fighting for the blessings of liberty, that slavery be your portion, and that of your posterity, if you do not acquit yourselves like men"

"The General is resolved to put a stop to plundering or converting either public or private property to their own use, for let it ever be remembered that no plundering army was ever a successful one"

The Washington diary is filled with such advice as the following: "Remember how your courage and spirits have been despised and traduced by their cruel invasion, though they have found by dear experience at Boston, Charlestown and other places what a few brave men contending in their own land in the best of causes, can do against base hirelings and mercenaries Be cool, but determined, don't fire at a distance, but wait for orders from your officers It is the General's express orders that if any man attempt to skulk, he be instantly shot down, but he hopes no such scoundrel will be found in this army, but instead, that every one will resolve to conquer or die and trust in the smiles of Heaven upon so just a cause The General has no doubt that they will, by a glorious victory, save their country and acquire to themselves immortal honor"

Through the discovery of the Washington Order Book, the character of the General-in-chief of the General-in-chief of the Revolution is laid open to the scrutiny of the generations with deeper insight than has ever before been possible Other than its importance as a military record it is a true analysis of the man himself

It is desired that every dairyman should know that the Kentucky Experiment Station is anxious to assist the dairymen in making official advanced registry for their cows. The Station has employed a man who is sent to make such tests and the cost amounts to his traveling expenses. This makes the cost to the dairymen very small indeed. Every man who has pure bred cows should avail himself of this opportunity to secure this assistance to get his herd on a first class recorded basis.

THE STATE PRESS.

Montgomery county farmers will plant large crops of hemp and tobacco. Rye and wheat are looking well in that county.

The latest estimates show that Clark county will this year produce nearly one-half the entire hemp crop in Kentucky.

Clark county farmers are busy preparing for a large crop of tobacco and the largest crop of hemp they ever raised.

Bath county farmers have hundreds of tobacco beds sowed and most of the sod land intended for tobacco has been broken.

Adair county farmers are getting along nicely with their spring work. Wheat, oats and rye look fine. Adair county hogs have brought about $35,000 in the last six weeks.

Fleming county will pitch an average acreage of tobacco. Wheat is promising. The old crop of red clover is mostly all winter killed, while that sowed last spring looks fine.

More Powell county land than is usual will be planted in tobacco this year, while a considerable crop of hemp will be sowed. A small crop of wheat was sowed last fall. Rye and oats look fine.

Fayette county stock is in fine condition. Ten cents for lambs and forty cents for wool are being offered. Farmers have considerable corn on hand, and it has been selling as high as 85 cents a bushel.

Bourbon county will grow a large acreage of tobacco this year, prices realized for last year's crop being very satisfactory. Fruit growers have done a great deal of spraying this spring.

Many Crittenden county farmers are going into the dairy business and only about half the usual crop of tobacco will be raised this year. Jersey cows are in demand at from seventy-five to one hundred dollars.

T. A. Ledford, a planter of Hickman, this past week sold a bale of cotton in Memphis at 22 cents a pound, which is the highest price paid in that city this year, although Memphis handles 500,000 bales annually. This cotton was grown a few miles below Hickman.

Government Whitewash.

We give below the formula for government whitewash. We believe this should be published at least once each year to encourage its use on the farm. This is the season when stables, cellars fences and other structures should be whitewashed. Paint is unusually expensive, hence the demand for a serviceable whitewash that can be used as a substitute. Coloring matter may be added if the user so desires.

Take a half a bushel of unslacked lime, slack in warm water, cover it during the process to keep in the steam; strain the liquid through a fine sieve or strainer; add a peck of salt previously well dissolved in warm water; three pounds of ground rice boiled to a thin paste and stirred in boiling hot; half a pound of powdered Spanish whiting and a pound of glue which has been previously dissolved over a slow fire.

Add five gallons of hot water to the mixture stir well and let it stand for a few days, covered to keep out the dirt, strain carefully and apply hot.—Ex.

Spraying Don'ts.

1. Don't use Paris green without adding at least an equal amount of lime; twice as much lime is even better.

2. Don't spray carelessly; every part of every plant should be covered by the spraying fluid.

3. Don't waste the spraying mixture by allowing it to come out of the nozzle in a stream. A fine mist is much better.

4. Don't spray until you know just what you are doing. Follow directions carefully.

5. Don't spray while it is raining or while it looks like rain.

6. Don't neglect to keep the spraying mixture well mixed all the time.

7. Don't forget to wash out all parts of the pump, hose and nozzle, when you are through spraying.

8. Don't leave the spray pump out of doors. If taken care of it will last a life time.

A few nights ago Joe Noel, who lives on Kentucky river not far from Chinn's mines, killed a lynx that measured five feet, five inches. The animal had been committing depredations around the Noel place and when the dogs got after it, it cleaned them out in short order and ran into the river, perching itself on a small bush in the water near the shore. Not knowing what it was Mr. Noel picked up a stick and struck at it and the animal uttered a scream like a woman in distress. Mr. Noel went to the house to get his gun and during his absence the animal came to the shore and tackled the dogs a second time and then took refuge in a tree, from which Mr. Noel shot it and it proved to be a lynx. Its mate is also in the same neighborhood. The night after the lynx was killed the remaining animal entered the home of Mr. Albert Goforth and it was in such a ferocious mood that the family took refuge in another room and locked themselves in. The unwelcome visitor destroyed a sack of flour and other provisions. Mr. Noel sold the hide of the animal he killed for $7.50. Just where the two lynx came from is hard to understand for none have been seen in that vicinity for many years.—Harrodsburg Herald.

Kentucky Oil Situation.

Oil found at a depth of four feet on farms in Madison county has caused the price of acreage to advance. Experts pronounce the oil similar to that in the Irvine district, and equal to the best grades.

The discovery of the Clinton sand in Eastern Kentucky's petroleum fields opens up possibilities of deep sand development on a large scale. A test well in Boyd county, drilled to the depth of 2,200 feet, showed twenty feet of the Clinton formation, with a show of petroleum. This, the deepest test ever drilled in Kentucky to show a petroleum producing formation at that depth, may be the forerunner of developments which will open a productive sand far below any now producing oil.

The search for production in the Berea grit, the deepest sand now showing a production in Kentucky, has been greatly stimulated by the constant advances in the crude oil market. Test work started early in the year is beginning to bear results. The most recent wildcat completion was a well in Martin-co completed last week and showing a good yield below 1,200 feet. This well came in dry and was so reported, but when operators returned for an inspection, after two days, the hole was standing full of oil, the well having drilled itself in.

Wolfe, Morgan and Lawrence counties, developed fields in the deep sand area, have been making a little better showing in new production. In each of these fields late strikes are reported, small, however, in capacity.

Late results in shallow fields show a decided gain. The largest number of competitions in the history of the field is credited to Estell county for the week, nine completions being recorded, of of which only one was a failure. One well started at 100 barrels daily, while a number of completions made 25 barrels each.

A quickening in new work is noted in the districts of lower Kentucky. The new field of Allen county, especially, is coming to the front and has lately contribut the front and has lately contribut best of which drilled several days ago, made 200 barrels daily. In the new area opened by this strike several new wells are now drilling. Wayne county, the largest field in the lower end of the State, shows three new wells for the week, with an output of forty barrels.

Kentucky's better grade petroleum now commands $1.95 a barrel, or nearly three times the market price of oil when the pipe lines were first extended into the State.

Seven cogent reasons why one-crop farming is not safe farming all of which should command the thought of those Kentucky farmers who go in for tobacco to the exclusion of almost all other products, are given by Bradford Knapp:

Because the system depends upon market and crop conditions of the one crop alone Failure of crop or failure of market alike bring serious disaster.

Because it does not provide for the maintenance of soil fertility

Because it fails to provide for a sufficient live-stock industry to consume the waste products of the farm and make its waste lands productive

Because it does not provide for a system of farm management under which labor, teams and tools may be used to the fullest advantage

Because it brings return in cash but once a year instead of turning the money over more than once a year

Because it does not produce the necessary foods to supply the people upon the farm and keep them in health and strength

It limits knowledge, narrows citizenship, and does not foster home buildings, but does encourage commercial farming

The compulsory school attendance law, it is believed has been made effective by the remodification of the school laws, approved by Gov Stanley Saturday. The old law provided for a fine only, but under the present law it is made a misdemeanor not to send a child to school, and the parent or guardian, if fined, may be sent to jail to serve out the fine for nonpayment Heretofore the compulsory school attendance law has been a dead letter in some sections, but the more drastic punishment is expected to accomplish its purpose

Giltner Bros., sold last week to Dunaway & Lambert, of Orrville, Ala., 14 Holstein heifers at $150 per head. They also sold to Enochs & Wartman, of Jackson, Mississippi, nine Hereford cows at $500 per head.—Eminence Advance News.

According to the latest information the Big Bone Springs Water Co., seems to be making considerable progress, and before many months its business will be developed to a point that is surprising to those who have had but little faith in the enterprise The probability is it will not be long until it takes advantage of its option on the 40 acres known as the hotel property and the 20 acre grove. The old hotel building will be repaired at a cost of not less than $5,000, which architects claim will put it in a very habitable condition This work will not require much time and the old hostelry will again show considerable activity The company has been bottling and shipping water, and a modern outfit for that work will be installed to meet the increasing demand for the celebrated water which, heretofore, has been put on the market very sparingly

It is hoped the company will soon have a health resort in operation at Big Bone Springs that will be second to none in the country

Banks Hudson, Danville, sold his crop of hemp grown on 125 acres of land. The crop weighed 170,000 pounds and was sold to local dealers for $20,000, or about 12 cents a pound. The largest acreage of hemp grown in Boyle county in a decade will be planted the coming season.

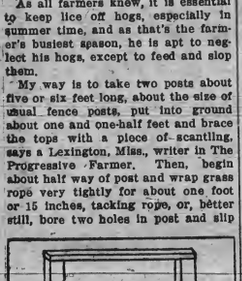
FARM STOCK

ADVANTAGE OF EARLY LAMBS

If Ewe and Young Are Given Good Care and Dry Shelter April Lamb is Quite Desirable.

The April lamb is desirable with most sheep owners. In order to have the April lamb, says Better Farming, it is necessary to breed the ewes in November, since the period of gestation is five months with these animals. April is often cold and stormy and the pastures do not get much start, but if the ewe and her lambs receive good care and have a comfortable dry shed or stable to stay in out of the inclement weather, then the April lamb is much more desirable than the lamb born a month later.

The April lamb is ready to eat May grass; that is, it has the grass-nibbling habit started, and soon is on both a grass and milk diet. The early lamb has many advantages over the later lamb in the matter of being able to feed on the summer herbage and keep up a constant and vigorous growth through the summer months, when the younger lamb often has embarrassments of the fall season that it cannot so successfully combat, and if the milk supply of the ewe is checked or diminished from a shortage of pasture the late lamb is more seriously affected than the older one.



There is more difference between the early lamb and the late one than appears in the young of other kinds of animals on the farm. The flocking habit of sheep, no doubt, influences considerably in this respect, since the sheep incline to crowd together in bunches as the weather grows warm and the flies become troublesome. There is no animal so sensitive to the annoyance of the fly as the sheep, and this works a great hardship on the younger lambs, as the mother sheep is less attentive to the wants of her lamb.

HOMEMADE OILER FOR SWINE

Hogs Soon Learn to Go to Posts to Scratch When Vermin Become Too Persistent.

As all farmers knew, it is essential to keep lice off hogs, especially in summer time, and as that's the farmer's busiest season, he is apt to neglect his hogs, except to feed and slop them.

My way is to take two posts about five or six feet long, about the size of usual fence posts, put into ground about one and one-half feet and brace the tops with a piece of scantling, says a Lexington, Miss., writer in The Progressive Farmer. Then, begin about half way of post and wrap grass rope very tightly for about one foot or 15 inches, tacking rope, or, better still, bore two holes in post and slip through and tie securely. Saturate this with tar and grease, axle grease and coal oil or dip. The hogs will go to the posts to scratch, when the vermin get too persistent, and seem to learn that it was put there for that purpose.

GOOD FEED FOR BEEF CATTLE

Prediction Is Made That Silage Will Be One of Greatest Factors in Reducing Cost of Beef.

Silage will become one of the greatest factors in the future in reducing the cost of producing beef. It is only within the last few years that silage has been fed beef cattle.

At the Indiana station an experiment including a ration of sixteen pounds of shelled corn, three pounds of cotton-seed meal and thirty pounds of silage was compared with a grain ration containing fifteen pounds of silage and five pounds of clover and also with a third ration containing ten pounds of clover but no silage.

The price per steer was as follows: $21.50 for the full feed of silage, $16.80 for the half feed of silage and $12.79 for the lot receiving no silage.

Advantage With Sheep.

Though the raising of sheep gives the advantage over other meat-producing animals, in that a flock of ewes not only produces lambs, but also a crop of wool, with well-managed flocks the crop of wool just about pays for the keeping of the ewes. This will leave the lambs as clear profit.

RIGHT MANAGEMENT OF BOAR

Animal Should Not Be Allowed to Run With Sows—Sure Way of Reducing Number in Litter.

(By H. M. COTTRELL.)

The boar should serve a sow but once, and two sows a day should be the limit for a mature boar, and then he should have a day's rest after every second or third day. He should be used before being fed. Handled in this way, a mature boar is sufficient for 50 sows. Overservice results in pigs that are dead, weak or puny at birth. Probably the greatest cause of pigs born dead or born so weak that they soon die, is allowing the boar to run with the sows. It is a sure way of reducing the number raised in a litter and of reducing the profits.

A boar should not be used for much service until he is at least twelve months old. A fully matured boar produces the most vigorous pigs, other things being equal, and if properly fed and handled, may be profitably kept for several years. His tushes should be cut or knocked off as often as they show considerable size.

Mark the sow when bred and record the date so that she can be separated from the other sows and become accustomed to her farrowing quarters two weeks before the pigs are due.

WINTER SHELTER FOR SHEEP

Comfortable Shed Facing South Affords Ample Protection for Animals During Winter Season.

A roomy shed facing the south, with a hard, dry earth floor, makes the best shelter for sheep. Feed in racks and troughs; what straw is not eaten should be used for bedding. The manure should not accumulate as it will produce footrot and other ailments. A small quantity of flaxseed-meal may be added to the grain ration. Second-crop clover, bright corn fodder, wheat and oat straw may be fed to advantage.

Ensilage is growing in favor as a sheep food. The Wool Markets and Sheep Reporter says: "As sheep become extremely fond of ensilage, it is necessary to feed small quantities of it at the start, that they do not overeat. Within a few weeks, however, they may safely be given all they will eat at each meal. Ensilage is found to successfully take the place of roots, though care should be taken that it is properly prepared. It is even better in winter time than green corn is in summer, because the animals will eat stalks and leaves up clean, and the customary waste in stalks is saved."

A practical sheep farmer says: "Sour ensilage made from immature corn is not a safe food, as it is liable to cause indigestion and stomach troubles. Sweet ensilage, fed in small quantities, in connection with oat and wheat straw, and mixed hay, makes an excellent feed. The flock master must use judgment in feeding his flocks."

EFFECTIVE FENCE FOR HOGS

Solid Corner Secured by Filling in Around Post With Concrete—Animals Cannot Get Out.

(By ROY M. PRICE.)

To build a good hog fence first get a solid corner. I dig holes for the corner posts three and a half feet deep and eight in each corner. I fill up around the post with concrete, five parts sand to one part cement, to three inches above ground so that water will drain off. A good height for the fence is the 30-inch with mesh at the bottom that makes them pig-tight. If a pig is kept in while he is growing he will not give any trouble when grown, provided there is enough to eat.

Boiled Potatoes for Pigs.

If potatoes are not worth more than thirty-five cents a bushel in your part of the country, boil them and feed them to the pigs. Every bushel is worth at least that price for the porkers.

Best Profits in Pigs.

Early pigs make the best profits, but don't overlook the cold spring winds when figuring out your bank balance for next fall. Keep track of the sows so you will be able to care for the little pigs at the right time.

PUBLIC HIGHWAYS

GOOD ROADS ARE NEGLECTED

Lecture Is Read to States by American Highway Association—New Jersey Took Initiative.

The American Highway association reads the states a lecture on their neglect of good roads. There are 2,250,000 miles of public road in the United States. The annual expenditure for construction and maintenance amounts to $260,000,000. Yet inadequate results are found everywhere. This is due to the lack of continuity of purpose, the lack of co-ordination in management, and the general lack of control. Of the 2,250,000 miles of roadway, less than 10 per cent is really improved. Improvement in most instances means a plowed furrow for a drain and a wagon load of gravel in a chuck hole. In fact there are only about 120,000 miles of really good road in all the 48 states. The trouble with highway construction is that often waste and graft get together.

The association has been doing some market figuring, and it finds that 450,000 miles of real highway, around the centers of population, would reduce the cost of living as well as add to the enjoyment of living. A system is proposed whereby each of the states could undertake the construction of 500 or 600 miles of highway each year. Thus in twelve years or so, with the 120,000 miles of road already improved, the nation would possess the nucleus of a fine market system. These roads, radiating from the centers of consumption, could easily be connected with the trunk highways that are now being constructed in all parts of the country, largely as a result of the activity of motor clubs.

Concentration in Washington might mean unity and co-ordination, but it would also mean increased appropriations. The work belongs to the states. It was not, says the highway association, until 1891, that the state of New Jersey took the initiative, and three years later established a department of public roads. Since then other states have followed in form, but hardly in spirit. The association places Indiana in the list of lazy commonwealths. For all the fine gravel roads it possessed a few years ago, Indiana can, apparently, no longer be regarded as a leader in highway improvement. If this is true, it is time that something were done.—Indianapolis News.

SURFACED ROADS IN COUNTRY

Ohio Leads With 28,312 Miles—Indiana Next With 26,831—Missouri Brings Up the Rear.

There are 2,273,000 miles of roads in the United States, of which 247,490 miles, or 10.9 per cent, are surfaced. Of surfaced roads Ohio has 28,312 miles; Indiana, 26,831; New York, 22,398; Georgia, 12,500; Wisconsin, 11,500; Kentucky, 10,686; Texas, 9,700; California, 9,388; Illinois, 9,000; Massachusetts, 8,928; Michigan, 8,859, and Missouri, 8,000 miles.

In 1914 6,805 state and state-aid roads were built, and 39,988 miles were maintained with state aid. The total mileage of state and state-aid roads built in the whole country up to January 1, 1915, was only 35,477 miles.

To Spend $3,000,000.

Minnesota will spend $3,000,000 for better highways. To date this year the state has given counties for state aid $750,000 for highways, which will be increased to $1,500,000 before next January. George W. Cooley, engineer of the state highway commission, recommends a one-mill tax, and making the state's share of the expense for state roads one-half.

Booster Never Quits.

The good roads booster never quits. He talks good roads until he gets them, and then he keeps reminding everybody what a blessing they are.

Roads Should Shed Water.

Country roads should be kept in such condition that they will shed every drop of water that falls on them.

Unprofitable Roads.

Bad roads are unprofitable. They put a farmer out of business and make nothing for any man.

Highway Improvement

CHICAGO-MIAMI MOTOR ROAD

Details of Work in Various Localities —Progress Made in Construction Is Remarkable.

That the Dixie highway is a road that has appealed to the people both North and South of the Mason and Dixon line is evidenced by a report from the offices of the Dixie highway association, located at Chattanooga, to the effect that fifty counties alone have spent more than $1,765,900 on the Chicago-Miami motor thoroughfare in the last six months and are preparing to spend $6,931,000 during the coming year, writes J. C. Burton in Chicago Daily News.

As the fifty counties reporting to the association represent less than a third of the total counties that are crossed by the road that lies North and South, it would not be unreasonable to estimate that approximately $5,300,000 has been expended on the Dixie highway to date and that $20,793,000 will be used to put the thoroughfare in shape in 1916.

When it is considered that the Dixie highway was routed only eight months ago, the progress made in its construction is remarkable. The large mileage of permanent roads built or under contract is an indication of the wonderful advancement made in such a short time. The fifty counties referred to report that nearly one-tenth of the distance either is paved or will be paved before another year rolls around. Using only a multiple of two to represent the other 112 counties, it can be seen that a good part of the road is or will be of a permanent type of construction.

The preparations being made for even greater progress along this line are highly gratifying to the officials of the Dixie highway association. Several divisions of the thoroughfare are planning paved roads for their entire stretch, the most notable of these being the links from Chicago to Danville, Ill., from Toledo to Cincinnati, O.; from Jacksonville to Miami, Fla., and from Tallahassee to Bartow, Fla.

The reports by states show that in seven out of the eighteen counties of Kentucky there has been expended $135,000. In Ohio, eight counties out of twelve and exclusive of Hamilton county, of which Cincinnati is the county seat, have spent $338,000. Five counties out of twenty-two in Florida spent $601,000 on the Dixie highway in the past six months. Four counties out of five in Illinois, not including Cook county, report a total of $252,000 for road improvement. Ten counties out of twenty-four in Georgia spent $95,000.

In the fifty counties reporting to the association provisions have been made for spending $6,931,000 on the Dixie highway in 1916. This amount is divided by states as follows:

Florida	$2,505,000
Illinois	1,250,000
Ohio	1,204,000
Tennessee	924,000
Kentucky	765,000
Georgia	151,000
Indiana	126,000

CARE FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Compelling Helpless Child to Force Its Way Along Mud-Fouled Highway Is a Crime.

All good roads lead to a schoolhouse. In good roads there is a consideration of the school child. Compel a helpless child to force its way along a mud-fouled thoroughfare and a crime is committed. Its health is endangered and its mind is dwarfed. He who would not strive to overcome a calamity it not civilized though garbed in the broadcloth of an honored citizen. A community should, above all, consider the school children's welfare. The destiny of a nation rests in this careful study and the thoroughfare along which their little feet must travel cannot be constructed with too much precision to gain the happy result. Texas can never become great until she becomes civilized.—Delta (Tex.) Courier.

Raise More Turkeys.

If turkeys are let roam over the fields they will get three-fourths of their growth on weeds and insects that would otherwise damage the growing crops. They will need very little attention until after cold weather destroys the insects. Then feed some corn to fatten them for market.

Arouses Farmer's Interest.

One result of nearly every farmer owning an automobile is that he pricks up his ears when good roads are mentioned.

EARTH ROADS IN SPRING

Drains and Side Ditches Should Be Kept Open—Road Drag Most Useful at This Season.

The cardinal essential in spring maintenance of earth roads, especially those on heavy soils, is good drainage. So long as the water can be kept from penetrating deeply into these roads they will remain at least fairly passable. To accomplish this on average earth roads, however, is far from easy. During the early part of this season of the year rains are often of long duration and tend to saturate the soil Water from melting snows is perhaps even more penetrating than long-continued rains, while alternate freezing and thawing of the wet surface tends to increase the porosity of the soil and permit even more ready access of water into the foundation

The chief attention of the road man must therefore be directed toward getting and keeping the water away from the road So long as the foundation can be kept dry, even a heavy freeze followed by a rapid thaw will do little or no real damage to the road surface A dry soil does not heave The foundation will therefore still be solid, and the road will be able to sustain the traffic without serious rutting On the other hand, a saturated soil expands greatly on freezing, and when it thaws out his not only lost practically all power of sustaining the weight of traffic, but also is in an ideal condition for taking up or absorbing still more water, and thus forming still more mud The spring maintenance of earth roads requires, therefore, first, preventive measures, which must be taken the previous fall or summer, so that the road will go into winter properly graded, well compacted, and with good provisions for drainage, and, second, timely, continuous, systematic, and intelligent attention thruout the winter and spring

It is true that the only sensible and really economical thing to do with earth roads on which the traffic has reached a certain volume is to hard surface them But the larger part of our earth roads must remain such for a long time to come These roads, however, need not become impassable mud lanes every winter or spring A certain amount of timely and intelligent attention during the late winter and early spring will yield results commensurate with the cost Wo must also learn that it requires as great, if not greater skill and experience to maintain an earth road properly as to maintain any of the high-class pavements The fundamental principles of earth road maintenance are few and not difficult, but to carry out these principles under the almost infinite variations of conditions with which the road man finds himself confronted requires a high degree of intelligence, skill, and experience Not until we realize these facts and put them into practical application will we have the earth roads which it is possible for us to have

During the early part of the season, as long as the weather is very rainy or there is melting snow on the ground, it will pay to have the road man go over the road daily to see that the drains and side ditches do not become clogged and to note the need of any necessary repairs A few minutes work with a shovel may prevent a serious washout or damage if not promptly checked, might make the road practically impassable

The road drag or some other similar device finds its greatest usefulness during this season It may be used to good advantage to clear the roadway of slush and melting snow and so prevent this water from soaking into and softening the subgrade To fill ruts, smooth the surface, and maintain the crown of the road, the drag is unexcelled when in the hands of a skilled operator An unskilled man may do more harm than good Furthermore, the actual condition of the road during this period will depend very largely on the knowledge of the road man as to just when the drag, as well as his skill in the operation of the implement

In addition to the maintenance, provision should be made for doing all necessary grading or earth work as early in the spring as possible in order that it may become thoroughly consolidated before the dry weather of summer If the work is done too late, the road will not only probably become very dusty in dry weather but will need additional attention later in the fall Where the soil is a heavy clay or gumbo the condition of the road may be very materially improved by adding sand from time to time as that already on the road is worked in by the passing traffic and the drag

Only rarely do our earth roads even when neglected, become equally bad over their entire length Most frequently the really bad places are confined to comparatively short sections, while the remainder of the road is fairly passable An examination of the worst will usually show that the drainage, either surface or underground, is seriously at fault The trouble can be remedied by providing the necessary drainage, and in nearly every case could have been prevented by a comparatively small amount of timely and properly directed attention The lesson is obvious Systematically organized and properly directed the maintenance thruout all seasons is our only guaranty of fairly passable earth roads during the spring of the year

Saloons Must Close On Sundays

Frankfort, Ky., March 29.—Governor Stanley to-day wrote to Sheriff Boone Gosney, Campbell county, advising him that it is his duty to see that the saloons are closed in Campbell county next Sunday, and on all days prohibited by statute

This letter of Governor Stanley was supplemented by a letter from Attorney-General Logan, in which he advises Sheriff Gosney that he must close the saloons in Campbell county Sundays, and unless he does he will be held responsible under the Hutchcraft law, for his failure to close them

Attorney-General Logan has received a letter from Rev T. W. Rainey, stating that the saloons have not closed in Newport Sundays and calling on him, as the Attorney-General, to enforce the Hutchcraft law A letter was received from Dr I. Cochran Hunt, of Covington, stating that the saloons were closed in Kenton county on Sunday

Attorney-General Logan's letter to Sheriff Gosney was in part:

"I notice from the public press that the Commissioner of Safety is quoted as saying that under the law governing the police department an officer is not allowed to force an entrance into a saloon or other structure, unless he has reasonable grounds to believe a felony has been committed I this is the view of the Safety Commissioner he ought to consult his attorney and be advised as to the law

"The officers of the law, whose duty it is to see to its enforcement, have plenary power in carrying out the provisions of the law, and no officer should be permitted to escape the responsibility upon the plea that he cannot enforce the law the mere sending out of notices that saloons must be closed is not sufficient to relieve the officers from responsibility

"If saloons are not closed the officers must go as far as is necessary to see that spirituous vineous and malt liquors are not sold on Sunday in licensed saloons, and that such saloons are not open on Sunday for the purpose of selling such liquors or permitting such liquors to be procured

"I am expecting you, as the Sheriff of the county, to enforce the law, not only outside of the cities but in the cities in the event the city authorities have failed If you do this you are relieved of all responsibility The officer who does his duty will not be molested, but the officer who fails to do his duty will suffer the penalties of the law, one of which is removal from office I sincerely trust that there may be no necessity for any action on my part

"I also beg to assure you that there is nothing personal in this letter or in my attitude I am sworn to uphold the laws of the state and to do my duty, and this obligation does not rest lightly up on me"

Local U. S. Marine Makes Good.

In an official bulletin issued by Headquarters, United States Marine Corps, Washington, appears the name of Thomas L McAllister, of Florence, this county, as having qualified as an expert rifleman in that most interesting branch of the Government service

Thomas, who is a son of Edward McAllister, of Florence, enlisted in the United States Marine Corps at its Cincinnati, Ohio, recruiting station on October 13th, 1915, and is now serving on board the U S. S. New Hampshire, a first-line battleship As the New Hampshire goes cruising o'er the seven seas, ready for a fight or a frolic, it is good to know that a former Boone Co. youth stands on her quarterdeck prepared to prove to the world, should the occasion arise, that the American man-behind-the-gun is still the peer of them all

Considering the fact that McAllister is scarcely more than a recruit, his performance in gunnery is looked upon by Marine Corps officials as little short of marvelous, and they expect him to break many marksmanship records before his enlistment expires

The Pastor's Tactful Wife.

A clergyman tells the following tale repeated by the N. Y. Times to show his wife's wonderful tact and quickness of wit. One day he noticed a woman whom he much disliked coming up his front steps. Taking refuge in his study, he left his wife to entertain the caller. Half an hour later she emerged from his retreat, listened carefully on the landing, and hearing nothing below, called down to his wife, "Has that horrible old bore gone?"

The objectionable woman was still in the drawing room, but the minister's wife proved equal to the occasion.

"Yes, dear," she called back. "she went long ago! Mrs. Parker is here now."

T. R.'S SOUTHERN SUPPORT

May Be Plan To Use Uninstructed Delegates To Aid Stamped.

From the latest news story:

"George W Perkins, Chairman of the Progressive National Executive Committee who has been in the South, reports that Roosevelt has played havoc with the Hughes, Burton, Weeks and McCall booms there Mr. Perkins is expected to assure the Colonel that the latter will have quite as many Republican delegates from the South as he had in 1912"

Mr Roosevelt did not have many delegates from the South in 1912 There were many contestants primed to play his game, but they did not become delegates A sort of industry of that kind had been established But it had been carried so far, was so defiant of all fair dealing, the object was defeated Some of the contests were so "raw" they fell of their flimsiness A slight examination was fatal

Mr Roosevelt knew of, if he did not inspire, the maneuver Men near to him and in his confidence executed it Later, the details came out Of course, after the maneuver failed, there was nothing for Mr Roosevelt and his friends to do but belabor the other sides; and they did that to the limit Such maledictions as were showered on the heads of Southern delegates who had voted for Taft had seldom been heard

This year Southern delegates are not being instructed On the face of things Southern men arriving at the convention will be open to argument The declared desire on their part is to confer with their fellow party men from sections where the battle is to be fought They will understand that it will not be fought in their section Campaign ammunition used there would be wasted The nominee must have strength in quarters where the party is an agreesive force and stands a chance to win at the polls

If this should prove to be a mere appearance; if Southern delegates formally uninstructed should be in reality Roosevelt men and should embrace the first opportunity to support Roosevelt interests in the convention by assisting in a scheme to stampede the convention and make the nomination by hullabaloo, the nomination so made would be all the more dangerous to the party because of their participation in it

What Mr Perkin's opportunities on his Southern trip were so sound Republican sentiment on this matter are not mentioned He is known everywhere as the most active of the bull moose leaders, eager for Mr Roosevelt's return to the White House, which will mean his own entrance into official life as Secretary of the Treasury There is nothing concealed in his activities; and politicians, North and South, who confer with him about Chicago should understand his purpose, and that in co-operating with him they do not as Republicans, but as assistant bull mooers Mr. Perkins himself will not be, does not aspire to become a delegate to the Republican National Convention

Election of School Trustees.

Hereafter rural school trustees will be elected on the first Saturday in October instead of August and county boards of education will organize in March In the office of the county superintendent and the incumbent trustees will hold over until March, 1917. This is included in the school legislation enacted by the recent session of the General Assembly. The census this year will be the last until 1918, except in first and second class cities as the law provides for a biennial scholastic census, which will save $40,000 to the State every two years.

Graded districts must maintain a high school or pay tuition of common school graduates to the county high, and two or more adjacent counties may maintain joint high schools under the new law.

The changes in the law, besides codifying them so that conflicts are weeded out and the provisions are plain and easily found, are numerous, affecting changes in text books, taxes in graded districts, certification of normal pupils to teach, the compulsory school attendance law, the University of Kentucky, normal schools Kentucky Normal and Industrial Institute, the Department of Education and an insurance fund for second and first class schools.

Livestock and Farm Implements

W. B. GRUBBS.

Special Notice.

The Farmers' Mutual Telephone Directory says, I handle any kind of rubber tire; and that I have the exclusive agency of the Republic Rubber Tires. That contract just cost me $200 of which of some of my customers will attest. I guaranteed those tires and I filled same to the letter. Now, right here I do most solemnly promise and swear that I will never again change the old and tried for any new thing whatsoever. Furthermore, that I will not use any Rubber Tire except Kelly's Springfield—the first rubber tire ever made and the best. I ought to know for surely I paid last year to find out. It is just like a boy changing the old girl for the new or a man leaving his old and tried wife for a new one. Now, isn't it a fact that they always go back to the old and tried love, is it not so boys? That's what I have done with Kelly's Springfield Rubber Tire—gone back to my old love. While they cost me more money they will cost my customers $12.00 per set or $3.00 per tire: these tires I give a guarantee on for being as represented. They will not stuff out nor will they peel, but will wear smooth like a good tire should.

Now, in regards to repainting: I have tried to get a quick system and do good work, but I find it a failure so I give it up and must stick to the old system. All my work I guarantee to be as represented—I do anything in the carriage line. Bring me your work if you want it done right. I solicit your trade.

A very large crowd attended the sale of R. C. Gaines, near Idlewild, last Wednesday, and everything brought satisfactory prices. N. W. Burkett, of Union, was the auctioneer and was at his best and made bidders come to the front without hesitation.

The Ladies Aid Society of Bullittsburg Baptist church provided a nice lunch which was very satisfactory to the crowd in price, quality and quantity. After the lunch Mr. Gaines had apples and cigars passed around which was very pleasing to the people Following are some of the prices realized: Horses averaged $170, pair work mules, $340, heifers as high as $79, sheep, $12 to $13, hay, $15, corn, 85¢ cents. The sale amounted to over $5,000.

It is very important to have plenty of good early tobacco plants, but most people sow them too thick. They should be watered in dry weather, and also just before pulling the plants, to retain as much dirt as possible on the plants. There is every reason to expect high prices for the coming crop, certainly for all the bright tobacco as this Burley crop is over 1,000,000 short, and the crop in the East is also short, with the prospect that the coming crop will show a much greater shortage for want of fertilizer and plants. The plants having been killed they have had to sow over which means a late crop and a common one. Besides all the foreign countries on account of the war, have had to cut out tobacco growing and will have to depend on this country for a supply.—Ex.

USING THE EGGPLANT

VARIETY OF WAYS IN WHICH IT MAY BE SERVED.

This Favorite Vegetable of Southern France Has Possibilities That Probably Are Not Sufficiently Appreciated Here.

The eggplant, well seasoned and carefully cooked, may give in many disguises many varieties to the menu. Many of the recipes given below are from southern France, where the eggplant is the favorite vegetable. When choosing an eggplant select one of medium size and firm, otherwise it may be too ripe and full of grains inside. However great the virtues of the eggplant may be, remember that by itself it is quite tasteless; so season and season well.

Eggplant Salad.—Put in the oven one eggplant, five green peppers and two tomatoes. You will bake the tomatoes first, then the peppers, and the eggplant last. Gradually skin, grain and drain off the above vegetables. Use a silver knife. Arrange in a dish. On a moderate fire in a half cupful of olive oil fry a small onion cut into small pieces and half a cupful of olives stoned and cut into pieces. When the onion is slightly brown add everything to the dish. Salt and pepper to taste and add two tablespoonfuls of good wine vinegar. To be eaten cold.

Broiled Eggplant.—Cut the eggplant in two lengthwise. Put in a marinate composed of two tablespoonfuls of olive oil, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of pepper and some parsley. Leave it to marinate for an hour or more. Broil and serve with the marinate.

Fer Fritters.—Soak the pieces two hours in milk; dry and fry, using the following recipe for fritter batter: One cupful of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful salt, one-fourth cupful of milk, two eggs, one tablespoonful lemon juice. Sift the dry ingredients; add the well-beaten eggs, lemon juice and milk. Beat well. Prepare a few hours ahead.

Stuffed Eggplant.—Cut the eggplant lengthwise. Make incisions with a knife, salt and let stand for an hour. Drain off the water; cut the pulp and fry it for a few minutes in oil. Pound well; add four tablespoonfuls of pounded ham, a teaspoonful of parsley, salt and pepper. Sprinkle with crumbs, to which may be added some parmesan. Put over it a little oil and bake in an oiled pan for an hour. Of course you may use butter instead of oil, but the olive oil blends itself better with the eggplant. If instead of ham you use hashed mutton, cooked rice and a bit of garlic and pimento you may call this dish "eggplant a la Turcque."

Eggplant and Tomatoes.—Peel the eggplant; cut lengthwise in pieces one-half inch thick. Salt, let stand and dry. Put in a pan; cover with a well-seasoned tomato sauce. Cover the pan and cook on a moderate fire for an hour.

Hasty Pudding.

This is a Scotch recipe for an economical breakfast dish, and quickly made, as its name indicates. The ingredients are oatmeal and suet; for the latter butter may be substituted if preferred.

Put one pound of minced suet in saucepan, set on the stove and bring slowly to boiling point, then stir in eight handfuls of oatmeal (medium quality). Let this boil for one minute, stirring all the time, then pour in one teacupful of boiling water and continue stirring for another minute, when the pudding will have thickened and be ready. Add salt to taste.

It is quite as nice heated up again, either in saucepan or under the grill. It is usually eaten with oatcake in Scotland.

Home-Made Beef Tea.

Cut half-pound of lean beef into very small pieces; do not have a grain of fat on it; put into a bottle that has a large opening (an olive or horseradish bottle will be nice); put in half-cupful cold water and cork tight; set this in a basin of cold water and place on fire where it will come to a boiling point but not boil; keep at this temperature for two hours, then strain and season with salt.

Clam Water.

Wash thoroughly one quart clams in shells. Cover the bottom of a two-quart stewpan with cold water. Put in the clams, cover and heat gradually until the shells open. Strain the liquor obtained through a fine cloth. The stomach will often retain clam water, given by the half-teaspoonful when other foods fail.

Toasted Corn.

An improvement over boiled corn is toasted corn, which has a much more delicious flavor. After boiling the ears six minutes, so as to cook them partially, remove to a bread-toaster and place over hot coals, turning until they are browned evenly.

Drinks for the Sick.

Apple water, barley water, clam water, rice water, toast water, lemonade, tea or lemonade (for throat and lung trouble).

SUBSTITUTE FOR MEAT

MANY PREPARATIONS THAT MAY BE UTILIZED.

Macaroni Served With Kidney Beans Will Be Found Entirely Acceptable—Vegetable Roast Also Well Worth a Trial.

Are you looking for a dish that can be substituted for the expensive meat, and will yet be good eating and strenghening? Try

Macaroni With Kidney Beans.—One cupful macaroni, one pint kidney beans, one-half pint tomato sauce, one teaspoonful salt, one quart water, two tablespoonfuls flour, two tablespoonfuls butter, three-quarters cupful hot milk, one-quarter cupful tomato (strained).

Break the macaroni in small pieces and cook in boiling salted water until soft. Drain, pour a cupful of cold water through it. In preparing the tomato sauce, heat the milk to the scalding point and stir into it the creamed butter and flour. Cook five minutes, add the heated strained tomatoes, drained macaroni and the cooked beans, with more salt if needed. Heat thoroughly, pour into a vegetable dish and serve. Sufficient for four or five persons.

Vegetable Roast.—One quart beans or peas, one quart nut meats, four slices zwieback, one cupful sweet cream.

Put the well-cooked beans or peas through a colander to remove the skins, then mix with the finely-chopped nut meats. Season to taste. Put one-half the mixture in a buttered baking dish, spread over it a dressing made as follows: Pour boiling water on four slices of zwieback, cover, let stand for a few minutes, then break them up with a fork and pour over one-half cupful of sweet cream. Season with salt and sage. Cover the dressing with the remainder of the nut mixture, pour over all the remaining half cupful of cream and bake for one and one-half hours. Serve in slices with cranberry sauce.

Potato Salad With Sardines.—One pint potatoes, one onion, half green pepper (sweet), three sprigs parsley, three olives or pickles, three teaspoonfuls olive oil, one and a half tablespoonfuls vinegar, one can sardines, one tablespoonful beets or olives, salt and red pepper to taste.

Boil potatoes in their jackets, then peel, and when cold cut into cubes. Mix together the potatoes, onion, green pepper, parsley, olives, salt and a dash of red pepper. Add the oil and vinegar. Mix lightly and put in a salad bowl. When ready to serve, open the sardines, drain and wipe free from oil and arrange on top of the salad in a circle. Put the chopped beets or olives in the center and serve. Brown or whole wheat bread goes well with this. This will serve three people. A salad of this description, with its fish and its olive oil, meets the requirements of an all around hearty and nourishing dish.

Have you tried not polishing your cooking stove, but keeping it well washed? It saves your own aprons, tea towels, etc., and the children's clothes, if they come around the stove in the kitchen.—Emma Paddock Telford.

Grapefruit Salad.

The grapefruit is a cheap and delicious fruit. It makes an excellent hors d'oeuvre when cut in half, the hard center and seeds removed, and a little maraschino or rum poured over it. It is equally successful as a salad. Select a large heavy fruit and separate the flesh from the bitter skin in good good-sized pieces. Line the salad bowl with tender lettuce leaves, chicory or romaine, add the grapefruit, and sprinkle over it a tablespoonful of finely chopped fines herbs, then pour over this a good French dressing, and garnish with white, hard-boiled egg rings with an olive curled in the center of each.

Supper Dish.

A novel and tasty way of serving frankfurts and tomatoes for either a supper or luncheon dish is as follows: Put about a tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan, and when melted slice in a large onion and fry brown. Add one can of tomatoes, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a small amount of red pepper and one whole clove. Take one pound of frankfurts and remove the skin and slice lengthwise into halves, and remove and cook ten minutes. Serve with baked potatoes.

Cream Mince.

Chop, not too fine, four large cold potatoes, about three-quarters that quantity of cold beets, and one-third onion. Mix all together and dust with flour, salt and pepper. Pick up one cupful of salt fish. Put water over the fish to soften. Make a cream with two tablespoonfuls of butter and one of flour and one-half cupful of hot water and same of milk. Drain water off the fish and add the cream with the vegetables. Heat and serve.

Fairy Ginger Cake.

One cupful of molasses, one-half cupful of sugar, one heaping tablespoonful lard, one egg, one cupful sour milk with one teaspoonful soda stirred in until it begins to foam over top of cup, one teaspoonful ginger. About a pint of sifted flour, making a rather thin light dough. It will be light like a sponge if not mixed too stiff. Can omit ginger and use spices and raisins if desired.

The DAIRY

FIRST-CLASS DAIRY STABLES

Quarters for Milking Cows Are Separated Entirely From All Other Kinds of Live Stock.

The standard now set for the first-class dairy barns is high. The quarters for the milking cows are separated entirely from all other stock, even from the younger dairy stock. The barn must be narrow, not housing more than two rows of cows. The window surface is to be relatively very large, the walls smooth, floors not absorbent and easily washed. Ventilation by a systematic arrangement of ducts, has to be provided.

The new order of construction is the result of the more general understanding of the power of sanitation and cleanliness in the prevention of disease. Milk is perhaps the most widely used uncooked food. Little wonder, then, that the market milk dealer must produce that milk in a room approaching the kitchen in cleanliness.

The type of structure used by the professional dairyman is now clearly known and in the main, adhered to. The problem is the barn for the man keeping a small number of cows and marketing only the cream or butter. The returns from the latter do not justify costly barns, neither is it now considered necessarily essential to have the most sanitary structure. While this is true now, there is no warranty of its truth a decade or two hence. Possibly the most modern barns will be considered poor makeshifts 15 years hence, in the light of new developments in sanitary science yet to come. Be that as it may, it is advisable for the professional dairyman to build only the best and the smaller dairyman to so build, that, as demands require, he can remodel toward the best structure.

FRESH AIR A MILK PRODUCER

Largest Returns Need Not Be Expected From Animals Where Barns Are Poorly Ventilated.

Ventilation of barns usually is even more deficient than window space and to this lack of proper ventilation veterinarians attribute, in a large measure, the prevalence of tuberculosis. But, aside from safeguarding the health of both the owner's family and his cattle, good ventilation is economy.

Perfect assimilation of food is no more possible in the body of an animal without a sufficient supply of air than is perfect combustion of fuel in a furnace with the draft closed.

In order that milk cows or beef animals may respond to an increased ration of feed, more air must be supplied for its combustion as surely as that a furnace requires more air for a heavy than a light fire.

In other words—the amount of milk or beef produced by the animal and the amount of heat produced in the furnace depend as much on the air supply as on the amount of food and fuel.

If a barn is poorly ventilated it is futile, therefore, to expect the largest returns in beef or milk for the feed consumed.

AVOID CONTAMINATING MILK

Cow Should Not Be Groomed, Bedded or Fed Immediately Before She Is to Be Milked.

The cows should not be groomed, bedded or fed immediately before milking.

So doing fills the stable air with dust and germs which gets into the pail while milking and so contaminates the milk.

The grooming is as good for the cows as good bedding but do it some time during the day when ample time will be left before the next milking to allow the dust to settle.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Life is not estimated by what you get out of it; it is to be estimated by what you put into it.—W. J. Bryan.

Unflinching labor conquers everything.

SOME CHOICE DESSERTS.

For very nice occasions one likes a dainty, pretty and satisfying dessert.

Most of the following are too costly for everyday use, but on rare occasions we may all indulge.

Neaselrode Pudding.—Make a custard of two cupfuls of milk, two cupfuls of sugar, five egg yolks, and a pinch of salt. Cook in a double boiler until smooth, strain and add a half cupful of pineapple juice, three cupfuls of cream and a pint of chestnuts that have been boiled tender and passed through a potato ricer. Then freeze as usual. When frozen, line a two-quart mold with part of the mixture, add to the remainder one cupful of candied fruits, finely minced; one-half cupful of Suitana raisins and six chopped chestnuts (uncooked). Fill the mold and pack in ice and salt; let stand three or four hours to ripen. This quantity will serve 12 amply, and is entirely worth the work of preparation, for it is truly most delectable.

Nougat Ice Cream.—Make a custard, using one cupful of sugar, two cupfuls of milk, five egg yolks and a half teaspoonful of salt; cook and strain When cool, add two cupfuls of cream, whipped; then add a fourth of a cupful each of chopped filberts, walnuts, almonds, and hickory nuts, a teaspoonful of almond extract and the well-beaten whites of the eggs folded in. Freeze as usual and allow to stand for four hours.

Pineapple Mousse.—Soak a tablespoonful of gelatin in a fourth of a cupful of water. Heat a cupful of pineapple sirup, add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, a cupful and a half of sugar and the gelatin; strain and cool. When the mixture thickens fold in a quart of whipped cream. Put into a mold and pack in ice and salt. Let stand four hours.

Pistachio Ice Cream.—Pound four ounces of the blanched pistachio nuts in a mortar, add a few drops of rose water to form a paste. Add one cupful of cream and one of sugar. Mix all together with another cupful of sugar and three cupfuls of cream, six eggs. Cook until smooth and thick, then freeze as usual.

Whatever we intensely desire must come to us. It is only the question of the force and constancy of our desire. —E. W. Wilcox.

There grows within each heart the giant image of perfection.—Browning.

NICE WAYS WITH MEAT.

A couple of calves' hearts stewed until tender and seasoned well then sliced either hot or cold make a nice supper dish.

Beef Tongue Piquant.—Take a fresh tongue, place in a kettle with boiling water and cook six hours or longer, until tender. Then peel and place the tongue in its liquor to reheat. Serve hot, cut in slices with piquant sauce.

Piquant Sauce.—Brown four tablespoonfuls of flour in two tablespoonfuls of butter, and three-fourths of a cupful of the stock in which the tongue was cooked, a half teaspoonful of paprika, a chopped sour cucumber pickle, a teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of chopped raisins. Mix well and cook until well blended. Serve hot with the tongue. Season the tongue with salt and pepper while first cooking and if liked, the seasoning of a stalk of celery, one onion, a red pepper and a carrot, adds much to its flavor.

Ragout of Mutton.—Remove the skin from serving sized pieces of mutton stew, brown in hot fat, add a sliced onion, two sliced carrots, two cupfuls of potatoes, sliced, and a few mushrooms add to the delicacy of the flavor. The dry ones may be used if soaked over night. Cook ten minutes, then place in a cooker for six or eight hours or simmer on the back part of the stove.

Cornbeef Hash.—This common dish served uncommonly is most savory. Rub the inside of the frying pan with a slice of onion. Put in a tablespoonful of butter and when hot add a pint of chopped corned beef, a pint of chopped boiled potatoes and a half teaspoonful of salt, a fourth of a cupful of cream and a half teaspoonful of paprika. Spread evenly over the frying pan and let it brown underneath. When done, fold over and turn out on a hot platter.

Liver is quite an elegant dish, parboiled, then larded with salt pork and baked in the oven surrounded with chopped carrot, onion, the juice of a lemon, a bay leaf and boiling water to cook. Baste the meat while roasting.

WHEN THE MEAT IS BOILED

Some Simple Rules That Must Be Observed If the Best Results Are to Be Had.

Boiled meats to be palatable and juicy must be cooked with care and always below the boiling point. To boil meat plunge it into a kettle of boiling water, boil rapidly for five minutes to seal or cement the juices on the outside, then push it to the back of the stove where it cannot possibly boil, but will remain at about 180 degrees Fahrenheit for six or eight hours. A piece of boiled meat should be juicy, tender and rich in flavor. Add salt one hour before the meat is done.

In all methods of cooking the object is to make the meat tender, to increase its flavor, and to retain its juices. No matter which of the methods you choose to accomplish this, we must quickly sear the outside of the meat to prevent the entrance of water and the escape of the juices.

In making soups purchase the shin or leg of beef, and use cold water to draw out the flavoring juices. The object is directly opposite from boiling. By using cold water and cooking the meat at a low temperature, we get the flavoring and stimulating parts of the meat, but we cannot make a meat soup nutritious unless we add other materials. Clear and hot, it is stimulating, but has no food value.

DAINTY MENU FOR BREAKFAST

First Meal of the Day Is of Considerable Importance to All the Family.

The question of the breakfast menu depends upon the individual taste. The fruit should not be too cold. The fruits in season should naturally be served. If the tray is of ample size a small compote filled with cherries and currants arranged together on shaved ice is attractive. Oranges should never be sent up on a tray unprepared. Hot toast, preferably unbuttered, seems to be growing in favor for breakfast, though other hot breads are frequently served.

Popovers and crisp corn muffins are excellent for breakfast if they can be served as soon as baked, and with them there should be marmalade of some variety. It is a wise plan to see that the tray is always supplied with a little jar of jam or marmalade.

Staffordshire English Mince Tarts.

One-half pound of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, four ounces of lard and one teaspoonful of baking powder and enough ice water to mix dough. Sift dry ingredients, rub in lard and mix to a stiff dough with ice water. Let it stand for one hour in a cool place. Roll out thin and cover a pie plate with the paste. Fill with mince-meat, then put strips one-half inch wide across the top, in lattice fashion, to cover the pie. Brush with white of beaten egg and bake in moderate oven until well browned. When ready to cut place one teaspoonful of orange marmalade on each piece. Serve hot with a mug from the wassail bowl.

To brew the wassail—Place in a large punchbowl one lemon and one orange sliced thin, two sticks of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of grated nutmeg; pour over this one gallon of boiling cider. Let this mixture cool and then cut into quarters four apples that have been previously roasted. Serve this drink in punch glasses or mugs.

Make the Beds Correctly.

To make up a bed so that it will be smooth, tuck the clothes in, one piece at a time, at the sides, and complete the work all but tucking the clothes in at the foot. Now draw the clothes down, one at a time, as taut as possible, and tuck them in at the foot. The bed will be far nicer looking than would be otherwise possible. If the bed is of iron or brass, which does not permit of tucking in the coverlet, tuck in the other clothes as directed, placing the coverlet over all.

Fish Souffle.

One-half pound cooked fish, two eggs, two ounces butter, pepper and salt to taste; anchovy sauce if liked. Pound up the fish, melt the butter, add it to the fish with the beaten yolks of eggs and seasoning. Beat up the whites of eggs to a stiff froth, add them lightly to the other mixture in the pie dish and bake in a quick oven about twenty minutes.

Barley Water.

Wash one and a half tablespoonfuls barley, cover with cold water and soak over night, in the morning add water to one pint, boil until tender and the liquid reduced to one cupful. Strain, season with salt, adding a little milk or cream if desired. Rice water is prepared as barley water, only shorter cooking.

Lung-Trouble Drink.

Wash clean a few pieces of Irish moss, put in a pitcher and pour over it two cupfuls boiling water; set where it will keep at boiling point, but not boil, for two hours; strain and squeeze into it the juice of one lemon; sweeten to taste. If the patient cannot take lemon, flavor with vanilla or nutmeg.

Ironing Calicoes.

Dark calicoes should be ironed on the wrong side with irons that are not too hot.

To Darn Old Linen.

The raveled threads from old linen will be found best for darning table-cloths or napkins.

PRUNING FOR BETTER FRUIT

Avoid Practice of Cutting Off Branches Easily Reached From Ground —Begin at Top.

In pruning apple trees, it is well to avoid the common practice of cutting off all the branches easily reached from the ground, and leaving the tree looking like a large feather duster. Begin at the top and thin out branches which shade the center of the tree too much, writes F. W. Faurot in Farmers' Mail and Breeze. If the tops are too high, lower them moderately and gradually so as not to disturb the balance between top and roots. If the root system has been developed to take care of a large top and much of this is suddenly removed, the roots will send up so much more material than the remaining top can use that there will be a big growth of water sprouts. Most people remove too little instead of too much of the top, but it is often necessary to distribute the work over two years and sometimes over three years.

Trees planted too thickly may need thinning, but if the branches of neighboring trees overlap, the level ones may be cut back to some upright branch. Always prune close to the trunk or main branch, and never leave a stub to carry decay into the tree. Paint all cut surfaces with white lead and raw oil. Cut out blister canker completely, and disinfect the pruning tools in a mixture of corrosive sublimate in a thousand parts of water, or disease may be carried from tree to tree.

GUIDING THE WOODMAN'S SAW

Arrangement Enables One Man to Do Work Formerly Requiring Two Persons—Easy to Adjust.

The saw guide shown herewith is the invention of a lumber camp man from the far Northwest, but it will be found of great value to the amateur or professional woodsman of any part of the country. The big "two-man saw" is in more or less frequent use about any farm or suburban place, and in bringing down a tree trunk it would greatly facilitate the task if it were not for certain limitations. For instance, it will go through an ordinary tree trunk much more rapidly than an ax, but on account of the upright position of the tree it is difficult to guide the saw through the wood in making a level cut. The services of two men are necessary, one at either end of the saw, which is another drawback. This guide, which has been patented, enables one man to do the work. The guide not only assists very materially in holding the saw in a level position, but dispenses with one person, enabling a single man to operate it easily. The guide rests on a step which is cut out of the trunk with a few chops of the ax, and then it is very readily adjusted for work. The handle on the business end of the saw is turned at an angle with the blade, so that its manipulation is further facilitated.

GUARD AGAINST LATE FROSTS

Cheap and Effective Measures Ought to Be Adopted by Every Farmer to Protect His Trees.

There are cheap and effective methods of combating late frosts so far as orchards are concerned, and they ought to be adopted by every farmer. The smudge fire is as cheap and reliable a means as may be needed, or one may go to the expense of providing metal heaters if a profitable crop is expected.

A half dozen smudge fires for an acre orchard, or for each acre, will probably be sufficient. This is merely a matter of a few hours' work through the last two or three frosty nights of spring.

When we consider that an acre of fruit is worth from $200 to $400, the trouble of keeping up a few little fires around the orchard for six or eight hours seems trifling.

Time for Grafting.

All grafting should be done just before the buds on the trees begin to swell or open. The scions must not be older than last season's growth; that is, you must use the newest wood there is upon the tree.

IN BEST OF STYLE

EXCELLENT DESIGN FOR POPULAR FOUR-GORED SKIRT.

Simple, but Distinctly Effective and Even Striking in Appearance—May Be Worn Either With or Without a Collar.

So simple that a child could make it, and yet in good style, is the design for a dress with a four-gored skirt, shown here. The waist is full and loose and yet without the bagginess over the belt that has distinguished waists in the past. It buttons down the front, and that makes it an ideal frock for a college girl or busy woman, both of whom need dresses that can be donned quickly. The pattern is adapted to any material that is suitable for a wearable frock that is not intended for dress occasions.

The frock illustrated is built of midnight blue serge and is trimmed with a band of bright plaid around the skirt, with the same plaid used in the wide belt, collar and cuffs. If desired, pockets, also of plaid, will be very useful and fashionable. This plaid may be either of wool or silk, and silk looks prettier and more dressy. On the other hand, when cleaning is considered, wool trimming will be more practical than silk. If a stripe or plaid is chosen for the dress, then the trimming should be of plain material or of braids.

Now that fitted guimpes and stock collars have returned to vogue, frocks of this sort are worn with a neat stock of net or lace. It is not wise to make collars of any but diaphanous materials, as the skin of the neck becomes ruined if thick collars are worn, and a tight collar is bad for the eyesight and the health generally. This dress may be worn either with or without a collar around the throat.

In making a dress of this sort for outdoor wear it must be remembered that "sport clothes" are the very latest thing and these are all short. An outdoor dress is made barely to reach the tops of the high shoes that are now in vogue, and some do not reach that far. Dresses as short as that do not look nice except on young girls. Practically all outdoor sport skirts are trimmed around the bottom, especially with fur.

Organdie Collars.

An organdie collar has revers scalloped and embroidered, and a high, upright accordion-plaited frill across the back only. Organdie revers are thickly dotted with hand-embroidered dots or bars, with high Medici collar dotted and scalloped, wired and worn slightly turned back. Rather stiff organdie with fine handwork is used for collar and cuff sets and vestees. A vestee of organdie in fine tucks is attached to a high collar, with a narrow embroidered turnover just showing on both parts, and a crush ribbon over the collar passes through slits in front, leaving the edges of a fichu about an inch and a half apart.

An elaborate style of organdie collar has a frill of oriental lace on the lower edge to the shoulder only. A partly closed round turnover of embroidered organdie is worn with a short tied cravat of black velvet ribbon.

Ribbon Trimmings.

Ribbons trimmed many of the charming evening dresses in a recent display of new French models. One of the prettiest arrangements was a succession of graduated widths of white ribbon in a tulle dance frock. The ribbons were not gathered, but the skirt was, and each band of ribbon was set an inch above the next, the widest ribbon being at the bottom and the narrowest at the top. Pendants falling from the waist line on long ribbons were another interesting ribbon feature.

TO LONG BAY

By LOUISE OLIVER.

"Mother, don't let Sis go to the Baxter's alone. She's so flighty, she's likely to land in Kalamazoo instead of Long Bay."

Carolyn looked at her brother contemptuously. "Just because you happen to be a football pet doesn't give you any license to insult your sister. Mother, mayn't I go?"

So Carolyn triumphantly prepared for her journey, and upon the day set, her brother resignedly carried her bag to the station, bought her tickets and put her on the train to Long Bay.

"Something will happen to Sis before she's a day older or I'll miss my guess," he grumbled as he left the train. "Hello, Charlie, where are you bound for?" he called to a man who bumped into him in his hurry to catch the moving car.

"Baxters—Long Bay," called Charlie from the step, and in reply he caught something of sister—same place—look after—" and the train was beyond hearing.

This is what actually happened.

Carolyn, armed with candy and magazines and some unopened mail, proceeded to make herself entirely comfortable for the day's journey. The Pullman car had few occupants and she spent several minutes in a brief inspection.

The man across the aisle was young, good looking, and, to Carolyn's present annoyance, evidently very much interested in her.

The train flew on and she began to tire of the trip. She began to resent in earnest the half-smiling glances of the man across the aisle.

"I'll go out and stand on the platform for a change," she fumed. So, suiting the action to the word, she sailed grandly down the aisle upon adventure bent. She wound up in the drawing room.

"I wonder if that silly man is still there," she mused, looking back through her door.

"Tickets, please," said the conductor, sticking his head in the door.

Carolyn had, in fact, forgotten about hers. It was in her handbag inside the big bag down the aisle. She arose. "It's back there. I'll get it," she said. She went back to her old seat in the car opposite the man she detested. But there was no bag there! She looked around. She was in the right place she was sure—directly across from the man. Then she spied a bag, her bag she was positive, half hidden under the man's seat.

"My ticket is in my bag and the bag's gone!" she declared to the conductor, never taking her eyes from the bag across the aisle. "I left it here a few minutes ago."

"It can't have left the train. It must be around somewhere," said the conductor patiently. "You look and I'm sure you'll find it."

And impulsive Carolyn, for whom her brother had rightfully predicted disaster, answered: "I have found it. That's it right there, I am positive." She nodded toward the half-hidden bag across the aisle.

"But this is my bag," said the man. "I know it is mine," protested the stranger, "but—" with a smile that maddened Carolyn, "I'll pay the lady's fare." He drew from his pocket a roll of bills.

"No—he won't!" Carolyn assured the conductor savagely. "That's my bag! I guess I know it. But I won't argue with either of you, and if that whistle means a stop I'll get off and telegraph back to the city for help. Besides I'll telegraph ahead for—" with a meaning glance at the suspected thief.

The train did slow down and stop, and before the men could prevent her, Carolyn was off the car and in midst of a dreary, bleak landscape without a house in sight, and the train sliding down the track with never a sign of a reason for having stopped at all.

With tears of rage and chagrin, Carolyn started to tramp down a lonely road at random, and the snow—as it always does in tragic moments—began to fall. She could not tell whether she was going north, south, east or west, and, finally, after wandering hopelessly for a half hour, she sat down on a stone in despair.

Charlie Pendleton, as soon as Carolyn had made her entirely unexpected move and left the train, grabbed his own bag and then contritely extricated another from under a seat across the aisle, but not exactly opposite. He knew the girl had returned to the wrong seat when she came back for her bag, because he had changed his own in her absence. Now that his little joke had turned out so seriously, he was ready to blame himself as the possible cause of a tragedy.

Reparation, he convinced himself, consisted in managing to have the train stopped at the next town, hiring a sleigh and going in search of her through a regular blizzard, with only a general idea as to her present whereabouts.

Luck was with him, and he found her, storm driven and frightened into a half penitent and wholly forgiving mood.

Moreover, they contrived to get to Long Bay that day and were only a few hours late. Furthermore, as a reward for keeping her escapade a secret from the family and for certain other reasons, Carolyn had promised to marry the man across the aisle.

What Goode & Dunkie of Covington

have to say about cream separators this week

IT will be worth your while to find out what some of your neighbors who use De Laval Cream Separators think of their machines before you buy any separator.

About the best thing we can say for the De Laval is that all the farmers around here who use it are boosters.

It does good work for them and pleases them, and we know it will please you.

Make it a point to ask your neighbor about his De Laval

There are nearly two million satisfied De Laval users throughout the world. More De Laval Separators are in use than all other makes combined. It isn't the cheapest, but the majority of separator users have found out by experience that it is the best and by far the most economical separator to own.

We want to tell you about an arrangement we have whereby you can make partial payment at time of purchase and pay the balance on such liberal terms that the De Laval will save its cost while you are paying for it.

Come in and see us the first time you have a chance and talk it over.

Sooner or later you will buy a DE LAVAL

The remains of Mrs. Otto Fromholz were brought here from Cincinnati last Thursday by Undertaker A. M. Edwards and the interment took place in the Walton Baptist cemetery. Mrs. Fromholz was about forty-four years old, was killed Tuesday by an automobile in which she was riding crashing into a trolly pole at the end of the Central Bridge as she was coming from Newport to Cincinnati. Her husband was on his way home from Florida where he had been on account of ill health. Mrs. Fromholz was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fishback and was born and reared at Walton. The funeral services at the grave were conducted by Rev. A. Kirtley Johnson.

Last Monday, a small lad on his way from far distant Servia, the seat of the recent heavy conflict in Europe, to Lexington, where he is to make his home with relatives, got off the train on the Q. and C. Railroad when it reached Walton, being in charge of the Conductor who discovered his absence and telegraphed back here to have the boy taken in charge. The little fellow could not speak, read or write English, and was a puzzle to those with whom he came in contact until the telegram reached here requesting his detention. The boy was sent to Lexington next day. It is supposed he had lost all of his relatives in the great war in Europe and was being sent to those near est related.

Friday morning, the residence of J. Cloyd Powers at South Walton was entirely destroyed by fire. Mr. Powers had gotten up about 4:30 that morning, and after lighting a fire, had gone out on the farm to milk, and shortly afterwards Mrs. Powers arose and on going into the kitchen found the entire place on fire and beyond any control. Neighbors promptly responded to the alarm but only one feather bed was saved. The furniture was almost new and modern, and a fine $150 piano, a fine watch and diamond ring and other jewelry, all became food for the flames. The house was insured for $800 and the contents for $500 in the Boone County Fire Insurance Company. The fire did not interfere with the sale that Mr. Powers had advertised of live stock that day. Mr. Powers will rebuild his residence at once.

Walton lost one of its esteemed citizens fast Saturday in the death of William McElroy who joined the loved ones gone before in Death's peaceful sleep at eight o'clock that morning. Mr. McElroy had been ill the past year with diabetes and bright disease, and death mercifully ended his suffering. During all that time his devoted son Ernest ministered to him in the most kindly manner and made his closing days as comfortable as possible. Mr. McElroy was seventy-one years and six months old at the time of his death. He was born near the village of Ballamadoe, County Sligo, Ireland, and came to this country in 1852 with his parents Thomas and Ellen McElroy, settling on the Hughes farm near Richwood in May 1852, where after but two weeks the father died from a fever contracted on the voyage which was made across the ocean in a sailing vessel, the journey requiring seven weeks. The family became associated with the best part of Boone county's history. William was but about seven years old when he came to the county and his long life has been that of a good and useful citizen. He had all of the genial characteristics of the sturdy Irish race of which there is none better, and his kindly disposition marked his every day walk in life. His presence brought sunshine and good will to all, and in all of his transactions he was honorable and trustworthy. He was married to Miss Almeda Murphy of Walton, who passed to her heavenly reward about ten years ago. Four children were born to this union, viz: Everett L., who resides at Covington, Ernest W., of Walton, Thos. McElroy of Norwood, Ohio, and Nellie who died in infancy. One brother Thos. McElroy of Walton, and one sister, Mrs. Jane Cummins of Chicago, also survive the deceased. All of the children were present when he took place Monday morning at 11 o'clock from the Baptist church, Rev. A. Kirtley Johnson delivering a very appropriate discourse over the remains after which the body was laid to rest in the Baptist cemetery. The children desire to express to all for their many kindnesses during the illness and death of their father their heartfelt gratitude for the sympathy and friendship shown them and the deceased.

CARE OF SOWS AND PIGS.

Preparedness at Farrowing Time is Money Saved—Proper Handling Prevents Losses.

Farmers who intelligently feed and care for their pregnant sows, so as not to overfeed them with fat, but instead give them feeds for the development of bone and muscle, are on the right road toward the production of strong, healthy litters Their preparedness program, however, does not end here.

Two weeks before farrowing the sow should be put into a farrowing pen so that she will become acquainted and contented in her new quarters The farrowing pen should be dry and free from drafts. Provide the pen with a guardrail made of 2 by 4 inch planks set eight inches from the wall and eight inches from the floor to prevent the sow from crushing the pigs against the wall Use only a small quantity of bedding; leave or straw are preferable See that the sow has plenty of fresh water

It pays to keep the sow quiet Assistance at the time of farrowing should be at hand if needed, but the sow need not be helped if she is getting along well in cold weather put the newly born pigs in a well-warmed basket, and after farrowing is over the pigs should be placed with the sow, care being taken that each one gets to a teat When the afterbirth is passed, it should be removed from the pen at once and burned or buried

After farrowing, the sow should have nothing but water and a little thin slop for the first day The feeding for the first three or four days should be light, and the time consumed in getting the sow on full feed should be from a week to 10 days, depending on the condition of the sow and the size and thrift of the litter It takes plenty of sow's milk to make healthy, growing pigs If the pigs begin to scour, feed the sow less and give her plenty of strong limewater

It is very necessary that the little pigs have plenty of exercise and all the sunlight that can be given them Do not allow the pigs to run out during a cold rain If possible, provide green feed or roots These keep the sow healthy and cheapen the ration Encourage the pigs to eat grain after they are three or four weeks old Build a creep for them so they can feed alone At this age feed for bone and muscle Give them all the skim milk you can If skim milk is not available give them some meal and plenty of pasture In about eight or ten weeks the pigs will have practically weaned themselves After they have been successfully weaned the most perplexing job is over

By putting into practice the essential points above mentioned the number of pigs raised to weaning should be increased Hogs never fail to orespond to good care Kind treatment always means contentment, with its corresponding profits

Land will get dry and hard in a short time at this season.

THE HIGH BRED TROTTING STALLION

Walter Winans, No. 30,400

Trial Record Over Half-Mile Track, 2:19.

Season of 1916 at W. B. Arnold's stable near Belleview, Boone County, Kentucky, at $10 to insure a living colt, money due when colt is foaled or the mare is parted with after being bred.

Walter Winans is a solid chestnut sorrel; 16 hands high; weighs 1,250 pounds; disposition is perfect; his colts are uniformly good size and color, and the only one that has been raced has a race record of 2:11.

Walter Winans' breeding is fashionable, and is in line with the greatest sires in the world, being a half brother to the Great Cresslus, 2:02½ and the fine breeder, Wilstar 2:17½, whose colts always sold for high prices thruout Indiana and Kentucky.

Walter Winans sired by Robert McGregor 647, dam Rilee, (dam of Kate Ham 2:28½, etc.) by Hotspur, Jr., 3612; g-dam Tugles by Mambrino Gift 584, etc. (See Rilee Vol. 18) bred by Geo. H. Ketcham, the owner and breeder of the celebrated Cresslus. Robert McGregor was sired by Major Edsall, 2:11, dam Nancy Whitman.

Colts from Walter Winans from good mares will be large, and if not great trotters, will make fine road horses.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents but we will not be responsible should any occur.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXXXI. Established 1875. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, APRIL 13, 1916. $1.50 Per Year. NO. 29

From Rising Sun Papers.

A crowd estimated at near 1,000 attended Jockey Day here Monday and the attendance would have been larger by several hundred had not high water and inclement weather interfered. Auctioneer J. B. White was at his best and managed the sales with his usual vim and vigor. Twenty-three horses, seven cattle, 11 hogs and a hay rake were sold under the hammer. Seven good horses were sold at private sale. The sales aggregated more than $2,000. Buyers were present from Cincinnati, Shelbyville, Lawrenceburg and other points.—Ohio Co. News

Martin Scranton dropped dead Monday noon after partaking of the noon day meal. He had been a sufferer from a heart affection for some time and had passed a very bad night Sunday, but was feeling better that morning.

The first of the week B. H. Stanton received a cow that he recently purchased from a well known firm in Indianapolis which raises and imports registered stock. The cow is of Jersey stock and imported from the island direct five years ago. She has a year's record for producing 500 pounds of butter fat and 13,000 pounds of milk. Besides being a fine producer of creamy milk she is as pretty as a picture.—Rising Sun Recorder.

An Enthusiastic Road Meeting.

Those interested in the construction of a pike from the Hiram Long barn on the Burlington and Florence turnpike to the Hopeful Lutheran church, a distance of 1,900 feet, held an enthusiastic meeting last Saturday. An organization was perfected of which Robert Snyder was elected president, E. O. Rouse, secretary, and Henry L. Tanner, treasurer. County Road Engineer Chas. Goodridge attended the meeting and says there is no doubt but what the pike will be built from the Burlington and Florence pike to the line of the church property and that there is a strong probability that it will be continued a considerable distance further. County aid to the extent of one-half the cost of the road has been granted.

An Impromptu Road Meeting.

An impromptu good roads meeting was held at the court house last Monday during the adjournment of the court for the noon recess. J. L Kite, of Waterloo, was elected chairman, and L. T. Clore, of Burlington, secretary of the meeting.

Strong and interesting speeches favoring the issuing of $200,000 road bonds were made by Judge J. G. Tomlin, Messrs O. W. Cleek, W. A. Gaines, W. Lee Gaines, Chas. Griffith, E. P. Northcutt, D. E. Castleman and Dr. R. H. Crisler, while in a forceful manner the issuing of bonds was opposed by John B. Dixon, of Devon. A vote was taken to determine the sentiment of those present in regard to the proposed bond issue and 27 were in favor of it, while five were opposed to it.

Own Illinois Oil Land.

Mrs. Courtney Walton, of Idlewild, and her sister, Miss Lizzie Graddy, of Lexington, this State, received Illinois land as their share in the division of the estate of their mother, Mrs. G. C Graddy following her death many years ago. The sons, Bellfield, of Bullittsville, and Joseph Graddy, of Lexington, this State, received Kentucky land as their share. The Illinois land at the time of the division was recognized as having no value other than that of farm land, but during the past year an oil well has been brought in on the Illinois land of Mrs. Walton and her sister, the royalty of which amounts to $500 a month with prospects of an increase. These ladies have many friends to rejoice with them in their good fortune.

Six Months of Snows.

The first snow in this part of the country for the winter, that should be past now, fell October 8th, and, what is hoped will prove the last, fell April 8th. Had not the snow melted nearly as rapidly as it fell last Saturday, its depth would have reached five inches. Snow has been in sight here an unusual number of days the past six months.

Jerry Fowler has about completed a map of the town of Burlington and the Burlington voting precinct that shows the locations of the streets and buildings in the town of Burlington, and all the creeks, roads and residences in the country. The names of those who occupy the residences are also given. He has exercised great care to secure accuracy in his work, which was a much larger task than one might suppose.

Watering His Team in the Furrow.

It is said that a farmer in Burlington precinct was breaking corn land last week, and that the volume of water that followed him in the furrow was so large that at noon time his horses quenched their thirst by drinking of the water that followed the plow.

W. L. Kirkpatrick has laid in a nice supply of brick, cement and sand, which will be a great convenience to this part of the county.

Deputy Assessor Rogers Stricken.

Deputy Assessor Boone F. Rogers had a stroke of paralysis one day the past week. Only one side of his face is involved. He was afflicted the same way several years ago, and it is hoped that his recovery from the trouble this time will be as speedy as it was before.

Oldest Silo in Northern Kentucky.

The April issue of Kentucky Farmer carries a picture of a silo built on the Dr. Cleveland farm near Crescent Springs, Kenton-co., in 1900, perhaps the oldest silo in Kentucky. Joseph Eubanks, of the same neighborhood, also built a silo in 1900, which is still in use and has never cost a cent repair's.

Seems to be in Bad.

Owenton, April 8.—The grand jury which has been in session here for a week adjourned today, returning 3 indictments against Craig Jones, former Sheriff of Owen county, one charging him with failure to keep a book that the law requires and two charging embezzlement. Jones resigned as Sheriff March 1. An investigation of his books showed him to be $18,000 short, the State charges. Jones is held under $10,000 bond.

Got Five Years in The Pen.

Covington, Ky., April 6.—Colbert Cecil, former bookkeeper in the Catlettsburg National Bank at Catlettsburg, charged with the mis application of funds of that institution, was sentenced to 5 years in the Federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., by Judge A. M J. Cochran in United States Court at Covington. Cecil was indicted on six counts. Accompanying the indictment was a written statement signed "Colbert Cecil," in which the signer admitted he was guilty of embezzling funds and misapplying them. According to National Bank Examiner Chenault, the shortage may reach $40,000. Cecil had been connected with the bank for fifteen years.

Appointed too Many Delegates.

As a result of a decision of a sub-committee of the Republican National Committee in Chicago, according to which a contest is deemed to exist wherever the State sends a "double" delegation to the national convention, the eight delegates at large elected at the recent Republican State Convention in this state either will have to settle among themselves which four of them shall be delegates or must leave their fate with the national convention in June. That is the opinion of Alvis S. Bennett, secretary of the Republican State Central Committee, who said that the committee could do nothing in the matter with the probable exception that it might act in an advisory capacity.

Hebron will Have a High School.

Hubert Conner, of Hebron neighborhood, appeared before the County Board of Education at its meeting on the 4th of this month, and, as representative of the patrons of the schools in the north end of the county, asked the board to establish a third-class high school at Hebron. Mr. Conner convinced the board that such a school is needed and it decided to accede to Mr. Conner's request and Supt. Riley and Mr. Conner were appointed a committee to have another room added to the school house at Hebron, which will give the building three rooms. A third-class high school gives the pupils two years of high school work, and the school at Hebron will supply quite a large territory that heretofore has not enjoyed advance school privileges.

Dislocated His Knee.

Con Zellers, colored, who resides about two and one-half miles out on the East Bend road, was going home from Burlington, late last Saturday afternoon, and being afoot he started across the fields back of Robert Carver's and A. L. Nichols, and in attempting to jump across a narrow stream of water he dislocated one of his knees, disabling himself so he could not walk. He called for assistance as loud as he could and was finally heard by Thomas Rice, J. M. Eddins and Bert Sullivan, who went to his relief. He was suffering intensely and a buggy was secured and he was placed in the vehicle and the trip home begun. Hade White, colored, was assigned the job of holding the crippled limb in a position the least painful, but they had not gone far when Hade slipped from some cause and gave the limb a jerk that threw the joint in place. Zellers has not been able to get about much since the accident.

Marion.—The price of chicken hens is higher than ever known in this city. A car was loaded here at 14½ cents per pound. In many instances the farmers who brought their hens to town received as much as $1 a piece for them.

Harrison Minor, colored, for hunting without having taken out a license was fined $50 and costs.

Gus Wilson, colored, and his wife, Ada Wilson, charged with robbing the store of E. P. Northcutt in Walton, last January, and had been lying in jail for some time, were indicted by the grand jury last Monday and that afternoon they were tried, when Wilson was given a term in the penitentiary of not less than one year and not more than one year and a day, while his wife, Ada Wilson was given 30 days in jail.

The attendance upon court is limited to attorneys, litigants, witnesses and jurors.

It was quick action in the case of the Commonwealth against Gus Wilson and his wife. Wilson is very well pleased that he did not get a longer term in the pen.

Circuit Clerk Maurer decided to do his own clerical work at this term and has had no trouble in keeping up the record.

Cases have been set as far ahead as the ninth day of the term which is Wednesday of next week.

THE DAIRY

MOTTLED BUTTER IN WINTER

Defect Is One of Workmanship and Can Be Overcome by Application of Proper Methods.

(From Weekly News Letter United States Department of Agriculture.)

Mottled butter is frequently found on the market at this time of the year, and, even though it may be of very good flavor, it is strongly discriminated against by the purchaser. As this defect is one of workmanship, it can be overcome by the application of proper methods on the part of the buttermaker.

Mottles are caused primarily by an uneven distribution of salt in the butter. This may be produced by insufficient working of the butter or by churning, washing and working it at a very low temperature, or by washing or working it at a temperature several degrees higher or lower than the churning temperature.

When the quantity of butter made in one churning is much less than usual, it is necessary to work it a greater number of revolutions of the churn than usual in order to produce the same results on the butter.

Extremely low temperatures of churning, washing and working should be avoided, because they produce so firm a butter that it is only with great difficulty that the salt can be worked uniformly into it. High temperatures of churning, washing and working must be avoided to prevent an abnormal loss of fat in the buttermilk and also the making of a greasy, leaky butter.

Great variations in temperature during the manufacturing process should always be avoided. Under normal conditions the temperature of the wash water should be the same as, or within two degrees of, that of the buttermilk.

When the churn room is so cold that the butter becomes chilled before working is completed, mottled butter is frequently the result. To prevent this it is preferable to increase the amount of working rather than to raise the temperature of the wash water.

Mottled butter, then, may be prevented by using methods that will insure a uniform distribution of salt.

drain with the mouth portion open or free, and whereby the bottle may be filled in position to be collected by the milkman if desired. While especially designed for use in connection with milk bottles, the device is not so limited in use.

DAIRY NOTES

Consider records more than appearances in buying a cow.

The sun dispels foul odors and makes the air sweet and wholesome.

There is more money in a good milker than in any other man on the farm.

Be sure that the calves get all the sunshine that is coming to them this winter.

Thorough milking tends to develop a cow's udder and increase her milk capacity.

Train the youngsters to lead. No heifer should reach her first birthday unbroken to the halter.

The brush and comb are just as necessary to dairy success in winter as the milk pail and scales.

Where more than two cows are milked, the calves should not be allowed to suck after the first day.

Few schemes of farming can succeed with the cow eliminated, and the better the cow the larger the profits.

If you curry the old cow with the milking stool, don't get mad if she massages you in the ribs with her hind leg.

EXPLAINING THINGS

By HOPE AINSLEE.

"But you can't deny that Louis Acton is the most desirable of the eligible men in town," remonstrated Mrs. Davis.

"Money and good looks and a family mansion are perfectly good accompaniments for eligibility," said Agnes indifferently, "but what a man has doesn't make him eligible; it's what he is."

"Agnes," began her mother severely, as she shifted her embroidery frame nervously, "when a girl has reached the age of twenty-five she ought to be willing to settle down in a good home with a good provider."

"A good provider!" repeated Agnes disgustedly. "Oh, mother. That suggests just food and clothes and shelter." A moment later she added: "I may as well tell you before Mr. Acton arrives to take me to that concert this evening that I could never marry him, and that I have already promised to marry Henry Barton."

"Louis Acton likes Louis Acton better than he does anybody else, and he'll like him more and more as he grows older." Agnes was still cool in manner, although her voice slightly trembled. "And that Henry's grandfather was a blacksmith doesn't shock me any more than that Louis Acton's grandfather was a clever land buyer whose close trades were barely within legal bounds."

While Agnes and her parents sat in uncomfortable silence a ring at the doorbell heralded a boy bringing a hurried note from Henry telling her that he was leaving that night for Chicago, from which city she would hear from him in a day or two. "You'll be surprised and pleasantly, I hope," the letter ended, "when my story is ready to tell."

For several months Louis Acton had not been satisfied with his progress in securing the favor of Agnes nor with the frequency of Henry Barton's visits at the Davis home. But during the month just passed he felt that he had gained some ground by having put Henry out of the running, temporarily. He had bought the town's largest general store, where Henry was employed, and had enforced so many unreasonable rules upon certain clerks that Henry had resigned on a day's notice, as Acton had intended to force him to do.

As they returned from the concert Acton told Agnes very softly that in all he did he considered her happiness, and that in taking over the business where Henry had been practically manager things had come to light which made it desirable for the latter to quit the store and the town at once.

"For your sake, I made no noise about it," concluded Acton, "and when you've had time to think the whole matter over I'm sure you'll thank me for it."

"Mr. Acton, I don't believe Henry Barton ever did anything dishonest in his life," said Agnes.

Although Agnes thus ended the discussion of the subject for that evening, Acton hoped he had sowed seed of distrust that would take root before she had a chance to hear Henry's side of the story.

Swinging up from the station a few evenings later with his traveling bag, Henry was greeted by a friend who shook his hand warmly and told him it was time he was coming home to set the rumors at rest. After a few moments' conversation with this talkative friend, Henry turned white with anger and went striding off toward the Davis cottage. As he arrived at the front door, Agnes and Louis Acton were just coming out to enter the latter's automobile which stood throbbing at the gate. Each of the three knew that a crisis was at hand. Agnes was chalky pale. Acton angrily flushed, and Henry stood waiting for somebody to break the tense silence.

"Well?" Acton's voice was hoarse, his manner peremptory.

"All will be well before I leave," said Henry with quiet sarcasm, "but not until you explain in the presence of Agnes why you set suspicious rumors afloat about me when I went away." The two men eyed each other angrily.

"Really, Barton," began Acton, assuming indifference, "it is demanding a good deal to ask another to explain rumors which originated solely from your own unexplained conduct. If Miss Agnes has drawn conclusions quite natural in the circumstances, I hardly see how I can be blamed."

"Here is my explanation." Henry drew from his pocket a legal-looking paper and handed it to Agnes. "I saved it because I wanted to surprise you with it personally. I went to Chicago in response to a telegram from the Great Western Grocers who offered me a job as manager of a branch store here provided a personal interview satisfied them. That contract tells you how well satisfied they were. Of course my sudden departure did make things look a bit bad, but Agnes," and Henry ignored Acton as a further participant in the conversation, "is my belated explanation satisfactory?"

"Entirely so, Henry; and is my subject apology—"

"It's not in order, Agnes; we've too many things to plan for the future to go snooping around in the unpleasant past."

Let us examine sacredly whether there is any wrong intrusted to us to set right.—Dickens.

Greatness is nothing if it is not lasting.—Napoleon.

HOUSEKEEPERS' HELPS.

The indispensable pocket in a kitchen apron may be put near the edge of the apron, but on the under side where it will not be caught and worn off on every projecting point.

Treat your broom to a hot-water bath of hot soap suds, dipping it until it is bright and clean, then shake out the water and let dry hanging. An eye screw should be placed in every broom, and then it should be hung after using. Such a broom will give a third longer service than one that is not taken care of.

Have a change drawer placed under the shelf of your kitchen cabinet, with a spring arranged with bell to lock it and avoid another using it, and from this pay all the small accounts as they come. Where this system has been tried there is less overcharging and it is well liked by both the collector and the housewife.

When milk is scorched, pour it at once into a clean dish and set it into cold water. This will remove every trace of the taste if it has not been too badly burned.

One of the easiest ways of mending china and one which will make it water and heat proof is to use the white paint of oil colors used by artists. A small tube costs ten cents and will last for a hundred mended dishes. Mend the dish and put it away for six weeks to get thoroughly hard. Then if any of the paint has oozed out on the edge it can be scraped off and the dish will be as good as ever.

Clean your bed springs by putting them on the lawn and turning on the hose on a bright day. They will dry in a few minutes.

Tea and coffee stains, or, in fact, any stains that seem obstinate and those of long standing may be removed with peroxide. Put the peroxide on the spots when the clothing is on the line, repeat until all trace is removed. The nice thing about using this is that you need not wash the clothing, as the liquid does not injure the fabric.

To freshen rolls or biscuits damped them slightly by a sprinkle of water, slip them in a paper bag and lay on the rack in a hot oven.

There are two days about which a man should never worry, and these are yesterday and tomorrow.—Robert J. Burdette.

Each day the world is born anew to him who lives it rightly.

SAVORY GAME DISHES.

The household where game may be served is indeed a fortunate one, providing the cook has the proper appreciation for the wonderful flavor that right cooking and nice seasoning will produce.

The true hunter enjoys the gamy flavor of all kinds of meat and does not wish it removed. A wild duck, if not old, will never be more palatable than when baked with a bunch of celery or an onion for stuffing.

Broiled Quail.—Clean the bird and cut from the back of the neck down the back, lay open and remove the contents of the inside, wash well and sprinkle with salt and pepper, brush with melted butter and broil over a clear fire fifteen minutes, turning frequently. Serve garnished with currant jelly. Such a dish is indeed food fit for the gods, but adored by mortals.

Roast Wild Duck.—Clean and truss the duck and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cover the breast with slices of salt pork, cut thin. Place on a rack in a dripping pan, add a little water to the pan and place in a hot oven to cook for half an hour basting every five minutes with the water in the pan. Remove the pork and serve with currant jelly. One may use stuffing of various kinds; but the flavor of the meat is better, so our epicures say, if the bird is not stuffed.

Venison Steak.—Wipe the steak with a cloth wrung out of cold water. Place the steak into a hot buttered broiler and broil, turning every ten seconds until well seared over, then turn occasionally until cooked. Venison should always be served like beefsteak, rare. Serve with wild grape jelly that has been spiced. Roast venison is served as one does roast lamb.

Rabbit.—This is a delicious dish when a young tender rabbit is to be served. Wash and wipe the meat carefully, cut it up in serving sized pieces, brown in a little hot butter, then add water and a tablespoonful of vinegar or two, cooking slowly until tender. Thicken the gravy and serve as one does fricasseed chicken.

On Account of Great Possibilities for Profit Industry Is Receiving Attention in East.

From the descriptive pamphlet issued by an Angus breeder in New York state, we clip the following:

"Beef production on eastern farms has not until recently received the attention that on account of its great possibilities for profit it deserves. A new and widespread interest is now being given to the subject and the tremendous opportunities it presents are being made clear.

"At the present level of prices for beef, the returns to the producer show a good margin of profit, and the best authorities are of the opinion that prices will be maintained and increased.

"Thousands of acres of eastern lands within easy reach of our largest cities and the world's best markets, now producing no satisfactory return, can profitably be devoted to the raising of beef cattle.

Polled Angus Steer.

"Beef making offers a welcome substitute to many dairy farmers who, because of unfavorable conditions, have been unable to make the milk check equal the expenses.

"Less outlay is required for barn room, equipment and maintenance. Labor costs are few and this difficult problem is simplified.

"The raising of beef cattle appeals particularly to the farm owner who because of other interests is unable to give it his personal daily and constant attention and the 'farm manager' question is, therefore, more easily solved.

"Beef raising increases soil fertility."

PROPER SHELTER FOR SHEEP

Wool Does Not Afford All Protection Necessary During Winter as Generally Believed.

It was formerly quite generally thought that the sheep's wool afforded it all the protection necessary during the winter. If the fleece could be kept dry it probably would retain enough body heat to keep the sheep warm, but this is impossible without shelter. When a fleece once becomes wet it takes a long time for it to dry out, especially if the weather is cold.

Much energy that would otherwise be used for growth or fattening must be used for evaporating this water. The wet fleece also gives rise to unhealthy conditions.

In Great Britain little housing is necessary, but in most places in America this would result in severe losses.

WATER FOR STOCK IN WINTER

As Essential as Food in Wintering Breeding Animals During Cold Weather—Provide for Supply.

Good water is as essential as food in the wintering of breeding animals and ample provision should be made to provide the animals with an abundant supply of good, pure water throughout the winter. Other things can possibly be dispensed with, but pure water is indispensable.

Nor will we wonder when we know that one-half the live weight of our domestic animals is water, and that water is the universal solvent, the medium by which organic and inorganic substances that nourish the system, are made available.

FIELD OF PEAS HOGGED OFF

Average of $25.53 Per Acre Obtained by Idaho Experimental Station in Feeding Swine.

Valuing pork at $6 per cwt., a field of peas "hogged off" at the Idaho experimental farm returned $108.15 worth of pork, an average of $25.53 per acre or $2.13 per 100 pounds of the peas.

Results like this indicate that farmers in those sections where peas naturally do well, need not depend upon corn entirely for their swine feeding operations.

GOOD ROADS

PRAISE FOR AMERICAN ROADS

Compare Very Favorably With Highways of Many European Countries —Much Work in Progress.

"We Americans are prone to overestimate and sometimes to boast of that which we have," says J. M. Lipscott, New England agent for a large motor car company. "At least that is the accusation made by our European cousins. I sometimes wonder if it is just. I wonder if we do not more often underestimate our possessions and our achievements. We really are a wonderful country, you know, and with full allowance for our shortcomings, a wonderful people, too. So I rather think we are justified in some of our boastfulness. It is an attribute of youth, and evidence of a good healthy youthful enthusiasm.

"Apropos of what?" you ask.

"Well, of roads, for example.

"We are accustomed to saying that we have the worst roads in the world, and to hold up as an example of model roads the centuries-old highways of Europe.

"I have found in talking with Americans who have toured abroad that most of them will give as examples of model highways a few main traveled roads. But ask them about the general roads of any country and they will either tell you they do not know, or if perchance one has happened to lose his way and got on to one of the byways, he will admit that they are about as bad as has ever been seen in Michigan or Nebraska.

"Your traveled American will expatiate at great length on the wonderful roads of France. And they are wonderful. That is to say, some of them are. At that the total mileage of really good roads in that country is much less than most people imagine. We journeyed over cobblestone roads that would shake your teeth loose—and that in romantic Normandy, too.

"The roads in the British isles are excellent, but after all New England has more, and they are just as good, despite the climatic conditions that favor the former. The Rhine route in Germany is all that has been claimed for it, but we have our roads up the Hudson to match it—and who shall say whether the scenery on the Rhine or the Hudson is more beautiful, since both are magnificent beyond description?

"The Texas road is made of crushed sea shells, which make a perfect surface, while the Italian road is composed of powdered marble from the great quarries of Carrara. Anyone who has traveled over this well knows he will not return that way because its beauty is deceptive. The gritty particles of marble will cut the tread off a set of tires in one trip.

Good Road in England.

"I wonder how many people realize the influence of climate on roads? I wonder how many of those who rave over the fact that the Appian Way is still in tolerable condition after more than two thousand years, have stopped to consider how long that same highway would last in Michigan, for example? The alternate freezing and thawing and heaving would disintegrate and cause it to wear away just as fast as they do our own macadam and cement construction.

"How many of those appreciate how much road-building is going on not only in their own immediate neighborhood but throughout this country.

"How many know that Michigan will build 800 miles of wonderfully good roads; that Indiana will build fully 600 miles of roads, and she already has 1,000 miles of excellent highways, which she is keeping in the pink of condition. Ohio will build fully 140 miles of roads. Some of the eastern Atlantic states—Massachusetts, Maine, New York, Pennsylvania—have thousands of miles of roads that are as fine as anything that lies under the sun. And these states are building more all the time."

Concrete Road Costly.

It costs about $13,000 to build a mile of good concrete road. This makes a road everlasting, without dust, very few repairs, and good in all kinds of weather.

Stone Houses Are Cheap.

Stone houses last much longer than wood, require no paint, therefore are much cheaper in the end.

Who Is Responsible?

Who is responsible for the bad condition of the roads?

REMEDY FOR ACUTE BLOATING

One Quart of a 1½ Per Cent of Formalin Recommended by Kentucky Experiment Station.

Circular No. 5 of the Kentucky experiment station, Lexington Ky., states: "We strongly recommend, for acute bloating (of cattle), one quart of a 1½ per cent solution of formalin, followed by placing a wooden stick in the animal's mouth and gentle exercise if the animal can be gotten up." This treatment proved successful in treating six cases of acute bloat at the station during the last two years, suffering from the ailment disappearing in twenty to thirty minutes.

A study of the problem of a successful treatment for bloat, other than puncture, was brought about by the usual growth of white clover in Kentucky pastures during the spring of 1913. Trouble with bloating or hoven among cattle on legume pastures is quite common, especially during the period when they are blooming. Chemical study revealed that there is a considerable quantity of sugar in the blossoms of various legumes, the amount varying from less than 1 per cent to 3.6, and that there is a natural fermentation of this sugar to carbon dioxide gas, under the conditions which exist in the digestive tract.

After finding that bloating is caused by fermentation of the sugar, in legumes that are eaten, Doctor Kastle of that station suggested the use of formaldehyde as a means of relieving the ailment. Lad's Oona bloated badly on white clover June 13, 1913. She was drenched with one liter of water containing 40 c. c. of formalin, a block of wood being placed between the jaws afterwards to keep her mouth open. "At the end of 20 minutes," the circular states, "she had entirely recovered. No bad after-effects followed this treatment."

Formalin is a trade name for a 40 per cent solution of formaldehyde gas in water, and it may be purchased at almost any drug store for about 40 cents a pint. One-half an ounce of formalin in one quart of water makes the right solution with which to drench an animal for bloat.

ADVANTAGES OF A FEED BAG

It is stated that the wide mouth of this bag permits a horse while feeding to lift his head without spilling the feed. It is claimed further that the bag may be quickly attached and removed.—Independent Farmer.

SCREENINGS MAKE GOOD FEED

Sheep Gain From Twelve to Fifteen Pounds During First Thirty Days, Says Ontario Station.

The Ontario experiment station has found that screenings are used in large quantities for the winter feeding of sheep, the sheep being taken from the range and fed for about 30 days. At first they are given only hay, then a small quantity (one-half pound a day) of light, chaffy screenings is added. Gradually the quantity of screenings is increased until in about a week or ten days, the sheep have access to the "self feeders" from which they eat all the screenings they care for (about two pounds a day). At the same time the proportion of chaff in the screenings is decreased and the proportion of grain increased. Gradually the screenings are replaced with corn.

On the screenings the sheep usually gain from 12 to 15 pounds during the first 30 days, after that less rapidly. It is stated that 50,000 sheep will eat about two cars of screenings and a car of corn per day. Seed-house screenings and screenings containing a large proportion of broken flax are avoided. Another use that is made of elevator screenings is in the manufacture of mixed feeds, chiefly molasses feeds.

Four Cardinal Points.

Lambs, wool, mutton and manure are the four cardinal points of sheep raising. Profit is not in the total amount derived but the excess after the cost is deducted.

Feed Ewes Generously.

It pays to feed and care for the ewes generously, as it not only insures a good crop of lambs, but it also makes the wool better and heavier.

What Goode & Dunkie of Covington

have to say about cream separators this week

It will be worth your while to find out what some of your neighbors who use De Laval Cream Separators think of their machines before you buy any separator.

About the best thing we can say for the De Laval is that all the farmers around here who use it are boosters.

It does good work for them and pleases them, and we know it will please you.

Make it a point to ask your neighbor about his De Laval

There are nearly two million satisfied De Laval users throughout the world. More De Laval Separators are in use than all other makes combined. It isn't the cheapest, but the majority of separator users have found out by experience that it is the best and by far the most economical separator to own.

We want to tell you about an arrangement we have whereby you can make partial payment at time of purchase and pay the balance on such liberal terms that the De Laval will save its cost while you are paying for it.

Come in and see us the first time you have a chance and talk it over.

Sooner or later you will buy a DE LAVAL

Is Now an Attorney.

A. G. Preston, of Martin county, and Johnst Northcutt, of Burlington, Boone county, took the bar examination here yesterday, Attorney Bailey D. Berry and Maury Kemper acting as examiners. Both young men are students of the Law School of State University and both passed a very creditable examination. They will not make a decision as to where they will practice until they have finished their course at the university.—Ex.

Mr. Northcutt is a graduate of Boone County High School.

Owen County's Troubles.

The record of the past winter with sheep and dogs proves that there are by far too many dogs. Why so many people persist in raising dogs, cur dogs, hounds and mixed breeds no one can tell and as a rule those who are least able to feed a dog usually have two or three. The people of Owenton and Owen county have put up with dogs about as long as they intend to. The sheep killed by dogs in this county this winter would buy or pay for a good farm and several dogs have gone mad and caused trouble and we have recently heard it frequently said that dog buttons and hot lead was to be used up on the dog family. Several citizens close to town have sold their sheep on account of dogs. The assessor should assess every dog.

The Democrats of Kentucky seem to be on the eve of a party fight when the State Convention comes off in May. The Beckham Haley, Vansant faction will make a fight against the leaders of the State Administration. The people of the county of Owen are not expected to participate very much in this bitter fight as very few of our people have any axes to grind.—Owen County Democrat.

A Good Roads Advocate(?)

J. E. Snyder, of Erlanger, was in Burlington last Friday afternoon. He is an intense advocate of good roads but is opposed to the bond issue that will be voted on in this county a month hence. He opposes the bond issue because, he claims, the pikes in the county will be bought and freed and the dirt road men will remain in the mud. He does not seem to be aware that the proceeds of the bond issue is to be used for building roads and bridges. How about it?

It is charged they quit work on the road when two miles from the town.

James Rogers Dead.

James Rogers, 68, son of John and Lucy Ryle Rogers, died at the home of his son, William, in Belleview last Friday morning after a protracted illness of tuberculosis. His wife, who was Miss Laura Walton, died in 1905. He is survived by two brothers, Boone F., and Morgan Rogers and five sons, Atty. O. M Rogers, of Erlanger, and Al, John, Bernard and William, of Belleview.

Mr. Rogers spent his life on the farm, and when he divided his property among his children several years ago he owned a very large per cent of the Belleview bottoms, and was regarded as one of the most successful farmers in the county. He was a man of most excellent judgment, of a very retired disposition yet companionable and enjoyed the company of his friends. He was a member of Belleview Baptist church for many years, and a short service was conducted at the grave at 2 p. m., last Sunday, by his pastor, Rev. Baker, in the presence of a large number of friends who had assembled to render their last tribute of respect to the departed. The remains were conveyed to their last resting place in the new cemetery at Belleview by undertaker C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, the pall-bearers being six nephews of the deceased, Clayton and Nat Rogers, of Belleview; R. C., and V. W. Gaines, of Idlewild; W. Lee Gaines, of Walton, and J. E. Gaines, of Burlington

Taking a Road Out of the Creek.

The parties interested in the public road up Gunpowder creek from the Geo. E. Rouse bridge on the Burlington and Florence pike have had the road taken out of the creek and placed on ground where it can be maintained. This is an example that should be followed in many other localities in this county. Too many miles of roads are located in creeks and branches where it is impossible to keep them in repair on account of the frequent floods that carry away the work.

MAKE THE HOME PAPER

LOOLS LIKE ROOSEVELT.

If He Goes Into the Convention He Will Rule Mr. Hughes Out.

(New York Herald.)

There is plenty of material lying around loose to make a political situation in this country of the first magnitude.

There are three men around which it now centers, the President, Justice Hughes and Mr. Roosevelt. The President will be renominated at St. Louis beyond doubt. But when he gets that renomination the Republicans will have had their battle at Chicago, and it will be reasonably apparent whether they have thrown away their chances or met the requirements of the occasion.

A great many important interests are closing around Mr. Roosevelt as their favorite for Republican standard bearer. With the exception of Justice Hughes there is no man who appears able to combat him in the Republican Convention. It is an anomaly in American politics. Candor compels the statement that Mr. Roosevelt will stand in the eyes of many long-tried Republicans as the man who made the election of Mr. Wilson easy. He made Mr. Taft President in 1908 and repented of his work. He made Mr. Wilson President in 1912 and repented of his work. He said he ran independently in 1912 because of the Taft convention, of which Mr. Root was permanent Chairman, "stole" the delegates away from him. Hence there is much which must be explained. The whole Republican campaign would have to be one of explanation and defense. That is the only trouble about Mr. Roosevelt's candidacy, altho it might be overcome.

The attitude of Justice Hughes, it is true, at this time makes for the success of Mr. Roosevelt's aspirations. The Justice says he is not a candidate. Assuredly he will not accept a nomination which comes to him as the result of a bitter contest at Chicago, altho he might accept if the nomination came to him unanimously.

Therefore, the very fact of Mr. Roosevelt's going into the convention would seem to rule Justice Hughes out more effectively than he has ruled himself out.

Mr. Roosevelt is a very popular American. He has a dash that appeals to the admiration even of his political enemies. His very inconsistencies are sometimes attractive. He, too, changes his mind. His high opinion of himself makes him sometimes lovable, sometimes hateable. But if he is going to "try" for this nomination, he cannot devote too much time to the revival of Republican friendships.

Our Silver Dollar.

Did you ever study the silver dollar? Around the edge of the dollar is a raised ring. This is to keep the face of the coin from wearing away when two coins rub together. The little scallops on the inside of the raised ring are called the "milling." All around the edge of the dollar are little parallel marks close together. These are called the "reeding," and are made to keep people from shaving silver off the dollar. The dollars now being minted bear the head of Liberty on one side. This head is not designed from the imagination of an engraver. A young Philadelphia lady named Anna Williamson, possessed such classic features that the government engraver secured permission to copy her head. On the reverse side of the dollar our national bird, the eagle is shown. In one talon is a bunch of arrows and in the other an olive branch. Partly surrounding the eagle is the laurel wreath which has been the symbol of victory and progression since the ancient Greece. It adorned the brows of poets, athletes and warriors. Just below the wreath you sometimes find a very small letter. If this letter is an "O" the dollar was minted in New Orleans. The letter "S" indicates that it came from San Francisco. If there is no letter shown you may know that the dollar was made at the mint in Philadelphia. If a silver dollar is worn smooth it would not be worth a dollar because it does not contain enough silver. It is the stamp of the government which causes it to pass at its present value.—Our Companion.

An Ideal Before Him.

A farmer of Shelby county who owns 500 acres of medium quality land has set a mark that he aims to build up to. He believes that every acre of his farm can be made to feed one steer and one hog. He intends to work to this ideal, and he says the only way is thru silos and alfalfa. He is feeding 200 head of cattle and about 200 hogs this winter and has about 25 acres of alfalfa, and this on land his neighbors told him would not grow it. He expects to erect another silo this year and feed 300 cattle and the same number of hogs next winter. The amount of manure accumulated in his barn is so gratifying that he sees visions of covering his whole farm by degrees and in this way building up his land. Besides the satisfactory growth and yield of alfalfa, last fall he cut from manured land 200 weighed tons of corn for his silos per acre and has three verified a heavy yield.

We like to see a farmer enthusiastic and with vision and purpose, backed by good business. No one can deny the fact that C. M. Shelby is a successful business [illegible] 000, are Y[illegible] Shelby county along the line o[illegible] run a daily routes. [illegible] follow [illegible] Kentucky.

THE STATE PRESS.

Wash Garrett, wanted for years on a moonshining charge, was slain in a running fight with revenue officers and a posse near Cranks Creek, Harlan county.

Christian county having voted a $400,000 bond issue with which to improve its roads under the state aid plan, will see that not a dollar of this money is wasted or misapplied. The money is to be spent by a Commission.

C. W. Dunn, Scottsville, claims the distinction of having raised the largest parsnip in the state. It weighs three and one fourth pounds, measuring twenty inches from tip to tip, and sixteen and a half inches in circumference.

The Daviess county fiscal court ordered the sale on May 1 of $600,000 worth of road bonds, bearing 4½ per cent. interest. The bonds were voted at an election held last June and the validity of the election was recently upheld by the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

A German officer appeared at the home of Frank Garnett, near Milburn, not far from the West Graves county line, the other day and arrested Antonie Palka, a young German who had deserted from the German navy and since had been hiding in this country. He had worked for Garrett for about four months. When arrested he admitted that he was a deserter. He left a German ship two years ago while it was anchored at Tampa, Fla. The officer had in his possession a pardon for Palka, signed by Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, provided Palka would quietly return to his duty in the navy. The arresting officer took him to New York, and from there he will sail for the Fatherland.—Mayfield Times.

The Christian county grand jury in its final report to Circuit Judge Hanbery declares the apathy of good citizens is in a large measure responsible for the wave of crime that has swept over the county and that whisky and revolvers played a part in 90 per cent. of the offenses investigated. "In our judgment," says the report, "blame must be laid at the door of some of our best citizens who by their indisposition to prosecute misdemeanors condone minor offenses, thereby giving to miscreants license to perpetrate larger crimes and felonies. We have found this leniency a heavy weight about our necks." The jury finds "night rider" threats in some parts of the county "cowardly acts of malicious persons" rather than organized villainy. Rumors of graft among officials were found to be baseless after a thorough investigation.

The Oldham Fiscal Court, at a called meeting which was convened last Friday morning and continued in session for three days, voted to issue bonds to the amount of $100,000 for the purpose of building roads in the county. This question was voted on by the county last year and carried by a substantial majority, but at that time it was generally conceded that a two-thirds majority was necessary to empower the Fiscal court to issue bonds. Since then the Court of Appeals has decided that only a majority is necessary. The order, as passed at this session, however, does not provide for the sale of the full amount of bonds voted upon last year. Only $35,000 will be issued and sold at this time and the balance to the amount of $100,000 will be sold in equal parts next year and the year following, provided the necessity may require it and the court at that time may so determine.—Oldham Era.

Madison county's application for convicts to work the public roads marks the inauguration of a plan of public improvement which will be valuable to everyone, including the convicts.

Roadwork is a benefit to everyone. The laborer whose child walks to the nearest rural school profits by the condition of the road that is ideal to the driver of an automobile. The farmer whose freight cost between the farm and the station is greater or smaller in accordance with the smoothness of the road needs the profitable labor of the convicts in his county.

There will not be any cry of "competition with free labor" in the country. The road problem is recognized as being of first importance among the economic problems of the community. Everyone knows that there never has been enough work on the roads.

The State bears the expense of the litigation which result in criminals being sent to prison. It bears sundry other indirect expenses agreeable to crime. When it allows the prisoners to participate in public improvements upon a basis of payment for labor that means a saving to the taxpayers who participate in the expense entailed by crime the best use is made of the convicts. At the same time the convicts many of whom would otherwise suffer in spirits and in health by long confinement indoors, profit materially by out-of-door work and a change from prison scenes.—C.-J.

Red Milk Cows Predominate.

Perhaps there are more red milch cows in Kentucky than all others that is, cows showing Shorthorn blood. While they may not be strictly purebred milking Shorthorns, yet coming from original high-class stock, they make the best dual-purpose cattle known and they average fairly good milkers, some splendid.

Dairying in Kentucky is coming fast, for two reasons, there is an increasing demand for milk, cream and butter and even a greater need of building up our depleted farm land.

ALL FIXED UP.

Lexington, April 6.—That Governor A. O. Stanley will be a candidate for temporary chairman of the Democratic State Convention, and that Judge Charles A. Hardin, of Harrodsburg, will be a candidate for chairman of the Democratic State Central and Executive Committees, and that U. S. Senator Ollie James will request all of his friends to heartily support both these candidates and likewise vote in the convention for a full indorsement of both the national and State Administrations was authoritatively announced at the conclusion of a conference between Gov. Stanley and Senator James held here tonight at the Phoenix Hotel. Senator James had just arrived from Washington. The Governor met him here by appointment.

Gov. Stanley said that Senator James had declined the proposal of a number of his friends that he permit his name to go before the convention for permanent chairman, to which Senator James added:

"I understand there is a sentiment that I be named as one of the delegates-at-large to the St. Louis convention, and feel that that honor is sufficient. I much prefer that some other man be honored with the permanent chairmanship."

They let it be known that they are together on all questions pertaining to the coming convention and that they have an eye solely to keeping Kentucky in the Democratic column.

They agreed the convention will probably be held about May 20, but said they did not undertake to interpret the minds of the committeemen as to the place to be selected for the convention.

Senator James stated that he would leave here for Louisville to-morrow morning and will confer there with a number of Democrats from various sections of the State. He may go from Louisville to Marion, but will be back in Washington Monday. Governor Stanley returned to Frankfort in his automobile tonight.

Simpson Cox, of Estill county, has discovered an old book in his home which has been lost for many years. The book has been handed down through his family pioneers, in that section, and they secured it from an Indian Chief, whose tribe mined gold. In it is given the location of a "gold mine" on Happy Top, a ridge of Estill county. Cox has been busy for several days sinking a shaft.

Albert I. Ebright, of Maysville, made a profit of 99.00 per cent on an old walnut tree he bought from the Adams County Building Loan Company for $1 and sold for $1,000.

How to Tell Fine Weather.

(St. Nicholas.)

If you want fine weather, look for fine weather signs. Here are some of the most reliable, for they are based upon scientific facts:

When the sun sets in a sea of glory, that is, when the sunset sky is red, you may expect clear weather on the following day.

At night, when the moon is clear and shows clean edges, with no halo or ring of mist surrounding it, there is little danger of rain.

When the wind blows steadily from the west, the weather will continue fair; it very rarely rains in our Eastern States with the wind in the west.

Watch the smoke from a chimney or from your camp fire—it is a good barometer. If the smoke rises high, it means clear weather. The smoke will also show you from which direction the wind is blowing; so will a flag on an upright flagstaff.

A gray early morning, not a heavy, cloudy one, promises a fair day.

A heavy dew at night is seldom followed by rain the next day. Think of it this way and you will remember: wet feet, dry head.

If there are no clouds at the western horizon, you need not worry about others.

Animals are said often to show by their actions what the weather will be, and there is reason in this. Some of them certainly have a knowledge of coming storms. We are told that spiders are especially sensitive to the weather changes, and, when they make new webs, the weather will be fair; if they continue spinning during the shower, it will soon clear off.

W. H. Gagle opened the fishing season last Friday by catching a six and one-quarter pound bass at the lake. Fishing is reported to be good at the lake this year and several members of the club have made some pretty good catches.—Middleboro Three States.

LONG-RANGE FORCASTS.

Chief of Weather Bureau Warns Public Against Fallacious Forecasting Systems.

The chief of the U. S. Weather Bureau stated recently that in the opinion of the bureau a new system of long-range weather forecasting, which has been widely discussed recently, was quite fallacious. The new system is said to be bassed on the spottedness of the sun and rifts and shafts of solar radiation. In the opinion of the Weather Bureau it belongs in the same class with other methods of long-range weather forecasting based on lunar, planetary, magnetic, and astrological considerations. None of these systems it is said, has any scientific value.

During the past few years the Weather Bureau has received full specifications concerning all the essential details of this particular system. The alleged discovery is, therefore, fully known to the Weather Bureau, and has been carefully studied and examined by its scientific staff. Moreover, other scientists of international reputation now connected with the strongest institutions of the world engaged in astronomical research, and conducting investigations into solar and terrestrial physics, have also passed upon these new theories. These authorities are in accord that the deductions and conclusions drawn from the solar conditions on which the new system is based are unwarranted.

When the disk of the sun is minutely examined with powerful telescopes, or when it is photographed with the aid of the modern spectroheliograph, the surface presents a characteristic spotted appearance which under goes slight changes from day to day, and greater changes with longer intervals of time, depending upon the well-known rotation of the sun upon its axies and the periodic recurrence of the sun-spot maxima and minima. These and certain well-known related phenomenna are now put forward as the basis of a new science which will make possible forecasts of the weather far in advance. That theese features of solar activity, however, actually should control and determine the daily changes and sequence of weather conditions in any definite or direct and consequential manner, is regarded by the Government scientists as quite impossible. Solar phenomenna of the kind described do not have any direct influence upon the weather at any particular time and place, and can not be made the basis of any forecasts whatsoever.

The alleged discovery is regarded as only one of a number of similar schemes which are continually being put forward. In some cases the advocates of these schemes assert that they can fore cast the weather for weeks or months in advance, and in others they state that they have found means of producing rain artificially, of preventing hail, and in other ways of interfering with and controlling atmospheric phenomena. These pretensions meet with a certain credence, because there are a number of people who still cling to the ancient belief in the influence of the moon on the growth and development of crops, and to the idea that the weather conditions depend upon planetary and astrological combination s. In consequence the Weather Bureau has been called upon from time to time to caution the general public against putting faith in these so-called discoveries.

The Weather Bureau itself is the authorized agency of the Govern ment to collect meteorological observations and make and issue weather forecasts and warnings. Every important nation of the world has a similar organization and all use essentially the same methods. All of these organizations condemn and disprova the methods and theories of those who assert that they are able to predict the weather for any considerable period in advance.

Borrowing and Paying.

The cost of maintaining the war is still going up, although possibly not as rapidly as six months ago. Price saving devices figure in war as well as in peace. There is always more waste at the beginning of a long war than after the time comes that the nations involved realize that they must husband their resources to hope to win.

Most of the statistics in regard to war debts and war expenses are meaningless, because of their magnitude, but there are certain facts in the recent British and German budgets which are clear enough to indicate something definitc.

Great Britain has just adopted a budget, or is preparing to adopt a budget that will carry the country until March 31, 1917. A great deal of money will be borrowed, but the government proposes to increase to increase its revenue by increased taxation to the enormous sum of $350,000,000 in the twelve months

Germany is also getting ready Ler budget for the fiscal year. Money will be borrowed in hundreds of millions, but the new taxes are few. The German Financial Secretary hopes to increase the revenue to ths extent of $24-,000,000 in the year, but is not sure of that.

Seventy-six out of eighty-seven cases of typhoid fever which occurred in a recent outbreak have been traced by the United States Public Health Service to infected milk. Had the first cases been reported to a trained health officer the outbreak could have been stamped out promptly. When will we learn that disease prevention is sure and cheap?—Health News.

Breaking Business Records on Every Hand.

Business records are being constantly brokeen on every hand, and the year 1916 is revolutionizing business methods, business operations and business values, so that records, statistics and forms of even two years ago are antiquates and but traditions.

The fright embargos at the Eastern ports have compelled innovations by shippers at many points

Shippers at Oswego, N. Y., are hiring express cars to move their products so as to avoid the freight embargos.

Shippers from Philadelphia to New York and shippers from New York to Philadelphia are patronizing motor trucks, which are making regular runs between the two cities, their managers guaranteeing quick delivery of all shipments direct to the consignee.

The well known H. K. Muiford Company, owning the vaccine and serum laboratories south of Philadelphia, have placed in service a number of motor trucks which make regular trops for delivery of their products to customers in N, Y. and to vessels sailing to foreign ports.

A telegram from Connersville, Penn., under date of April 6, states that the current week's shipments of coke from that district broke all records, totalling 477,000 tons an increase of 135,000 tons over the shipments of the first week in January, 1916.

Out of 39,000 ovens in the district 35,000 are in operation, and the only reason why everyone is not being fired is that it is impossible to secure the labor necessary to operate them.

The Cripple Creek Colo., gold mines during the month of March produced 86,672 tons of ore of an average value of $14.17 per ton and of a total value of $1,227,000, while the Oatman gold mining district, situated in Arizona, is developing wonderfully and bids fair to become one of the greatest gold producing districts in the Union.

The earnings of the great copper mines of this country are large, and those of the lead, the zinc and quicksilver companies are surpassing the highest hopes of their managers and stockholders.

Mines that were unprofitable two years ago are veritable bonanzas now, and hundreds of millions of dollars in profits have been realized by the owners of mines in this country during the past twelve months.

Prices of nearly all metals have broken high records, and under this stimulus of high prices outputs have increased enormously, and yet, despite the great output, nearly all orders now taken are for future deliveries.

Purchases by the United States Government of auto trucks total 250 so far and it is stated that within the next few days bids will be asked upon 100 more machines.

So great is the demand for ocean vessels that owners are now offering for sale to the highest bidders vessels under construction in the shipbuilding yards on the Atlantic coast, said vessels contracted to be completed in June and August next.

Contracts placed last year for vessels to be constructed in many instances can be transferred with fine profits to the holders.

The United States is a busy section of the globe at this time, and the people of the U. S. have opportunities for business such as no generation before this one ever enjoyed.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

PAPER SITUATION SERIOUS.

New York.—"The present situation in the news-print market is most remarkable, and is probably more unique than any situation which has occurred within the remembrance of any men now in the ministry," the Fourth Estate is informed by C. F. Steele, manager of the News-Print Manufacturers' association.

"It seems as if we are actually looking today at a famine in news-print paper.

"There are many reputable news papers, some of considerable size, which are unable at this time to find a manufacturer who will agree to contract with them over the next twelve months.

"There are some manufacturers who are absolutely unable to fulfill their contract requirements and are telling their customers to go out and buy the paper for themselves, if they can, expecting to settle with their customers later on.

"Unfortunately, these customers, some of them, are put to it in a most desperate fashion to obtain any supply of paper at all.

"With every mill on the North American continent straining every nerve to provide for the requirements of its customers, and with surplus storage stocks down far below danger point, there seems to be only one answer to the question as to what will happen during the balance of the first six months of this year.

"I have from week to week emphasized the seriousness of the situation to our members. In the first weekly letter, which was sent out on December 30th, they were advised that at the present time the stock of news-print industry is so unfavorable as to excite some fear of a shortage of news-print paper early in the year 1916, which may be exceeding ly embarrassing."

"This embarrassing time has now arrived for many of the news-print manufacturers, and it is more than embarrassing for many of their customers.

"Unless some method is devised very shortly to apportion the scant supplies of news-print paper ratably among the users of the same, I am very much afraid that some users of news-print paper will have to print on something else besides white paper or stop publishing."

CAN THE KAISER ELECT A PRESIDENT?

(New York World.)

Declaring that President Wilson's reelection is "impossible" the New Yorker Herald volunteers the explanation: "No matter whether German-Americans are justified in their opposition to Wilson or not, the simple fact is that the latter cannot obtain their votes."

Does it follow that Mr. Wilson will be defeated because the German vote is against him? The American vote may have something to say about the November election. We are aware that the professional Germans in the United States will vote the way Berlin wants them to vote, but Berlin may not control a majority of the electoral college. Before the campaign is over the contest is likely to reduce itself to one simple issue: "Can the Kaiser elect a President of the United States? Can the Kaiser defeat a President of the United States?" The Republican leaders are trying to evade this issue, but they must face it squarely before election day.

A staff correspondent of the New York Sun, who was in Berlin during the recent diplomatic crisis between Germany and the United States, describes the German attitude toward the Presidential cam paign in this fashion:

"They are naturally, intensely interested in the coming Presidential nominations and show a grasp of our political situation which is surprising, considering the few American papers in Germany and the garbled versions that they English papers give.

"Many of them agree absolutely with the Munsterberg theory that the German-American vote will decide the coming election, and rath er than re-elect Wilson the Germanophiles wouldn't hesitate even at Roosevelt, in spite of his exaggerated hysterics and highly colored remarks about the Germans."

German leaders in the United States publicly advocate the nomination of Justice Hughes as their first choice, but there can be no doubt that Berlin prefers almost any Republican to President Wilson, or almost any Democrat for that matter. Having failed to control his administration in the interest of Prussian autocracy, the German propaganda will now employ all its political power in the United States to defeat the President as a warning to future American statesmen that the welfare of the United States must not be placed above the welfare of the German Empire by the government of this country.

It is possible that the Kaiser can dominate the election and say who will be President of the U. S. after March 4, 1917. The German propaganda here is extraordinarily active and resourceful, as frequent exposures by the World have proved, and the Republican leaders in Congress have already shown their readiness to bargain with it. But the Kaiser cannot elect a President without the votes of millions of Americans. He cannot defeat a President without their votes. We do not believe he can deliver them.

The Sunshine.

Lying in the sunshine among the buttercups and dandelions of May, scarcely higher in intelligence than the minute tenants of that mimic wilderness, our earliest recollections are of grass, and when the fitful fever is ended and the foolish wrangle of the market and forum is closed, grass heals over the scar which our descent into the bosom of the earth has made, and the carpet of the infant becomes the blanket of the dead. Grass is the forgiveness of Nature—her constant benediction. Fields trampled with, battle, saturated with blood, torn with the rush of cannon, grow green again with grass, and earn age is forgotten. Streets abandoned by traffic become grass-worn, like rural lanes, and are obliterat ed. Forests decay, harvests perish, flowers vanish, but grass is immortal. Beleaguered by the sullen hosts of winter, it withdraws into the impregnable fortress of its subterranean vitality and emerges upon the first solicitation of spring, sown by the winds by the wandering birds, propagated by the subtle agriculture of the elements which are its ministers and servants, it softens the rude outline of the world. It bears no blazonry of bloom to charm the senses with fragrance or splendor, but its homely hue is more enchanting than the lily or the rose. It yields no fruit in earth or air, and yet, should its harvest fail for a single year, famine would depopulate the earth.—John J. Ingalls.

Save the Crumbs.

Dried bread crumbs may be utilized in so many ways thatnot one squre inch of it should ever find its way to the garbage can. Great care should be taken, however, to prevent stale bread from becoming musty. To insure this the bread should be cut in thin slices, then dried thouroughly in a warm oven and tied up in paper bags, after which treatment it will keep indefinitely. A jar of bread crumbs carefully rolled and sifted, should always be kept on hand ready for use in preparing croquetts, cutlets oysters, etc., for the frying pan. as bread may be cut more readily before it becomes dry and crisp, prepare a quantity of half inch cubes, which, when dryed, may be put in jars and may be ready to fry as croutons when needed. No matter how stale or hard the bread may become, it may be readily softened by pouring boiling water over it; then add seasoning, some dried thyme or sage, and a generous amount of butter; then mix together lightly and you have at a minimun cost a delicious stuffing.

What Becomes of That Cent?

A farmer comes to town with 30 apples which he sells 3 for for a cent, getting of course 10 cents for them.

Another farmer also with 30 apples, sells them two for a cent, getting 15 cents for his. They get 25 cents in all.

The next time they come in with 30 apples apiece, they meet at the edge of town and put their 60 apples together. One man having sold 2 for a cent, the other 3 for a cent they decide to sell five for two cents.

They do so and when through they find out they have received only 24 cents.

The problem is, why did they not get as much for their apples, selling them five for two cents as they did when they sold them separately, or what becomes of the one cent?

Soecial Notice.

The Farmers' Mutual Telephone Directory says, I handle any kind of rubber tire; and that I have the exclusive agency of the Republic Rubber Tires. That contract just cost me $200 of which some of my customers will attest. I guaranteed those tires and I filled same to the letter. Now, right here I do most solemnly promise and swear that I will never again change the old and tried for any new thing whatsoever. Furthermore, that I will not use any Rubber Tire except Kelly's Springfield—the first rubber tire ever made and the best. I ought to know for surely I paid last year to find out. It is just like a boy changing the old girl for the new or a man leaving his old and tried wife for a new one. Now, isn't it a fact that they always go back to the old and tried love, is it not so boys? That's what I have done with Kelly's Springfield Rubber Tire—gone back to my old love. While they cost me more money they will cost my customers $12.00 per set or $3.00 per tire: these tires I give a guarantee on for being as represented. They will not stuff out nor will they peel, but will wear smooth like a good tire should.

Now, in regards to repainting: I have tried to get a quick system and do good work, but I find it a failure so I give it up and must stick to the old system. All my work I guarantee to be as represented. I do anything in the carriage line. Bring me your work if you want it done right. I solicit your trade.

The contract requires a guarantee of $750 for a five day's term with two performances daily, and about thirty citizens signed the contract guaranteeing this amount and to furnish the electric light for the night performances. It is proposed to sell five hundred tickets at $1.50 each to produce the $750, but the Chautauqua Company is to get the next $400 received above the $750 before the local people gets a distributive part. It will be a nice entertainment for this section and if everybody will respond liberally in buying tickets the guarantors may be able to get out without any loss.

John C. Miller attended a meeting of the directors of the Big Bone Springs Water Co., at the Gibson House, Cincinnati, last Friday night, he being one of the directors. The company is now making active preparations to develop the property at Big Bone Springs and rebuild the hotel for the accommodation of summer guests. The capital stock has been increased from $10,000 to $50,000 and the shares have been placed at $25 each, and it is expected that sufficient will be sold in Boone county to encourage the enterprise and show that the home people have confidence in the success of the movement. The water is now being put on the market and is meeting with ready sale and the prospects generally are very flattering for the success of the enterprise. The company is composed of some of the best citizens of Cincinnati, who have faith in the success of investment and have sufficient means to put the property in first class condition for public patronage. An analysis of the water has proven it to be of the highest curative value, and equal to any water in the United States. Big Bone Springs has always had a great reputation, and in ante-bellum times it was one of the greatest watering resorts in the country. There is a great future for the Springs if properly managed and our people will not make any mistake in rendering the enterprising company some financial assistance by taking some of the stock.

THE CREAMERY MEETING

Those Present Not Willing to Suht Down the Business.

Another Meeting Called For Next Saturday Afternoon.

About 25 or 30 of the Clover Leaf Creamery stockholders met at the court house last Saturday afternoon in response to the call for the meeting.

The conditions under which the business of the incorporation is being conducted were gone over thoroughly and if there was a stockholder in the meeting who entertained a desire to see the creamery go out of business he did not make his presence known, while, on the other hand, a spirit of intense loyalty to the cream ery pervaded the meeting, the sense of which was, "the creamery shall continue in business."

While from some quarters there was reported an effort to give the creamery a black eye from others the prospects for increased business were reported very promising and the business has been on the increase the past few weeks.

The patrons realize they have the best buttermaker in this part of the country and it is believed by the company that enough of the farmers in the surrounding territory will continue loyal to their local institution to sustain it.

Several of those present at the meeting last Saturday were men who put their money in the cream ery, not expecting to be benefitted in a direct way financially, but to assist to inaugurate the dairy industry in the surrounding country which they believed would be of immense benefit to the farmers who would handle the cows necessary to make the creamery a success, and, in so far as introducing the dairy industry is concerned the creamery has been a pretty considerable success but largely at the expense of those who put their money into it but were not so situated as to be able to handle cows, and it was this element backed by the cow-handing stockholder element represented at the meeting last Saturday who expressed a determination to stand by a local enterprise that has already proven its great worth to the farmers of the surrounding country.

The meeting adjourned to meet again at the court house next Saturday afternoon at two o'clock sharp, and it is very much desired that every person who subscribed money, money and cows, cown alone for the organization of the Clocer Leaf Creamery Company be present, and if anyone has a grievance against the company that he lay it before the meeting.

Fruit Crop Thought Not Injured

It is unlikely that the fruit crop of this section has been injured by the recent frosts and freezes, as it was apparently hard ly advanced enough for that. L. C. White, of Napoleon, told us he examined several buds from a fruit tree tho other day, and out of perhaps a dozen found only one that was injured. Indications are at present for a good crop of apples, cherries, peaches and possibly pears, and as the season is pretty well advanced, with the crop not beyond a normal state of development, the crop will probably be all that just now it seems it will be.

In speaking of fruit prospects and the chances of their being marred by late freezes, Mr. White referred to one morning early in the spring of 1869 or 1870. The fruit trees were in full bloom at that particular time and a heavy fall of sleet and ice crystalized on the boughs of the trees and the next morning dawned with fruit blossoms all enclosed in small cubes of ice. The day dawned clear, and the sun's rays, falling on the ice-covered trees and blossoms made the scene one of the most beautiful ever noted in nature. Mr. White also recalled a late snow, this occurring at the time he was living in Madison county. On one Saturday night a heavy snow fell and the next morning Sunday, May 20th, 1894 there were six inches of snow on the ground. Of course this soon melted after the sun came out, but that was surely a marked case of December in May for a little while.—Warsaw Independent.

Kept Apple 48 Years.

The record of a New York woman in preserving apples for 29 years has been exceeded by Mrs. Ida Cooper, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Cooped has an apple that is forty-eight years old, she says. It was given to her when she was five years old by her mother, Mrs. Maggie Glenn. It is in a state of splendid preservation, due it is said, to cloves.

Mrs. Cooper explains the curiosity in this way: As a child she was fond of sticking pins in apples. Her mother persuaded her to use cloves, so she began filling this particular apple, she says, with the cloves.

She kept this up until the apple was covered with cloves. Then she put it away, and it has been in the family ever since.

A SUCCESSFUL DRIVE

Devoted Sunday to Robbing Residences, and Got Away With The Goods.

A thief was abroad in that part of the county lying between Burlington and Petersburg, last Sunday, and robbed two residences in the absence of the families. From the residence of George Hensley, who resides on the homestead of the late William Hensley in Ashby Fork neighborhood, a suit of men's clothes, a gold bracelet and a small amount of money were taken, while at the home of J. J. Duncan, who lives two miles out on the Petersburg pike, a thorough search of the house was made and Mrs. Duncan's pocketbook containing $15 in money was stolen.

About noon Sunday a strange man, short of statue, wearing a suit of brown clothes and had about a week's growth of sandy beard on his face came into Burlington on the Petersburg pike, and employed John White to take him to Erlanger in his auto, saying he was in a hurry, that he wanted to go south on the railroad. He talked very little, never telling his name from whence he came, nor his business, and as he was about the size of a man seen in the neighborhood of Mr. Hensley's and wearing a suit of clothes answering the description of the one taken from his residence, it is naturally believed he is the fellow who pulled off the jobs.

A stranger crossed to this side of the river Saturday and gave his name as John Jackson, of Walton, this county. He answered the above description except as to clothes, and it is believed he changed them putting on the suit he got at Mr. Hensley's and threw his away.

The ferryman at Aurora says he brought John Jackson, of Gallatin county, across the river, Saturday, and that he is badly wanted for some tricks he turned in that county, consequently John will be credited with Sunday's stealing in this part of Boone county.

New Southern Pasture Pest.

A weed known as Field Hawk-weed which has made its appearance in western North Carolina and Virginia, and in West Virginia, seriously threatens the native pastures, which are the chief source of livelihood of many people in the mountains of the southern Appalachian Highlands. In this district, grazing is the chief agricultural industry. Wherever the forests have been cut away the mountain slopes have been covered with vast natural pastures of strong sod-forming grasses upon which thousands of young cattle are raised to supply the demand for feeders in the famous blue-grass regions of Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee.

The Field Hawk-weed, which is now known to be in this section, belongs to a group of plants that includes the orange hawk-weed, or "devil's paint brush," and is king devil weed, two of the most destructive weeds known in pastures in this country. Until recently the various hawk-weeds were not known to be troublesome south of Pennsylvania, but the field hawk-weed appears to have suddenly found a congenial location in the southern mountains, where it is now spreading rapidly. While confined mostly to the high altitudes, the weed has appeared in some of the lower valleys, and is liable to spread into the high parts of the Shenandoah Valley and eastern Kentucky and Tennessee. It will probably not become troublesome in the lower and warmer portions of these districts.

The weed first appears as a few scattered individuals, but these multiply with amazing rapidity. Almost before the farmer is aware of its presence, the weed is occupying several square rods of his grass land, and quick action will then be required to prevent the weed from taking complete possession of the field. Instances are by no means rare where whole mountain sides that were once fine grazing land are now nothing but a barren mass of hawk-weed, and almost valueless. Worse still, after the hawk-weed has occupied the land for a few years, it seems to become sod-bound or self-poisoned, and begins to slough or peel off, exposing the soil to the ruinous action of erosion.

A warning is, therefore, given to all persons in the mountain territory to be on the lookout for this weed and take energetic measures to suppress it. After hawk-weed once obtains a foothold, it is almost impossible, or at least, impractical, to stamp it out completely, but it can be kept within reasonable bounds by a little watchfulness.

The weed can be recognized by its cluster of bright yellow flower heads, somewhat resembling half open flower heads of the dandelion. These flowers appear early in June, borne on the tops of slender, almost leafless stems, four to twelve inches high. Each stem rises from the centre of a cluster of dark green, pointed, hairy leaves, and it is to these leaves that the plant owes its destructive qualities. The leaves lie flat on the ground in a compact mat, lugging the ground so closely that nothing can grow between them, and as the plants are usually crowded together in patches, a dense carpet of the weed is formed in which scarcely a spear of grass remains.

The hawk-weed spreads chiefly by means of its seeds, but each plant also reproduces vegetatively, though more slowly by means of runners, which are sent out just at or below the surface of the ground, and take root and sprout much after the fashion of strawberry runners. In this way a patch will gradually grow larger and larger, even though no seeds are allowed to form.

When hawk-weed first appears one should ride over the pasture and along the fences on horseback locating every patch. This is easily done when the weed is in bloom. A sack and a hoe should be carried along and every patch of the weed carefully dug up and carried off to be burned. This will not take long and if faithfully attended to every year, there need be little fear of hawk-weed. Another good plan is to salt the cattle only on the patches of hawk-weed, as a heavy application of dry salt will nearly kill the hawk-weed, and the licking of the cattle will help to wear it out. Above all things, do not let the weed go to seed, for the seeds are equipped with feathery plumes and scatter far and wide. If the patches of hawk-weed are too large to be dug out or salted, they should at least be mowed early in June, just as the weed is coming into full bloom, using a sharp scythe and being careful to clip off all of the flower stems. If mown once in this way, the weed ordinarily will not make seeds again that year. Mowing does not eradicate the weed, because the plant is a perennial; that is, its roots live over from year to year. Mowing merely prevents one patch from infesting a whole neighborhood.

The only way to exterminate a large area of hawk-weed is to plow and cultivate the ground, using a rotation of corn—2 years followed by wheat or buckwheat, before reseeding. Unfortunately most of the mountain fields are too steep to plow without danger of serious washing, and furthermore, the people have not the equipment for either raising or utilizing any other crop than grass.

The chief dependence will probably have to be placed upon the grass itself. If properly encouraged, the grass will usually hold its own with the hawk-weed. Generally speaking, hawk-weed is most prevalent where the soil is either poor or worn out. Soil that is naturally poor can hardly be remedied, and as such soils will only support a poor stand of grass at best, and will grow a better crop of wood than anything else, they had better be allowed to grow up in trees, again, putting the time and money that would be spent on their improvement on land that is naturally more fertile.

Soils that have once supported a good sod, but have declined and become foul with hawk-weed, can often be rejuvenated. The best methods for accomplishing this are now under investigation. As a general rule, pastures will respond profitably to a top-dressing of 300 to 500 pounds per acre of acid phosphate, applied in the early fall. In addition, the thin spots in the sod should be reseeded with a mixture of redtop—9 pounds; orchard grass, 10 pounds; Kentucky blue-grass, 4 pounds; red clover, 4 pounds. It is believed that if the hawk-weed is first thoroughly torn up with a spike tooth harrow and then reseeded as above, a fairly good stand of grass may be secured. In almost all cases an application of 2,000 lbs., of ground lime stone per acre will be beneficial.

There is considerable popular interest in the use of some mysterious chemical that will kill the weed outright without injury to the grass. The Department is now experimenting with this method, but it does not hold out much hope in this direction, except for the use of salt on small patches, as described above. While there are a number of chemicals that will kill the weed, most of them are also poisonous to live stock, and the expense and difficulty of applying any chemical to such large, hilly areas makes the method impractical, except in very special cases.

Losses of livestock from disease and exposure during the last year were moderately smaller than the ten-year average of such losses and the condition of animals on April 1 was slightly better than average. Losses of horses and mules from disease are estimated as 1.75 per cent. compared with a ten-year average of 1.95 per cent.

Possibly the largest price ever paid for horseflesh in McCracken county was paid yesterday when Peter Pointer, a 4-year-old pacer, was sold by Haynes Dunn to Albert Hunter, of New Madrid, Mo. The price paid was $2,500. The horse was shipped to Memphis, where he will be trained by Ed Hall, a grand circuit driver. The horse will be entered on Western circuit tracks this summer. Peter Pointer was purchased in Lexington in the spring of 1915 by Dunn at the price of $140.—Paducah News-Democrat.

Forty Cent Gasoline Expected.

The price of gasoline is expected to climb to 40 cents by June. Before the war is over it may be 50 cents.

Nor is the consumer allowed to hope for any relief from increased production. According to the Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter:

"The domestic consumption of motor fuel within the last year is credited with an increase of at least 25 per cent, on which the advance in prices is chiefly justified by the refiners, since they claim the gain in consumption is well in excess of the growth in production, even with the aid of new distillation processes.

"The export trade is also cited as a bullish factor."

Why not cite it as the main factor?

Is it denied that the European market, with its present extortion ate price scales, is what mainly boosts the cost of gasoline for the American consumer? The same thing has happened in the case of meats, chemicals and other materials for which the buyer in this country is expected to compete with the feverish demand of Europe.

Oil interests in the U. S. complain that there are not ships enough to carry gasoline they would like to send abroad. But they compensate themselves by getting war prices for it at home.—New York Evening World.

Sick-Room Decalogue.

The following commandments for the management of the sick-room should be read, marked, learned and inwardly digested by persons caring for invalids:

1. Thou shalt remove surplus rags, furniture and make room for thy work.

2. Thou shalt maintain perfect ventilation without draft.

3. Thou shalt keep the patient clean.

4. Thou shalt forsee the needs of thy patient. Don't let them ask for everything.

5. Thou shalt promptly remove and burn all sputum, and thoroughly disinfect all culinary utensils and vessels used by the patient.

6. Thou shalt restrict visiting and loud talking, and above all whispering in the sick chamber.

7. Thou shalt not ask the sick what they want to eat; rather say; "I have prepared something dainty and want you to eat it."

8. Thou shalt not annoy the sick by telling thy troubles, sad experiences and all thou knowest.

9. Thou shalt let in the sun shine and try to be a sunbeam thyself.

10. Thou shalt remember that the tenth commandment is to mind thine own business, follow directions faithfully, cheerfully and promptly, and the sick will arise and call theo blessed.

MIAL ORDER WISDOM.

Herman Rosenfield, advertising manager of Sears, Roebuck & Co., recently told the members of the American Ad Club, at a convention:

"We have a bureau whose duty it is to read each week the country newspapers from all over the country. There is not a paper of any consequence in our trade territory that our bureau does not get. This bureau looks over these papers and when we find a town where the merchants are not advertising in the local paper we immediately flood that territory with our literature. It always brings results far in excess of the same effort put forth in territory where the local merchants use their local papers."

And all successful merchants know that what he says must be true. The merchant who advertises persistently gets patronage that would otherwise go to the mail order houses. This is a day of printer's ink, and when a family has access to an attractive mail order catalogue, they forget that the same articles can be secured with the stay at home dollar, unless the mail order catalogue is offset by advertisements in the family newspaper bringing a message every day from the home merchants.

Late Snow and Cold Weather.

The cold weather and the snow storm which began last Friday, the snow continuing for two days and the cold into the first of this week led some people to say it was a record breaker, nothing like it having happened so late in the season in this section before, when there are very few of our older people who do not remember that the weather turned cold on the 19th day of May, night about nine o'clock and when the people waked the morning of the 20th, which was Sunday, it was to look out upon a mantle of snow which covered the ground to the depth of two or three inches, but melted and disappeared before night. The trees were in full leaf and many were damaged by the weight of the snow, the gardens were all up and bean vines were badly scorched and their growth checked, but tomato plants were not much injured, while people who had strawberry beds enjoyed the unusual experience of gathering ripe strawberries in the snow. We have had some late cold snaps and sudden changes in the spring, but the one above referred to is the latest and most severe within the recollection of most of those now living.—Frankfort Courier.

The jail here is reported to have a population of seventy-five at this time, which means that the prisoners are packed in like sardines in a tin box. Naturally sickness has broken out amongst them, making the condition still harder to bear. Most of the prisoners are in for bootlegging, and it is a pretty good guess that when they get out they will be cured of the desire to sell liquor in violation of the law, and against the welfare and best interests of this community. Moreover, those inclined to bootlegging, not yet caught in the meshes of the law, will no doubt take this warning well to heart, and bootleggers will pass out from this vicinity.—Hazard Herald.

The first group of married men in Great Britain has been called to the colors. Married men are divided into classes according to age. The first class includes married men between 25 and 32 years of age. All able-bodied men in this class are required to report and present affirmative proof why they should not enlist. There are, of course, many reasons that will be accepted to keep men out of the ranks. Men engaged in munition factories need not enlist nor need those engaged in any kind of work connected with supplying the army. It is estimated, however, that the draft will bring into the army about 150,000 men.

Many Poisoned By Headache Powders.

Headache powders have tremendous sale throughout the United States. They are taken almost entirely without the advice of a physician, being freely advertised in street cars and other public places and sold without hindrance at the average drugstore.

Almost all headache powders contain one of three or four coal tar products, such as acetanilide, antipyrn and phenacetin, according to Dr. M. P Ravenel of the department of preventive medicine of the University of Missouri. While these vary somewhat in their poisonous properties, all of them produce similar effects in over doses or when taken over a long period of time. They generally effect the heart and circulation, and perhaps the most common symptom of poisoning by these drugs is blueness of the skin, affecting first the lips and mouth, the nails and finger tips but if taken in larger doses the skin of the whole body. It is caused by destructive changes in the blood which are serious and are always followed sooner or later by pallor, shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, muscular weakness and disinclination to exertion.

Up to the end of 1907 there were 855 cases of poisoning with 26 deaths recorded, due to these drugs. Inquiries by the Department of Agriculture of the United States obtained from 400 physicians the records of 814 additional cases of poisoning with 29 deaths. In addition to this many people acquire the habit, the greatest number of these being due to acetanilid, so that up to the end of 1908 we had already collected 1,668 cases of poisoning with 55 deaths, and 169 cases of drug habit. These inquiries also showed that in a great many cases the remedy was taken for headache. This is especially true of acetanilid. We have also the records of a number of cases of poisoning in which acetanilid had been used as a local remedy for dressing of burns and other injuries.

The worst feature of this whole business is that the advertisements almost invariably claim that these headache remedies are free from danger, and unsuspecting persons take them without any suspicion of any risk they are running.

The lesson is a plain one. The sale of drugs should be restricted by law, and until this is brought about, persons should not take this class of drug except on the advice and under the guidance of a competent physician. The old adage should be remembered that "he who treats himself has a fool for a physician and a fool for a patient."

Masses Unaware of U.S. Troops

El Paso, April 13.—The great majority of Mexicans do not yet know that American soldiers have crossed the international line, according to an American who arrived here today from Mexico City. This man said that in the capital there was the most profound ignorance in regard to the situation in Chihuahua and that even among the educated classes the most contradictory reports are prevalent.

As an indication he exhibited a copy of a Mexico City newspaper which carried all its news of the pursuit of Villa in a couple of hundred words, under an El Paso date line. This account, dated a week back, made no mention of the American troops, but said that the Constitutionalist forces had Villa surrounded and that his capture was merely a question of hours. It also informed the public that General Pershing had been made commander of the Columbus zone in the state of New Mexico."

"The people of the southern states of Mexico," said this man, "who constitute about four fifths of the population of the country, know practically nothing about the pursuit of Villa, and, I think, care lass. Stories have reached some of them about the American troops being in Mexico, but they simply regard them as 'gringos'. The masses of the Mexicans have been living in such a state of hysteria and confusion for the last five years that they believe nothing any more, but only live in the hope that some mysterious providence will give them peace and security again.

"I do not believe that if the Mexican people understood the whole situation they would object very much to American soldiers chasing Villa, but, of course, the idea that the United States was plotting to seize Mexico has been so sedulously dinnedin their ears that they are very suspicious of any move by the American Government. It is the suspicion that makes the situation dangerous. Carranza understands this fully, and is very anxious that the expeditionary columns do not go any further south than they are at present."

The New Laws.

Attorney General Logan has prepared a list of new laws which went into effect March 30th because of an emergency clause.

The bill providing for the construction of streets in cities of the third class on the installment plan, is the first bill on the list.

The Hutchcraft anti-screen bill became effective before the Legislature adjourned as Governor Stanley approved that measure during the session.

Another measure which has become a law is the bill appropriating $3,500 for the support of the inmates of the Confederate Home at Peewee Valley in lieu of the $175 a year.

The Cook bill, to enable Fiscal Courts to select commissioners for the purpose of handling proceeds of bond issues to build or reconstruct roads and bridges, is another measure which is in operation.

One of the most important measures of the session which is in operation is the act enabling the school boards in cities of second class to purchase real estate.

A notary public can now be appointed by the Governor without being confirmed by the Senate as that remedial legislation has become a law.

The act providing for the employment of a bookkeeper for the State Library is in operation and Miss Alice Mahan, of Danville, has already been employed.

All of the bills regualting the times of holding terms of court in the various judicial districts passed by the Legislature carried emergency clauses and are now effective.

The measure authorizing the Superintendent of Public Instruction to appoint four clerks and four stenographers carried an emergency clause.

The Workmen's Compensation Act is another very important measure which has become a law. A test suit will be filed in the Franklin circuit court in a few days for the purpose of testing the validity of this Act.

The anti-lobby bill is operative and the lobbyists who attend the special session of the Legislature, if one is called, must register as required by law.

The $15,000 appropriated to the Eastern Kentucky Hospital for purpose of repairing the colored wards is effective.

Senator Combs' pure food bill carried an emergency clause and is now a law. It provides for a fee for the examination, analysis and investigation of the manufacturing and sale of misbranded foods, drugs medicines and liquors.

The poll tax law providing for the collection of but one poll tax of cities of the third class is effective.

One of the most important bills of the session which has become a law is the Act providing for refunding of State warrants and fixing in these warrants a specified date for maturity. The Act also provides that the Sinking Fund Commissioners may borrow money in anticipation of the revenues of the Commonwealth for any fiscal year to make payments for current obligations for which the warrants have been issued.

The Act relating to the agricultural extension work and home economics and providing an appropriation enabling the State University at Lexington to cooperate with the Federal government under the Smith-Lever Act is in operation.

The resolution providing for the refunding of money to the saloon keepers whose State liquor licenses were cancelled by the local option law is effective.

Feeding the Family Cow.

A man who keeps a few Jersey cows in town asked Farm and Home how to feed them and received the following answer: Give them all the alfalfa hay they will clean up nicely. Make a mixture of four parts bran, one part cottonseed meal, two parts middlings, four parts corn meal and feed one pound for each 3 pounds of milk produced. A cow producing 30 pounds of milk should get ten pounds of this grain a day. In feeding clover hay instead of alfalfa add one pound cottonseed meal a day to the mixture.

I think you would do well to add several pounds dried beet pulp to the ration. This will give succulence that is supplied by silage on many farms. Soak this well before feeding. Next year if you can provide silage or some root crop it will give you cheap succulent feed.

If you can get some nice bright fodder you might feed some to give variety to the ration. This would not greatly increase the feeding value, but rather decrease it, but if fed in limited amounts provides a variety that will increase the milk flow.

Plant Bed Notes.

Transplanting will probably be late this year.

An average crop will be planted in Pennsylvania.

Montgomery county will have an average acreage of tobacco.

Plants in Kentucky were not damaged by the snow and seem to be all right.

Fleming county farmers are fairly well along with their beds. The acreage will be large.

Farmers in Maryland are encouraged by the good prices they received, are preparing for a larger crop.

Young plants in Tennessee are doing nicely and seem to be plentiful. An average acreage will be planted.

All the growers in Fayette have sown their tobacco beds, and you can see the great white canvas beds as you drive along.

Some spring indications are noted in tobacco district of Wisconsin, but nights are yet too frosty to start the seed beds for a new crop.

ALL OVER KENTUCKY

Search For Oil-Producing Ground is Being Prosecuted.

Barbourville, Ky., April 16.—Kentucky petroleum developments now include a scope of territory extending entirely across the state in both directions from the West Virginia border to the Mississippi River, and southward from the Ohio River counties into Tennessee. The revival of the industry, beginning in the winter with the advent of the highest prices ever quoted, has started a search for new producing territory, which now includes most of the counties of the state, activity being evidenced either by new drilling operations or by extensive leasing in preparation for drilling. Drilling rigs in commission this week numbered 54, or three times the number in operation at this time last year. The average new production being developed each week is more than three times the average shown at this season last year, a daily yield of 700 barrels shown in the first week this month being a record. The figures now quoted on Kentucky crude oil—$1.95 per barrel is nearly three times the price commanded at the beginning of the summer season last year.

Shallow sand districts continue most active. In new work Estill and Allen counties lead, as usual, with a number of good strikes reported from each field. Estill county operations have been retarded by the bad condition of the roads, preventing the starting of much proposed work, but with 20 or more wells drilling, this field continues the center of activity in Kentucky. Five strikes were reported for the week, with a smaller than average capacity. The best of new strikes yielded 40 barrels. Two hundred new wells are now in progress for Estill and neighboring fields. In the bordering county of Powell some new strikes further define an extension in that direction. Work is getting under good headway in the lower portion of Madison county, while new work is proposed for Clark county, into which operators hope to prove an extension of the Estill county sand. Completions in Allen county for the week were two in number, both in the pumper class. Eleven rigs are up in wells drilling in that county this week, while several locations have been made in the neighboring field of Barren county.

The older producing areas of Wayne, Wolfe, Lawrence and Morgan counties have figured lightly in late returns. Three new completions are reported from Wayne county, the best yielding 15 barrels. In the upper Kentucky districts the only new production now furnished by a brace of small wells credited to Wolfe and Lawrence counties.

In advance work starting up some new tests in the old Floyd-Knott field, near the West Virginia border, are commanding attention. At one time that was a prolific district and operators are hopeful of a come-back. A new flurry in lease taking is noted in the far western end of the state, Hickman and other counties for leases. This end of the state was subjected to a little test work last summer, one well showing a paying yield. On the Tennessee side half a dozen counties will be prospected over.

Oil in storage in Kentucky now approximates 230,000 barrels. The prevailing high market price is leaving no wells idle, all being pumped to capacity.

Shortage of Binder Twine.

Washington.—Shortage of sisal for making binder twine, a Senate investigating committee was told is so great the American farmer faces the possibility of a harvest without twine. W. B Spencer, counsel for a combination of Yucatain planters, said only 10,000 bales of sisal were in this country, and none can now be procured from Mexico.

Senator Gronna declared the situation was so serious it might be necessary to extend the investigation to determine the amount of twine in factories and to undertake to prevent dealers from putting a prohibitive price on stored sisal. Walter L. Fisher, counsel for the International Harvester Company, told the committee there was an embargo on sisal, and the planters' combination had refused to make contracts for as late as June delivery, and would not fix a price at which it would sell when able to resume.

Fear that the combination would be unable to make good on its contracts was the reason for declining to make them, said Mr. Spencer. Since October 29, 1915, it had contracted for the sale of 823,691 bales in the United States, he said, and had delivered 680,288 bales. The Harvester Co., contracted for 440,000 bales and got 392,440.

"We refused to make more contracts," said Spencer, "because we believe the seller has the right not to promise to sell something he cannot deliver."

Short Paragraphs.

(Philadelphia Record.)

Beauty may be only skin deep, but many a woman is deeper than she looks.

No, Maude, dear; going off on a lark doesn't necessarily imply that one is a high flyer.

A man may be high-handed in his methods, but on the other hand he may also be under-handed.

A man should feel that he has something to live for, even if it is merely that he lives to regret it.

Even the debutante will tell you there is a difference between being presented and being given away.

Saying "Here's to you" merely demonstrates that many a man has been toasted to his face, only to be roasted behind his back.

A Breezy Description Of Kentucky.

The American Magazine is running a series of articles on "The Glory of the States," each article written by a prominent resident or nonresident native of the State. In the current issue of the magazine Kentucky is handled in distinctively Cobbesque style by the inimitable Irvin S. Cobb, erstwhile of Paducah and Louisville, but now thriving amazingly under the bright lights of New York. Mr. Cobb says in part:

"The State of Kentucky is shaped like a camel lying down. The straw that broke the camel's back was the fist time the State went Republican. That was in the '90s, and to the community at large the shock was so profound that several gentlemen of the old school for a time thought seriously of taking their letters out of the church. Since then the same thing has happened so frequently that the sight of a Kentucky Republican holding a State office no longer shakes a conservative's belief in the existence of an All-Wise Power; and the camel's back is getting used to the sensation of being broken. It underwent a severe strain no longer ago than last November.

"Politically, Kentucky of recent years has calmed down somewhat, although our campaigners are yet very far from being the milk-and-watery affairs observed elsewhere in the Union. To the true Kentuckian politics is not a recreation merely. With him it is a calling, a profession and a lifetime avocation. Hospitality is his religion, but politics is his habit. At this time of writing the issues of prohibition and woman suffrage engage the voter's mind. Suffrage gains ground steadily, but it has not yet enlisted so strong a following as in certain nearby States. Having for so long regarded woman as his superior the Kentuckian is reluctant to make her his equal.

"Of the seven original jokes in the world—there are eight now, since a gentleman at Detroit, Michigan, popularized the jitney bile—but of the original seven the first and foremost dealt with the with the Kentucky Colonel and his toddy. This being so it will come as a shock to many to learn that local option prevails over most of Kentucky. Four out of every five counties are so dry that a stranger must travel nearly half a block to get a drink.

"Moving further eastward, you come to the Beargrass, where Louieville, the metropolis of the State proudly stands with a halo of soft coal smoke wreathing her brow and millions of silently dropped lower-case r's piled about her high-arched insteps; then, in turn, to the Barrens, to the Pennyrile, and finally to the Purchase, leaving its toes in the Father of Waters, and once in a while when Father gets rampageous, climbing up on stilts to avoid having its Adam's apple—lved; too.

"Of late Kentucky has gone in less for pistol toting and more for better schools; for fewer homicides and a greater number of good roads. Yet in her essentials she is what she has always been. She leads the planet and its subdivisions thereof in the production of chewing tobacco and Bourbon distillations, which age in the wood, or would do so were it not for the demands of the New York clubs. Likewise, she leads in fine, fast horses; in hemp, altho not much hemp since the electric chair came into common use and the lynchings began to fall off: in corn bread, without any sugar in it; in hog jowl and turnip greens; in ancestors; in Colonels who inherited the title or had it wished on them; in poets—not all of our poets write poetry, but all of them think it; in silver-tongued orators; in the proportionate number of latchstrings hanging on the outside; in the use of doormats with the world "Welcome" on them; in pretty girls with soft voices and tiny feet and flirtatious souls; in men who believe that Kentucky has the fairest skies, the softest landscapes, the deepest waterways, the clearest rills, the finest people and the greatest undeveloped possibilities in natural wealth, and are willing to fight you to prove it.

Social Notice.

The Farmers' Mutual Telephone Directory says, I handle any kind of rubber tire; and that I have the exclusive agency of the Republic Rubber Tires. That contract just cost me $200 of which of some of my customers will attest. I guaranteed those tires and I filled same to the letter. Now, right here I do most solemnly promise and swear that I will never again change the old and tried for any new thing whatsoever. Furthermore, that I will not use any Rubber Tire except Kelly's Springfield—the first rubber tire ever made and the best. I ought to know for surely I paid last year to find out. It is just like a boy changing the old girl for the new or a man leaving his old and tried wife for a new one. Now, isn't it a fact that they always go back to the old and tried love, is it not so boys? That's what I have done with Kelly's Springfield Rubber Tire—gone back to my old love. While they cost me more money they will cost my customers $1.00 per set or $3.00 per tire: these tires I give a guarantee on for being as represented. They will not stuff out nor will they peel, but will wear smooth like a good tire should.

Now, in regards to repainting: I have tried to get a quick system and do good work, but I find it a failure so I give it up and must stick to the old system. All my work I guarantee to be as represented. I do anything in the carriage line. Bring me your work if you want it done right. I solicit your trade.

Your House Plants.

The professional florist understands that although house plants must be kept moist they must never be allowed to become soggy. To begin with, they should be well drained. Broken pots or cinders should be placed below the earth they grow in The soil should be mixed with sand, too, to lighten it. Never water a plant until the soil on top is almost dry. Then water it thoroughly—drench it, but let the water drain out through the bottom of the pot, and never let it stand in the saucer under the pot, for it becomes stagnant and injures the plant.

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good. I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its tiring me, and am doing my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of wonderful success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

The Lexington Leader, one of the most reliable Republican news papers in the State says:

"Business generally throughout the country continues to show extraordinary activity, and a no bel fact is that the record of commercial failures, compared with other years, is indicative of more widespread prosperity than the country has experienced for some time.

"Dun's Review, for the past week ending Saturday, summarizes the situation as follows:

"Even after months of extensive buying, requirements continue remarkably heavy and further augmentation of business is noted.

"Consumptive demands are sustained in greater volume than in best previous years and pressure upon industrial forces is unabated though in some instances high prices check new contracts. But such cases are still the exception and, in the aggregate, transactions grow rather than diminish, being limited mainly by the over sold condition of mills and factories. Manufacturers are working as never before to meet the insistent calls for more merchandise and products, yet outputs, while steadily rising remain inadequate and many plants fall farther behind on orders. Scarcity of materials continues and is not confined to any single industry or trade; it is apparent in steel, in textiles, in leather, in paper and elsewhere and hampers operations at numerous points.

"Development of new enterprise is general and the railroads buy heavily of equipment yet, in spite of all efforts to augment facilities producing and transporting forces fail to keep pace with domestic and foreign requirements.

"March statistics were notably favorable and bank clearings this week are 44.7 per cent in excess of last year, the gain at centers outside of New York is being 34.7 per cent.

"Reports continually appear adding to the accumulations of superlatives with regard to industrial expansion, railway traffic, foreign trade and other activities. Remarkable achievements have become so common in fact, that dis appointment would be manifested if a month passed without setting new precedents. While mere statistics do not tell the story of overtaxed producing and transporting facilities, of the scarcity of supplies and of skilled labor, they faithfully reflect the striking growth of business movements and volumes. All the March returns are not yet in, but two of the most important indices—bank exchanges and pig iron output—make an extraordinary exhibit. Payments thru the principal clearing houses surpassed all previous records for the period and were 49.4 per cent larger than a year ago, substantial increases occurring thruout the country, the smallest gain—18.5 per cent—being in a western section.

"Amazing performances continue in iron production, which is now at the phenomenal rate of practically 40,000,000 tons annually. The March figures—3,337,691 tons—exceeded all former totals and were over 60 per cent greater than in the same month of 1915.

"There is much that is encouraging in the statistics of failures for the first quarter of this year. During the last three months strictly commercial defaults, as distinguished from banking suspensions and personal embarrassments, were much less numerous than in 1915, when the effects of the economic disturbance caused by war were still in evidence. The latest figures not only show a decrease of over 25 per cent in number, but the liabilities, besides disclosing a 40 per cent contraction from last year, were the smallest for the period since 1911."

The Democratic State Convention will be held at Lexington, Wednesday, May 24, and county meetings for the purpose of selecting delegates to the State Convention will be held throughout Kentucky Saturday, May 20. This was determined by unanimous vote of the members of the Democratic State Executive Committee at Hotel Henry Watterson Saturday afternoon, Jas. P. Edwards and Jas. P. Reedy, both of Louisville, voted for this city as the place in which to hold the convention, but when all the other committeemen voted for Lexington—Edwards and Reedy changed their votes in order to make the selection unanimous.

There will be 2,191 delegates to the convention, representation being on the basis of "one delegate for every 100 votes and a fraction over fifty" cast in Kentucky for Woodrow Wilson in 1912.—C.-J

Several local gardens were broken the latter part of last week, and in every instance the ground was too wet, but the time had arrived when it was necessary that the work be done.

Contractor Louin has resumed the work of reconstructing the Burlington and Florence turnpike. The work he did on that road early last winter stood the heavy hauling during the winter much better than was expected.

The highest price ever paid for spring lambs at the Kansas City stock yards was registered Wednesday, when 15 head, averaging 46 pounds, sold for $17 per hundred. The previous record price was $15, made in 1915.—Blue-Grass Clipper.

The campaign in favor of the $200,000 road bond issue will be pushed from now until the day of election. Sometimes it looks like a considerable majority will favor the issuing of the bonds and then again it looks like they will be snowed under badly.

A very considerable per cent of the county's oat crop was sowed last week, notwithstanding much of the land was too wet for planting, but the lateness of the season demanded no further delay in the preparation for that crop.

The base ball season was inaugurated at Burlington last Friday afternoon by a game between the Burlington and Erlanger High School teams. It was very much of a slugging match in which the local team came out best and was able to score 21 runs to Erlanger's 7.

Can't See the Need of One.

The fiscal court in this county has been thoroughly tried out on the proposition to employ a county farm agent and it is evident no assistance can be obtained from that source. According to the information the Recorder has a farm agent can be obtained for $1,400 a year of which amount the U. S. Government will pay $700 leaving $700 to be provided by the fiscal court or otherwise. There are many farmers in Boone county who are endeavoring to keep up with modern agricultural methods and are certainly willing to put up a small amount in order to secure the services of a farm agent if they desire his services. Say there are one hundred and forty farmers in Boone-co., who believe the county should have a farm agent. By putting up $5 each the necessary amount for his employment will be forth coming and no one will be inconvenienced. A large majority of the farmers the Recorder has interviewed on the question are opposed to the county appropriating any sum whatever for the employment of a farm agent, and these farmers coming from different sections of the county it is fair to presume they reflect the sentiment very correctly in their respective neighborhoods, and of that sentiment the fiscal court is aware and is not disposed to pay any part of the cost of a farm agent.

Several counties in the State have given farm agents a thorough trial and were so pleased with their work that they have been employed again.

Somewhat Devilish.

The Devil sat by the lake of fire on a pile of sulphur kegs; his head was bowed upon his breast, his tail between his legs; a look of shame was on his face; the sparks dripped from his eyes, he had sent his resignation to the throne up in the skies. "I'm down and out," the Devil said, he said it with a sob; there's others that out class me, and I want to quit my job. Hell isn't in it with the land that lies along the Rhine; I'm a has-been and a piker, therefore I resign; one ammunition maker with his bloody shot and shell know more about damnation than all the imps of Hell. Give my job to Kaiser William or king George, or J. P. Morgan, or some such man of war. I hate to leave the old home the spot I love so well, but I feel that I'm not up to date in the art of running Hell. And the Devil spit a squirt of steam at a brimstone bumblebee, and muttered he guessed that he would go and hunt up young John D.

Boone County Has No Clubs.

Boone county is the only county in Northern Kentucky that is behind in the different farm clubs—Pig clubs, Corn clubs, Tomato clubs and various other clubs that might be in the schools and among the farmers. It is because we have no county agent. I hope we may succeed in employing one this year. He is a necessity to Boone county, and no farmers need one more than Boone farmers. The county agent can be used on nearly every farm to teach the farmers how to take care of their orchards, cattle and farms. The county agent can give them information that will be worth hundreds of dollars to them annually. This has been proven in sections where they are now employed. The expense is nominal and the benefits are of great magnitude. Let us have a farm agent by all means. H. D M.

Cost of Producing Pork.

While the cost of producing pork may be reduced by the use of green feed, it is desirable to feed grain in addition. There is no time that grain can be so profitably fed to a hog as when he is young and running on pasture. Under such conditions, it is possible to secure 15 pounds of gain for each bushel of grain fed. During the spring, summer, and early fall months from one-half to three-fourths of a full feed of grain will be sufficient for hogs running on pasture.

Crowd Highly Entertained.

The lecture delivered at the court house last Friday night by Dr. Porter, of the Baptist church was not attended by a large crowd. Dr. Porter, always an entertaining speaker, was at his best and those who failed to hear him on that occasion missed a treat such as they have very few opportunities to enjoy. He spoke for about an hour and a half and everyone in the audience was sorry when he concluded his lecture and all returned home delighted with the evening's entertainment.

To Raise Hail Insurance.

Frankfort, April 13.—At a meeting of the State Rating Board today an order was entered permitting insurance companies to raise the rates of hail insurance on burley tobacco to $1.50 on insurance of $50 per acre; $2 on insurance of $75 per acre and $3 on $100 insurance per acre. The insurance companies complained that the writing of hail insurance would be suspended unless there was an increase in rates.

The Slate is Prepared.

According to the political dope that comes from Lexington by way of the Cincinnati Enquirer the slate for the Kentucky Delegation in the next Democratic National Convention is made up, and the State convention which will be held at Lexington will be only a ratification meeting. Why the necessity of a State Convention under such circumstances?

Shied at an Automobile.

As Stanley Eddins was coming over with the mail last Monday evening he met Mrs. R. C McGlasson and son, Robert, of Hebron, at O. P. Tanner's. Their horse shied off the road and turned the buggy over and tore it up considerably, getting loose from the vehicle and running some distance when it was caught and returned. Mrs. McGlasson escaped injury while Robert's face was bruised and scratched some.

Mrs. Louisa Stephenson.

Died, near Walton, Mrs. Louisa Stephenson, April 10, 1916, aged 83 years, 11 days.

Dear mother is no more, her spir it has taken its flight to Him who gave it. All that loving hands could do has been done, her troubles are now ended and God, who doeth all things well, has taken her from us to enjoy everlasting rest and dwell with the angels above.

The deceased was highly esteemed for her many traits of noble womanhood and she will be greatly missed by many friends. The greatest trial of recent years in her life was blindness. Altho being blind for ten years she is now living in light with God, that light that knows no darkness. She bore her suffering and troubles with a bravery that was truly wonderful, always so kind and patient with whatever was done.

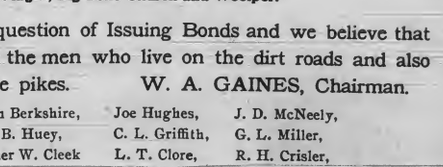
Mrs. Louisa Johnson was married to James Stephenson Feby. 22, 1855. To this union 7 children were born, five of whom survive, Mrs. Lizzie Johnson, of Liberty, Ind.; Mrs. Joseph Fisher, of Verona; Mrs. Ella Harris, of Covington; J. T. Stephenson, of Limaburg and Jas. Stephenson, of Walton. There are 24 living grandchildren and eight dead; six living great-grand-children. At the time of her death the 5 children, several grandchildren and friends were at her bedside.

During the many years of her affliction she was cared for by Mr. and Mrs. W M. Sturgeon, who made her life a source of pleasure.

She was ill only three days. Her husband preceded her to the grave 37 years.

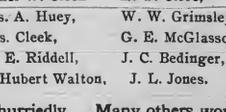
She was the daughter of Hamilton and Mary Johnson and a sister of the late Rev. Layfayette Johnson. She is the last member of a family of six children, all of whom died in their 70's.

She united with New Bethel Baptist church in 1868 and moved her membership to Walton Baptist church in 1868 and has been a consistent member since.



The funeral services took place at New Bethel church at Verona, being conducted by Revs. Johnson and Hamilton in the presence of a large number of sorrowing friends and relatives. Six of her grandchildren were the pallbearers, Leslie, Warren and Claude Stephenson, George, Francis and Hubert Fisher.

Oh, may we meet her on the banks of the Upper river and in the company of the pure and blest of earth.



Card of Thanks.—We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to our many friends and relatives for the sympathy and services extended to us during the illness and death of our dear mother; to Bros. Johnson and Hamilton for their consoling words; to Dr. A. N Jones for his medical aid; to Mr. Chambers for his efficient services; to Miss Rose Whitson, the organist, and also the choir; to friends for the beautiful floral offerings and especially Mr. and Mrs. Willie Sturgeon, who, during the past 13 years, have cared for her, who have been so kind and patient to her, to them we can never give thanks enough but in our prayers they will always be remembered. The Children.

ROAD BUILDING

ROAD BUILDING IS DIFFICULT

Experience and Expert Knowledge Are Essential—Federal Government Offers Assistance.

Road building is a scientific problem—not a haphazard job. We believe, however, that if a census were taken tomorrow, 99 per cent of the people of this land would claim that they were amply qualified to build a road and edit a newspaper. Only a small percentage get a chance to try their hands on the blue pencil proposition, but a trip over almost any country road will convince one that most of the 99 have had a crack at road building.

Little by little the public in general and the officials charged with the responsibility for our highways are learning that road building requires expert knowledge and experience. That ridiculous, antiquated provision for "working out the road tax" which has spoiled more roads than a bombardment from all the high-calibered guns of the European armies, is gradually disappearing from our statute books. Board of county commissioners and township supervisors are giving the matter thoughtful attention and improvement will undoubtedly be rapid from now on. The federal government is offering every assistance to the forward movement. Object-lesson roads are constructed upon application of township or county authorities to demonstrate proper methods of construction and proper use of road-building materials. The office of public roads and rural engineering of the department of agriculture furnishes the services of an engineer, and the local communities are required to furnish all the material, labor and supplies. Experimental roads are also constructed to determine the relative merits and values of the various types of road construction, and of the various preparations and materials for use in road construction. In certain instances the office pays only a portion of the cost of these roads and the balance is borne by the county in which the road is located.

It is too bad that we had to wait for the wail of the stalled automobilist to awaken us to the shameful condition of our roads. A Scotch civil engineer was imported as adviser in the matter of building a railway over our great western plains. He investigated very carefully and gravely reported that the project was unfeasible. When pressed for his reason by the astonished promoters of the enterprise, he said: "You cannot build a line of railway over that country because there's no place to run your tunnels." The "designer" of most of our country roads has been laboring under a similar twisted and contorted vision of his job—but we're on our way.—Iowa Homestead.

CONCRETE ROADS GAIN FAVOR

Highways Are Expensive to Build, but Are Proving, Especially in California, Everlasting.

Investigations by the department of agriculture have shown a wonderful increase in the popularity of roads with heavy concrete base. Such roads are expensive to build, but are proving, especially in sections like California, almost everlasting. The best investment California has made has been her good roads. There have been some mistakes; there have been disappointments because of the inability to cover all sections, but there have been enough benefits secured from the good roads to amply compensate for all they have cost.

Community Action Needed.

In many places community action in destroying weeds is necessary, as it may not be profitable for a farmer to clear his side of the road if the other side is allowed to remain a harboring place for pests.

Add Pleasure and Comfort.

Well-kept trees growing along the roadside contribute greatly to the pleasure and comfort of the travelers besides lending an attractive air to the grounds along the side.

HAT FLOWER TRIMMED

In all the displays of new millinery, hats of braid or of thin materials are shown trimmed with flowers and ribbons. In those pictured here roses and narrow, fancy ribbons are featured.

LESSEN WORK IN LAUNDRY

Use Scarf and Doilies on the Table Will Make a Big Difference During the Week.

To lessen heavy labor there is nothing daintier than a long scarf across the table from mother's place to father's, with doilies under the other plates, cups and saucers and serving dishes. The numerous small pieces count, however, in ironing though they make light washing. They may be made from tablecloths which are somewhat worn.

Scarves are used in opposite directions, one lengthwise of table and two crosswise, and are equally or more effective for small families and do away with the numerous small pieces.

Either method gives a more pleasing effect than the cloth covering the entire table and eases up on the heavy laundering. The scarves may be made of checked glass-toweling or crash for ordinary wear, with dress-up ones of Japanese toweling or damask.

Of course the table top must be in good shape if one is to adopt either of these methods, but there are plenty of wood-finishes on the market with which any woman can refinish her furniture.

KEEPING THE SKIN SMOOTH

Proper Care of the Neck and Shoulders Is a Matter of the Utmost Importance.

To wear decollete is very trying for many women. This season, with the present styles which permit no sleeves and a very low-cut bodice, the woman whose neck is not beautiful cannot appear at her best. The woman who wears decollete successfully must have a soft, smooth skin and neck, shoulders and arms that are well curved.

Plenty of hot and cold baths will keep the pores of the neck and shoulders well opened and the skin in a healthy condition. Sun baths are also desirable, and also salt dips whenever possible. A diet of proper foods will keep the digestive tract in good condition and eliminate any eruptions on the neck or any part of the body. A little pure cold cream applied to the skin will soften it.

If the neck seems to be yellow, the juice of the lemon is a harmless and effective bleach. For the woman whose neck is not well filled, breathing exercises are recommended. Filling the lungs with good, pure air daily will help to round out the neck.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Do not neglect to brush and comb the hair and massage the scalp merely to save a curl or wave.

An iron that is heated to the right degree may not injure the hair. The use of kids is always safe, although the process of curling or waving takes more time.

People who are "run down" are particularly subject to chilblains, in cold weather, so it is essential to keep fit. Have a tonic made up if you feel below par. Eat good, nourishing food.

Warm underclothing is an essential to health. Sufferers from chilblains on the feet have found the wearing of good cotton stockings, as opposed to woolen, most beneficial, especially if they have to do a great deal of walking.

Coats for Girls.

Schoolgirls are wearing good-looking sport or "skating" coats of soft, thick velours in checked pattern; and jaunty little hats and mufflers come to match. One of these coats for a girl of fifteen is of green and white checked velours with big white ball buttons down the front and fastened with wide, loose belt. The coat has deep patch pockets and a muffler collar also closing with white ball buttons. The muffler is trimmed with black tassels and the hat of black velvet with a rolling brim of checked velours.

New Neckbands.

The newest thing in neckbands is the small black silk cord from which hangs a jeweled pendant. These may also be used as veil fasteners, placing the cord and pendant over the veil.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

SANDWICHES FOR GUESTS.

Good wholesome bread is the great food in our homes and is often-times

Boil and mash seven potatoes, add a pint of water in which the potatoes have been boiled, and three pints of cold water, then stir in two and a half cakes of yeast dissolved in a little warm water, two tablespoonfuls of salt, two of sugar and three of flour, mix and add a pint of boiling water; when cool add to the first mixture and cover with a cloth and keep warm ten hours. Then place in a moderately cool place until needed. For each loaf of bread put four cupfuls of flour, warm and sifted into a bread pan with a pint of the yeast, a cupful of scalded milk, cooled, and a tablespoonful of lard. Mix with a spoon, then knead briskly for ten minutes, mold into loaves and let rise in a warm place. When light bake forty-five minutes in a moderate oven.

Tea Rolls.—Scald two cupfuls of milk and pour it over a cupful of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of butter and a teaspoonful of salt. When it is cool to luke-warm beat into it three cupfuls of flour, sifted three times, then add a cake of yeast, dissolved in a fourth of a cupful of luke-warm water. Cover and let rise until it is light, then add two well-beaten eggs, three more cupfuls of flour and a teaspoonful of cinnamon. Place in a buttered bowl and let rise until double its bulk. Form into small rolls and place in a buttered pan, let them rise until very light. Brush the tops with melted butter and bake in a hot oven for fifteen minutes by adding to the above one-half a cupful of cocoa.

Popovers.—Take two cupfuls of flour, two cupfuls of milk, three eggs and a teaspoonful of salt. Beat the eggs until light, add the milk and salt and pour gradually into the flour, beating all the time. Strain the batter and pour into hot greased gem pans. Bake in a hot oven twenty-five minutes.

DAINTY CAKES FOR DESSERTS.

With a sheet of sponge cake one may vary the desserts, having something different each day for a week if so desired.

Cut thin sponge cake in rounds, heap on sliced bananas and add a little lemon juice, then heap on sweetened and flavored whipped cream, dot with a cherry or bits of jelly.

Cut plain sponge cake in slices, using three slices for each serving, put these together with sweetened rhubarb or rhubarb and orange marmalade, decorate the top with cream and a bit of jelly.

Oranges sliced and placed as a filling in chocolate cake, served with a boiled custard is delicious.

Cake crumbs of various kinds with any stewed or canned fruit, make a most delicious dessert, served either steamed hot or baked.

Strawberry Dessert.—Cut plain cake in squares, and dip in canned strawberry juice to soften, put on a layer of sliced bananas and decorate with a few choice preserved strawberries. Serve with whipped cream colored with the juice and slightly sweetened.

Fig Betty.—Take two cupfuls of cake crumbs, melt a tablespoonful of butter and stir in the crumbs until well mixed. Place a layer of the crumbs in a baking dish, add a thin layer of apple and figs, finish with the buttered crumbs. Add enough lemon juice and water to keep the mixture moist enough to bake. Cook until the apple is tender.

Pineapple Toast.—Toast in a little hot butter some rounds of sponge cake or any plain cup cake which is firm enough to hold in shape. Lay on a slice of the pineapple making the circle of cake fit the circle of pineapple, cover with another circle of cake, sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve with whipped cream or a sauce made from the juice of the canned pineapple. Thicken a cupful of the juice with two tablespoonfuls of butter, bubbling hot, add two of flour and when well mixed pour on the juice. Serve all hot.

Appreciated the Appie.

A curious testimony to the importance formerly attached to the apple may bo found in the coronation service of our Angio-Saxon kings. The coronation benediction runs: "May the Almighty bless thee with the blessing of grapes and apples . . . by his blessing may this land be filled with apples, with the fruit and dew of heaven, from the top of the ancient mountains, from the apples of the eternal hills . . ."—London Chronicle.

Her Suspicion.

"I declare for it," said Aunt Fretty Fawits to Mrs. Judge Tubman. "I believe old Cap'n Peggington is thinking about marrying again. Burt Blurt says the cap'n painted up his wooden leg yesterday. Burt didn't tell me, but he told Ellick Smart, and Ellick repeated it to his sister, Prissy, and Priss told it to Pheeny Partlow, and Pheeny told it to the sweet potato peddler, and the sweet potato peddler told me not ten minutes ago. So I guess it's so."—Kansas City Star.

Tonsilitis From Bad Water.

That enlarged tonsils are generally due to drinking impure water is the contention of Dr. F. Lucas Benham of Exeter, South Australia. Valuable Unused Land.

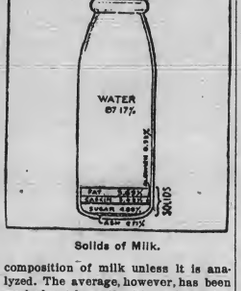
DAIRY FACTS

RATION FOR DAIRY COWS

High Protein Concentrates Other Than Corn Must Supplement Roughage—Oats Are Favored.

With fodder alone as roughage cows must have some high protein concentrates and they must be other than corn products. If the oats are worth less than middlings, it will be well to make them a part of the ration. Rye is as harmless as any other grain to a pregnant animal when not affected with ergot. If it is worth no more per pound than corn it may well be used in part. Cottonseed meal at the present time is a much cheaper source of protein than linseed meal, and with oats and rye or a wheat product in the ration also it may be used to supply the deficit of protein. However, if any cows appear to need a more laxative ration, better substitute linseed, at least in part, for the cottonseed meal.



It matters little to the cow whether the corn is shelled before being ground, or even whether it is ground, so long as the cobs are soft enough to enable her to eat them readily.

But to compound a ration from the list submitted: Using the corn in the form of meal and grinding both oats and rye, use one part by weight of each of these and two of cottonseed meal.

SOLIDS CONTAINED IN MILK

According to Best Authorities Fat, Casein, Sugar, Albumen and Ash Will Vary Somewhat.

The accompanying diagram shows that about 87 per cent of milk is water. Held in suspension therein is what is collectively known as solids. These are fat, casein, sugar, albumen and ash. It is generally understood that these milk solids vary more or less and it is impossible to make an accurate statement of the percentage composition of milk unless it is analyzed. The average, however, has been worked out by authorities. According to them the different percentages for the solids and water vary somewhat, but the ones given in the diagram are as determined by Babcock.

BUTTER ALWAYS IN DEMAND

No Reason Why Farmer Should Not Compete With Creameries—Some Business Ability Needed.

There is plenty of room today for the private dairyman who wants to market his cream in the form of butter. Because the creameries have nearly monopolized the retail city trade is no reason why butter made on the farm should not compete successfully with the best of the creamery butter. This class of butter, which is made from but one herd of well-bred cows and from separated sweet milk, should form one of the most delicious articles of food, and can always command fancy prices when it reaches the right people. It requires some business ability to work up a select trade for any home product, yet it is not at all difficult to create a demand for a certain brand of butter among those who know a good article when they see or taste it, and are willing to pay a little extra for what suits them.

Fresh air for cows, but no exposure to bad weather.

Corn silage, in the frozen stage, should not be fed to dairy cows.

The greatest contamination of the milk flow occurs at the time of milking.

Milking the cow clean will develop her udder and help to increase her milk capacity.

It never pays to kill the heifer calves from the best cows. Raise them to replace the poor cows.

Milk must be promptly cooled and kept cold. The growth of germs is checked by cold.

Too much cannot be said about the way in which cows are treated in the stable. Kindness must prevail.

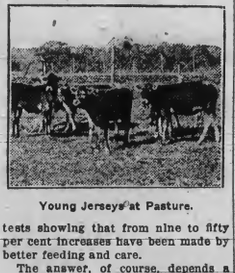
Frequent attention to distribution of the cows' bedding is just as important as to supply a large amount of it.



DAIRY FACTS

IMPROVEMENT OF DAIRY COW

How Much Credit Must Be Given for Better Feeding and Care and How Much for Breeding?

In increasing the production of a dairy herd how much credit must be given for better feeding and care and how much for better breeding and selection?

This question has been argued back and forth and experiment stations in this and all other countries have made tests showing that from nine to fifty per cent increases have been made by better feeding and care.

The answer, of course, depends a great deal on previous feeding and care, but it is not an important question.

The important thing is that we know positively that by better feeding and care better breeding and selection the production can be increased very largely and very profitably. It doesn't matter what form of effort gets the credit, the result is what we want.

DEVICE TO SEPARATE CREAM

Machine Will Often Pay for Itself in One Year, Much Depending on Number of Cows Kept.

The cream separator is a mechanical device for separating the cream from the milk, almost instantaneously by centrifugal force. Its advantages over the old methods of separation are:

1. It takes practically all the butter fat and will save from five to ten dollars per cow each year over any methods.

2. Skim milk has its greatest feeding value while warm, clean and sweet.

3. The labor connected with the care of the milk can be decreased and the profits from the cows greatly increased because a better quality of cream can be obtained.

A cream separator is an investment and not an expense to anyone who keeps five or six good cows, and wants to make butter or sell cream. A separator will often pay for itself in one year, often in less time, according to the number of cows kept. With proper care and attention, a cream separator will last a decade.

CHURNING HINTS FOR WINTER

Butter-Making Troubles May Be Overcome by Keeping Cream at the Proper Temperature.

Troubles arising from winter butter-making may largely be overcome by keeping the cream to be churned at a temperature of 52 degrees Fahrenheit until two days before churning, when it should be placed where the temperature is about 75 degrees Fahrenheit.

The cream should be kept at 58 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit during churning time and when the butter collects into small nut sizes the buttermilk should be drained off and water at a temperature of 60 degrees Fahrenheit should be poured over it, repeating the rinsing process two or three times.

With the last rinsing, give twenty churning revolutions and draw off the water. To work the butter, place the particles on a flat board and strew the salt over it uniformly and work just enough to distribute the salt evenly throughout the butter.

MILK ONLY WITH DRY HANDS

Practice of Wetting Hands Is Filthy Habit and Liable to Cause Cow's Teats to Chap.

Milkers should be allowed to milk only with dry hands. The practice of wetting the hands with milk is a filthy habit and is liable to cause the cows' teats to chap in the winter time.

Milking should be done quickly and thoroughly, with no violent jerking of the teats.

After each cow is milked the milk should be removed immediately to the milk house.

Avoid Wooden Stalls.

Stalls of wood have many flat surfaces and cracks which are difficult to keep clean, and in case of an outbreak of disease are not easy to disinfect thoroughly. Stalls and swing stanchions made of metal pipe are more sanitary.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

The world is full of unfortunates that have but one ailment—indecision. —Sam Johnson.

STAFF OF LIFE.

Sandwiches are used particularly for cold repasts, especially for outdoor excursions and picnics. They are easily made and depend for perfection on their daintiness.

For chicken salad sandwiches chop the chicken and celery much finer than for the salad. Cut the bread in narrow oblongs, butter, lay on a lettuce leaf and a filling of the salad.

Fig Sandwiches.—Prepare a half-pound of figs by chopping them, and a third of a cupful of sugar, a half-cupful of boiling water, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, mix and cook these ingredients in a double boiler until thick enough to spread. Cut the bread in fancy shapes, spread with softened butter and place the fig filling between.

Lettuce Sandwiches.—Spread white bread, cut in oblongs, with butter, lay on a lettuce leaf dipped in salad dressing and sprinkle with Roquefort cheese.

Nut-Ginger Sandwiches.—Cut bread in narrow finger strips, butter and put between two a filling of chopped Canton ginger and cream well mixed, then add chopped walnuts that have been browned in a little butter and seasoned with a dash of salt and paprika, put on the third slice and press well together.

Kindergarten Sandwiches. — Cut brown bread with a doughnut cutter, also cut slices of white bread and use the same cutter. Spread out the small circles and the hollow ones, put a dark center into a white ring and a write center into a dark one, spread with butter and cottage cheese, put together in pairs or serve singly.

A most appetizing filling for any sandwich is a common boiled dressing which has been thinned with a little of the seasoned oil and vinegar from oil pickles, with a bit of the pickles chopped and added with a tablespoonful or two of finely chopped boiled ham.

A green pepper finely chopped added to boiled dressing is a flavor which is well liked for sandwiches. Olives stuffed or plain, pickles of various kinds and salt of celery or other seasonings also make a good filling.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE TABLE.

Fry 12 onions in butter slowly, covering during the first half of the cooking, then let them brown until tender. Mash six hard-cooked egg yolks, add a cupful of milk gradually. Pour this over the onions, season and add the whites of the eggs, coarsely chopped. Let it simmer for three minutes and serve with browned rice or mashed potatoes.

Cinnamon Toast.—Toast bread quickly, spread generously with butter and sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar, well mixed; put in pairs and cut in triangles. Place in a hot oven for a minute or two, then serve on a folded napkin on a hot plate.

Orange Biscuits.—Shape rich biscuit dough in small biscuit. Grate the rind and squeeze the juice from an orange. Dip as many lumps of sugar in the juice as there are biscuit. Plunge one lump in each biscuit, sprinkle with the rind and bake in a hot oven. Serve hot or cold.

Halibut Baked in Milk.—Take a two-pound slice of halibut, lay in a deep baking dish or fireproof platter, season with salt, pepper and parsley, dredge with flour and dot with bits of butter. Add milk to the depth of one inch, lay over a sliced onion and a few minced celery tips. Bake gently for 50 minutes in a moderate oven.

Sour Cream Doughnuts.—Take a cupful each of sour cream and sour milk, add a teaspoonful each of salt, soda and ginger, mix well, add a half cupful of sugar, beat in three cupfuls of flour, then add two well-beaten eggs and flour enough to roll without sticking. Fry in deep hot fat.

Bisque Cream.—Take a half pound of peanut brittle, put through the food chopper, whip a pint of cream, combine mixtures; pour into a mold and set in ice for four hours. Cover the mold with waxed paper before placing the cover.

Date Bread.—Mix together one and a half cupfuls of bread flour and the same of graham flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a tablespoonful of sugar, a half teaspoonful of salt, a cupful and three-quarters of milk and a package of dates, cut fine; bake in a bread tin for 45 minutes in a slow oven.

FARM ANIMALS

FEEDING POTATOES TO HOGS

Fed to Best Advantage When Cooked or Steamed and Mixed With Various Other Feeds.

On account of the low price of potatoes in many sections farmers have been seeking information as to the possibility of feeding them to hogs.

Many experiments have been conducted in Germany and other foreign countries as well as a few in the United States to determine the value of potatoes as feed for swine. In Ireland and Germany farmers feed large quantities of potatoes annually. From experimental data it has been concluded that 4 to 4½ bushels of potatoes when cooked are equal to about one bushel of corn for putting gains on hogs. Therefore, if corn is worth 80 cents a bushel, potatoes when fed to hogs would be worth only 18 or 20 cents a bushel. There may, however, be instances where it would be more advantageous for the farmer to feed to hogs right on his own place at least part of his crop rather than to haul these potatoes to an already overloaded market.

According to the consensus of opinion, potatoes are fed to the best advantage when cooked or steamed and mixed with other feeds. Experiments in which raw potatoes were fed alone have been reported. In certain instances the raw potatoes are said to have caused scours. However, raw potatoes in small quantities and in a diet lacking succulence may be conducive to health in pigs.

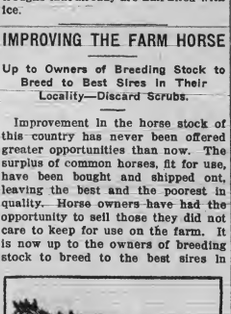
In cooking potatoes only enough water should be used to make a mealy mash and prevent burning. The resultant meal should then be mixed with corn meal or other grain supplement. Tankage, skim milk, or meat meal would probably add to the profit of the mixture. Potatoes when prepared in the manner described and under the conditions mentioned can often be fed to pigs with advantage.

SUPPLYING WATER TO SWINE

One of Difficult Problems Hog Raisers Must Solve in Winter—Tank Heaters Are Best.

It is true that hogs, especially pigs, do not get as much water as they need during cold, freezing weather. The water should be heated in cold weather to at least 50 degrees Fahrenheit, and it is better if it is heated to 70 or 80 degrees. How to heat the water and keep it warm is one of the difficult problems hog raisers have to solve in winter.

Some folks water the hogs several times during the day and pour all the water that is left out of the troughs as soon as the hogs drink.



Others have arranged various devices in which they can use tank heaters. This is the most convenient and satisfactory way if a large number of hogs can be watered at one place. The method to use will have to be determined by local conditions.

Hogs do not thrive or make good gains when ice water is given them in troughs that already are half filled with ice.

IMPROVING THE FARM HORSE

Up to Owners of Breeding Stock to Breed to Best Sires in Their Locality—Discard Scrubs.

Improvement in the horse stock of this country has never been offered greater opportunities than now. The surplus of common horses, fit for use, have been bought and shipped out, leaving the best and the poorest in quality. Horse owners have had the opportunity to sell those they did not care to keep for use on the farm. It is now up to the owners of breeding stock to breed to the best sires in their locality. There can be no excuse for breeding to any but the best pure-bred horses from now on, and the worthless old scrubs that are not now fit to sell will soon all be wiped off the earth and a new condition of horse quality should and will prevail. Owners of breeding stock must aim to breed for the highest priced animal, the most serviceable to satisfy the demands for horse power.

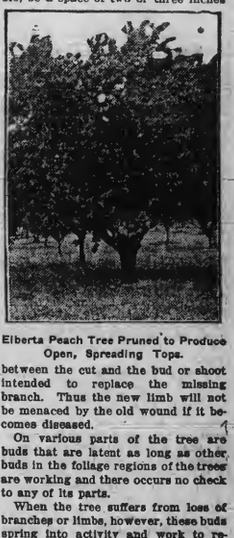
Fresh Water for Hogs.

Hogs should have plenty of fresh water at all times, but it is always best to have this furnished from a well or spring on your own farm, for if they have access to streams that run through other farms before reaching yours, there is great danger of disease being carried down this stream to your hogs.



ORCHARD TOPICS

HELP FOR MUTILATED TREES

Injuries Done by Heavy Bearing Necessitates Pruning as Well as Some Amputation.

When the trees are badly broken from heavy bearing, pruning considers reconstruction as well as amputation. To trim the tree so that it will regain its proper balance and symmetry one must consider the position of the buds which can replace the other limbs.

Cutting off a limb just below the point of injury will not reshape the tree. The cut should be well below the injury and there should, if possible, be a space of two or three inches between the cut and the bud or shoot intended to replace the missing branch. Thus the new limb will not be menaced by the old wound if it becomes diseased.

On various parts of the tree are buds that are latent as long as other buds in the foliage regions of the trees are working and there occurs no check to any of its parts.

When the tree suffers from loss of branches or limbs, however, these buds spring into activity and work to replace the loss. It is this natural insurance against loss that serves the grower in the reconstruction of his broken trees. The strongest of such buds should be chosen for development.

RIGHT SYSTEM FOR ORCHARD

Before Ordering Fruit Trees Arrangement Should Be Carefully Figured Out on Paper.

Before ordering trees for an orchard plantation determine carefully the acreage and the system to be adopted in planting the trees. It will make a great deal of difference whether the trees are set in rectangular, hexagonal or quincunx form. The most common system of these is the rectangular. In this system the square or rectangles are easily cultivated. However, this does not give as many trees to the acre as other systems and they are not equally distributed over the land.

The hexagonal system means that the trees are set out six trees in a circle with the seventh tree in the center. When set out this way the trees are equally distant in every direction and the trees use equally the ground and air space, so as to provide a splendid distribution.

The quincunx system is desirable when fillers are to be used. It means planting in squares or rectangles and putting a filler in the middle so as to provide for five trees in the square. When the orchard is mature the middle tree can be taken out. This will bring 25 per cent more trees to the acre than by the rectangular system and lends itself very nicely to the filler system.

Take a piece of paper and figure the arrangement all out before setting the orchard. Do not plant trees at such a distance that when it comes time to thin them out the trees will be too far apart. Make a careful study of the work at first and it will help very much.

CHIEF OBJECTS IN PRUNING

Principal Aim Should Be to Make Substantial Framework to Hold Up Leaves and Fruit.

The objects of pruning are: To make the tree into what might be called a substantial framework with which it is to hold up the leaves and fruit, to cause it to have a symmetrical shape, to renew the fruiting wood, to remove crossing and diseased and broken branches, to thin the top so as to allow free circulation of air through it and to keep the tree as low as possible so as to facilitate pruning, picking and spraying.

In young trees care should be taken to have the main branches come out from all sides of the tree and each from a different height. The crotches will all be strong then.

Judge J. G. Tomlin will address the people of Big Bone Springs on the $200,000 bond issue next Saturday, April 22nd at 2:30 in the afternoon, and at Beaver Lick that evening at 7:30. He has a strong talk in favor of the issue and it is all fostered by public weal and enterprise and he has no interest outside of that engendered by being a progressive, public spirited citizen who loves to see his county and its highways as good as any in the State, and he does not even own an automobile.

Dr. J. G. Slater had a very unfortunate accident occur last Wedseeday in Ludlow. He was on his way to Covington Hospital in his automobile, when two small boys ran out in the street in front of his machine, and, although he did everything in his power to avert running over the children, yet the auto struck one of the boys named Jenkins, aged 9 years, and threw him with such violence against the curb stone, that the little fellow suffered a fracture of the skull. Dr. Slater took the injured boy to the hospital as quick as he could but the little fellow died shortly after arriving there. Everybody exhonorated Dr. Slater from any blame, the mother of the boy signing a statement to that effect shortly after the accident.

Mrs. Louisa J. Stephenson, one of the oldest ladies in this section, died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. L Sturgeon near Walton, after a brief illness. Mrs. Stephenson was one of the pioneers of this section and has resided in this locality all of her life. She was eighty-three years old on March 30th, when she assisted in celebrating her birthday, anniversary with a prospect of being able to enjoy many more such pleasant occasions, but she suffered a stroke of paralysis, and the human frame that had passed through so many trying ordeals showed that time had absorbed all of its reserve force and the debt of nature had to be paid by Death's decree; the human machinery had worn out, and the earthly tenement was to be deserted by the soul that would join the heavenly hosts. A well spent life was ended, and an example of usefulness and christian fortitude was left as a legacy to her beloved ones that would be better for their happiness and welfare than silver or gold. Mrs. Stephenson was beloved by all for her kind disposition and generous nature, and besides her bereaved relatives she leaves many sorrowing friends. The funeral was held at the Walton Baptist church last Thursday of which she had long been a member.

Narrowly Escaped a Big Fire.

The handsome residence of Jas. T. Gaines at the top of the Idlewild hill on the Petersburg pike had a narrow escape from fire last Monday. Some bed clothes had been placed on the roof of a back porch to air, and the high wind that prevailed carried a spark from a flue into them and a pretty lively blaze was in progress when discovered by Mr. Gaines. The alarm was given over the telephone but Mr. and Mrs. Gaines and their help had the flames about subdued when the neighbors began to arrive. The saving of the building under the circumstance was little less than a miracle.

Rex Berkshire's old farm mule after 27 years of faithful service passed to that place where all good mules go, a few days since, and since his demise Rex can be heard roaming over the hills and valleys singing—Old mule, old mule, you're through pulling the plow, but never have I missed you as much as I do right now.

Villa is not dead and it looks like Uncle Sam will have to break with Germany.

Mr. W. A. Gaines has been somewhat indisposed for several days.

FRANCISCO VILLA

The Bandit, Has Long List of Crimes to His Credit

Has Been Bloody Man of Mexico for Many Years.

Villa is the son of a stableman. He was born in San Juan del Rio, Durango, in 1877, and was working for a rich landowner when Don Pedro Sanchez, a commander of rurales, bribed him to act as go-between in a love affair. Villa betrayed Sanchez and took money from the latter's rival. Sanchez beat the youth, and for this received a bullet in the back a few nights later.

For this, his first murder, Villa was sentenced to death. While in jail a prominent man offered to get him free if he would kill the guardian of two wealthy girls. Villa murdered the guardian, a man named Pantoja and escaped to Parral.

His next business was stealing cattle for a butcher named Miguel Baca Villies. In 1902, Villa shot Valies' partner dead at Valles' request. Later in the same year, Villa and a gang robbed a ranch near Parrel, shot the daughter of Innocence Chavex in the leg and wounded an employe.

In January, 1903, the Villa gang ambushed three men carrying money to a mine, left one dead and got away with the payroll. Villa continued his depredations and in May, 1904, descended upon a ranch near Villa Ocampa, Durango. His gang bound the two vaqueros of Amaya, the owner, and then continued on to Amaya's home, on the outskirts of Villa Ocampo. Amaya's door was opened to the bandits by a young girl, whom they killed with an axe. Put to flight by a policeman, they returned to the ranch and beheaded the two vaqueros.

While trying to escape after this crime, Villa killed a rurale leader. One of Villa's companions was caught and told his story, while another was slain.

For several years Villa was quiet, and then, on Sept. 15, 1908, he sacked the Rancho del Saucito and the next month burned the courthouse at Valle del Rosario in order to destroy evidence of his cattle thefts.

In the spring of 1909, the Villa band beat down two Americans near the plant of the Pittsburg San Jose Reduction Co's. Smelter at San Jose del Sitio, Chihuahua, tied their victims and then looted their homes.

In 1910, Villa masqueraded as a cattle buyer and was entertained with his six companions by a wealthy ranches, Alexander Muenez, near Ninos Heras. Suddenly the bandits attacked their hosts, killed one of Munez's sons and tortured and afterward killed the father to make him disclose the hiding place of his Patria money.

Clara Rosa was a member of Villa's murdering and robbing band for several years. He was caught, and after a year and a half in jail he consented to help catch Villa. Villa heard of this, Roza had been given a commission in the rurales. The bandit leader sent word to him that his former chief was coming to Chihauhau to kill him.

With two companions, Villa rode into the city and found Roza gossiping with a butcher. Villa fired a shot into Roza's back. The latter ran and hid in a ditch, where Villa and his companions found and killed him.

The cold-blooded murders continued after Villa had become a revolutionist instead of a bandit. Manuel Ramos was in charge of the criminal court at Santa Rosalia and had papers compromising Villa. On capturing Santa Rosalia with his bandits, now insurgents, Villa immediately shot Ramos with his own hand and burned the papers of the court.

After the occupation of Juarez by Madero in 1911, Don Jose Mestas tried to escape with his savings to American soil. Villa caught him near the international bridge and killed him.

In the fall of 1913 Villa entered Juarez with a victorious army and put thirty prisoners to death. Time and again Madero rescued intended victims from the monster's clutches.

He was especially cruel to the Colorados, or followers of Orozco. These "reg flaggers" had revolted against Diaz and Orozco and had insulted Villa by calling him a bandit and refusing him assistance. In July, 1914, Villa defeated a command of Colorados near Nevas Casas Grandes and burned several hundred dead and wounded in one vast funeral pyre.

His orders were to kill the Colorados on sight. He took 196 of them prisoners at San Andres in August, 1913, and executed them in squares five wide and five deep. After the firing squad had emptied a volley into the twenty-five unhappy victims, Villa and Maj. Fierro, a man after Villa's own heart, would go about among the fallen writhing forms and finish them with their revolvers.

Having bribed a man named Portilla to assassinate Salazar, the Colorado leader, Villa killed the former for failing to carry out his commission.

Supt. Riley at the K. E. A.

In the Courier Journal's report of the meeting of the K. E. A. held in Louisville, last week, the following mention of Boone county's Superintendent of schools appears:

Supt. Edgar C. Riley, of Boone county, in an address took the position that no new school teachers should be employed in the State who had not at least the equivalent of a high school education. His subject was, "What Becomes of the Graduates of Our Normal Schools." He urged that normal schools be used solely for training teachers, saying regular school subjects should be taught in them "only from the standpoint of scientific instruction, so that those who are taught may be able to teach the same subjects better to others." He held that a full knowledge of all subjects taught in the public schools should be acquired by the teachers before they enter the normals. Deploring the failure of normal graduates to become and remain school teachers, he held that better salaries for teachers with employment 12 months out of every year was the only solution of the problem."

THE MEDICAL MEET

Officers Elected and Other Important Business Transacted

Several Very Interesting Talks Made By Visitors.

The Boone County Medical Society met at the court house, last Wednesday afternoon, and elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

President—Dr. O. E. Senour, Union.

Vice-President—Dr. J. H. Grant, Florence.

Secretary-Treasurer—Dr. S. B. Nunnelly, Bullittsville.

The following doctors were in attendance:

Drs. W. C. Hibbitt, Granville S. Hines and Chas. Farmer, of Louisville; Theo. W. Singer, of Chicago, and the following Boone county doctors: Hayes, of Bullittsville; Menefee and Rankin, of Walton; Senour, of Union; Carlye, of Rabbit Hash; Richmond, of Belleview; Nunnelly, of Bullittsville; Grant, of Florence, and Yelton, of Burlington. Rev. Baker, of Belleview, was an interested visitor.

The visiting doctors from Louisville delivered interesting lectures that were highly appreciated by the meeting several of those present pronouncing them the most entertaining and instructive they ever heard. Altogether last Wednesday's meeting was decidedly profitable to those who attended, and the Louisville doctors made a big hit with their rural brethren.

The President's Message.

The message of the President yesterday is a message of peace to Berlin; a message of preparedness to the American Congress; a message of possible war to the American people.

Fifty-five years ago Lincoln, in his First Inaugural made a like appeal to the people, to Congress and to the world.

"You have no oath registered in Heaven to destroy the government, while I shall have the most solemn one to preserve, protect and defend it," said the President then, and a like seriousness echoed in the President's note to Berlin today. We have wafted a year for the redemption by Berlin of her pledged faith to the American people, of her unescapable obligations to all civilized nations.

It is charged by his enemies that Wilson has moved slowly, that he has been reluctant to make reconciliation impossible. It is true. So was it said, with equal truth, of Lincoln, and that reluctance then made, and now makes, for a union of all those forces which in war or peace is essential to triumph.

Seven States had seceded when Lincoln said: "I am loth to close. We are not enemies but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained it must not break our bonds of affection."

It is so today. "Think calmly and well upon this subject. Nothing valuable can be lost by taking time," were the last words of appeal in 1861. It was six weeks before war came, six weeks before any preparation was made to meet the war for secession.

Let these reflections calm the temper of our people. Time should strengthen the purpose expressed by President Wilson yesterday. It is for Berlin to decide for peace or war. If it is to be war, the Kaiser will face a united people on this side of the water, notwithstanding the agents of sedition he has placed everywhere in America, and notwithstanding such copperheads as Mann and such mad prophets as Bryan.—Louisville Evening Post.

BANK AND CASHIRE

Round Out Enviable Continuous Record of Forty-Four Years.

Friday marked the forty-fourth anniversary of the founding of the National Bank of Rising Sun, and simultaneously is recorded the rounding out of the same length of continuous service as a bank cashier by J. N. Perkins, who is still with this prosperous institution.

Mr. Perkins is now said to be the longest continuous service bank cashier in the state of Indiana, and hundreds of friends throughout the community are not only congratulating him for this remarkable career, but because of his uninterrupted devotion to the general interest he has constantly manifested in the welfare of this county and its environs and the businesslike, fair and courteous administration of the affairs of the stalwart financial institution with which he has been connected.

Haines Smith of this city was the first depositor. Then a mere lad, he took his money to the bank in "an old sock," and Mr. Perkins received it. Mr. Smith is now a prominent stockholder in the National. It is said he has never since been without money on deposit in this institution.—Ohio County News.

Good Roads Meeting in Kenton County.

The following is taken from the Covington column of last Friday's Cincinnati Enquire, and is of interest to Boone county people:

"At a meeting of Kenton county Commissioners yesterday morning Judge Reid appointed an Advisory Committee, composed of Attorney Harvey Myers, Covington; H. G. Buckner, Erlanger; William D. Webber, Bromley; A. C. Bird, Independence, and Kirby Richardson, White's Tower, to act with County Commissioners in all matters relative to expenditure of the $150,000 bond issue in the building of new roads in Kenton county.

"Delegates from Erlanger, Covington Industrial Club, Pike St. Merchants' Association and Retail Merchants' Association, Covington, asked the Commissioners to improve all of Lexington pike lying in Kenton county. This thorough fare, they explained, will be part of the Dixie Highway and 60 per cent of the travel in Kenton county will be on it. They added that two miles of the pike has been improved with concrete construction, and that completion of the remainder would benefit the commercial interests of the county in trade with adjoining counties.

"Attorney John H. Klette, representing Kenton County Farmers' Association, asked that the bond issue be distributed as follows: Fifty thousand dollars on the Lexington pike, $50,000 on the Madison, Independence and Colesmanville pike, $20,000 on the Decourcey pike, $20,000 on the Taylor Mill pike, and $10,000 on the Lower River pike below Bromley. He also asked that County Attorney Hanlon investigate feasibility of the county's borrowing money in anticipation of revenue to be derived from the state in connection with the building of roads in the event that the $150,000 bond issue should prove insufficient to improve all roads in the county.

County Commissioners also were asked to use their influence with the South Covington and Cincinnati Street Railway Company in having the Ft. Mitchell car line extended into Erlanger."

HUNTING A THIEF

Cropper and Conner in Consultation With Cincinnati and Covington Officials.

No Information As To His Whereabouts.

Sheriff W. D. Cropper and Deputy Sheriff L. A. Conner, accompanied by Geo. Hensley, spent a day and night in Cincinnati and Covington, last week, trying to locate one John Jackson, who it is believed robbed the residences of Mr. Hensley and J. J. It is reported that the Gallatin county authorities would like to get charge of Jackson for a job he pulled off in that county some time since.

UNCLE SAM READY

To Cope With Situations That May Arise in Germany.

Washington, April 22.—The United States Government has made tentative plans to cope with every conceivable situation which would result from the severance of diplomatic relations with Germany. For reasons they indicated were obvious, officials tonight deemed it to be unwise to discuss the details.

There is reason for believing however, that some of the plans have to do with the safety of American citizens in the German Empire and that others have to do with American supervision of German interests in the countries at war with Germany.

Numerous dispatches on these subjects are understood to have been sent to diplomatic representatives abroad, perticularly to Ambassador Gerard, at Berlin. The dispatches are regarded as being highly confidential, and for that reason information concerning them is unavailable here.

Among dispatches received from Ambassador Gerard within the last two days was one describing the manner in which the American note, declaring the purpose of the United States to break relations unless Germany modified her sub marine methods, was received by German officials.

While this, too, was held as confidential, it is understood the Ambassador represented Berlin officials as being greatly surprised at the demands of the Washington Goverment. Gerard is said to have gathered at least an impression that the Foreign Office had no idea that the communication would be as drastic and final as it was.

The general feeling here tonight apparently was not at all optimistic regarding the outcome. In the hope of further informative advices from Ambassador Gerard the day's press dispatches were read closely.

Indications in them that there might be delays or requests for additional information were regarded by officials as significant. It is well understood, however, that the United States, under no consideration, will permit delay and discussion unless it is preceded by a declaration from Germany that she has so modified her submarine warfare as to bring it within the scope of international law.

W. A. (Bud) Bradford Dead.

W. A. Bradford, who conducted a harness shop in Burlington in the early eighties, died at the Grant hospital, Columbus, Ohio, April 18th, and was interred at Hebron, his old home, on the 21st inst. He was 60 years of age, and had been with the firm of Sells Bros., manufacturers of harness, for 20 years. His health began to fail one year ago as the result of a fall he got in the factory, but he was able to be up until a few days before his death.

Card of Thanks—We wish to express our sincere thanks to our many friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness and death of our beloved husband and son A. W. Bradford. Especially do we thank the donors of the floral offerings. Rev. Campbell for his kindness and sympathetic words, the Hebron choir for the beautiful songs rendered, and Mr. W. A. Bulloch for the efficient manner in which he conducted the funeral.

Captured Two Prizes.

Boone County High School had the following exhibits at the K. E. A. last week in Louisville:

One pound butter, one business letter, one corset cover, one stencil drawing, one farm house plot and grounds, one porch swing. The farm house plot and grounds and stencil drawing each took a $5 premium.

Twenty-four Boone co., teachers attended the K. E. A. and they report a pleasant and profitable time.

A good yield of corn depends upon a number of factors, of which three of the most important are the selection, the testing of the seed. Under average farm conditions, the proper amount of care taken in securing the best seed will be more than repaid.

...ham ... be ... to ... coun... ...itions from ... works as ... should work, ... and his associates ... for having solv... ...oblem of procur... ...d improvement in ... ...ese levy is not large enough to ... the expense of work done by contract ... with the usual losses and leakage of the contract system.

The Fiscal Court of Oldham proposes to furnish crushed stone at quarry for any road which needs it, provided the farmers whose property abuts upon that road, or others interested in its improvement, will haul the stone and spread it at their own expense. There is more than one obvious advantage in this plan from the standpoint of economy.

Where contracts for roadmaking or repairing are let the contractor often applies the yard of actual stone plus two yards of imaginary stone and collects from the county for three yards at a price at which a private purchaser could buy four yards. He makes his contract upon a basis of fancy prices for the labor of the men and the work of the teams, and a large allowance of profit for the value of his own services. Under the plan which Judge De Haven is recommending, and which, it seems, has met with a hearty response in Oldham, the road which is allowed 1,000 yards of stone will get that amount because the farmers who haul it will see to it that there is no mismeasurement. The cost of teams and men will be illiminated. If the county engineer supervises the work as presumably he will, much should be gained, and nothing lost, by eliminating the contractor's profit from the cost of roadmaking. The prevalent custom of depending up on the contractor to solve the engineering problems involved in roadmaking is costly... first, because the contractor rarely is an engineer, and, second, because he is interested primarily in profits.

The old-fashioned plan of applying compulsory free labor in roadmaking still practiced in many counties, is a poor makeshift because men who are compelled to work on the roads without remuneration go at the work in a rebellious spirit and accomplish little. But land owners should be quick to avail themselves of an opportunity to improve the value of their property by co-operating to put in good condition the roads which make it accessible. Their expense for man labor and team work should be repaid amply. It should prove possible to maintain a far greater mileage of good roads than can be kept up by the contract plan, or by the county doing its own work and paying high prices for men and teams.—C.-J.

Kentucky's Seed Law

The test of the value of every law is found in its application, but insofar as it can be judged by the text the pure seed law passed by the recent session of the Kentucky Legislature is sound. It should be given a thorough test and if defects are discovered they can be remedied by amendment. The law may be improved from time to time, when, or if, the advancement of agriculture in the direction of a more exact science shall have demonstrated the practicality of making and enforcing better laws to give the farmer a reliable market in which to buy seed. The law as it stands, seems to be in breast of the times, and it should aid materially in putting Kentucky agriculture upon a better basis, but it cannot do so unless the farmers become interested in it as a safeguard and make use of as occasion demands.

The Kentucky law follows largely the suggestions of the Association of Official Seed Analysis. The principal provisions are:

That agricultural seed, which in the main, are forage crops and cereals, shall be labeled full, both as to purity and germination.

That samples of the seeds shall be examined free of charge for residents of the State.

That the results of such tests may be published.

Prosecutions for misrepresentation of the quality, character or variety are restricted to evidence thru duly authorized State officers.

The law does not take effect until six months after its passage, and does not affect conditions this spring planting season. It will be in effect at the time autumn grain and grass crops are sown. Prior to that time, no doubt, farmers and seed merchants will familiarize themselves with its provisions.

There has been since the adjournment of the Legislature, a good deal of exaggerated assertion concerning the seed law. It has been denounced upon one hand as a throttler of seed dealers and upon the other hand as being sufficiently exacting in its requirements. Neither criticism seems warranted. The Legislature seems to have done its work well, and it was a good day's work to the interests of Kentucky agriculture.

The seed law was of no use unless it contained a lokback... ...es it impossible to secure conviction of any violation of its provisions.

The law will revolutionize the ...ness farmers help to make it useful by studying its provisions and putting themselves in position to take advantage of it when occasion arise. Properly enforced, it will equip them ... they are not already ... conduct their business ... with the law, as a result, ... in other words, ... preparing land, ... and praying for Kentucky's Lawful Kicker.

The mule has long been recognized as a downtrodden animal, but it is respected in one State of the Union at least. The Supreme Court of Kentucky, in a recent weighty decision, has laid down the rule that it is contributory negligence to walk behind a mule.—Bloomington, Illinois Pantagraph.

The ruling of a Kentucky court that a mule has a right to kick will, of course, be set down as judicial intellectually, but it looks to us more like a case of gracefully bowing to the inevitable.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

A Kentucky Judge held that a mule has a right to kick. Right or no right, they usually do.—Austin, Texas, American.

It didn't require the wisdom of the Supreme Court of Kentucky to establish the fact that a man who fools with the hind legs of a mule is guilty of contributory negligence.—Knoxville Journal and Tribune.

The Court of Appeals of Kentucky has ruled that a man who gets kicked by a mule when he deliberatively steps within range of the animal's hind feet and whacks it over the back with a whip cannot recover damages from the owner. It appears that there is actually a man in Kentucky who thus invited his fate and he is probably related to the fellow who lit his pipe while sitting on a keg of dynamite.—Albany, N. Y., Argus.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals has laid down a rule of reason of its own which will be generally accepted as good law and good sense, not always necessarily noncomitants. It has reversed a judgment for $500 damages in favor of an employe of a coal company who struck a mule and then stooped behind it. What must really puzzle the reader is what kind of a Kentucky court could have shown so little knowledge of mules as to have given judgment for $500 damages in the first place?—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Kentuckian struck a mule with a whip, was kicked something less than nine yards and brought suit for damages against the owner of the animal. He lost out in court, the judge ruling that the mule would have been untrue to itself and false to every tradition of its breed if it had kept its feet on the ground." A marked copy of this American fact-fable should make an impressive addition to the literature that is about to go forward to the Kaiser.—Savannah News.

We have another judicial decision—one that gets down to practical mule life. A man employed by the Consolidation Coal Co., of Frankfort, Ky., was kicked by a mule while it and the man were employed in the corporation's service. He was near the tail end of the animal and struck the mule with a whip while standing behind it, when it struck him with its heels. He then sued the corporation and got $500 damages, but the defendant took the case to the Court of Appeals which reversed the judgment of the court below. The court construed the law from the standpoint of common sense. The idea of a man getting damages for injuries received while tickling the hind legs of a mule is absurd.—Ohio State Journal.

The Kentucky Supreme Court has delivered itself of a weighty decision to the effect that it is contributory negligence to walk behind a mule. It is an opinion with which the popular verdict is not likely to quarrel. Long and faithful service in the regular army, along with the banks of the Erie and other canals, on the plantations of the South, in municipal excavation and in railway construction, has established the fame of the mule as a reactionary beyond the power of the law to confirm or to destroy it. The rattlesnake has his rattles, the leopard has his spots, the porcupine has his quills and the mule has his heels by natural inheritance. If you do not want to get hurt keep out of range.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Tobacco Plants Damaged.

Several Bourbon county tobacco growers have reported that the heavy frost of last Monday morning caused considerable loss to the tobacco beds, and many of them are completely ruined. These were where the plants were up, or just starting in the soil as the ground was frozen more than an inch in depth. Some of the tobacco growers will not resow their tobacco beds until the coming week, as many of those who had supposedly early plants will be compelled to resow. As a result of this loss to the plants, some of the most prominent tobacco growers of Bourbon county contend that the setting of tobacco will be late and that the crop will, in the main, be one of the latest in many years. These growers are of the opinion that the frost did no material damage to the fruit crop.—Bourbon News.

Burned to Death.

Owenton April 22.—The 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Smither, Jr., of Pleasant Home, near here, burned to death in the home of his grandparents, which was destroyed by fire in the night. Mr. and Mrs. Ab Rodgers, the grandparents of the boy, barely escaped with their lives, and when they were awakened by neighbors who saw the fire and came to their assistance, they were so frightened that they never thought of their grandchild, who was spending the night with them. As soon as they were out in the grandmother thought of him and started back to rescue him, but the fire drove her back. In her efforts to save the child she was badly burned about the face and nearly all the hair burned off.

The Last of Our American Villas

When Cole Younger was in his prime this country did not have to look to Mexico for bandits to cause it trouble. He and his brothers and the James boys were as choice a body of desperadoes as fiction has ever produced. They were once members of Quantrell's gang. When war no longer offered them opportunities for the exercise of their talents, their outlaw band took to robbing banks, raiding towns and killing such persons as interfered with their business. A highly civilized people like ourselves deplore the excesses of our neighbors beyond the Rio Grande. Less than fifty years ago Jesse James and Cole Younger were as lawless in their manner of living as Villa is to-day, and they had plenty of sympathizers in the regions that they frequented. On retiring to his vine-covered cottage, after serving 25 years in the Minnesota penitentiary, Cole Younger became a figure of romance. If Villa had any chance a quarter of a century from now, after "getting religion" and professing repentance for his unruly turbulent past, peacefully should end his days in some quiet country town in the United States would his death be made the occasion for biographies reciting his deeds of bravery and excusing his crimes?

Why Permit Citizens to Jeopardize Their Country?

It is not clear to the normal mind why citizens of the United States should continue to jeopardize the peace of mind of their country by insisting upon traveling on ships which are liable to be attacked by submarines. Why should the peace of a nation be endangered in order that a few selfish citizens may enjoy the comforts of a certain boat? This is precisely the moral point at issue between the U. S. and Germany. The Commercial Tribune stands for rights of nations guaranteed under our international agreement.

But just why any citizen or citizens should insist upon the attainment of his own personal interests at the probable expense of the entire citizenship of this country is something that is quite difficult to understand. This, how ever, comprehends every country at war. There is no reason why our relations with Germany, England, France, Austria, Russia, Turkey or Italy should be strained a particle, simply because some one of us insists upon following his own schedule or time table for his convenience only.

These are times when every patriotic citizen can afford to make a sacrifice, no matter how great it may be, that the relations of our country with any one of the belligerents shall continue to be peacefully, orderly, cordial and sympathetic. Any man or woman who insists upon doing otherwise is not a patriotic citizen.

It is not a matter of personal independence or righteous insistence for any citizen of the United States to undertake to take passage upon a craft that is liable to be attacked by any of the nations at war. Every loyal American will regret that through the foolhardedness of any of its people the administration will feel called upon to sever its relations with any country.

We have a right to warn our people against placing themselves in jeopardy by riding upon a railroad train or other vehicle that we believe is in danger of being wrecked. We have a right to prevent people from entering a district which is under martial law. We should assume the right to prohibit our people from placing themselves in a position bound to raise an international question that may seriously affect the entire country. That is the exercise of national common sense.—Commercial Tribune.

Don't Want to be a Town.

The citizens of Bagdad, Shelby county, have grown weary of bearing the burden of keeping up four turnpikes which run through the town and want to surrender their town charter. They also wish to be free of bother of conducting municipal affairs, and have filed a petition signed by forty-seven voters and taxpayer, of that town in the Shelby circuit court, praying that the charter of said town be annulled and that the territory embraced within the corporate limits be adjudged a part of Shelby county. The petition recites that the town does not contain more than sixty voters, nor more than 200 inhabitants, and state that it is not practicable nor expedient to maintain a separate corporate existence.

THE STATE PRESS.

Shelby county farmers are behind with their spring work owing to so much rain, no corn planted, much breaking to be done.

In Montgomery county beech trees are in bloom. Farmers have been very busy and hundreds of acres of clover and oats were put into the ground.

o o o

Nicholas county farmers are much behind with their work and are striving to catch up with it. The tobacco plants are reported by the growers to be very backward. The wheat and rye are showing up well, considering conditions. The farmers and sheep raisers of Nicholas county report that they have been unusually successful with their lambs this season.

o o o

Carroll county farmers are increasing the acreage of potatoes and say they will decrease the acreage of tobacco. Four times as many stock cattle have been bought in Louisville, Ky. and Cincinnati by the farmers in Hunter's Bottom to put on pasture this spring than for many years in the past. A decided increase in the number of spring pigs is reported.

o o o

Jessamine county farmers are very busy getting in their crops. An unusually large acreage of oats has been put in and nearly every farmer is raising cow peas. They consider it better feed for hogs and cattle than any other kind of feed. Chickens thrive on cow peas and lay more eggs than when fed on any other grain. Few potatoes are being planted, every farmer planting just enough for his own use. The potatoes planted in July last year yielded more and were in a healthier condition than those planted earlier.

At the anti-hog cholera meetings held throughout the State during the past year, the prevention of the spread of the disease by the observance of proper sanitary measures, supplemented where necessary by vaccination, has been especially emphasized. It has been maintained that at least three-fourths of the annual $2,000,000 loss from cholera which the live stock of Kentucky suffers could be prevented—not by the wholesale vaccination of hogs but by the hearty cooperation of all hog raisers in observing and applying measures in controlling the disease.

Milk and cream producers frequently incur serious losses on account of wild onion flavor in milk and cream. This loss could be eliminated to a great extent if proper precaution were taken. Statistics show that butter with onion flavor is sold from four to ten cents below the market which, of course, means a loss to the producer as well as to the creamery. The creameries in consequence discriminate against the cream with onion flavor. When the wild onions appear, it is recommended that the dairy cows be kept off of the pasture for at least five or six hours prior to milking time. If this is observed, very little trouble will be experienced.—Ex.

Williamstown, the capital of Grant county, will vote on a proposition to issue $5,000 in bonds for the purpose of converting into a concrete street that part of the Covington and Lexington turnpike lying within the corporate limits of the town. The bonds and the State aid the town will be granted will make an ideal boulevard of the street. The county is reconstructing and making a fine road out of its part of the same pike, while Crittenden and Dry Ridge will follow the example set by Williamstown.

Federal Aid to Roads.

Maintenance has been given positive attention in the form of Federal aid in roads to the several States which the Senate Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads has embraced in its proposed legislation. Thus comments the Senate Committee in the memorandum which accompanies the bill recently reported unanimously:

"While the primary purpose of the Government is entering upon the policy of Federal aid is to secure the construction of systems of highways which are urgently needed, it should not forego the opportunity and the duty to require on the part of the States that they adequately maintain every mile of road constructed with the aid of Federal money. If legislation is framed so as to bring about such continuous and efficient maintenance, a great benefit to the people will have been assured, as it is now generally recognized that because of tax administration and mistaken economy millions of dollars worth of well constructed roads are disintegrating under the destructive action of heavy traffic. The Federal Government should not expend its revenues for maintenance, as by so doing it would not add to the stock of good roads, but it can make conditions which will bring about the desired results and leave the Federal revenues free for the great task of co-operating in the building of improved roads."

In answer to the charge that Federal help would cause the States to lessen effort and rely upon the central source entirely, the committee says:

"While the contribution on the part of the Federal Government should be substantial, so that results of some magnitude might be accomplished such contribution should impose upon the States the duty of contributing in at least as large a measure, so that there may be no insidious paternalism established, which would stifle local initiative and self-help. If the Federal Government were to enter upon the building outright of a system of national highways, the temptation would be great on the part of States and their subdivisions to cease or curtail their own work of improvement in the hope that the Federal Government would ultimately come and make the improvements for them. Furthermore, the imposing upon the States of the duty of making substantial contribution will serve to automatically modify the demands upon the Federal Treasury, as excessive demands upon the Federal Treasury under these conditions would at the same time entail equally excessive demands upon the States."

It is quite as important to maintain roads as it is to build them. Much money has been wasted by neglecting to make proper road repairs at the proper time. Certainly if the United States is going into the road building business it is right and proper that its expenditures should be safeguarded and that once it has aided in building a highway there should be adequate maintenance. —State Journal.

Giving Away Land.

Measures looking to giving the States some 30,000,000 acres of public land are pending and there is good chance that some of these will pass, now or in some future session, says "Farm and Fireside." There are also pending various measures to permit homesteads of areas up to 320 and even 640 acres to be taken up, in the remaining public lands, on the theory that the 160-acre homestead is too small, in semi-arid regions, to be a working industrial unit.

"People who have ideas of going West" we read, "and taking up a homestead after the fashion of our forefathers and grandfathers in the decades after the Civil War, should keep their eyes on legislation looking to giving away vast areas of the public domain. A long list of bills have been introduced and some favorably reported, giving to the States great areas of the public lands, to be disposed of by them to raise funds for road-building, education and other purposes. The Western States are making determined efforts to get great slices of the Government's lands turned over to them, and not a few public men from States which contain no piblic lands are inclined to favor the scheme. They think the States on the whole know better how to get the best development of their lands than Washington does.

ROUSE IS AGAIN ELECTED SPEAKERS' BUREAU HEAD

Served In Same Capacity During Last Presidential Campaign.

Washington, April 2.—Kentucky was assured of the best political speakers in the country in the coming presidential campaign by the reelection last night of Representative A. B. Rouse as chairman of the Speakers' Bureau of the Democratic National Congressional Committee. During the last campaign Mr. Rouse, as chairman of the bureau, sent two members of the Cabinet to Kentucky in William Jennings Bryan and Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

Although he has served as chairman of the bureau with distinction, the Kentuckian, at last night's meeting, objected to being placed in charge of this important work again this year because of the great amount of work attached to such a post. Representative Doremus, of Michigan, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee, declined to listen to Mr. Rouse's objection and the committee was unanimous in voting for retaining him.

Mr. Rouse is Kentucky's member on the Congressional Committee.

The Wrong Man in the Pen.

Frankfort, Ky., April 20.—After spending a year in prison for a crime of which another man confessed, Jesse Miller, of Breathitt county, was pardoned by Gov. Stanley. Isaac Miller, father of the prisoner, had a controversy with Ambrose Fugate and Arthur Roberts at a mill near the Miller home and left to go to his house. Jesse Miller was at home and Fugate and Roberts followed Isaac Miller, opening with a fusillade of shots at the dwelling. The Millers replied with rifles and Fugate fell dead with a bullet hole in the back of his head and powder marks around the wound. The bullet which killed Fugate was lost until after Miller had been convicted. Later it was discovered that he was killed with a 32-caliber revolver bullet and a storekeeper testified that Roberts previously acquitted of the crime, had bought such bullets from him shortly before the shooting. A few months later Roberts killed his brother-in-law and was sent to prison and paroled, dying soon after gaining his freedom. His father said that on his death bed his son confessed that he had accidentally killed Fugate while shooting at the Millers.

Keep Off the Grass or Pay the Penalty

Boone county people can go to Ohio, Indiana, Grant Gallatin and Kenton, and other counties in this State, and use their roads free of charge, but as soon as a citizen from the territory above mentioned enters Boone county with his vehicle he is held up at a tollgate and a penny, or a nickle or some other small amount is demanded and which he must pay before he is permitted to proceed on his journey. These people from abroad consider this a small business from at least two standpoints, and it must be confessed that is along that line.

Judge Williams Acquitted.

Judge J. E. Williams was acquitted by the Kentucky Senate of the charges brought by the House, the impeachment charges failing on the second article by one vote, the count being 23 for impeachment and 12 against it. Seven articles were dismissed almost unanimously and the vote on the others varied. Suit against the petitioners for the impeachment probably will be brought by Judge Williams to recover his costs, the statutes throwing his costs on the petitioners.

Bloat in cattle at this time of the year is very annoying to many owners, and, often, proves fatal to the animal in such a short time that it is impossible to obtain the service of a veterinary. That you may save your animal Dr. Thos. Hafer, of Hebron, gives this simple remedy for the farmers and says it is effective in at least 95 per cent of the cases. It is this: As soon as you discover the animal has bloat throw not less than 10 or 12 buckets of cold water on its loins.

Hayden Ellis, one of Pleasant Hill's scientific farmers, raised 60 bushels of corn to the acre from a field that had been in alfalfa for fourteen years. He had produced an average of three tons per acre during that time, and increased the corn yield from 35 bushels before sown in alfalfa to 60 bushels. This kind of farming is what is bringing the old extobacco county out of the rut and causing her to be talked about all over the country.—Falmouth Outlook.

The management of the entertainment to be given in Library Hall desires to assure the public that the best of order will be preserved, and in as much as the cracking and eating of peanuts disturbs those who want to hear it has been decided that peanuts shall not be permitted in Library Hall for any purpose. Come and enjoy yourself but please leave the peanuts on the outside.

The State Live Stock Sanitary Board at its meeting in Louisville decided to co-operate with the Federal Government in an effort to eradicate hog cholera in Kentucky. S. F. Musselman, State Veterinarian stated that as soon as plans could be formulated both the Federal and state live stock inspectors would be in the field at work in the fight against hog cholera.

At the first of each month the Recorder removes from its subscription list the names of those who pay no attention to the bills sent them the preceding month for their back dues. It has indulged them to the limit, much longer than any of them would have given it credit. Be it understood that taking a name off of the list does not settle the account.

The Dover Pearl Button Company has had its plant in operation for some time finishing up the shells on hand. It will make a complete clean-up by Wednesday night and will not resume until more shells are received. We understand the plant hereafter will be conducted by one of the largest pearl button companies in existence. The deal looking to this end is at the point of closing—in fact, is as good as closed, it is said. This new company in control, fifty machines will be put in commission as soon as possible, and when in operation will employ many more hands than at present. Fifty machines instead of twenty will be kept running at least forty weeks in each year for five years and the weekly payroll will amount to over $300 per week. This proposition does not mean that the plant will be run five years only, but that it will be operated, as above stated, for at least that length of time.—Dover News.

SAVE THE HAY, AND CASH TOO.

The section south of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi rivers buys some million tons of hay every year from the North and West. Almost every day now, men can be seen, white and black, with not a few women and children gathering corn stalks, one by one by hand or raking them with horse rakes and burning them or may be piling them into the washes to fill with. Cornstalks, if made into silage just when ripe, make far better feed than the average hay, at 5 per cent to 10 per cent the average cost of hay imported. There are millions of tons of broom sedge left to dry on the ground and is burned off in the spring or left to rot on the ground. Broom Sedge cut when just fully headed out while the straw is green and juicy, makes one of the very best of hays, far superior to the average hay bought from Dakota or Montana prairies or the over-ripe timothy and clover from Illiois and Indiana.

A friend of mine declares that he worked his mares regularly on Sedge hay and they kept in good condition. An old time farmer told me the same lately.

In most all neighborhoods there are many acres of Broom Sedge left to waste every year. Millions of tons could be cut every year, where none is now saved. Now is the time to pick up old fields, cut off brush and fit them for mowing next year. Burn off the old grass and clean up the fields.

A Wisconsin dairy man (a doctor), bought a brushy farm and wondered if his cows would not eat the brush as hay was scarce. He gathered arms full of brush and pounded it to a pulp, with head of an axe and the cows eat the pulp in preference to hay and also gained in the flow of milk and cream produces. He then built a machine to reduce brush to pulp and fed it fresh each day, proving the pounded brush better provender than good hay or straw. From the locality, I judge the brush might be maple, beech, alders, etc. Hickory, maple, elm, beech, alders, would all be good, no doubt.

I would suspect oak to contain too much acid for a steady diet, though cows do eat a great deal of oak brush here and there, if hungry.—Alton M. Worden, Tullahoma, Tennessee.

Among Hopkins Co. Farmers.

This is what a Hopkins county farmer wrote to Charles Taylor, County Agent there, after trying out the agent's suggestion in planting corn for his hogs.

According to Mr. Taylor's advice, the farmer prepared five acres in the manner usual for planting corn, but laid off the rows six feet apart. About May 1, he planted corn in these rows a little thicker than usual.

About May 20, he planted soybeans between the rows of corn. Both corn and beans received cultivation.

The yield of corn was nearly the same as if planted in double rows, while the soybeans furnished an even larger amount of food value for his hogs than the corn.

A conservative estimate is that this farmer doubled the amount of feed for his hogs from this five acre plot. In addition, the protein of the beans furnished a balanced ration for them.

Whereas a hundred head of hogs usually eat up five acres of corn in about ten or twelve days, this farmer kept a hundred head on five acres of land, planted in corn and soybeans, for fully three weeks.

Toll-gates are Never Restored.

You have often heard it declared that in counties where tollgates have been taken off of the pikes the roads have gone down. That being true why have the toll-gates not been restored? In the hundreds of counties in Kentucky and elsewhere where tollgates have been abolished there is not a single instance in which a toll-gate has been restored in order that a road's condition might be improved by the results therefrom. If the absence of tollgates leads to the impairment of turnpikes it is strange that instead of the number of gates continuing to decrease at least an occasional restoration is not announced. If you desire the pikes made free you will vote for the issuing of the $200,000 road bonds in order that road funds accruing from other sources can be used in the purchase of the pikes, and if you are in favor of a substantial improvement of the road system in the county, you will vote for the bond issue in order that funds for making an improvement in the road system will be available. It looks like the bond issue might catch the votes both "a comin' and a goin'."

Struck a Boy on the C. and C. Bridge.

Tuesday morning as G. S. Walrath was coming from Cincinnati to Burlington in his machine he struck a fifteen year old boy near the collectors office on the Cincinnati end of the Suspension bridge, knocking the boy down and bruising him considerably but it is thought not seriously. The bridge policeman and Mr. Walrath took the boy to a hospital and Mr. Walrath was permitted to resume his trip to the country. The boy ran from behind a large trash or wagon and evidently did not discover the machine in time to avoid being struck although he was slowed down to stop at the collector's office. Mr. Walrath was very sorry the accident happened but does not consider himself to blame and does not anticipate any trouble on account of it.

Modern Marriage.

Marriage may once have been comparable to a profession. It is not now. It may once for a woman, have been comparable to slavery. It is not now. Marriage, in fact, cannot be classed with anything but itself. It is marriage and nothing else—a wonderful mixture of experiences and duties on many different planes. So far as its spiritual demands go, it may require everything or nothing. It may of necessity fill her life or leave it empty. To call it a profession is to blur its meaning, for it is much more than this and much less.

Feminine Reasoning.

Hub—"Well, it takes two to make a quarrel, so I'll shut up." Wife—"That's just like a contemptible man. You'll sit there and think mean things."

Sharing in Prosperity.

No man may expect to get his part of prosperity unless he is enterprising and gets out and "digs" for it. The public owes no man a living.—Tip Top Daily Times.

Now You Know What It Is.

Special Notice.

The Farmers' Mutual Telephone Directory says, I handle any kind of rubber tire; and that I have the exclusive agency of the Republic Rubber Tires. That contract just cost me $200 of which of some of my customers will attest. I guaranteed those tires and I filled same to the letter. Now, right here I do most solemnly promise and swear that I will never again change the old and tried for any new thing whatsoever. Furthermore, that I will not use any Rubber Tire except Kelly's Springfield—the first rubber tire ever made and the best. I ought to know for surely I paid last year to find out. It is just like a boy changing the old girl for the new or a man leaving his old and tried wife for a new one. Now, isn't it a fact that they always go back to the old and tried love, is it not so boys? That's what I have done with Kelly's Springfield Rubber Tire—gone back to my old love. While they cost me more money they will cost my customers $12.00 per set or $3.00 per tire: these tires I give a guarantee on for being as represented. They will not stuff out nor will they peel, but will wear smooth like a good tire should.

Now, in regards to repainting: I have tried to get a quick system and do good work, but I find it a failure so I give it up and must stick to the old system. All my work I guarantee to be as represented. I do anything in the carriage line. Bring me your work if you want it done right. I solicit your trade.

The second Jockey Day was a surprise to all. It was a fine day—just the kind the farmers were needing—but they came just the same, and when the noon hour arrived the crowd was large. Her telephone wires were cut about forty yards from the house at a point where they could be reached from the garden fence, and Miss Aylor thinks she knows when that was done, as a noise she heard caused her to take a lamp and go to the door.

Ring-Neck Pheasants.

Verona, Ky., April 24, 1916.

To the RECORDER:—

I wish to state for the benefit of any who may be interested, that from the three English ring neck pheasants, I received and liberated on March 29th, 1915, several young pheasants have been produced. About six young birds have been seen thus far of last year's hatch. They are about the size of an ordinary pigeon at present. The young birds do not appear to be quite so wild as the old ones. I am hoping to have quite a good brood this coming year. It is my honest opinion that if these birds are not molested and are given care in the way of feeding, etc., in severe winter weather, that it will only be a few years until they will be well distributed over the county. Trusting that all the other gentlemen who received the pheasants are having good results with them, I am

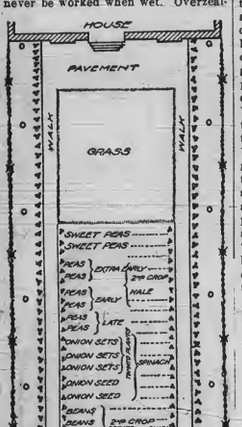
KEEP GARDEN BUSY

Small Plot Will Produce Enough Vegetables for Family.



If Land Was Not Plowed Last Fall It Should Be Broken In Spring as Soon as Frost Is Out—Manure Is Best Fertilizer.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Even the smallest back yard may be made to yield a supply of fresh vegetables for the family table at but slight expense if two or three crops are successively grown to keep the area occupied all the time, according to the garden specialists of the department. People who would discharge a clerk if he did not work the year round will often cultivate a garden at no little trouble and expense and then allow the soil to lie idle from the time the first crop matures until the end of the season. Where a two or three crop system is used in connection with vegetables adapted to small areas, a space no larger than 25 by 70 feet will produce enough fresh vegetables for a small family. Corn, melons, cucumbers, and potatoes and other crops which require a large area should not be grown in a garden of this size. Half an acre properly cultivated with a careful crop rotation may easily produce $100 worth of various garden crops in a year.

When to Work Soil.

If the garden was not broken in the fall, it should be plowed in the spring as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Small areas may be worked with a spade, pushing the blade in to its full depth and turning the soil to break up the clods. Heavy soils should never be worked when wet. Overzealous gardeners, ready to seize the first warm spell as a favorable opportunity to go out and work the heavy clay soil before it is dry, are not only wasting their energy but are doing a damage to the soil from which it will take years for it to recover. To determine when heavy soils are ready for plowing, a handful of earth should be collected from the surface and the fingers tightly closed on it. If the ball of compacted earth is dry enough for cultivation it will fall apart when the hand is opened.

Plan for Small Garden.

A garden spot near the house is often more desirable than a plot which is in better tilth but located at an inconvenient distance. A garden which is near the house will receive many a spare hour of care from adults and children which would otherwise be wasted. Where there is ample room for the selection of a garden site, the slope of the land should be carefully considered. A gentle slope toward the South is most desirable for growing early crops, while it is a decided advantage to have the plot protected on the north and northwest by either a hill, a group of buildings, or a board fence.

Drainage of the garden is of great importance. The land should have sufficient fall to drain off surplus water during heavy rains and yet not be so steep that the soil will be washed or gullied. The surface should be nearly level so the water will not stand in hollows. Where the natural slope of the land does not provide sufficient natural drainage, ditches may be dug or a tile drain put in. This will prevent waste water from the adjoining land from washing over it. Such water may carry weed and grass seeds into the garden, which are later culled out with difficulty.

How to Fertilize.

The soil in the average back yard is not only lacking in plant food but also has been packed until it is hard and unyielding. To loosen up such soil and make it suitable for garden produce requires that careful attention be given to its preparation. After spading the inclosure thoroughly, the upper three inches should be made fine with the use of hoe and rake. Stones and rubbish should be removed and clods of dirt broken. The surface should be made even and as level as possible. It may then be marked off for planting in conformity with the general plan of the garden.

Barnyard or stable manure is the best fertilizer because it furnishes both plant food and humus. An application at the rate of from 20 to 30 tons to the acre of well-rotted manure is very satisfactory. This should be applied after plowing or working with a spade, and distributed evenly over the surface and later worked in with a hoe and rake. On many soils it is advisable to apply commercial fertilizer, especially phosphate, in addition to the manure. An application of 300 to 600 pounds of acid phosphate to the acre is usually sufficient. If additional potash is needed, which is often the case with sandy soils, this may be economically supplied in the form of wood ashes. If the wood ashes are unleached they should be distributed over the garden, using 1,000 pounds to the acre. If they have been wet, or leached, 2,000 pounds should be used. An application of 100 pounds to the acre of nitrate of soda may be used in the spring to start the plants before the nitrogen in the manure has become available. It should be borne in mind that commercial fertilizers will not yield good results unless the soil is well supplied with humus. Sod or other vegetation which has overgrown a garden spot may be used to advantage. It should be turned under with a plow or a spade and will aid in lightening the soil and providing humus.

Small Garden Plan.

In the plan illustrated all the vegetables named are planted in rows across from the inside lateral rows of strawberries. As rapidly as each kind of peas matures and the crop is over, kale is planted in its place. The ground to be used for tomatoes is first planted with onion sets, and these onions are used as rapidly as needed. When the time comes to set out the tomatoes, some of the onions are dug to make space for the tomato plants. When the tomato crop is over, the ground is occupied by spinach as the third crop. Spinach is also planted as soon as the bulb onions from the side are gathered. The beans, carrots, and peas are succeeded by late cabbage, and between the rows of late cabbage "potato-onion" sets are planted. Late beans are planted between the rows of parsnips after the radishes and lettuce have been gathered.

PREPARE SEEDBED FOR OATS

Not Generally Necessary to Plow Land Before Sowing—Disk Harrow Is Recommended.

Oats usually follow a cultivated crop such as corn or potatoes; hence it is not generally necessary to plow the land before sowing. Oats do well on fall-plowed land, but if the land has not been plowed in the fall better yields are usually produced from sowing in a seedbed made by disking and harrowing than in one made by spring plowing. Early seeding for oats is very desirable. As a good seedbed can be made much more quickly with the disk harrow than with the plow on land that was in a cultivated crop last year, the saving in time is an advantage. Two diskings and one harrowing with the spike-toothed harrow will put clean land in good shape for sowing with the drill.

Oats grow best in a seedbed that has 2 or 3 inches of loose surface soil, but which is firm below that depth. This is another reason why disking is to be preferred to spring plowing, for there is not time for plowed land to settle before the seed is sown. Still another reason why the disk is better is that a field can be plowed, and the cheaper way of doing a job should always be chosen if it gives just as good results as the more expensive way.

DAIRYING ON A LARGE SCALE

Number of Unpleasant Surprises Are in Store at Start—Start With Few Cows and Grow Up.

The man who starts dairying on a large scale by buying the whole dairy herd is in for a number of unpleasant surprises. The best way to get into the dairy business is to grow into it, starting with a few cows and selecting and culling as experience dictates. It is a slow way to be sure, but it is a safe one. Only those who have been through the mill know how hard it is to set out and buy good milch cows. The endeavor of every dairyman is to sell off his poorest animals and keep the best.

DOUBLING VALUE OF MANURE

Treatment of Acid Phosphate Is Suggested by Ohio Experiment Station—Cost Is Small.

A suggestion that seems worth while comes from the Ohio experiment station. It is this: "Treat your barnyard manure with acid phosphate and double its value."

Manure is good fertilizer, but it is not sufficient on the older farm lands which are deficient in phosphorus.

The expense of treating the manure to make it a well-balanced fertilizer is not great, only 40 pounds of the acid phosphate being used to the ton of manure.

POULTRY

HIGH EGG PRODUCING FOWLS

Some Characteristics Which Will Serve as Guide When Trap-Nest Is Not Available.

By C. S. ANDERSON, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo.)

While the trap nest is the most dependable method by which to select birds of high egg production, the additional labor and expense involved prohibits its use under most farm conditions. Without the trap nest, one must resort to external indications.

Barred Plymouth Rock Female, Bred at United States Government Farm.

When selecting pullets, choose only those from early hatches with strong constitutional development, early producing pullets, heavy eaters, early risers, late retirers and active. Hens of highest egg production have a feminine appearance, fine head, alert eyes, comb, face and wattles fine of texture and medium in size. They should stand square on their feet, legs wide apart, with the front end of the body slightly higher than the posterior end, long back and tail carried rather high. The body should present a wedge-shaped appearance, yielding ample room for the reproductive and digestive organs. Late molters make heavier winter egg producers.

CHANGING COLOR OF CHICKS

No Purebred Black Fowl Is Ever Absolutely Black at Birth—Color Changes With Growth.

The novice is often offended because chicks are not the color which he expects them to be, but the color of plumage, feet and shanks changes with growth in many varieties. No purebred black chick is ever absolutely black at birth. The more brilliant the adult plumage, the truer this is. The chick which is jet black when hatched is a cross and its color will change with age. A Langshan chick is almost white with some gray on its head and back, but it develops into a black with an emerald sheen.

Barred Rock chicks are black and white. Brown Leghorns and other red varieties in which the cock has a black breast have a wide brown stripe in the middle of the back and other dark bands, which are not so heavy. The Silver varieties in which the males have black breasts have similar design in deep gray, the light stripes being almost white. Reddish brown birds are nearly black at birth, and usually have some tan on the head and around the eyes.

SIMPLE COVER FOR TURKEYS

Nest Shown in Illustration Has Been Tested and Found Practical for Sitting Fowls.

The illustration shows a simple and practical sort of a cover for the nesting turkey. It should be about three feet square and about two feet in height at the top of its roof. It is said that turkey hens can be moved, after they begin to sit, to a place where they can be watched and cared for conveniently. Ordinarily the nesting turkey is regarded as about the wildest of the farm's domesticated creatures. The nest cover has been tested and found entirely practical.

Cure for Scaly Legs.

Scaly legs on poultry can be cured by rubbing the feet and shanks with kerosene and lard. Repeat once a week for several times until cured. Where the legs are very scaly, they should be first soaked in warm, soapy water to soften the scales.

Don't Frighten Chickens.

Do not permit children, dogs or men to frighten your chickens. Fowls that are easily frightened never do well. Chop the head off the wild pullet.

THE HIGH BRED TROTTING STALLION

Walter Winans, No. 30,400

Trial Record Over Half-Mile Track, 2:19.

Season of 1916 at W. B Arnold's stable near Belleview, Boone County, Kentucky, at $10 to insure a living colt, money due when colt is foaled or the mare is parted with after being bred.

Walter Winans is a solid chestnut sorrel; 16 hands high; weighs 1,250 pounds; disposition is perfect; his colts are uniformly good size and color, and the only one that has been raced has a race record of 2:11.

Walter Winans' breeding is fashionable, and is in line with the greatest sires in the world, being a half brother to the Great Crescius, 2:02½ and the fine breeder, Wilstar 2:17½, whose colts always sold for high prices thruout Indiana and Kentucky.

Walter Winans sired by Robert McGregor 647, dam Rilee, (dam of Kate Ham 2:28½, etc.) by Hotspur, Jr., 3612; g-dam Tugles by Mambrino Gift 584, etc. (See Rilee Vol. 13) bred by Geo. H. Ketcham, the owner and breeder of the celebrated Cresius. Robert McGregor was sired by Major Edsall, 2:11, dam Nancy Whitman.

Colts from Walter Winans from good mares will be large, and if not great trotters, will make fine road horses.

THE FINE BELGIAN DRAFT HORSE

Don Degozee

J. Aylor's stable one and a half miles north of Hebron, Boone County, Kentucky, at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt comes or the mare is parted with or leaves the county.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Don Degozee, despite his great size and weight is well balanced throughout, perfectly proportioned and symmetrically built. He is a beautiful dark sorrel, 17 hands high, weighs 1800 pounds, has a broad foot, heavy bone, fine style and action. This great breed of draft horses is especially known for better action than anyother draft horse for heavy, good bone and good hoofs, and gentle kind workers.

Don Degozee's dam, Della Wire, brown mare, the great draft show mare of Campbell county, Kentucky, sired by Bayard DeGozee 2188, whose Belgium Stud Book number is 21670, bred by Mr. Bailleux E. of Gozee, sired by Morton (312), by Brilliant (709), out of Coatte (703), dam of Catherine Degozee (21083), she by Lion (766) out of Marie (2421.)

Great care will be taken to prevent accidents but we will not be responsible should any occur.

THAT SPECIAL MENU

PREPARATIONS FOR THE UNEXPECTED GUESTS.

Always an Easy Matter for the Competent Housewife to Set a Satisfactory Meal Before Her Casual Visitors.

Now, regarding unexpected guests. Could you not plan to have sufficient food so that your guests could have the same as the family if any dropped in at mealtime? Then it would not make so much extra work. I imagine it is because you are a good cook that people drop in, but if they really come to see you, they will not want you to make any extra trouble for them, and if they come just for the good food you serve I should not encourage the habit. I have very few unexpected guests, but when they come they must take "pot luck." It is well to have canned goods in the house for such emergencies, such as salmon, shrimp, tuna fish, fish flakes, meats, chicken, vegetables and relishes and preserves. Cake or cookies and canned peaches or pears are an easy dessert, and if you have sponge or any light cake, lay the peaches on a slice in the serving dishes and cover all with whipped cream. Salmon in butter gravy, canned peas, hashed potato with red pepper and apple pie pudding is an easy dinner, or creamed fish flakes, mashed potato, canned beets, steamed cup cakes with hot lemon or brandy sauce.

Another is delicate ham, canned string beans, baked potato, German tapioca pudding, or ham and eggs, mashed potato, canned corn, hot chocolate, cornstarch pudding with cream. As you live in the country, perhaps it is not always convenient to have fresh meat on hand, but you could buy half a ham and hang it in a cool place, and slice as needed, then boil the piece left when the best is sliced off. For suppers, have escalloped tuna fish, shrimp wiggle, creamed chipped beef or cheese cream on toast, egg cream toast, goldenrod toast, cheese and potato puff. Any of these with bread or hot biscuit, canned sauce, cake, cookies and tea would be good suppers. Bake your one-egg cake in cupcake tins, one tablespoonful to a tin, and keep on hand for desserts. Place them in covered tin in the oven, just long enough to warm through, and serve with egg or liquid sauce.

About breakfasts I do not think I have any new ideas, as I am obliged to have breakfast early every day, Sunday included, so get something easy. I always have cereal, usually rolled oats, then eggs, boiled, scrambled, fried with bacon, poached, scrambled with chopped ham, minced beef or lamb on toast, hash, fish, warmed-over soup, and with dry toast or warmed-over muffins or brown bread and doughnuts or cookies or drop-cakes and coffee, we are satisfied. Once a week I have griddle cakes with sirup, but it takes longer to cook them than anything else I serve.—Boston Globe.

To Wash Willow Furniture.

To clean willow furniture, provide yourself with a coarse brush dipped in strong salt and water, scrub each piece well, then dry with a soft brush. Salt cleans willow and also keeps it from turning yellow. If it is desired to keep the natural light color of the willow, apply a coat of linseed oil.

By this treatment the willow strands of which the piece is woven will lose their dry brittleness and become softer and more pliable, bending under a blow instead of breaking. This treatment has another good effect besides making the chair last longer—it makes it less noisy. A coat of oil allows the strands to slip more smoothly and easily, and therefore more quietly upon each other.

Brawn.

Do you ever make "brawn?" I buy a meaty shank, four or five pounds, boil until quite well done, remove from liquid, put lean meat through meat chopper, add salt, pepper and sage to taste, moisten with beef liquor. Press down hard in dish. Have dish small enough so it will be filled about full. Place a plate over it, weighed down with an iron. Let it stand overnight in a cool place. Slice when cold. Very nice and economical. This with a nice vegetable or tomato soup made of remainder of liquor makes a nice dinner.—Boston Globe.

Savory Bread.

Slightly moisten some neatly trimmed slices of stale bread with herb flavored and well seasoned milk enriched if desired with a beaten egg. Fry either as they are or else dipped in batter, or, again, brushed over with white of egg and rolled in flour, to a bright golden brown in hot dripping or bacon fat, and serve in a pyramid, bordered with fried onions, or en couronne round a central mound of green or other vegetables.

Cheese Omelet.

Dessertspoonful grated cheese, one egg, little pepper and salt, one-quarter ounce butter; put butter in frying pan, beat the egg, add pepper, salt and cheese. Put in the pan and stir round.

Cook to a light brown, not solid through, and you have a fine cheese omelet.

Bismarck Oysters.

A layer of hot sauerkraut on a hot plate, several fried oysters next and on top three slices of crisply fried bacon.

ALWAYS A STAPLE PUDDING

Good Reasons Why Rice Cooked With Milk Has Remained a Favorite So Many Years.

There is perhaps no other pudding of equally great food value which is so inexpensive and palatable as the eggless rice pudding, or creamy rice pudding, as it is often called. It is but one of the several excellent ways of cooking rice with milk, but it does lend itself better to changes of flavor than any of the other ways, so may be used frequently without monotony.

Baked in individual dishes with rather gentle heat, and for at least an hour and a half, with several stirrings in of the crust which forms on the top, creamy rice pudding is an attractive dessert, made more so by baking it in glass and finally adding a meringue. It is about equally good whether hot or cold. More than this, a considerable number of variations can be made without once adding an acid fruit which makes it less digestible. The long baking makes it both more digestible and palatable, and it is dainty of flavor if just the stirred-in top is all to give this.

The Recipe.—To each cupful of milk allow one tablespoonful of rice and one of sugar, or more if to taste, and one piece of candied ginger about an inch and a half long. Butter pudding dish, put into it the well-washed rice and milk, with sugar and the ginger cut in bits, bake in moderate oven for one hour and a half, stirring in the top at least three times.

BRIOCHE IS SOMETHING NEW

Guests at Luncheon or Tea Will Be Sure to Appreciate This Delicacy, Properly Made.

One cake yeast, one-half cupful milk, scalded and cooled, two tablespoonfuls sugar, four cupfuls sifted flour, one cupful butter, eight eggs, one teaspoonful salt.

Dissolve yeast and one tablespoonful sugar in luke-warm milk, add one cupful of flour to make sponge. Beat well. Cover and set to rise in warm place, free from draft, until light—about three-quarters of an hour.

To the rest of the flour add one tablespoonful sugar, butter softened, four eggs and salt. Beat all in well. Add sponge and beat again thoroughly; then the other four eggs, unbeaten, one at a time, beating thoroughly. Cover and let rise until light—about four hours, and beat again.

Chill in refrigerator overnight. In the morning, shape by rolling under hand into long strips about 27 inches long and three-fourths inch thick, bringing ends together, and twist like a rope. Form into rings, place on well-buttered pans to rise.

When double in size, glaze with white of egg diluted with water. Bake in a moderate oven fifteen minutes. Ice while hot, with plain frosting. Spread with almonds.

Fried Cream.

One pint of milk, one-half cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of butter, yolks of three eggs, two and one-quarter teaspoonfuls of cornstarch, one tablespoonful of flour, one teaspoonful of vanilla, a pinch of salt. Put the milk into the double boiler with the salt and a small piece of lemon rind. When scalded add the sugar—then cornstarch and flour which have been moistened in a little milk; stir until it is thickened, then pour it over the beaten yolks. Return to the stove for three minutes. Add the butter and vanilla and strain into a flat dish, making a layer three-quarters of an inch thick. It should be made the day before it is to be used. When ready to cook cut into pieces three inches long and two wide. It should be cut with a broad knife blade and handled very carefully. Cover each piece with sifted cracker crumbs, dip in egg and sprinkle again with crumbs. They must be completely covered. Fry in hot fat to an amber color, lay them on a brown paper in the open oven to dry, sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve on a folded napkin. The crust should be crisp and the center creamy.

Mother's Meat Cakes.

Wish someone would try my mother's meat cakes as a way of using leftover lamb. Take pieces left from either lamb or beef, put through meat chopper, season with salt and pepper, a little onion if liked and butter or gravy to make moist. Cook these in a saucepan until thoroughly blended. A few minutes is sufficient. Let cool and form into cakes. Set away in a cool place an hour or more. Make a batter of egg and milk and flour and a little baking powder. Dip in the cakes and fry a nice brown.

Hot Chocolate Sauce.

One cupful of boiling water, one square or four large tablespoonfuls of chocolate, pinch of salt, half cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of vanilla. Cook all together slowly until it is the consistency of maple sirup, or thicker if desired. Just before serving add one teaspoonful of vanilla. This will keep indefinitely and can be reheated.

Larded Sweetbreads.

Put them in cold water, remove the pipes and membranes; cook them in boiling salted water, with one tablespoonful of lemon juice, 20 minutes and plunge into cold water to harden; dry, lard them with strips of salt pork and bake until brown, basting with brown stock. Serve with peas.

Cup Cake.

One cupful butter, two cupfuls sugar, four cupfuls flour, half cupful milk, five eggs and a pinch of soda.

DAIRY

COST OF KEEPING A HEIFER

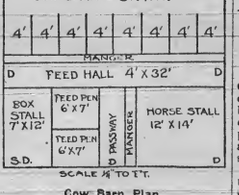
About the Surest Way to Avoid Any Possible Error Is to Keep Complete Set of Accounts.

We sometimes get the impression that the cost of keeping a horse or a cow is determined by the amount of feed consumed, plus the amount of labor expended, and possibly an interest charge. The government has published figures on the cost of raising, from birth, a two-year-old heifer which show that 65.6 per cent of the total cost was expended for feed, 12.9 per cent for labor, 5.9 per cent for interest, and 15.6 per cent for other charges, such as buildings, equipment, bedding, etc., or with a total expense of $62.06. These items which might be called "other charges" amounted to $9.72.

This emphasizes the need of caution in determining the cost of any single enterprise of the farm. Too frequently these "other charges" are omitted in reporting profits. About the surest way to avoid the possible error is to keep a complete set of accounts. Of course, there is some work attached to it but by adopting a simple direct entry method of bookkeeping it isn't such a bad job.

IMPORTANCE OF PURE WATER

Essential That Supply for Cows Be of Mild Temperature, Especially in Cold Weather.



A large amount of water is needed by the average dairy cow for the upkeep of bodily functions. In addition to this, much more is needed in the production of milk as the latter contains 87 per cent of water. Practical dairymen have found that it is a good policy to provide the cow with plenty of good, clean water. That flowing through a muddy ditch is not suited for a dairy cow.

It is also important that the water be of a mild temperature, especially in cold weather. Ice water taken into the stomach of the cow causes a shock to the system that is not conducive to high milk production. The tempering of this cold water in the cow uses some of the energy that might be applied to other purposes. In the winter, freshly pumped water is much better than the cold water in the tank. Tank heaters aid in overcoming this trouble. A cow will drink a much larger quantity of warm water in the wintertime than of ice water.

CONSTRUCTION OF COW BARN

Foundation Should Be of Concrete and at Least Two Feet Above Ground —Illustration Explains.

Noticing a request for a small barn plan, I am sending a sketch of one I should build if I wanted one of that size, writes Andrew White of Missouri in Iowa Homestead. The foundation should be of concrete and should be plenty high so as to have room above.

SCALE ¼ TO 1'.

Cow Barn Plan.

I would make the foundation at least two feet above ground, more would be better, thus saving the timbers from the manure, and use sixteen feet siding. The sketch is self-explanatory.

RIGHT PASTURE FOR CALVES

Most Young Animals Better Off in the Barn Than Fighting Flies in the Hot Fields.

(By R. M. WASHBURN.)

While it is very important that heifers should have free access to pasture during the second summer, to develop strong bodies, the calf need not have pasture the first summer. In fact, for calves born after the first of the year, pasturing may be a disadvantage. Most young calves in this country are better off chewing tender hay in the quiet and half-dark stable than fighting flies, panting from the heat, and cropping tough grass in the pasture.

VALUES OF THE DAIRY COWS

Animals Supply Cheapest and Most Wholesome Food for Family—Save Much on Food Bills.

The first reason for having good milk cows on the farm comes from the fact that they provide the cheapest, best and most wholesome food for the family.

Their value is hard to estimate when we consider the amount saved on the bills. Their produce is a superior substitute for many foods necessarily purchased at high prices.

In fact, there is no economic way of doing without plenty of good milk cows on the farm.

Are Being Performed For Thousands by the Hudson Super-Six

HUDSON SUPER SIX — $1375 at Detroit

Patented by Hudson December 26, 1915 Patent No 1165461

THOUSANDS of people every day are riding in the Super-Six. They are watching performance such as no other car can render.

They are enjoying such smoothness, such luxury of motion, as they never before have known. If you doubt the Super-Six supremacy, come and take a ride.

80% MORE EFFICIENT

The Super-Six is a light-weight motor, same size as the Hudson Six-40. But a new invention—a patented principle—gives to that motor 80 per cent more efficiency.

The Super-Six yields 76 horsepower, where like-size motors heretofore yielded 42

That fact is beyond any question.

And it all comes about through ending vibration. Wear and friction in the motor is reduced almost to nil

A Super-Six stock car was driven 7000 miles over mountains and deserts at top speed Bu. not a part or bearing showed discoverable wear The motor's endurance has been nearly doubled by the Super-Six invention.

NO RIVAL HAS IT

The Super-Six is a Hudson invention, controlled by Hudson patents. So rivals, of course, don't concede its importance.

But no stock motor has ever matched the Super-Six performance. No like-size motor ever yielded such power.

Such smoothness—such bird-like motion—has never before been attained.

Convince yourself of these facts. You can do it in 30 minutes. To buy a car without this knowledge is bound to cause regrets.

If you do this now, you can get a Super-Six by the time the roads are ready That is as soon as you'll want it.

Then you will have the greatest car that's built, and a car that looke its supremacy

All Other Cars Outrivaled

At Sheepshead Bay, under A. A. A. supervision, a 7-passenger Super-Six stock car excelled all former stock cars in these tests.
100 miles in 80 min., 21.4 sec., averaging 74.67 miles per hour, with driver and passenger.
75.69 miles in one hour with driver and passenger.
Standing start to 50 miles an hour in 48.2 sec.
During these tests the car was driven 1350 miles at top capacity, at speed exceeding 70 miles per hour, without discoverable wear on any part.

The lodge will have work in the various degrees every meeting night for several months. Ferdinand Williams.

Ferdinand Williams, aged 83 years, died at the Lakeland Insane Asylum April 17th. He was sent to the asylum about a month ago on account of an aberration of the mind. The remains were shipped here to Edwards Bros., the undertakers, who took them to his home at Piner, Kenton-co., Wednesday when the funeral was conducted at the Goshen Christian church of which he had long been a member. Rev. E. C. Lacy preaching an appropriate discourse over the remains after which the interment took place in the Goshen cemetery. Mr. Williams was a good, christian gentleman, and leaves a widow and many friends to mourn his death.

George W. Dudgeon.

George W. Dudgeon, a highly esteemed citizen of Verona, died at his home there Wednesday morning after a protracted illness from hardening of the arteries. Mr. Dudgeon was about seventy years old and resided most of his life in Gallatin county from which place he moved to Verona about fifteen years ago. He was a good and useful citizen and enjoyed the confidence and friendship of a large circle, and his death is universally deplored because of his worth and merit. He leaves a wife and one son, W. Tilden Dudgeon, of Walton, and to them the sincere sympathy of friends is tendered in their great bereavement. The funeral took place Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the New Bethel Baptist church at Verona.

Mrs. Missouri Benson.

Mrs. Missouri Benson, aged 62 years, five months and 28 days, the beloved wife of Calvin Benson, died very suddenly at their home Monday evening, April 17, from acute indigestion. She had arisen from her bed about 8:30 on that evening and told her husband that she felt sick. She became weak and sat in a chair and in fifteen minutes was dead.

Mrs. Benson was a good christian woman and was a consistent member of New Bethel Baptist church at Verona. She resided mid way between Verona and Crittenden. She leaves a husband and twelve children to mourn the loss of a kind and loving wife and mother. The funeral took place at the New Bethel church Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock when H. C. Wayman, the pastor preached a very appropriate funeral sermon after which the remains were laid to rest in the cemetery near by. The funeral was attended by a large number of relatives and friends. J. L. Hamilton, undertaker of Verona, had charge of the funeral cortege.

School Election.

The annual election of school trustees takes place Saturday, May 6th and this is one of the most important elections in the State, for the men thus selected are in a large measure responsible for the careful training of the youth of Kentucky that are to be our future men and women in whom we have great hope and faith of useful and worthy citizenship. The trustees of the Walton Graded School are entitled to great credit for the painstaking manner in which they have discharged their duties. The members are C. Scott Chambers, J. Ed. Bristow, Chas. Ransler, S. H. McCartt and John C. Miller. The latter's time expires with this year and his successor is to be elected, all of the others holding over. Mr. Miller was one of the best members and has saved the district in many ways, and he ought to be retained, though he does not want the position, but might be induced to serve for the welfare of the school.

Sudden Death of Charles Denady.

One of the saddest deaths that has visited this section was that of Charles Denady, who died Monday at his home near Richwood following a surgical operation for appendicitis. His death was so sudden that it could scarcely be realized. Mr. Denady served on the jury at the last term of circuit court and was at Burlington apparently in the best of health. On returning home he became ill and called Dr. G. C. Rankins who saw that he was suffering from appendicitis and called in another physician who coincided in the opinion. On Monday a specialist from Cincinnati was called and he advised an immediate operation, and on it being performed it was shown the disease was in a far advanced stage. Mr. Denady apparently rallied from the effects of the operation and it was hoped that he would recover, but about one o'clock he seemed to collapse as from weak heart, and at about 1:30 p.m. was dead. Mr. Denady was about 30 years old and was born and reared in that neighborhood, and was a son of John Denady. Besides his parents he leaves a young wife to mourn his untimely death. He was one of the finest young men ever reared in Boone county, being a gentleman in every respect, and of a high order of intelligence. He was loved and esteemed by everybody and his death brings sorrow to many hearts.

The Measure Should Carry.

The vote on the question of issuing $200,000 bonds by Boone-co., for the repair and building of the public highways of the county will be taken Monday, May 8th, and the measure should carry by all means as one of the greatest essentials to the enjoyment of rural life is good highways. If the bonded indebtedness was to be a heavy burden on the people it might not be the proper thing to vote it, but as it is adjusted so as to cover a long period of time in the payment of the bonds by their gradual retirement, and the rate of interest will hardly exceed four per cent. and a part of the future generation will have a part of the debt to pay as they will have the enjoyment of the highways as well. Nearly all of the money will be spent in the county for work and material and the county will not be impoverished by the expenditure of the money, but rather enriched by the needed improvement in the roadways and the circulation of the money that will be used for the rebuilding. There is not a single person of interest to be injured by the enterprise. The banks and the railroads that pay about one-sixth of the taxes of Boone county are heartily in favor of the measure, though they do not use the highways, but the wise managers of essentials to our public life know that no country is up to a high state of civilization without first class roadways and that the better the highways the greater is the spirit of progress accompanied by prosperity. The banks, railroads and town property pay at least one-third of the taxes of Boone county and these tax payers do very little travel on the highways, so that the greatest beneficiaries are the people who own the land and from whom the only opporition of consequence to the bond issue is heard. The land owners are the producers of the wealth of the county and the business men know that whenever they add to the means of transportation and comfort of the farming class it causes them to be more contented and more anxious to remain in a good county, and we need all of this class for they are the salt of the earth and the major part of the prosperity of Boone county depends on them, and we want to stay in Boone county instead of moving to the cities or elsewhere, and as an inducement to remain they should have decent roads to travel and we cannot get them without a proper expenditure of money to be raised by taxation and every wise business man who loves his county ought to be willing to stand his part.

H. T. Gorin of Louisville, was here Tuesday and bought fourteen hogsheads of tobacco from W. H. Tillman & Co., for the firm of Gorin Bros., of Louisville, being the last of the tobacco of the 1914 crop held by Tillman & Company. Twelve hogsheads were sold at 9½ cents and two hogsheads at 7½ cents. Mr. Gorin who is a member of the firm is well pleased with this quarter and may make a purchase of tobacco here next season.

Strother who had brought a suit against the railroad for damages. The case is reported as settled by the payment of eight hundred dollars to Mrs. McIntyre and she pays her attorney $200.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXXXI. Established 1875. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, MAY 4 1916. $1.50 Per Year. NO. 32

Court of Appeals Made a Mistake.

Don't spending the peoples' money unnecessary with John Doe, then you might have good roads wherever you go.

Representatives are sent to the Legislature to make laws and not to courts. Then who has a right to say a election has carried outside of the law? This would be seemingly a base fraud on the people. When we consider the number of property owners and non property owners on so serious a question as a bond issue it is proper that two-thirds of the vote be required to carry it. Now Mr. Taxpayer the growing chances are you will be called upon to pay a heavy war tax. Then perhaps you will be called on this fault to issue bonds to the amount of three million dollars to pay off a state debt, anoth er heavy tax and I have heard some officials say they will bring suit for the $175,000 bond issue which failed to carry under the election law. Now what do you think of men that will try to force some thing from you wheth er or not law or no law, and yet they claim to stand by the law. As to the bond issue suppose your proud servant Mr. Dixie would come to you and ask for money to build a road would you give him the money without a word? No it would be your right to ask what road and it would be his duty to tell you. Now if your public servants come to you and Mr. Dixie comes along with them and ask for money to buy machinery and to build roads would you give it to them without a word? Now what good will the proposed bond issue do you when you can't use any part of it to buy toll roads with? Then what good will it do you if you can't build pikes without putting up half of the money? You had this proposition from the court with out a bond issue then why would you want bonds only to gain what has been offered you.

Stiffen your back bone and hold to your right for liberty and freedom our forefathers did fight.

J. E. HALL.

Funeral of Thomas P. Crisler.

The funeral of Mr. Thomas P. Crisler was preached in Hebron Lutheran church by Rev. Royer, last Friday at 11 a. m., after which the remains in charge of undertaker C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, were conveyed to the Sand Run cemetery where they were interred by the side of those of his wife, who preceded him to the grave many years. The deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Fannie Rice, and two sons, Dr. L. H. Crisler, of Covington, and Chas. Crisler, of Moberly, Missouri. The county never produced a better citizen than Thomas P. Crisler. He was honest, conscientious, obliging and possessed all the attributes of a noble man. He not only professed christianity but he lived it and his life was one to which his children can refer with a just pride. His earthly pilgrimage extended into a second childhood, during which the devotion of his daughter, Mrs. Fannie Rice, was proven to be of the truest type by her ceaseless efforts to make him comfortable during his declining days.

High School Base Ball.

Last Friday afternoon the B. H. S. boys won the second game of base ball of the season from Dry Ridge High School, the score being 6 to 2.

The game was fast and clean turnout, there being some good playing on both sides. The feature of the game however was the pitching of Kelly for Burlington. He struck out 15 men and allowed three hits. Prof. Cannon pitching for the Dry Ridge boys also did some good pitching, striking out nine men and allowing 13 hits. The High School boys have some good material and are showing some good team work. If they continue to improve it will be a hard matter for any team in their class to head them off.

The team plays at Erlanger next Friday afternoon. This will be the second game with Erlanger, the first being won by the score of 26-7. The next game at home will be May 12th when Independence is expected to furnish the attraction.

John Jackson Arrested in Grant County.

John Jackson, who it is believed robbed the residences of George Hensley and J. J. Duncan, two weeks ago last Sunday, was arrested by the Sheriff of Grant county last Sunday. The Sunday before several residences were robbed in Grant county, and the officers were on the look out for the party, and last Sunday Jackson was tipped off to them. The discription of the pants and coat he was wearing when arrested tallies exactly with those stolen from the residence of Mr. Hensley. If Jackson's connection with the Grant county jobs is not established pretty conclusively the probability is Mr. Hensley will be called upon to identify the pants and coat and should he succeed Jackson will be brought to this county for trial.

A Good Tournament Anticipated.

The High schools that will take part in the Educational Tournament to be held at Walton, this year, are anticipating the best meeting of that body ever held. It is said that this year entertainment only for those who are contestants will be provided, which is altogether proper.

The Last Word.

While it is true that the proceeds of road bonds can not and ought not be used to buy and free pikes of gates, the Fiscal Court has another ample fund for that purpose; namely, the regular road tax of $28,000 a year and the state money of $10,000 a year. The court was given the power to use those funds in that way by the election on that question in Boone county three years ago. Undoubtedly every pike in the county will be free of gates inside of one year after the bonds carry. In case the court would fail or refuse to act, which is hardly possible, I pledge myself to the people of Boone county to compel action by court proceedings without charge or expense to any body.

The purchase of the pikes will not be a large expense as there are only four or five dividend paying pikes in the county. All the other pikes have little or no value as property and are being and will be handed over to the county whenever the court is able to assure their reconstruction and maintainance.

If the bonds carry, the Fiscal Court will improve the location of such roads as are in creeks and branches and such as have bad grades; will do better and more work upon roads of minor importance; will build new pikes in every part of the county as well as new bridges wherever need ed. The irresponsible and nonsensical talk that the court will not live up to its promise to do so or that it will favor some parts of the county at the expense or neglect of other parts, is wholly groundless. If such a thing should happen, I promise again, by court proceeding, without charges, to compell the expenditure of the bonds in the various districts in proportion to the sum paid by each. The resolution by the court to do so is a contract between the court and the people, enforcable by law as other contracts are.

In the building of new pikes, in the relocation and regrading of roads, and in the reconstruction of old pikes the principle of voluntary aid by those directly interested should be maintained for three reasons: first, to prevent unnecessary and extravagant improvements, second, to insure honest and wise expenditure of the money, and third, to make the bonds the county levy, and the state money do the most possible good. This feature is a matter of detail and cannot be worked out in advance. Personally I believe one-half is too large in any case and that the principle ought to be applied so as to place all the people of the county and all parts of the county on equality. Where pikes have been built and are turned over to the county free or at a nominal price, those people and those sections would thereby put themselves on an equal footing with those who are required to assist in building new pikes by voluntary aid.

The bonds can be sold in the county at four per cent. To pay the interest and bonds in twenty years will require an annual payment of $14,000 or a twenty cent levy on our $7,000,000. Therefore the increase of taxes to the man paying on $5,000 will be $10 per year. Compare this to our great loss and inconvenience from our present condition. Boone county is losing annually in dollars and cents, leaving out of reference to schools and churches, comfort, health and pleasure, not less than $50,000. If space permitted, this can be calculated for each taxpayer but as space does no' permit, we will take a short way, basing the calculation on government statistics. It costs twenty-three cents to haul one ton one mile over bad roads It costs eight cents to haul one ton one mile over improved roads. The average haul for farm products in the United States is 10 miles. The difference in hauling one ton one mile is fifteen cents and for ten miles would be one dollar and fifty cents. If we knew exactly how many tons were hauled to and from the farms in Boone county we would know the loss incurred by our roads assuming that our roads are an average of the roads of the United States. There are 2,000,000 miles of road in the United States; there are five billion tons of freight hauled over those roads yearly; it follows that there are 2,500 tons of freight hauled on each mile of road in the United States. Boone county has 370 miles; there would therefore be 925,000 tons of freight hauled to and from it. As shown above the loss on bad roads is fifteen cents per ton per mile. Boone's loss therefore is $138,750. Boone's roads may be better than the average in the United States; the haul may be less than ten miles average; owing to backward business conditions her freight may be less than the average in the United States; but making every possible allowance and deduction Boone county's annual loss by reason of unimproved roads and the payment of tolls on hauling freight alone is $50,000.

We had in 1870 $5,926,000 taxable Boone county. We now have 9,490. Whereas if we had kept pace with the rest of the country we would have 20,000 people.

We had in 1870. $5,926 taxable property. We have now $7,289,000. Whereas if we had kept pace with the balance of the country we would have $19,201,000.

This condition can only be explained by the fact that our young men and women and large tax payers have been going elsewhere. This is but obeying a universal law that both capital and labor will seek and find their level. Tracing the cause of this exodus of capital and labor from Boone county, eliminating impossible factors such as location, soil, calamities, outside transportation and markets, it will be found that the underlying and controlling cause is our roads, but the people make the roads, therefore it is a matter which is has been, and will be within our own control. The fault then "is not in our stars but in ourselves." We should remember that "he is capable of all achievements who first perceives and then performs." Vote the bonds, make employment for labor at fair prices, make an investment for idle money at home, by good roads, good schools, and their numerous concomitants, make it possible and desirable for our own people to continue to live in Boone county, and make it inviting and attractive for the stranger to come among us and in the course of five years you will see a new Boone county lovely to behold.

Always Opposed Toll Gates.

I have always opposed toll gates and advocated good roads. I never believed a county should lease its roads to individuals and permit them to charge the public for using their own roads. A county that can not maintain its thoroughfares should be enrolled among the pauper counties of its State.

The arteries represent the health and happiness of the human body. If the blood of the human body is permitted to flow freely and uninterruptedly health and happiness is assured. The public roads in a county are its arteries, and their condition represents the condition of the county. If the roads are kept in good condition and the public is permitted to travel them without being inconvenienced, prosperity is assured. When farmers are prosperous they take pride in their farms. They paint their houses, destroy unsightly briars and bushes and keep their fences in an ornamental condition. This enhances the value of their possessions if they want to sell, and if they do not wish to sell it inspires pride in their homes. What is the chief inducements to a prospective purchaser of a farm? They are good roads and good schools. Why is it that you rarely hear of a farm being sold in Central Kentucky? It is because the owners are prosperous and happy and do not wish to sell. They have good schools and the best roads in the world.

Why is it that so few farms are sold in Boone county? It is on account of the lack of buyers. No one wishes to invest his money in a farm in a county where the roads are in as miserable condition as are the roads today in our county.

I am glad that there is an awakening among the citizens of our county today on the better road question. Ten years ago I asked the Fiscal Court to give $60 to repair a half mile of road I was interested in building. I believe this was the first appropriation of the kind ever made by a Fiscal Court in this county. This seemed to open the eyes of the public as to the necessity of good roads. Wonderful strides have been made in this direction since, and next Monday will be the culmination of this awakened interest in better roads by voting a $200,000 bond issue to accomplish this purpose. I have confidence enough in the voters in Boone county to expect this bond issue to carry by a handsome majority. It will not be a burden upon any one. The interest on the bonds will not exceed one cent on the $100 taxable property. These bonds will be made payable within 30 years. Should the Fiscal Court decide to redeem one thirtieth of those bonds annually it will require less than one cent on the $100 to accomplish it.

Who will be benefitted by the issuing of these bonds? The value of the property in the county will be greatly enhanced, both farm and town property. The laboring man will receive his reward because the bulk of the money will be spent in the county for labor.

Mrs. Susan R. Boyd Dead.

Mrs. Susan R. Boyd, 76 years old, pioneer resident of Covington, died yesterday afternoon at her home, 312 Wallace avenue, after a week's illness. She was the wife of Samuel R. Boyd, well-known lumber dealer of Cincinnati. Mrs. Boyd for years was prominent in church and social work. She was a member of the Madison Avenue Christian church. She was ever an enthusiastic worker for the Protestant Children's Home, Covington, of which she was first President. She also was a member of the Daughters of the Confederacy and devoted much time to the order's interests.—Covington item in last Friday's Enquirer.

Mrs. Boyd's maiden name was Calvert. She was a native of Burlington and Miss Mary Thompson's oldest pupil. Her father was Gen. William Calvert, who served in the war of 1812.

Hauging up in the Mud.

There is a place a mile and a quarter out on the East Bend road that has been very annoying to the traffic along that highway. One horse attached to a vehicle got down in the mud and the driver had to summons assistance before the animal was released. It required considerable time and labor to get the travel er out of his trouble, yet it was given freely by those upon whom he called.

A Substitute For Gasoline.

Evansville, Ind.—Dr. Norman Hass, a local dentist, announces that he has been working about a year on a fluid to be used in the place of gasoline. He says he tried the fluid in his automobile and it left no carbon in the cylinders. He uses about a quart of chemicals in five gallons of water, but he will not divulge what is used in the chemicals. Dr. Hass says the fluid can be made for about six cents a gallon and he proposes to have his formula patented in a short time.

A Happy Home.

What makes some homes such places of peace, charm, comfort and happiness? What makes other homes houses of gloom, of disorder of quarrels, of unhappiness.

Some of both sorts are rich, some are poor. It is not money then that makes the difference in happy homes and unhappy homes.

Some of both sorts are inhabited by persons of education, some by persons who have had little of no schooling. It is not book-learning therefore that makes the difference.

Some of both sorts are occupied by persons of some standing in society, some by the humble and the obscure. It is not rank, then, that brings felicity or misery.

The first factor in the making of a happy home, is divine grace—faith, a Christian life, the Sacraments, a trained conscience, a sense of sin, a sense of duty.

The second factor in the making of a happy home is love. Affection, showing itself in kindness, in cosideration, in gentleness, in quietness, on good will. Love begets love.

Then come cleanliness, good housekeeping, and a love of home that tries to make it attractive by geniality, hospitality, brightness, books, pictures, music and innocent games.

Anger, grouchiness, drunkeness and laziness are enemies of home happiness. Concord, sweetness, harmony and cooperation are its friends.

Where there is family affeation the home is likely to be happy.—Catholic Forester.

The question arose to kill the dog, but a compromise was reached, whereby the chauffeur relieved Jones of two "bucks" the fixed valuation of the pants. —Owenton New-Herald.

Henderson and Union counties are in a tangle over the selection of the inter-county seat road from Henderson to Morganfield. Three weeks ago the Henderson Fiscal Court selected the Smith Mills and Morganfield road to receive State aid this year, while the Union Fiscal Court selected the Waverly-Corydon road. These roads do not connect and it will be a problem to unravel this tangle between the two counties. Under the State aid road law inter-county seat roads receiving State funds must connect.

Jessamine county's 275 acres of hemp, which made 300,000 pounds and sold at $11 a hundred, was pooled by C. T. Ashley & Co. for the growers of the county. The firm has purchased 800 bushels of hempseed for $7400. The hemp acreage for Jessamine county this year will be larger than for several years. The scarcity and present high prices for hempseed will, without doubt, prevent numbers of farmers from growing the lint. Many farmers contemplate turning from tobacco to hemp, which is easier raised and leaves the land in better condition.—Jessamine Journal.

GUILTY! YET ACQUITTED.

A Mountain Judge Goes Free After Having Jailed Prominent Citizens

Senator Littrell, editor of the Owen County Democrat says in the last issue of his paper:

"Not in the history of Kentucky has there been such a travesty on justice as the acquittal of Judge J. E. Williams of McCreary county who was recently tried by the Kentucky State Senate.

"To convict the Judge required 24 Senators or a two thirds vote. Judge Williams was charged with having put a number of Democrats in the McCreary county jail on a felony charge without an affidavit, this he admitted. He was charged of collecting and keeping the states money which he admitted. He was charged with not keeping a proper set of books in the county Judges office, this he admitted. He was charged with packing juries in cases in which his friends were interested, this was proven. Yet twelve republicans and two democrats who heard the testimony voted that Judge Williams was not guilty. Twenty-three democrats voted that he was guilty and two were absent.

"Several democrats in the Senate who had been anti-administration championed the cause of Williams.

"It was proven that Judge Williams had tried over 400 cases and reported on about 45. Judge Williams was backed by John Sampson a McCreary county attorney.

"Judge Williams was denounced by many republicans of his county as being one of the worst men in that end of the State.

"The republicans of the Senate voted as a unit upon all charges regardless of the proof, saying that other county judges had done just as bad in many instances.

"The effect of this verdict will be a sad blow to the republican party in Kentucky its leaders claimed to be on the side of justice, law and order, but this judgment will always be a reminder of the contrary existing conditions."

Is Your Mind Your Own?

We often hear people make the remark, "I have a mind of my own."

Literally speaking, yes. But otherwise, NO!

We can demonstrate the truth of the latter statement by referring to your own actions, by the actions of your friends and neighbors, by the actions of the public in general.

No man has a mind wholly and absolutely his own in the generally accepted sense of the word. No man forms his conclusions entirely from his own observations and reflections, tho many sincerely believe that they do.

One simple illustration is sufficient to prove the correctness of our contention.

Mr. Nameless is one of our citizens who "has a mind of his own." At least he says he has, and he really believes what he says.

He walks along our streets day by day. Glaring defects in our municipal system stare him in the face. He sees them not—or seeing them, fails to heed them. His mind is not concerned.

Another citizen comes along, points them out, starts an agitation that grows, and Mr. Nameless immediately comes to life and joins the throng with lusty shouts for improvement—AFTER the other fellow has done the work.

If Mr. Nameless really "had a mind of his own" the agitation would have no effect whatever upon that mind.

But he hasn't. His mind is just like the minds of all of the rest of us—just like the mind of every human being—it can be influenced and swayed by other minds, just as readily as the work of his mind can influence the minds of other people.

The articles we read, the words we hear, our conversations of everyday life all have a direct and a powerful influence over our own minds, often diverting our convictions and ideas into wholly different channels from those formerly used.

A mind that is worth having is always susceptible to change, to conviction, to revision superinduced by the wisdom emanating from other minds.

A mind that is wholly its own is no mind at all.—Ex.

Advertising on Fences.

"A farmer has as much right to paint a sign that he has butter and eggs for sale on the front window of the best store in town as the merchant has to paint his signs all over the farmers' barns and fences," was the statement of J. B. Powell, instructor in advertising at the University of Missouri at Columbia in a speech before the Commercial Club at Hannibal recently.

Mr. Powell said that merchants should cease the use of this primitive form of advertising for farmers are now reading newspapers He told of several cases where ornamental concrete bridges on good roads have been practically ruined from the stand-point of beauty through the painting of signs by merchants in near by towns. He said that this kind of advertising would never get any business from the farmers who put up the money to build the roads and the bridges.

"You will not find any mail-order house signs on the sides of barns or on fences, but you may find the name of the mail-order house on the shipping tag that brings these articles to the farmer's home. Mail-order houses respect the farmer's intelligence by sending him an attractively printed book from which to order merchandise. No wonder they get the farmer's confidence and busines," said Mr. Powell.

have to say about cream separators this week

IT will be worth your while to find out what some of your neighbors who use De Laval Cream Separators think of their machines before you buy any separator.

About the best thing we can say for the De Laval is that all the farmers around here who use it are boosters.

It does good work for them and pleases them, and we know it will please you.

Make it a point to ask your neighbor about his De Laval

There are nearly two million satisfied De Laval users throughout the world. More De Laval Separators are in use than all other makes combined. It isn't the cheapest, but the majority of separator users have found out by experience that it is the best and by far the most economical separator to own.

We want to tell you about an arrangement we have whereby you can make partial payment at time of purchase and pay the balance on such liberal terms that the De Laval will save its cost while you are paying for it.

Come in and see us the first time you have a chance and talk it over.

Democrats, Take Notice.

Be it resolved by the State Executive Committee of the Democratic party of Kentucky in session assembled in Louisville, Ky., on April 14, 1916, upon all of the Chairman of said Committee, the Hon. S. W. Hager (a quorum of said Committee being present in person) that a Democratic Delegate State Convention be held in the city of Lexington, Ky., on Wednesday the 24th day of May 1916 at 12 o'clock noon. for the purpose of selecting delegates to the Democratic National Convention to be held at St. Louis, Mo., on June 14, 1916, and for the purpose of effecting the party organization.

Second. Delegates shall be selected to said State Convention on the basis of one delegate for every 100 votes and fraction over 50 cast by the Democratic party of Kentucky at the Presidential election of 1912, which delegates shall be selected in Mass Convention to be held at the Court House in each and every county in the state at the hour of 1:30 p. m., on Saturday May 20, 1916.

Provided, however, that in counties having more than one legislative district, they shall meet in Mass Convention in their respective legislative districts at the hour of 2 o'clock p. m., on Saturday May 20, 1916, at a place to be designated by the Chairman of each legislative district and said convention shall be called to order and held in the manner provided by the Party laws.

The Democrats of Boone county will take notice of the above and act accordingly.

B. B. HUME, Chairman
Boone County Democratic Executive Committee.

Next Monday the voters of Boone county will visit the polls to pass upon the most important question that has ever been submitted to them. The bond issue is a question in which every voter in the county should take enough interest to go to the polls and cast his ballot, making the majority, whichever side gains, so emphatic that there can be no mistaking of the wishes of the voters. The vote cast Tuesday ought to reach 2,500.

Bogus Bonds Sprung.

The $175,000 bond issue mentioned by Mr. J. E. Hall in his article is a myth, no such a bond issue was ever submitted to the voters of this county, and the reference to the bogus bonds at this time is for the purpose of a last hour scare. He would have conferred a public favor by giving the names of the public officials who are so densely ignorant as to make the statement he attributes to them.

Two Good Road Articles.

In this issue will be found two well considered articles on the bond issue, one by Hon. J. G. Tomlin, of Walton, the other by Col. G. C. Graddy, of Idlewild. Mr. Tomlin has made the road question a study for some time and backs up his statements by figures and statistics that are incontrovertable, while Mr. Graddy's is giving the reader plain, unvarnished facts. Read both articles.

The Milky Way.

As Jack Koons, who hauls the milk and cream to the local creamery from out on the East Bend road, was coming down the W. J. Rice hill, Tuesday morning, the front axle on his wagon broke when his mules began kicking, and when things were quieted 6 cans of milk was seen running down the gutter towards the creek. None of the cream was lost.

A. W. Gaines Dead.

Charles E. Denady.

On Monday, April 23, 1916, at about 1:30 p. m., after an illness of only four days duration, and in spite of the best medical attention and a surgical operation and the ministry of loving hands, Charles Edward Denady, aged 29 years, of Richwood, died from an attack of appendicitis. He leaves a wife, Mrs. Rachel Conner Denady, a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Denady and a host of friends and relatives to mourn his loss. His death comes as a great shock to the whole community and county where he was honored and esteemed by all who knew him. This was demonstrated by the fact that over 300 people from all sections assembled to pay their respects in the last sad rites to the departed.

The funeral of the deceased was conducted Thursday, April 25, from the Richwood Presbyterian church of which Mr. Denady was a loyal and devoted member, the pastor officiating. Soon after his entrance into the church nearly two years ago he was elected by the congregation to the deaconate. Upon the reorganization of this board he was elected its chairman and also treasurer of benevolences which positions he held very acceptably until the time of his death. As every loyal church officer should do, he magnified his office. He never pushed himself forward, but he was a tireless worker in his Master's vineyard. His greatest desire was to see his church grow, and as a moving spirit he will be greatly missed in old Richwood church. It was during the administration of the present board of deacons the financial agents of the church, with Mr. Denady as one of the leaders, that the building has been made very attractive and comfortable.

After service in the church, which he loved, we bore his body away to Highland cemetery where it was laid to rest during a shower of tears from the many who mourn for him accompanied by a shower of rain followed by beautiful sunshine typical of the peace and comfort that come to us in knowing that his body only sleeps, and that his spirit has gone to be with Christ.

The pallbearers were the following friends of the deceased: Messrs. Albert Robinson, Claud Robinson, Wayne Hearn, Cloyde Powers, Ruben Conner, and Dr. Elbert Glackin; Messrs. Stanley Rouse and Everett Wolf acted as ushers at the church.

The family have requested the writer to convey their sincere thanks to all the host of friends for their kindness and sympathy extended to them in their deep grief.

His friend and pastor,
SOLON T. HILL.

A news item in the Lafayette Journal states that W. J. Schinaman, while drilling a Cook well in the Big Four gravel pit west of Lafayette, struck part of a tree at a depth of 160 feet. The wood brought up by the drill was very hard and almost as black as abony. It is supposed that the tree was buried by the vast deposits during the glacial period.—Lawrenceburg Press.

Those who had no children of their own came to help their neighbors with theirs. We hear of several whose cash accounts are less some ten, some four, some five, or three dollars as the results of tricks of sharpers connected with side show. Speaking in the mildest terms possible, one is bound to say the side show was composed of a set that are not at all particular how they get a person's money. Several of the boys and even some who are on the shady side of life had their eye teeth let through the gum while in the side show. At night the principal actor was "John Barley Corn."

Sheep Dying of Bloat.

Bloat has killed several sheep in this county this spring. Some of the sheep died before the owner knew they were ailing. Did you read Dr. Hafer's recipe for bloat in cattle as published in this paper last week?

Using Government Slides.

The slides that are being used at the road meetings being held in the interest of the bond issue are furnished by the U. S. Government. They were made especially for the use of the work in the interest of road improvement.

May Fourth and no Corn Planted.

This is the fourth day of May and farmers have a very large per cent of their land for corn yet to break, and many of them are greatly discouraged, but they should console themselves with the belief that there will come a change for the better in weather conditions.

Picking a Residence to Pieces.

Yellow-hammers have attacked L. A. Conner's residence with such persistence this spring that he has resorted to the use of his shot gun to put a stop to their destructive work. They begin their work hammering early in the morning and it disturbs Mr. Conner's slumbers.

All Home Print.

Every line in this paper is printed in Burlington, and you miss much of the best reading matter if you do not read the inside pages. Many years ago half the pages were printed by the Western Newspaper Union, but not now. Some weeks neighborhood news is printed on the inside.

Peanuts Barred.

The management of the entertainment to be given in Library Hall desires to assure the public that the best of order will be preserved, and in as much as the cracking and eating of peanuts disturbs those who want to hear it has been decided that peanuts shall not be permitted in Library Hall for any purpose. Come and enjoy yourself but please leave the peanuts on the outside.

David Moyer Dead.

Rev. R. H. Carter was called to Petersburg last Saturday afternoon to preach the funeral of David Moyer, aged 84. Mr. Myer died in Indiana, having moved from this county to that State several years ago. He was a quiet, unassuming man, who made his home in several neighborhoods in this county while living here, and where he made friends of all.

Is it Neighborly?

You had business that required you to spend last week in Gallatin, Grant and Kenton counties, using a horse and buggy all the time. You went toll free. Monday morning a gentleman from one of these counties had to make a half day's business journey in Boone county, and, by chance, he could make his trip on a pike, and in less than three hours he was held up for toll four times—some of the hold-ups being for as small a sum as four cents. Think of this and at the same time bear in mind that a bond issue is the only medium by which a better system of roads in Boone county can be obtained.

Separator Agents Busy.

The agents for cream separators were busy in this territory last Saturday, as they had a tip that there was a local demand for several of their machines.

All Say They Want Good Roads.

There is not a man in Boone county who is not in favor of good roads; now, how in the sam hill will they ever be attained if the funds to secure them are not provided?

Only a Flue Burning Out.

Considerable anxiety was created in Burlington last Friday about 2 p. m., when a telephone message came in over a farmers line saying that the stately old brick residence owned by William Carpenter and known as the Wm. Huey farm in Locust Grove neighborhood, was burning. Much relief followed a later message saying the chimney only burnt out

William Bondurant Dead.

The funeral of William Bondurant, of Locust Grove neighborhood, took place at Belleview last Sunday. Mr. Bondurant was one of the oldest residents of his neighborhood, where he was born and raised, and was highly esteemed by all his acquaintances. He was a very quiet man and attended strictly to his own affairs. He will be missed by those among whom he lived.

Loased the Local Creamery.

Joseph Huey has leased Clover Leaf Creamery, of which he took charge last Monday morning. There is no doubt but what he will make a success of the business as he can operate it at much less expense than it has heretofore incurred. The creamery has been the cause of the introduction of the dairy business in this territory, and it has acquired proportions that should make Mr. Huey good money in handling it.

How Does this Strike You?

Some oppose the bond issue because, they say, they believe the Dixie Highway, which is the Lexington pike, will be given more than its share of the proceeds. Don't you believe your Fiscal court when it tells you how it will distribute the proceeds of the bond? Again, a vote against the bond issue is virtually a vote for expending all the State aid on the Lexington pike and none on the other roads.

OUR WEEKLY CHAT.

Many advertisements you read are full of glowing accounts of the $12.00 values of this article that they are selling you for $5. Those kinds of methods were very successful years ago because people did not know the value of merchandise, but in this day the people are better educated on the quality of goods.

After each of our advertisements is ready fo go to press the entire copy is thoroughly gone over and when a former price is quoted the article is sent for and to see if it had sold for the price claimed for it in the advertisement and nothing passes that is not exactly the truth.

Boy's Prayers Said to Heal.

Harlem has been much interested in recent reports of the recovery of persons who were ill following the prayers of nine-year-old John Edward McDonnell, son of James and Eleanor McDonnell of New York. It is said that within five years more than 1,000 persons have asked the boy to pray for them. Every day the family receives many letters pleading for prayers. When stamps are inclosed the letters are answered, but Johnnie prays in any event. Money has sometimes been offered, but never accepted, tho the McDonnells are poor.

The boy began to exercise his supposed power when he was 3 years old. The family then lived at Derby, Conn., and then, as now, the father was a waiter. He had been out of work, and one night little Johnnie said he felt that his father would get a job within three days and that he was going to pray for it. Within 3 days the father got work, and after that the boy took up praying for sick or troubled friends of the family. He had acquired something of a local reputation in Connecticut before the family moved to New York four years ago, and has expanded it since. Two years ago he says he had a vision of Christ, in which he himself figured as a priest carrying a crucifix. The boy hopes to study for the priesthood. He is at present a student in Public School 39, at Second avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, and attends the church of the Holy Rosary in East One Hundred and Nineteenth street.—N. Y., Times.

CHEERFULNESS.

A woman whose life has been made of sorrow and pain, but who always appeared cheerful, explained to her friends: "You know I have had no money; have had nothing I could give but myself, and so I made a resolution that I would never sadden anyone else with my troubles. I have laughed and appeared cheerful when my heart was breaking. I have always smiled in the face of every misfortune. I have tried never to let anyone go from my presence without a happy word or a bright thought to carry with them. And happiness makes happiness. I myself am happier than I would have been had I sat down and bemoaned my fate."

No one can estimate the worth of the cheerful woman; the woman whose cheerfulness is not affected by dark days or little disappointments, or whose kindness does not become rancid in the midst of prosperity. The magnetism of the cheerful woman's smiles and brightness infects every one in the darkest hours. Her husband goes to the store, shop or office feeling that he can contribute himself, heart and soul to build himself into the temple of human society. The cares of the day worry him but the thought that "at home I shall find peace," renews his strength and energy and he can endure to the end. The cheerful mother sends her children to school with the sense of something to be won, a work to be accomplished, and they do not find it very difficult to be brave, truthful, courteous and just obedient to teacher, kind to schoolmates.

State News.

Mr. J. E. Lowery, of Predonia, boasts of having the champion hen of this section. The following is her record: Hatched in May, 1915; made her own living, laid eighty-two eggs; and upon being sold by weight produced $1.35.

Benjamin Page, a prominent farmer near Glasgow, killed himself by shooting and hanging himself. He was fifty-five years old. He had gone to the barn to feed cattle and later a shot was heard. His son ran to the barn and found his father hanging to a rope in the harness room with a mortal wound in his head.

Arch Davis, H. D. Ormsby and E. S. Guin, of Louisville, and bankers from Lexington, Frankfort, Paducah and a dozen Central Kentucky towns, appeared before the Board of Valuation and Assessment in an effort to prevent a raise in the assessment of bank stock. Eighty per cent of the stock and surplus has been the assessed valuation heretofore and the bankers insist that this represents the fair value, as the book value of banks never can be realized at a sale.

Six hundred citizens of Lexington met and adopted resolutions requesting Gov. Stanley to remove from office Police Judge John J. Riley. A charge of exceeding his authority is contained in the resolutions. Remarks that "there are no ladies left," and that "women crowd the courtrooms in order to hear nasty testimony" in "masher" trials, which are attributed to Judge Riley, caused indignation among social workers and ministers, and the mass-meeting at the court house followed.

Public road improvement in Kentucky is beginning to reach a gigantic scale, and it is estimated at the Department of Public Roads that the total expended on roads in Kentucky this year under State supervision will be not less than $4,000,000. Of the [illegible] counties, 103 have applied for [illegible] and twenty-five have [illegible] way while the [illegible] working [illegible] for [illegible] Monroe county has announced he will not make [illegible] race either.

NEW FUND SEEKS AID FOR EUROPE'S BLIND.

American Bankers and Business Men Issue Appeal Throughout The United States.

The thousands of French, Belgian and British soldiers who have been blinded in the European War are in a pitiable condition, according to an appeal of American bankers, philanthropists and business men, through the B. F. B. Permanent Blind Relief War Fund, 590 Fifth Ave., New York City.

The appeal was issued locally by M. J. Crouch President of the Union Deposit Bank, who is Sub-Treasurer of the Fund in this locality and who will receive all local contributions.

Unable to work at former trades, these numerous blinded war-victims cannot support themselves and their families. Their governments, overburdened with more immediate problems, are able to do very little for them, the appeal states.

Six months' training on the other hand, the bankers, business men and philanthropists, say, can educate almost all of these thousands of now useless blind men in practical, paying trades, in which they can support themselves and at least partially support their families. Work of this kind has already been begun by C. Arthur Pearson, the blind English newspaper proprietor and philanthropist, at St. Dunstan's in England, by M. Rene Vallery-Radot through "Les Amis des Soldats Aveugles" in the "Maison du Convalescence" in France, and by Miss Winifred Holt of the Comite Franco American pour les Aveugles, of which the Hon. Joseph H. Choate is the President. The B. F. B. Permanent Blind Relief War Fund seeks to assist, develop and enlarge these efforts.

The American bankers, business men and philanthropists who are issuing the appeal include Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank. August Belmont, the Hon. Elihu Root, Vincent Astor, the Hon. Robert Bacon, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, U. S. Senator Thomas P. Gore, the Hon. Myron T. Herrick, Otto H. Kahn, Joseph Widener and Geo. A. Kessler.

These gentlemen and their associates intend to organize an American Fund of sufficient proportions to coöperate thoroughly throughout Europe, the work which Mr. Pearson, at St. Dunstan's M. Rene Vallery-Radot (aru "Les Amis des Soldats Aveugles" in Paris, Miss Holt of the Comite, and kindred institutions are now doing locally.

The first work of the Fund will be to enlarge and modernize all the present blind institutions of Europe by means of financial donations, as well as assisting the work of Mr. Pearson in England, M. ValleryRadot and Miss Holt, in France. The Fund later intends to organize in various European cities additional modern equipped blind schools, blind work shops, blind employment exchanges and agencies for commercializing blind products, so that all this particular class of war-victims may be saved from their present hopeless and helpless situation, and may be rendered self-supporting for life.

"Self-respecting, able bodied, passing daily through a living death, these thousands of blinded war-victims are being slowly killed, not by their injuries, not by starvation, but by the apparently permanent hopelessness of their situation. Six months' training, on the other hand, will educate each one of them in some trade not requiring sight. A single contribution of several hundred dollars will go far to make one of these blinded soldiers self-supporting for life," the appeal states.

The appeal is being sent to one hundred and twenty thousand people of prominence throughout the United States.

The patronage of their Majesties the King and Queen of Great Britain, and the Queen Mother, Alexandra as well as M. Raymond Poincare, President of France, and King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, has been obtained for the distribution of the appropriations from the Fund in their respective countries.

Among the ladies who are active in the Fund's work in Europe and America are Lady Arthur Paget, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Mrs. John Astor, Mrs. Peter Cooper Hewitt, Mrs. Geo. A. Kessler, Mrs. R. Valentine Webster. Acting as Honorary Treasurers, with Mr. Vanderlip, are Sir Edward Holden, Chairman of the London City and Midland Bank, and M. Georges Palgain, Governor-General of the Bank of France.

Mr. Pearson, the English newspaper proprietor, who is on the Fund's Executive Committee, is now living at St. Dunstan's with one hundred and thirty blinded soldiers and sailors to whose rehabilitation he is devoting his life.

This Fund, although specifically organized to aid the blind of three nations, will ultimately contribute benefactions upon every blinded person thruout the entire world, its officials say. According to statistics, the world a year before the War broke out, contained 2,500,000 blind. The number of blind who will be added to this total by the war cannot be estimated until years after the war itself is over.

Caleb Powers has announced his candidacy for re-election to Congress from the Eleventh district. Edwin P. Morrow, of Somerset, who has been thinking of making the race, has given out the statement that he will not be a candidate this time. Senator Monk M. White, of Monroe county, has announced he will not make the race either.

TOWN WITHOUT TAXES.

Orson, Sweden, Has Free Telephone and Street Car Service.

In these days of expensive living, when everything costs double it used to, and four times more than you can afford to pay, what a boon to live in a city without taxes. Are there such things? you ask. Most certainly!

But they aren't in England.

There is Orson, in Sweden. This municipality has its ordinary city expenses, but it imposes no taxes.

Moreover, the local railway is free to every citizen, and there is no charge for telephone service, schools, libraries and like.

All this is due to the wisdom of a former generation, who planted trees on all the available ground, with the result that during the past 30 years $14,000,000 worth of young trees and timber, while judicious replantings have provided for a similar income in the future.

Then, there is Montana, in the Midi, France. Here not only are there no taxes, but the timbers on the commercial lands are sufficient to grant each person a small annuity. There are only seven electors in this hamlet, so, to avoid anything like rivalry, the seven returned themselves to the local Council.

Nearer home we have the island of Innishmurray, off the west coast of Ireland. Here there are no taxes, simply because the 14 families who live on the island resolutely refuse to pay. In a recent report to the Local Government Board, the rate collector stated that he could not get a boat on the mainland to take him to the island on such an errand as collecting rates. At a meeting of the Sligo County Council it was stated that some years ago two officers of the council who tried to land on the island for the same purpose, were stoned off the shore by the inhabitants!

TO CURE PNEUMONIA

With Simple Remedy The Ingredients Of Which is Easy to Obtain.

The New York Sun of recent date gives the following simple remedy for a dangerous disease:

In view of the prevalence of pneumonia to such an alarming extent, and the many deaths resulting therefrom, we print the following simple receipt: Take six to ten onions according to size and chop fine, put in a large spider over a hot fire; then add about the same quantity of rye meal, and vinegar enough to make it a thick paste. In the mean while stir it thoroughly, letting it simmer five or ten minutes. Then put it in a cotton bag large enough to cover the lungs, and apply it to the chest as hot as the patient can bear. When it gets cool apply another and thus continue by reheating the poultices. In a few hours the patient will be out of danger. Usually three or four applications will be sufficient, but continue always until perspiration starts freely from the chest. The sample remedy was formulated many years ago by one of the best physicians New England has ever known, who never lost a patient by this disease.

Parents, It Is Up to You.

If our school boys and girls of today were given names like the Indian boys and girls were given years ago, we know several young sters who might be called "Young Man Afraid of His Report Card."

We imagine our school teachers will agree with us when we say pupils do not take the interest in school they should take—and we imagine they will go further with us in the assertion that in most cases this lack of interest in the pupil is brought about by the lack of interest in schools on the part of parents.

We are not even intimating that all our boys and girls are disinterested in their school work. In fact, we know one boy, a youngster of some dozen years, who is "absorbed" in his studies, and it is this one boy we wish to place before other boys and girls, both older and younger than he.

In the first place, we will give the parents of this "model" most of the credit for the boy's standing. They have made him realize the importance of good daily grades. They have done this not by coercion but by persuasion. They have offered him "cash prizes," giving him a nickel for every "hundred" he earned in his daily studies, and a dime for every "ninety" on his monthly examinations. We have not learned what this "high finance" is costing the parents, but we do know the result is well worth the price—and they realize it even more than anyone else could possibly do.

The boy in question is not a "nut." He is as much boy as is possible to crowd into a youngster of his age—but he has been taught the value of earnest study during school hours, and he will ever thank his parents for that teaching.—Ex.

WITH APPLE AS BASIS

SUGGESTIONS FOR SEVERAL APPETIZING CONFECTIONS.

In Addition to Its Medicinal Virtues, the Fruit Forms One of the Best Foundations for Innumerable Delicacies.

Apple Cobbler.—Pare and quarter enough tart apples to fill a baking dish three-fourths full. Cover with a rich baking powder biscuit dough made soft enough to stir, spread it over the apples without rolling. Make several cuts in the center to allow the steam to escape. Bake for three-quarters of an hour and serve hot with sugar and rich cream.

Coddled Apples.—Take tart, ripe apples of uniform size, remove the cores. Place the fruit in the bottom of a porcelain kettle; spread thickly with sugar; cover the bottom of the kettle with water and allow the apples to simmer until tender. Pour the sirup over the apples and serve cold.

Apple Conserve.—For each pound of quartered and pared apples allow three-quarters of a pound of sugar and half a pint of water. Boil sugar and water until a rich sirup is formed; add the apples and simmer until clear. Take up carefully, lay on plates and dry in the sun. Roll in sugar and pack in tin boxes lined with waxed paper.

Apple Compote and Orange Marmalade.—Boil 12 tart apples in one quart of water until tender, strain through a jelly bag; add one pound of granulated sugar and let boil. While boiling add 12 apples, cored and pared. When the apples are tender, drain them carefully in a perforated skimmer. Boil the sirup until it jells; fill the apples with orange marmalade and pour the sirup over them. Serve with whipped cream.

Crab Apple Marmalade.—Wash and core crab apples and put them through the meat chopper. Put into a preserving kettle and add water until it shows through the top layer of apples. Cook until soft. Weigh and add an equal weight of sugar. Cook until the mixture forms a jelly when cooled and pour into sterilized glasses. Cover with paraffin.

Apple Custard.—Beat the yolks of four eggs and add one-half cupful of sugar; cook for one or two minutes and remove from the fire. Gradually add one pint of grated apple. Pour into a serving dish and cover with a meringue made of the well-beaten whites of four eggs and three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar.

Cheese Croquettes.

Make a white sauce, using two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-third cupful of flour, two-thirds cupful of milk. Add one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, paprika, the yolks of two eggs, one-half cupful cream cheese, grated, and one cupful of cream cheese cut in small pieces. Cool; shape, allowing one rounding tablespoonful to each croquette, and roll in balls. Add two tablespoonfuls of cold water to the whites of the eggs, dip in crumbs prepared by drying the bread, and putting through the meat chopper. Dip in the egg, then in crumbs again. Fry in deep fat and drain on brown paper. This is a very hearty dish, good for hard labor, indoors or out.

Honey Cakes.

One cupful butter or three-quarters cupful manufactured shortenings; one and one-half cupfuls honey, one teaspoonful soda, three eggs, three cupfuls flour, two cupfuls raisins chopped, one teaspoonful salt, one and one-half teaspoonfuls cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful nutmeg, two cupfuls nut meats. Cream the butter. Warm the honey, dissolve soda in it and mix with butter. Then add flour, which has been sifted with the salt and spices. Last of all, add raisins and nuts. Drop by teaspoonfuls on buttered baking sheets and bake in moderate oven.—Mother's Magazine.

Attractive Dessert.

The ingredients needed for this are a pint of cream, the white of one egg, half a cupful of sugar, half a cupful of nuts, chopped fine; 12 figs and six dates. Beat the cream until stiff with the white of egg. Sweeten this, add the nuts and fruit, the latter cut in small pieces. Mix all thoroughly and put into a wet mold. Cover tightly and pack in salt and ice for four hours. This quantity will serve eight people.

Veal in a Mold.

This is a dish that can be prepared the day before and can be served cold for the next day's luncheon or dinner. Boil a knuckle of veal until tender. Pour on the water in which it was boiled and mince the veal. Add the minced veal to the juice and pour in a mold. Add thin slices of hard-boiled egg and place in a cool place, and when cold place on the ice. Serve on a platter garnished with parsley.

Apricot Pie de Lux.

Soak apricots over night in cold water, fill pie plate as you would apple pie, but do not put in any undercrust, then add one-half cupful sugar, a few dots of butter and some cinnamon. Cover with a rich crust and bake. Serve while warm and cover with whipped cream.

Frankfurter Sausage.

Put the sausage in a saucepan to the side of the stove, let them remain ten minutes without boiling, then serve.

OVEN MUST BE JUST RIGHT

Faults of Cookery That Have to Be Remedied by the Most Careful Attention.

"This would be a fine cake if only my oven had been just right." How often have you heard a friend make that remark and agreed with her too, but did either of you know what that "just right" meant?

Uniformity of heat is a most important feature in successful baking. It requires skill to obtain just the right heat. Not so very long ago a great bread bakery found it necessary to let some of the great ovens cool off. After the fires were rebuilt it was about a week before they could be sure of the uniformity of the bread baked in those ovens. This merely demonstrates to the housewife the necessity for giving time and attention to her oven when she intends to bake.

When the cake comes out of the oven cracked it has been subjected to too great a heat at first. The cake baked so quickly at first that the gases did not have a chance to escape, and finally when formed in enough volume, they broke through the top, leaving a great crack. When the oven is unevenly heated the cake either rises up in the middle or on either side, making it impossible to make an even layer or to frost a loaf cake to advantage. When the cake "falls" it is because the oven has been too suddenly cooled or the cake jarred.

HOUSEHOLD WISDOM

Hard-boiled eggs chopped fine and mixed with mustard, a little cream and seasoning will make a delicious sandwich.

It is a good idea to save, if possible, a definite sum for furniture replacements. This applies especially to the keeper of a new house.

New blankets should be shaken and soaked in cold water overnight to take out the sulphur dressing and make them more easily washed.

Whenever possible save the green leaves of a head of lettuce for egg salad, while the hearts are kept for the tomato, fruit and other salads.

A weak solution of turpentine poured down the water pipes once a week will drive the water bugs away.

Shabby oak should be brushed over with warm beer and when thoroughly dry polished with beeswax and turpentine.

Furs that have become fat and oily looking about the neck may be made fresh and like new by rubbing the fur the wrong way with a hot iron. Furs that have been wet should never be hung in front of the stove or an open fire to dry.

For mud stains on dresses dissolve a little carbonate of soda in water and with it wash the mud stains. Another plan is to rub the stains with a cut raw potato, afterward removing the potato juice by rubbing it with a flannel dipped in water.

In cold weather put the clothespins in a pan and set in the oven until they are hot. Then the fingers will not suffer when hanging out the clothes, especially if the clothes are rinsed out the last time in warm water.

To clean bamboo furniture use a brush dipped in warm water and salt. The salt prevents the bamboo from turning color.

To clean lamp burners wash them in wood ashes and water and they will come out clean and bright.

If lemons are warmed before they are squeezed nearly double the quantity of juice will be obtained.

If you want to save gas, remember that a sheet of tin placed over the smallest gas jet will heat two flatirons as quickly as if two jets were used.

Muslin and cotton goods can be rendered fireproof by putting an ounce of alum in the last rinsing water, or by putting it in the starch.

A mousehole can be effectually stopped for all time by pasting over it a piece of cloth which has been liberally sprinkled with red pepper.

Caramel Custard.

Melt one-half cupful of sugar, add two tablespoonfuls of water and one quart of hot milk. Beat six eggs, add one-half teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful vanilla; pour on the hot milk. Strain into a buttered mold and bake one-half hour. Cook this carefully in a slow oven and serve with caramel sauce. It is a delicious dish.

Caramel Sauce.—Melt one cupful of sugar and add one cupful of hot water. Simmer ten minutes.

Cream of Tartar Biscuits.

One quart of flour, two level teaspoonfuls of saleratus, four level teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar; after sifting add butter or lard size of an egg, one and a half cupfuls of sweet milk or more according to quality of flour; knead well until not a particle of flour shows on dough, then roll and cut; bake in quick oven. This amount will make two dozen. When done turn out on a clean cloth to cool.

To Clean Spring Mattresses.

Save all old quills or wings from hats and use up for working the dust out from the space between the block of wood and spring mattress that runs at each end of the bed. Push the wings or quill in the space and work up and down until all dust is removed. I have found this works splendidly.

Effective Dishcloth.

In knitting dishcloths it is a good plan to put in several rows of hard-twisted cord. This hard portion will clean many surfaces on which it is not advisable to use scouring soaps or metal.

LANSING FINDS WAR LAWS UPSET BY NEW WEAPONS.

Washington, April 29.—"The present titanic struggle of the great empires of Europe has shaken international law to its foundations," Secretary Lansing declared here tonight at the dinner of the American society of International Law.

"There is coming a time, a time which will begin with the restoration of peace to this suffering and wrecked world, when we will have to readjust our ideas as to the rules of international law. I do not mean the principles of that law, for they are immutable, founded as they are on justice, righteousness and humanity.

"I mean that the application of these principles to new conditions will give us new rules which have never before been recognized or even conceived by the nations of the world and which can not, therefore, be invoked now by belligerent or neutral.

"If I was asked what was the chief cause of the new conditions and changed methods of land and naval warfare, I would unhesitatingly answer the invention of the internal combustion engine. It has made practicable the automobile, the submarine, the aeroplane and the dirigible. It has made warfare almost impossible on land and at sea has vastly increased the possibility of surprise at sea. The change of conditions which this invention, aided by the telephone, the wireless and the camera, has brought about is comparable only with that which was wrought by the invention and use of gunpowder. These new conditions offer to the student of international law a field of speculation which is at once attractive and difficult.

"I mean by 'difficult' that, however ardent the student may be, he must go very slowly or he will lose his bearings. He must be a philosopher rather than a legalist. He must scrap heap a lot of the old ideas emplanes, in layers of precedent and return for light and inspiration to those eternal principles, which must guide nations in their relations with one another if liberty and justice are to be exalted in the earth.

"It is the unenangeable standard of these fundamental principles which is the rock of salvation to international law, and whatever code of rules as to the conduct of war may in the future be formulated by the nations of the world must find a sure foundation on that rock which is imbedded deep in the consciousness of modern civilization."

In conclusion Secretary Lansing paid this tribute to former Secretary Root, President of the Society:

"In the new field, to which we will turn our attendon and which I pray God may soon be open to us, I hope that the society may continue to have as its President the wise statesman and profound thinker who for the past 10 years has given so much of himself to the society and to whom in very large measure our present prosperity is due. With this commanding intellect and lofty ideals to guide us we can advance with the full assurance that we are treading the path which will lead us to the heights."

LOSE LEAF HOUSES

Thirteen at Lexington Propose To Form A Combine.

Lexington, April 26.—A movement looking to the combination of the 13 loose leaf tobacco sales warehouses in this city has been inaugurated. The proposition as disclosed today by members of the Kentucky Burley Sales Association and the Lexington Tobacco Warehouse Association, is to create a company capitalized at $800 000 to take over the properties by issuing stock in the proportion it now is held in the different companies owning the houses.

The argument is that under this centralized control the operating expenses could be cut in half and that the farmers who grow the tobacco and sell it over the loose leaf floors would be benefitted by a lower schedule of fees.

The proposition is meeting with some objection, it is said, from growers who are opposed to anything savoring of a trust or monopoly and from certain warehousemen who have builded up their business on their individual efforts and are not experiencing a great deal of difficulty in holding it.

The owners of the co-operative warehouse also are very much opposed to the plan. This is an association of a large number of growers who are understood to have sold their tobacco this year at a less cost than they could have put it over other floors through a plan of paying back to the customer a prorata of the earning above six per cent and the cost of operation.

The National Museum at Washington contains a notable display of the bones of several species of extinct mammals which, if seen alive in the ocean, would be called huge sea serpents. They were carnivorous and their long slender jaws were armed with formidable teeth. Although a few remaining individuals of the group may have given actual basis for the sea-serpent stories, these extinct animals were not reptiles, but mammals which, like the whale and seal and otter, had happened to evolve in an aquatic environment.

Mr. Bryan has been defeated in Nebraska at a popular primary. He cannot get in the coming Democratic national convention unless some duly elected district delegate resigns and gives him the place. He thus cannot go to the convention with any claim that he has the people of even his own State behind him.

WOOL CAR'S LONG TOUR

Points Affecting Wool Values Explained to Sheep Raisers, In Four States.

Washington, D. C.—The wool car of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, which left Livingston, Montana, on January 19, has given demonstrations in more than 50 towns of the important sheep-growing States to at least 6,000 persons directly interested in wool growing. Since leaving Livingston the car has been touring Montana, Idaho, Wyoming and Utah in order to demonstrate to sheep men that the production of better wool means more money for them. The tour is the result of cooperative arrangements made between the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture and the agricultural colleges of the four states named.

The trip of this car is regarded by wool specialists as the most important educational effort that has yet been made in aid of the sheep industry, which provides 9 States, embracing one-third of the total area of the country, with the greater part of their income. In recent years a wide interest has been aroused in the better preparation of wools for market. At the same time, however, there has been in some quarters a certain doubt whether the financial returns would repay the attention and expense involved in a departure from the present methods, or rather the present lack of methods. The more progressive sheep men have realized that the success of the movement is dependent upon general cooperation among the wool growers. This can hardly be expected in the absence of familiarity with the market grades of wools and a knowledge of the wide differences in values possible in wools of the same grade. It is to furnish this information to practical sheep men that the demonstration car is now making its tour.

In the car are live sheep with fleeces representing the main market grades grown in the section in which the car is traveling. Above the crates holding the sheep are cases containing similar fleeces, the grade, shrinkage and value of which are clearly indicated. Stationary magnifying glasses show the conditions in the fineness of the various grades of small samples. Considerable space is also devoted to exhibits demonstrating the way in which the value of wool depends upon its natural shrinkage, strength and character. The methods of branding, packing and tying are also shown.

Another portion of the exhibit which has roused much interest consists of cases containing samples of wool in various stages of manufacture from the wool in the fleece to the finished fabric. Very few sheep men understand the many processes involved in the manufacture of finished articles from the fleece and are not, therefore, in a position to appreciate the importance which manufacturers attach to the different characteristics of the wool that they purchase.

The exhibits in the car are explained to visitors by represent atives of the Department of Agriculture and of the agricultural colleges cooperating with the Federal Department. A number of colleges in other western States have asked to have the car visit their territories, and dates and places will be arranged for continuing the demonstration as soon as it is known what funds will be available for the purpose during the coming fiscal year.

A Belgian Farm.

Andre de Martelere, who says he is a Belgian farmer who lost everything in the war, tells thru the columns of the Country Gentleman, how he made $2,738 in a year upon his farm, a net profit of $1,700 after paying expenses, including wife, men, two horses, two wagons and myself."

"My place," he says, "measured seventy-two steps on each side, possessing about an acre of land, poor land, but carefully manured and well taken care of."

Mr. Martelere had "done that for years in Belgium, raising a family of eight and supporting for eighteen years a father-in-law and mother-in-law." He explains his method of intensive agriculture, raising many crops in a single season upon his acre, "covered six inches deep with manure and plowed twelve inches deep," and he expresses the opinion that American farmers possessing much good land, will in the near future be able to triple their resources.

The axiom of Kentucky farming, that a family cannot well be supported, or cannot be supported, well, on less than 100 acres, and the once popularly accepted theory that land at above $100 an acre could not be made to pay a profit on the labor and investment, related, of course, to extensive agriculture. Mr. Martelere's operations were those of a truck farmer. He sold his products from a market wagon. It is not to be expected that a man with 100 acres could get $270,380 by trucking the wife of it, and it does not follow that the town family which elects to try back-to-the-soil life on a three or four acre farm can make $5,000 net profit on the land because a Belgian truck farmer has made a net profit of $1,700 a year after year on one acre. Only agricultural science extracts such returns from the soil. But inasmuch as agricultural science is developed where the density of population makes it necessary to increase the productivity of land, the Belgian farmer's story suggests the elasticity of America's agricultural resources.

Truck farming done scientifically is paying a large return upon small acreage in a small zone around every considerable American city, but bringing up a family of eight persons and supporting two "in-laws" upon an acre is a feat which, no doubt, is beyond the calculations of a very large majority of truck farmers. And many of our truck farmers are foreign born or of foreign extraction.

There still exists in the larger acres and a mule" will support a negro family in a log cabin, and that 100 acres and two teams are needed for the family which must live more pretentiously. Intensive agriculture still is confined to a part of America the idea that "40 very small area, and extensive agriculture still falls in a majority of cases to realize the possibilities of the land in use and labor employed.

Old fashioned farming treats land as a substance containing chemical elements that favor plant growth. Scientific farming contemplates land as space on which to grow plants and contemplates putting into the land chemical elements necessary to plant growth. In small spaces much can be produced if soil is used to "prop up the plants" and sunlight and soil enrichment are relied on to grow the plants.—Courier-Journal.

Means Much to Big Bone Springs.

Should the bond issue carry it will mean a great deal to the Big Bone Springs Company recently organized for the improvement of the property at Big Bone Springs as with an assurance of having a good highway built and kept in repair to the famous old springs the company will at once arrange to erect a fine hotel there for the accommodation of the many visitors who will go there if they can use an automobile with comfort and safety, and as this class usually has money to spend it would mean much to that locality as well as the promoters of the enterprise. Again with dependable high ways to the springs there is no doubt but quite a number of nice residences would be erected there by people who would purchase real estate for the purpose, as there could be no more delightful place for a country residence, and the springs would become one of the greatest summer resorts in the country with its close proximity to Cincinnati and the reputation the water has for health.

A few weeks ago the Recorder published the order of the Fiscal Court saying it would apportion among the voting precincts the proceeds of the bond issue in proportion to the taxes they pay. This was followed by a statement showing approximately how much money each precinct would receive. There is no reason for saying the money, if the bonds are voted, will not be apportioned as the court has declared of record it will. And each precinct knows to about how much money it will be entitled.

Soecial Notice.

The Farmers' Mutual Telephone Directory says, I handle any kind of rubber tire; and that I have the exclusive agency of the Republic Rubber Tires. That contract just cost me $200 of which of some of my customers will attest. I guaranteed those tires and I filled same to the letter. Now, right here I do most solemnly promise and swear that I will never again change the old and tried for any new thing whatsoever. Furthermore, that I will not use any Rubber Tire except Kelly's Springfield—the first rubber tire ever made and the best. I ought to know for surely I paid last year to find out. It is just like a boy changing the old girl for the new or a man leaving his old and tried wife for a new one. Now, isn't it a fact that they always go back to the old and tried love, is it not so toys? That's what I have done with Kelly's Springfield Rubber Tire—gone back to my old love. While they cost me more money they will cost my customers $12.00 per set or $3.00 per tire: these tires I give a guarantee on for being as represented. They will not stuff out nor will they peel, but will wear smooth like a good tire should.

Now, in regards to repainting: I have tried to get a quick system and do good work, but I find it a failure so I give it up and must stick to the old system. All my work I guarantee to be as represented. I do anything in the carriage line. Bring me your work if you want it done right. I solicit your trade.

Matchless Feats

Are Being Performed For Thousands by the

HUDSON SUPER-SIX $1375 at Detroit

Patented by Hudson December 26, 1913 Patent No. 1116941

Hudson Super-Six

THOUSANDS of people every day are riding in the Super-Six. They are watching performance such as no other car can render.

They are enjoying such smoothness, such luxury of motion, as they never before have known. If you doubt the Super-Six supremacy, come and take a ride.

50% MORE EFFICIENT

The Super-Six is a light-weight motor, same size as the Hudson Six-40. But a new invention—a patented principle—gives to that motor 50 per cent more efficiency.

The Super-Six yields 76 horsepower, where like-size motors heretofore yielded 42.

That fact is beyond any question.

And it all comes about through ending vibration. Wear and friction in the motor is reduced almost to nil.

A Super-Six stock car was driven 7000 miles, over mountains and deserts, at top speed. But not a part or bearing showed discoverable wear. The motor's endurance has been nearly doubled by the Super-Six invention.

NO RIVAL HAS IT

The Super-Six is a Hudson invention, controlled by Hudson patents. No rivals, of course, don't concede its importance.

But no stock motor has ever matched the Super-Six performance. No like-size motor ever yielded such power.

Such smoothness—such bird-like motion—has never before been attained.

Convince yourself of these facts. You can do it in 30 minutes. To buy a car without this knowledge is bound to cause regrets.

If you do this now, you can get a Super-Six by the time the roads are ready. That is as soon as you'll want it.

Then you will have the greatest car that's built, and a car that looks its supremacy.

All Other Cars Outrivaled

At Sheepshead Bay, under A. A. A. supervision, a 7-passenger Super-Six stock car excelled all former stock cars in these tests. 100 miles in 80 min., 21.4 sec., averaging 74.67 miles per hour, with driver and passenger. 75.69 miles in one hour with driver and passenger. Standing start to 50 miles an hour in 16.2 sec. During these tests the car was driven 1350 miles at top capacity, at speed exceeding 70 miles per hour, without discoverable wear on any part.

BOND LANDSLIDE.

Every Precinct in The County Save One in the Bond Wagon.

Vote Two and One-Half For to One Against—All Surprised to Find Vote So Lopsided.

The proposition for the county to issue $300,000 in bonds for the purpose of building bridges and roads carried with a whoop last Monday, every voting precinct in the county except Florence returning a majority in favor of the proposition and the majority against it in that precinct can scarcely be discovered in the land slide.

The unofficial returns show that the majority is 62 more than two-thirds had that been necessary, the total vote cast being 1,445.

Belleview, a precinct that was said to be sure to return a majority against bonds, voted 54 to 4 in favor of them, while all the other precincts, except Florence that were counted against the bonds or were placed in the doubtful column returned substantial majorities in the "Yes" square.

The vote, while not large, is of sufficient proportions to indicate very correctly the position of the county in regard to the proposition that was decided by it, and shows that Boone county people, as a body, believe in progress and are willing to contribute of their means in order to keep up with the procession and place themselves in a position to treat their neighbors as they are treated by them in the matter of traffic.

The county election board will meet today, Thursday, to count and certify the vote as cast Monday. Following is the unofficial count reported Monday at the close of the polls:

	Yes	No
Burlington	140	36
Belleview	66	12
Beaver	46	24
Bullittsville	85	58
Constance	64	56
Florence	58	78

LONG DISTANCE RECORD

On Motordome By Ralph Mulford at Sheepshead Bay.

New York, May 2.—Ralph Mulford in a Hudson Super Six stock chassis, smashed all long-distance automobile records from one to twenty-four hours at the Sheepshead Bay motordrome today by covering 1,819 in 24 hours. Their chief object of the test was to beat the twenty-four hour record of 1,581 miles made by S. F. Edge nearly nine years ago, on the Brooklands track in England, in an English six-cylinder Napier car.

Mulford not only beat Edge's record of 238 miles, but drove the whole distance himself without any relief driver, and averaged 75 19-24 miles per hour.

The car was the same one that Mulford drove when he covered a mile in 35.11 seconds, or at the rate of 102.22 miles per hour, at Ormond Beach a few weeks ago.

The trial was an official one, as it was sanctioned by the American Automobile Association, and their representatives acted as timers and judges, so there is little question but that the record will be formally approved by the Contest Board at its next meeting.

Incidentally, Mulford's was the fastest sustained long distance fight made by man on air, land or water.

Government Road Money.

Washington, May 8.—Under the terms of the revised bill providing for Federal aid in the construction of rural post roads, that passed the senate today, Kentucky will receive a generous amount during each of the five years for which the appropriations is carried

During the second year when $10,000,000 is to be spent the State's apportionment is $201,200 during the third year the State is scheduled to receive $301,800 of the $15,000,000 to be expended; during the fourth year $402,400 is Kentucky's share of the $20,000,000 melon and for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, when $25,000,000 is to be spent, the State is to receive $503,000 for road building purposes.

Times-Star Day at Big Bone Springs.

Sheriff Cropper, Judge Gaines, Col. Charles Westbay and the writer hied themselves to Big Bone Springs, in the Sheriff's automobile, last Sunday, for an outing at the ancient haunt of the mastodon and the Indian.

Upon arrival at the springs it was discovered that it was Times-Star Day, and a considerable crowd of Cincinnati's livest newspaper men was in possession of the grove, where refreshments in abundance were dispersed while splendid instrumental music added zest to the occasion.

Thomas Cody, proprietor of the Cody cafe, Covington, was master of ceremonies, and proved his proficiency as an entertainer. The boys sang, danced, fished and played ball and let nothing escape that could be made to contribute to the day's enjoyment, the success of which was largely due to Cody's untiring efforts. It was a big time for the young men who seldom have an opportunity to spend a day at such an inviting spot in the country.

Bernard O'Neal and other members of Big Bone Springs Water Company, were at the springs, Sunday. Mr. O'Neal reported that the company's affairs are in good condition and he sees a big future for the springs.

Judge Gaines spent the day at the Clay House on top of the hill from which a beautiful landscape can be viewed, but the other members of his party mingled with newspaper men and rambling over the grounds. In the afternoon quite a number of persons from the surrounding neighborhood arrived to take a look at the newspaper makers.

Strange as it may seem, you can save yourself a lot of trouble by not looking for it.

The Walton Baptist and Christian churches will have "Mother's Day" services next Sunday, when a special program will be rendered. Special music, extensive floral decorations, and a sermon by the pastors.

Prof. J. C. Gordon, principal of the Walton High School, with his delegation, goes to Lexington for the Interscholastic Tournament which is to be held there May 11th, 12th and 13th. He has representatives in athletics, instrumental and vocal music and declamation. We hope for gratifying returns.

Sunday School Day was enthusiastically observed at Walton last Sunday. A effort was made to secure an attendance of five hundred but that number was not reached, a total of 403 being the number in attendance at the following churches: Methodist seventy, Christian 146, Baptist 187. All the services were entertaining and there is no doubt but the Sunday schools will be benefitted in attendance in the future by the rally day effort.

The Senior play "All a Mistake" may be put on the evening of the same day. This play was presented at the school auditorium last Thursday, May 4th, and was pronounced by all present to be one of the finest perform ances ever given by amateurs.

There will be a concert in High School Auditorium, given by the pupils of Miss Brell, assisted by Mrs. B. C. Gaines, on the evening of May 19th, at eight o'clock. An admission of 15 cents will be charged. Proceeds to be used for purchasing some much needed accessaries for the Burlington High School.

Elgin prices this week is 32 cents. No more whole milk received after next Saturday.

HELPS THE HOUSEWIFE

"SCRUBBING CHARIOT" A DEVICE WORTH COPYING.

Not Only Saves a Great Many Steps, but the Work Can Be Done With Much More Ease and Comfort —How to Make It.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

One of the many labor-saving devices made and demonstrated by the farm women under the direction of the woman agents of the department of agriculture in the South, with the cooperation of the state agricultural colleges, is the "scrubbing chariot." This consists of a comfortable padded frame on rollers which enables the housewife, in wiping the floor, to do the scrubbing with more ease and comfort and save a great many steps. It may be built at a very small cost, the material needed consisting of a ¾-inch plank, 20 by 10 inches, 2-inch strips for the sides, which should be 8½ inches long by 4 inches wide, and a front piece of the same material 20 inches long and 4 inches wide. An ordinary soap box can be used for this by cutting down the size to about 5 inches high and knocking out one side. The padding for the bottom of the chariot may be made of burlap. Tack this around the inside of the chariot and place the whole thing on four rollers. Place a soap dish on one side and a little rack for the scrubbing brush on the opposite side. This contrivance, it is estimated, costs about 47 cents.

Linoleum Out of Carpet.

Clean the carpet thoroughly, then turn it worn side down and tack. It will be better to tack it right on the kitchen floor if you could get along without the kitchen for a few days. Otherwise, tack on some floor that will not have to be used every day. Then put on a coat of any good floor paint, let dry thoroughly, finish with a coat of good linoleum varnish. This will give you a floor covering that will be very easy on your feet, and impervious to water so long as the paint lasts. And the worn spots can be repainted as needed. This will, of course, give a paint color. After the paint and varnish have thoroughly dried the carpet can be rolled very carefully and loosely to move it to the kitchen, but the best way is to paint it right in the kitchen so that it will not have to be moved, for the rolling is liable to crack the paint and so make it less impervious to water.—Ohio Farmer.

Cornmeal Mush.

Four cupfuls of cornmeal, one tablespoonful salt, four quarts water. Put the top of double boiler on with the four quarts of boiling water; add cornmeal, slowly stirring all the time. Add salt, and when thick boil two hours in double boiler (this is prepared while getting dinner the night before). Use what you need for breakfast. Then add one cupful of grated strong American cheese; beat until well mixed, pour into greased pan and set aside for luncheon. Then cut in half-inch slices and brown on hot griddle.

Dainty Eggs and Bacon.

Butter a baking dish or platter, or individual ramekin dishes. Break each egg into a cup and drop into baking dish, sprinkle with salt and pepper, bake in a moderate oven for five minutes for soft-cooked, and ten minutes for hard cooked.

Lay thin slices of bacon on a hissing hot frying pan. When transparent, turn. When dry and crisp, drain and dry on brown paper. If you have the time place thin slices on broiler and cook over dripping pan in hot oven.—Dallas News.

Chocolate Cake.

One cupful sugar, one-half cupful butter creamed, add one egg unbeaten, one cupful milk with teaspoonful soda dissolved in it, one teaspoonful vanilla. Put one-half cake chocolate, one-half cupful milk, one half cupful of sugar on fire to melt. When cool add to rest and two cupfuls bread flour. Beat well and bake in sheet tin. Frost with frosting made with confectioner's sugar and hot water thick enough to spread.

Southern Sugar Sweets.

Peel sweet potatoes and slice in three-quarter inch slices enough to fill a medium-sized baking dish. Just cover with cold water. Pepper and salt the top and sprinkle about one-quarter cupful of sugar over the whole and add a dash of nutmeg. Melt a good tablespoonful of bacon fat, or two tablespoonfuls of butter and pour over the potatoes. Bake in oven and brown.

FARM STOCK

REVIVED INTEREST IN SHEEP

Saving in Feed in Getting Animal Ready for Market is Big Point —Plenty of Pasturage.

The renewed interest in the profits of the sheep business has caused a good many farmers to put in sheep instead of cattle. It is easier to do business on a small capital where you are handling sheep. You can take the money used in buying a single steer and buy several sheep, and the saving in feed in getting the two classes of animals ready for the buyer is worth considering. This is noticed in two ways—In the amount of pasturage required and in the amount of winter feed needed.

In Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio, wherever there is bluegrass, sheep should be run. These regions are peculiarly adapted to sheep growing in connection with general farming. The grass comes early in the spring and lingers until very late in the fall. In about three years out of every five the pasturage is such that the sheep can take pretty good care of themselves until well along into the winter. With a pasture of this sort and a cornfield full of soy beans or cowpeas the problem of sheep feeding pretty nearly solves itself.

In this way the sheep-feeding season is greatly shortened and the feeding cost is cut down to a point where it amounts to very little. While you are forced to be shoveling out the corn, the silage and the cake to the cattle, the sheep are managing to get along with very little expense to their owner.

SELF-FEEDER IS PROFITABLE

Experiment Made at Nebraska Experiment Station Shows Method to Be Practicable.

That the self-feeder is practicable for lambs is shown by the results of an experiment that has just closed at the Nebraska experiment station. Twenty-eight lambs fed for 40 days by the self-feeder method made an average daily gain of half a pound a head at a cost of $7.34 for each 100 pounds of gain. The net profit per head was $1.45. Pea-size oil meal and prairie hay were kept before the lambs constantly from the beginning of the test. Corn was added the third day, and gradually increased from that time. At the close of the third week the lambs were consuming about two pounds of corn and one-half pound of oil meal per head daily.

At the end of the experiment they were consuming one-half pound more of corn a day and the same amount of oil meal. The average daily consumption of prairie hay per lamb was one-half pound. Corn was valued at 60 cents a bushel, oil meal at $40 a ton and prairie hay at $9 a ton.

REAL PROFIT IN LIVE STOCK

Problem of Making Profit is Largely Matter of Making Use of Silage and Roughage.

When you break even on your beeves you are ahead of the game provided you save the manure—especially if you have kept hogs following the cattle. "Saving the manure" doesn't mean saving merely one-third or one-fourth. It means saving all of it, liquid as well as solid.

The problem of keeping live stock with profit is largely a matter of making use as silage, roughage, or bedding, of stuff that is wasted on the average farm.

Weeds and weed seeds, usually counted worse than nothing, may be put on the right side of the ledger by means of a few sheep. Grass makes cheap pork.

Sign of Prosperity.

Improved live stock on a farm is a sign of prosperity. The way to begin is by swatting the scrub sire.

Carelessness Is Costly.

Carelessness in care of feed will cause a loss in the wool, as well as a loss in a poor, sickly lamb.

DAIRY FACTS

SPECIAL MILK GAINS FAVOR

Trade Name That Should Be Applied Only to Clean, Safe Product of Highest Standard.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In many cities there is a tendency to grade milk and sell it to the consumer upon its merits. Such a system is most desirable, as it enables dairymen who handle a high-grade product to obtain recognition for their care. It also enables the consumers to choose their supply on the absolute merits of the various grades. This is a sound commercial feature and one that is already recognized in nearly all other industries.

At the present time there are on the market numerous brands of special milks. The average consumer has only a hazy idea as to what is meant by special milk, but usually considers it to be in some way superior to the ordinary milk sold. Some milk dealers have considered that milk a little richer in fat should constitute special milk, while others have adhered to the principle that such a grade should be cleaner and safer than the ordinary grades.

A special milk may or may not be richer in fat than ordinary grades, but it certainly should be produced and handled in such manner as to be cleaner and safer than the ordinary grades handled by the individual dealer or by his competitors. In this way public confidence can be maintained and an increased price warranted. Dairymen are learning that it is good business to stand squarely behind their goods to see that all claims are fully substantiated.

If a special milk is to be sold as such its standard should be high and permanent, so as to result in increased confidence and increased demand from consumers. There is hardly any better way to create a demand than to produce and maintain a high grade, and this grade is to be termed "special," it should by all means be as safe as possible, from a health point of view, and not a mere trade name. Business depends upon the demand, demand depends on quality, and quality on the inclination of the man behind and the standard he wishes to set for his product. If special milk is to be included, it must be his best effort along his chosen line of endeavor, and to this end every milk dealer should be able and willing to set and maintain a high standard. At present in most cities only a very small quantity of special milk is handled, although it seems that the trade demands should warrant the sale of a great deal more.

FEEDING HINTS FOR A DAIRY

Change Calf's Ration Gradually—Silage Is Safe Feed—Sunlight Is Best Disinfectant.

(By H. P. HOSKINS, University of Minnesota.)

Put the calf on a skim milk diet when two to three weeks old. Make the change gradually, substituting a pint of skim milk for the same quantity of whole milk daily until the change is made. Increase the feed gradually until at four months old the calf gets 8 to 10 quarts a day, some grain and grass, clover or alfalfa hay.

You safely can feed silage to calves as soon as they are old enough to eat it. Be very careful not to give them moldy or decayed silage. Let them have all they will clean up. Yearlings will eat from 15 to 20 pounds a day, and if this is supplemented with some good clover or alfalfa hay very little grain is required to keep them in good, thriving condition.

Sunlight is one of the best and cheapest disinfectants. Ample provision should be made for letting plenty of sunlight into barns and sheds. Southern exposure is desirable. The warmth of the sun is valuable in cold weather, while excessive heat in summer may be avoided by using screens or curtains. Most disease germs are killed by direct sunlight.

Why All Milk Should Be Pasteurized and Kept Cool.

Man is a happy creature to be able to nourish himself upon milk, a drink from paradise. Milk may be called "the blood and the life," because blood is changed by some vital magic in the chemistry of the breast into the purely, lustrous fluid so necessary to health, strength and vigor.

The change from blood to milk takes place in the glands of the mother's bosom or the animal's udder. These may be ever so perfect, yet if the blood is impoverished in the slightest degree the result is deffective milk.

Any creature about to bring young into the world must be in perfect health, be fed well and housed under the best conditions of warmth and air. This is particular true of those animals designed to furnish milk to be used for human consumption. A generous yiel of good quality of milk can only come from animals whose blood is close to one hundred per cent strength.

Before a baby, a calf or any animal is born it is fed by the mother's blood, which flows into the unborn offspring's veins and arteries through the navel. At birth this blood flow ceases and the blood that would have continued into the child's anatomy is diverted into the breasts to become milk.

Cow's milk is excellent food for grown-up people. If you can afford to own your own cow so much the better. Should you own one remember the easiest way to stop the milk flow is to fail to empty the cow's udder completely. The least bit of milk that remains hinders the action of the glands and makes them incapable of proper exertion.

Milk is suberb ambrosia for living tissues. It adds growth, energy, warmth and vitality. Sugar fat, mineral fertilizers, water and meaty proteins are contained in it.

Some cows give more fat, others less fat. This substance varies in milk from 3 per cent to 7 per cent. Cream, of course, is much richer, containing as high as 16 per cent fat. Butter fat is made of several different fats in milk, which invite to make globules. When they are volatile you smell these fats as flavors. When nonvolatile they are thick enough to make the characteristic fabric butter.

When milk sours it is the cheesy protein, casien, which clots the curd. This is the one thing which rennet will clot to make cheese, another valuable ration.

Sugar milk is the lagest single solid matter in milk. Its importance as a food is only equaled by its power to aid the dairy maid in creating butters and cheeses. It is due to the action of favorable bacteria upon milk sugar that lactic acid of cheese is formed.

When milk turns sour slowly in warm rooms or sudden thunder storms it is caused by the quantities of lacuic acid formed either by the bacteria or the electric conversion of sugar of milk into the acid. Only three-quartes of the sugar in the fresh milk remains.

Cheese has little or none of this sugar in it, because it makes up 70 per cent of the solids in the whey left in cheese making.

The germs that cause milk to sour are not those which produce disease, but they are indicators that the air, wheel, fingers and water which carried them into the pail perhaps carried worse ones. Often the bacteria which excite human affections are present before the milk sours.

To boil milk or to pasteurize it immediately before you drink it—not over an hour or so before, since fresh germs may easily reenter it—is to kill most bacteria. After milk has been sterilized in this way it should be iced and kept below 50 deg.

All cities should have laws to require pasteurization and refrigeration of the milk or some equally intelligent life preservative legislation.

$50.000 Will Be Spent On the Lexington Pike.

The following is taken from the Covington column in last Friday's Enquirer:

The Board of County Commissioners, meeting with the Advisory Committee of citizens representing various parts of the county, yesterday took final action on distribution of the fund of $150,000 to be used in road construction thruout the county.

Many prominent citizens were present, each urging that part of the appropriation be applied to his section. In view of the enormous expense entailed upon the county by the upkeep of the present system of roads, as well as by their bad condition, the Commissioners stood by their former determination to build as far as practicable with the limited means concrete or permanent roads, as the saving in the cost of upkeep by building concrete roads will be great.

The Commissioners also decided to use that fund exclusively on the main arteries, because by so doing the state eventually will pay back to the county 50 per cent of the total cost of the new roads constructed, and this money, it is expected, will be used ultimately to redeem the bonds so far as it will go.

The needs for improvement in order to save them from utter ruin of the DeCoursey pike and the Taylor Mill pike were urged so vigorously that the Commissioners finally concluded to take $5,000 each, from the amounts here tofore allotted to the Lexington pike and the Banklick pike and add it to those two roads, so that the allotment as finally made is: Fifty-five thousand dollars to the Lexington pike, which will complete that road with concrete from the corporation line of Covington to the corporation line of Erlanger. This allotment, however, is upon condition that the town of Erlanger will continue the concrete road through its corporate limits, which, it is said, the town is prepared to do.

A like amount, $55,000 was allotted to the Madison or Banklick pike, and with this sum a little more than two miles from the corporation line of Covington southwardly to Dudley pike intersection will be built of concrete. The sum of $20,000 was allotted to the Taylor Mill pike, and a like sum to the DeCoursey pike. The Dry Creek turnpike from Bromley westwardly along the river front to the Boone county line, also will be reconstructed, probably at a cost of $10,000.

The plan adopted seemed to meet the general approval of all present.

The State Convention of Christian churches of Kentucky will be held this year in Winchester, and plans will be made for the accommodation of 1,000 visitors.

DIP TO PREVENT SCAB.

Precaution Still Necessary to Continue Freedom of Flocks From the Disease.

Sheep owners should continue for some years to come to dip their flocks at least once a year as a precaution against sheep scab, according to specialists in the department. During the past ten years systematic efforts to eradicate this disease have been so successful that there is a tendency on the part of many flock masters to believe that all danger of loss from this cause is at an end. This, however, in the opinion of the department, is not the case. It is true that the economic losses from the disease at the present time are insignificant, but scab has not been completely eradicated, and it is necessary for the protection of the industry that dipping be continued for some time to come.

Common scab was formerly the greatest drawback to the sheep industry in the United States. It is, however, easily controlled by regular dipping in lime-sulphur or nicotine and sulphur solutions. These are the only preparations recognized by the Bureau of Animal Industry for official dipping. The dipping solutions are not difficult to handle, and every sheep owner is urged to make certain by their use that sheep scab does not gain a foothold in his flock. In the cost of dipping, labor, fuel, and the necessary materials are the principal items. These vary with different localities, but in the large sheep growing sections of the West it has been calculated that sheep may be dipped for from 2 to 3½ cents per head.

Two dippings, from 10 to 14 days apart, are necessary in order to insure the complete destruction of all the mites which cause the disease. The first dipping should kill all those that are hatched, but may not destroy the eggs that have been laid in the wool. These hatch in about 10 days, and the mites which result will succumb to the second dipping. In this connection a new publication of the department, Farmers' Bulletin 713, points out that it is a loss of time and money to dip sheep unless the work is done properly, and any attempt to economize time, labor, or money by using the dip in weaker proportions than recommended, or by hurrying the sheep through the bath, or by failing to dip all of the flock may result in rendering the whole operation useless.

It also has been determined by actual experience that dips deteriorate with use. After a number of sheep have passed through the vat, the active principle falls below the standard required for effective work. In order to meet this situation, chemical-testing outfits have been designed which can be used at the vat to determine the percentage of the active principle in the dip at any given time. In the bulletin already mentioned specific instructions are given for the preparation of both lime-sulphur and nicotine and sulphur dips. Large sheep owners will find it advantageous to build and maintain their own permanent vats. Farmers and others who have only a few head of sheep may employ the portable galvanized-iron dipping vats known as "hog vats," or dipping bags made of canvas. In addition, means must be provided for heating the baths, as the temperature of the solution is an important factor in its efficiency. Both the lime-sulphur and the nicotine and sulphur dips should have a temperature of from 100 degrees to 105 degrees F. If the bath is hotter than this the sheep may be injured, and if it is colder the grease in the wool will retard its action and the mites may not be destroyed. It is desirable, therefore, that thermometers be used to ascertain the actual temperature of the baths and that this be not left to guesswork. Dipping solutions that are more than 10 days old frequently lose their effectiveness.

The time in which the sheep are held in the bath is another matter of importance. In cases in which the scab is not advanced, from two to three minutes may be sufficient, but in eradicating hard scab on fine-wool sheep better results are obtained if the animals are held from three to five minutes during the first dipping. When the disease is advanced it is also recommended that the hard scabs be broken and dressed by hand with a solution of the dipping fluid before the animal is immersed in the bath. In this process care should be taken not to cause the wound to bleed.

The value of proper dipping has been abundantly demonstrated by past experience. Nearly all of the States which formerly suffered from the disease have been released from quarantine, and losses have been reduced to a minimum over the entire area affected. The disease has not, however, been entirely eradicated, and, if neglected, may assume much of its former importance. It is extremely contagious and may be spread in a number of ways. A flock of scabby sheep will infect roads, old bed grounds, sheds, trails, pasture ranges, and the ground around watering places. During the dry summer months the scab often remains dormant, and it is not uncommon at these periods for the flock master to believe that he has eradicated it. With the coming of cold, rainy weather, however, the disease reappears.

At the present time one of the most active factors in spreading infection in the range country is the buck. In many sections it is the custom for owners to put their bucks in a public buck herd, where they remain until a short time before they are turned into the ewe flocks. Some of these community buck herds consist of from 500 to 1,500 animals belonging to a large number of different owners. Should scab exist in any one of the different outfits owned by these men, the entire buck herd will become infected and the bucks, in turn, will spread the disease upon their return to the ewe flocks. It has been estimated that more than 90 per cent of the outbreaks of scab in the sheep raising ranges in the West are due directly to these buck herds. It is therefore essential that all of these animals should be dipped before they are distributed to their various owners.

Common sheep scab is caused by a minute parasite, which is just large enough to be seen under favorable circumstances by the naked eye. These parasites deposit their eggs in clumps on the skin at the base of the wool fibers. They multiply with such extraordinary rapidity that if a few mites gain a foothold on one or two sheep, in a short time their descendants will be numerous enough to infest and injure seriously an entire flock. The damage consists not only in the death of a large number of the infected sheep, but in decreasing the quantity of wool produced by those which survive and in a general loss in weight and condition. The first symptoms to be noticed are restlessness on the part of the affected animals and a tendency to bite and scratch themselves. If the affected parts are within reach of the mouth, the wool is likely to be pulled out. Elsewhere it is scratched or rubbed so that it assumes a discolored and ragged appearance. As the disease advances, larger and larger areas are entirely stripped of wool. When the presence of scab is suspected, it is sometimes possible to discover the live mite by suddenly parting the wool around the effected area. With the aid of a magnifying glass, or even with the naked eye, the mites can then be seen moving away from the light. Scrapings may also be taken from the outer edges of the affected areas with a blunt-edged knife. In warm sunlight the mites on these scrapings will become active, and they may be seen as minute gray bodies moving against a dark background. Well advanced cases are easy to recognize, but the disease should never be allowed to become far advanced. Any condition which causes the sheep to bite and scratch should be investigated at once. Occasionally the trouble may be found to be due to sheep ticks, common ticks and lice. Both ticks and lice are much larger than the scab mites and does not mean that the sheep are not also infested with scab mites.

ALBERT. W. GAINES.

[From Chattanooga, Tenn., Papers.

Albert W. Gaines, aged 61, for thirty-two year's one of Chattanooga's leading citizens and lawyers, died yesterday afternoon at 3:15 at his home, 610 East Fourth street. He had suffered from Bright's disease for a long time, and about two months ago, accompanied by his wife, he went to French Lick springs in the hope of recovering his shattered health. However, his decline has been steady since his return to Chattanooga, about three weeks ago. His condition had been critical during the past week.

Mr. Gaines leaves his wife and one sister, Mrs. George Kreylich, of Burlington, Ky. Mrs. Gaines formerly was Miss Bessie Nelson, of Lexington, Ky., and is a sister of Frank A. Nelson, manager of the Chattanooga Clearing House association. Mr. Gaines was married July 5, 1880. There were three children of this marriage all of whom are dead.

Mr. Gaines was born near Burlington, Ky., in 1855, and was reared on a farm. He attended the Washington and Lee university, where he received the Bachelor of Law degree. Soon after his marriage he moved to Lawrenceburg, Ind., where he practiced his profession fort hree years, before coming to Chattanooga in 1884. Since that time he has made his home here.

He was a member of the Erlanger hospital board of trustees and a member of the board of trustees for Washington and Lee university upon which he had served for several years. He manifested a keen interest in public affairs and his advice and counsel was always deemed highly valuable. He was a member of the committee which drafted the commission charter for Chattanooga, and was a strong advocate of that form of government. He was a member of the Masonic order, and an active member of the First Presbyterian church. He was one of the most popular members of the Mountain City Club.

A lover of the outdoors for many years he had been an enthusiastic golfer, and was one of the most familiar of the figures on the links of the Chattanooga Golf and Country club.

Mr. Gaines had marked literary ability, and was the author of both prose and poetry that attracted considerable attention. One book of his poems has been published.

The funeral will take place Friday. More definite arrangements had not been completed last night.

Chattanooga has been sorely grieved within the past few months, the grim reaper claiming an unusual number of men who were leaders in all that was best in the city's upbuilding. Among these stalwarts of good citizenship, A. W. Gaines was in the forefront. He was a man of most pleasing personality, devoted to the upliftment of his fellowmen and to the elevation of the civic standards of his adopted state and city. His death brings profound and lasting sorrow to the hearts of his many associates. He served his friends with fidelity and devotion. The local bar, which he so honored, to a man paid tribute yesterday to his sturdy, virile, cultured and liberal type of manhood. His more intimate friends in the Mountain City and Golf and Country clubs were sorely stricken by the news of his death, and from all were heart attestations of personal bereavement and expressions of deepest sympathy for his devoted wife who shared with her honored husband the esteem of the community.

Few Chattanoogans have been better loved, when living, and few, if any, will be more deeply mourned when dead than Albert W. Gaines.

Chattanooga suffered a serious loss yesterday in the death of Albert W. Gaines, able lawyer, good citizen and scholarly and chivalrous gentleman. Albert W. Gaines adorned every station in life he was called upon to fill. He was punctilliously faithful to the best ethical traditions of his profession, one of his successful legal associates saying to this writer yesterday, "I never required an agreement made with Albert W. Gaines in the conduct of a lawsuit to be made in writing; his word was as good as his bond." He was a man of wide literary accomplishments and was sound in his tastes and his judgment of the quality of current books. He was a sincere churchman, but was broad-minded and tolerant, viewing all questions affecting the relationship of his fellow-citizens to society, to the church and to the state with a normal mind; and in his everyday intercourse with his fellowmen he was the soul of honor and a model of gentle and modest courtesy. He never held public office, although he could have had any place he might have desired in the gift of the people of the city or the county. He was for many years a trustee of Erlanger hospital, and to his service in that capacity, always rendered without compensation and with patient zeal and energy, is largely due the great popularity and success that institution has attained.

The influence of the life and character of Albert W. Gaines upon the community, and especially upon those in the circle of whose intimate acquaintance he moved, was a benefaction, and all who knew him at all intimately are moved with a sense of individual loss and personal grief at his going away. "His life was gentle, and the elements so mixed in him that Nature might stand up and say to all the world, 'This was a man!'"

The Country Doctor was a Big Success.

"The Country Doctor" drew a crowd last Saturday night that was too much for the capacity of Library Hall and many persons witnessed the performance from buggies and wagons that were drawn close to the windows of the building, and the dramatic company showed its appreciation of the very liberal patronage by each and every member giving his or her best efforts in presenting the play in a manner that was highly entertaining and drew liberal appiause. The performers had their lines well committed and there were no blunders nor breaks that frequently mar the work of a rural dramatic company.

Each of those participating in the presentation of "The Country Doctor" deserves credit for the successful performance of last Saturday night, and they sustained fully the saying "you always get the worth of your money at Library Hall."

A very pleasing and much appreciated features of the entertainment was the singing of Miss Besse Hall who simply charmed the large audience with three solos. Miss Hall is one of the sweetest singers in Northern Kentucky.

Mrs. Vincent Pickleheimer, of Taylorsport, who is also a very fine singer, was to have favored the audience with one or more solos, but her throat was not in condition and she had to abandon the idea at the last moment much to the regret of those who expected to hear her.

Pull For the County Corn Club.

The above prizes should arouse the interest of all boys in the county, and make them work for a prize. Kenton county will be governed the same as Boone. Boys, get busy and don't let Kenton beat us.

Wearing a "Wont-Come-Off Smile."

Elza Garrison, of Richwood, was in Burlington, last Saturday, wearing a full grown "won't come off" smile, and when asked the occassion for such a pleasing appearance, remarked, "It's a handsome girl and was born on the 4th inst.," and all present congratulated him.

While they were attending the dance in Petersburg last Friday night someone entered the room of Mr. and Mrs. Garnett Tolin and stole an open face gold watch belonging to Mr. Tolin and five dollars in money belonging to his wife. No clue to the thief.

Road Has Been Improved Some.

The condition of the Richwood and Beaver pike has been improved since the toll-gates were removed, and there are yet some places that need attention badly, but, no doubt, they will be looked to as soon as the crops are planted.

Lieutenant Archibald McGlasson, recruiting officer for the U. S. Navy, located at Cincinnati, attended the entertainment in Burlington, Sunday night, and was the Sunday guest of his father, Geo E. McGlasson, of Bullittsville.

Masons Have a Big Time at Union.

It is seldom that a rural lodge of any order experiences such an outpouring of members of the fraternity as that enjoyed by Union Masonic lodge last Thursday night.

The hall at Union has recently completed and furnished nicely about the most commodious home of any lodge in the county, it replacing the one destroyed at the time W. M. Rachal's store was burned several months ago. This handsome hall is the result of the local lodges of Mason's and Odd-Fellows pooling finances and now it is a pleasure for the members of these two orders to attend their meetings and have with them visiting brothers as was demonstrated by the Masons last Thursday night.

When the hour for opening the lodge arrived Thursday night, the hall was comfortably filled, deiegations of Masons from Covington, Hebron, Burlington and other lodges being present.

Covington Lodge No. 109 was placed in charge and put the work through in the most proficient manner, there never being a hitch nor a hesitation from start to finish. The sublime degree of a Master Mason was conferred upon three candidates, Warren Lassing, Walter Morris and Stanford Bristow, the work being put on by the lodge team in a manner that exemplified the teachings of the degree in a most impressive manner. Past Grand Master Orie S. Ware was present and took part in the work.

In a few minutes after the lodge closed the scene was shifted, a table being set the full length of the hall and a veritable feast in progress, and to which everyone present did ample justice.

A few minutes after low twelve the town took on a lively appearance, the machines and trucks that brought in the visitors getting up power for their departure.

The meeting was an occasion very much enjoyed and will be long remembered by each person who was so fortunate as to be present. Union Masons sustained fully their reputation of long standing for hospitality and never doing anything except in the best of style.

Will Make the Extension at the Proper Time, Says Laffoon.

Secretary Polk Laffoon of the Green Line Company appeared yesterday before the Kenton-co., Commissioners to answer personally an inquiry recently made by the commissioners as to the attitude of the company toward its franchise along the Lexington pike.

He notified the commissioners that his company did not intend to use any part of the Lexington pike in its contemplated improvements or extensions. He said it is the present intention of the company to use the Crescent Springs route when extensions are to be made, and that the company would neither use nor cross the Lexington pike.

County Attorney Hanlon inquired of Mr. Laffoon as to when his company intended to extend the car line to Erlanger. "When the time is propituous. It takes money to build car lines," answered Laffoon. He said that at the proper time his company would make the extension to Erlanger.

A number of Erlanger business men recently filed a suit in the Kenton Circuit Court against the company asking for a mandatory injunction to compel the company to extend the Ft. Mitchell line to Erlanger in accordance with provisions of the company's articles of incorporation in 1902. So far no steps have been taken in the matter.—Friday's Commercial.

FOOT-AND-MOUTH OVER.

Long Fight Against Stock Plague Ended by Removal of All Federal Quarantine Restrictions.

The long fight against the foot and mouth disease is over. The Secretary of Agriculture has issued an order which on March 31 removed all foot and mouth quarantines and restrictions against the shipment and movement of live stock. The order signed specifically removes the quarantine from a small territory in Christian co., Illinois, the last area which was under suspicion. Along with the removal of this local quarantine, the various Federal orders restricting the shipment of cattle are rescinded, so that dealers can now ship their cattle as before the first quarantine was imposed.

Upon notifications that the United States is free of the disease all foreign governments which have placed embargos on American cattle are expected to remove these embargos, so that cattle raisers will then be able to resume shipments to these foreign countries.

The magnitude of the work of eradication and control carried on by farmers, shippers and the State and Federal governments is shown by the fact that before controlled the disease had gained a temporary footing in 22 States and the District of Columbia. The disease appeared and was controlled in 228 different counties.

As a result of a better understanding between the State and National Governments, representatives of the department believe that many of the obstacles which confronted the authorities in the past outbreak would not be encountered in dealing with any future occurrence of the disease. The veterinarians, however, will not abate their watchfulness for some time. Examination of animals and animal products offered for import will continue to be unusually strict.

Wilson's Rejoinder To German Note.

Washington, May 8.—Following is the text of the note cabled today by Secretary Lansing to Ambassador Gerard, at Berlin, with instructions to deliver it to the German Minister of Foreign Affairs:

"The note of the Imperial German Government, under date of May 4, 1916, has received careful consideration by the Government of the United States. It is especially noted, as indicating the purpose of the Imperial Government as to the future, that is is prepared to do its utmost to confine the operation of the war for the rest of its duration to the fighting forces of the belligerents, and that it is determined to impose upon all its commanders at sea the limitations of the recognized rules of international law upon which the Government of the United States has insisted.

"Throughout the months which have elapsed since the Imperial Government announced, on February 4, 1915, its submarine policy, now happily abandoned, the Government of the United States has been constantly guided and restrained by motives of friendship in its patient efforts to bring to an amicable settlement the critical questions arising from that policy.

"Accepting the Imperial Government's declaration of its abandonment of the policy which has so seriously menaced the good relations between the two countries, the Government of the U. S. will rely upon a scrupulous execution hereafter of the new altered policy of the Imperial Government such as will remove the principal danger to an interruption of the good relations existing between the U. S. and Germany.

"The Government of the United States feels it necessary to state that it takes it for granted that the Imperial German Government does not intend to imply that the maintenance of its newly announced policy in any way contingent upon the course or result of diplomatic negotiations between the Government of the U. S. and any other belligerent Government, notwithstanding the fact that certain passages in the Imperial Government's note of the fourth instant might appear to be susceptible of that construction.

"In order, however, to avoid any possible misunderstanding the Government of the U. S. notifies the Imperial Government that it cannot for a moment entertain, much less discuss, a suggestion that respect by German naval authorities for the rights of citizens of the United States upon the high seas should in any way or in the slightest degree be made contingent upon the conduct of another Government affecting the rights of neutrals and noncombatants. Responsibility in such matters is single, not joint; absolute, not relative."

The annual raids by dogs on sheep was inaugurated last Friday night, when the flock of J. J. Rigg, on Piqua pike, was invaded and twelve large and fine lambs were killed outright and three more so badly injured they will die, their throats being cut and torn. The loss will reach fully $100. It is unfortunate that Robertson county has so many canines with sheep destroying propensities within her borders. Every year hundreds of valuable sheep are destroyed by these pests. It behooves farmers to keep a close watch over their flocks from now on until their lambs are ready for market, and then make speedy deliveries. There are too many worthless dogs in the county to pay sixty sixty.—Mt. Olivet Tribune.

On Minding Your Own Business

The business of America will not be restored to a firm foundation until every merchant and manufacturer, every dealer, every man of business, every banker, every laboring man, every citizen generally concerned in the commercial progress of the country makes an agreement with himself to mind his own business and to let the business of his neighbor, his competitor, or his customers alone. This prying habit has become a national vice, largely promoted by the formation of innumerable commissions. The government has been organized into a gigantic spy system, prying into all of the details of every business, especially of every successful business, in an effort to find the secrets of success or in a determination to put a period to the progress of other men.

The development of this continent in the various branches of industry has been the marvel of recent times, has been the wonder of the world. It has not been under the direction of any branch of government, or of any agency of any branch of government. The commissions which now crowd the highways are a new manifestation of government activities. They are an importation from abroad, worse than the gypsy moth or the boll weevil.

The Constitution protects each individual from unreasonable seizure or search, but Congress and then each Legislature has created bureaus one after the other and given them the right to invade any counting house, any factory, any record room of any association, not for any definite purpose as a rule, but on some kind of a fishing excursion in hope that they may learn something that will aid some outside business enterprise, or something that may make the managers who have dared to be successful, "tremble."

Most of this is, consciously or unconsciously, based upon the theory that property has no rights; that certain interests, whom these bureaucrats assume to represent and whom they designate as the public, are in fact the owners of all property, and that the men in charge are merely trustees for the benefit of the "public."

Who are the public? You and I and your neighbors and friends and employes and customers, your rivals and your partners and your friendly competitors; these are all the public, and here in America these are the government.

But the government is one of limited, and of very limited power and beneficient because of these limitations. It is the individual who is free, it is his property that is protected from unreasonable search and seizure; it is his zeal and activity and energy and enterprise that has changed the aspect of nature in America, that has made abundant the things that all men strive for, that has made safe, or that once did make safe, the cottage of the palatial residence from the intrusion even of police power, and made the cottage the castle of the man who dwelt therein.

We are losing this conception of an orderly society. We have revived in the most odious form the inquisition of the medical age. We have clothed spying with official authority. We have made the strugglers and the tramps and the failures the practical directors of all business enterprises. We open the door wide to every kind of intruder. We have suspended business while struggling to comprehend the demand of some new form of anatomical dissection.

Most of these invasions of the Bill of Rights are clothed with a pretense, more or less genuine, of a philanthropic purpose. These are men whose success has been at least qualified, who are eager to enter the counting room of the genuinely successful merchant and instruct him how to find new markets, how to keep books so that he may determine whether he is making or losing money, how to analyze the price, cost, how to attract customers, how to avoid bankruptcy, how to advertise, how to pack his goods, how to treat his employees, how to reduce waste to a minimum, how to standardize everything in life—health, and morals, and religion, and commerce, and education, and conduct, and banking, and borrowing, and cooking, and heating, and all of the most intimate and minute interests of life.

It is time there was a revolt, and the revolt ought to begin at home; that is, each individual should take a total abstinence pledge against supporting any scheme of legislation in the General Council, in the Fiscal Court, in the Legislature, or in Congress, designed to benefit him, his trade his income, his real estate or his business of any kind, at the expense of some of his competitors, who have rendered him a little uncomfortable by offering goods or services or property on terms a little better than he thinks ought to be named.

When the reform has become widespread, there will be a perfect collapse of all forms of legislative encroachments on individual rights.

According to reports, catarrhal fever is reigning in the neighboring county of Bourbon, and as a result a number of very valuable horses have been lost. Scores of cases have been reported in the county, and all efforts of the veterinarians to check the spread of the disease have proved without result. C. C. Hadden, of Bourbon, was in Winchester Saturday and reported the loss of a very valuable mare Friday night after an illness of only a few days of the disease. It is the belief of Mr. Hadden that she contracted the disease in one of the livery stables in fairs and succumbed in a short time, although the effort of an expert was employed. The mare was valued at $300.—Winchester Sun.

Petroleum Development.

Barbourville, May 7.—Estill county is taking a far lead in Kentucky petroleum developments, both in new operations under way and in weekly production develop ed, but Knox county is the leading district of Southern Kentucky, is running a close second in output of petroleum, the steady yield from old wells maintaining a good average. The beginning of the month showed close to 70 rigs in operation in all the districts, improved weather conditions bringing out many new drills.

Some good strikes resulted from the week's developments. Estill county taking the lead with one strike of 100 barrels' capacity, another good for 75 barrels and four strikes ranging from 10 to 30 barrels. No failures were reported for the week. Roads are rapidly getting in condition to allow the movement of machinery, and much advance work is being started this week. The bordering counties of Powell and Madison are being lined up for tests, several wells already being located in Powell, where prospects are good for the proving of a distinct pool.

Late reports from Allen county tell of a number of fair strikes, both inside and in advance of the tested areas. The best of new wells has a capacity of 40 barrels. Many new wells are being started over a wide area. A new concern in the field is the White Plains Oil and Gas Company, composed of Indiana operators.

In the Lower and Eastern Kentucky districts only light wells have responded to the drill. Two strikes of five barrels' capacity each were made in Wayne county, with a well of similar capacity credited to Wolfe county. A small pumper was drilled in the Lawrence field. No late completions are reported in counties outside the pipe-line extensions.

The largest deal made in Kentucky oil fields for some time is the purchase of 2,500 acres in Estill county from Root & Huff by New York interests, the reported consideration being $200,000. The property includes one lease making 300 barrels daily and a large amount of undrilled territory.

Operators are shooting few wells now because of the high cost of nitro-glycerine, which has doubled in price this year. The great increase in cost of drilling operations is not deterring new drilling operations, however, the trifling of crude oil prices more than offsetting this feature.

Special Notice.

The Farmers' Mutual Telephone Directory says, I handle any kind of rubber tire; and that I have the exclusive agency of the Republic Rubber Tires. That contract just cost me $200 of which of some of my customers will attest. I guaranteed those tires and I filled same to the letter. Now, right here I do most solemnly promise and swear that I will never again change the old and tried for any new thing whatsoever. Furthermore, that I will not use any Rubber Tire except Kelly's Springfield—the first rubber tire ever made and the best. I ought to know for surely I paid last year to find out. It is just like a boy changing the old girl for the new or a man leaving his old and tried wife for a new one. Now, isn't it a fact that they always go back to the old and tried love, is it not so boys? That's what I have done with Kelly's Springfield Rubber Tire—gone back to my old love. While they cost me more money they will cost my customers $12.00 per set or $3.00 per tire: these tires I give a guarantee on for being as represented. They will not stuff out nor will they peel, but will wear smooth like a good tire should.

Now, in regards to repairing: I have tried to get a quick system and do good work, but I find it a failure so I give it up and must stick to the old system. All my work I guarantee to be as represented. I do anything in the carriage line. Bring me your work if you want it done right. I solicit your trade.

Walter Winans' breeding is fashionable, and is in line with the greatest sires in the world, being a half brother to the Great Cresclus, 2:02½ and the fine breeder, Wilstar 2:17¼, whose colts always sold for high prices thruout Indiana and Kentucky.

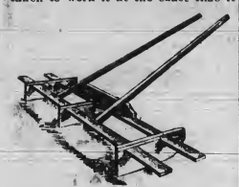
LAY OUT HOME GARDEN

Field Methods Should Be Used in Preparing Land.

Preliminary Work Done in Fall Saves Much Time and Labor During Spring Rush—Liberal Use of Manure Is Favored.

(By J. W. LLOYD.)

In planning the home garden, it is well to arrange the vegetables in the order in which they are to be planted. This facilitates the preparation of the land for planting, and makes it possible to maintain the unplanted portion in a good friable condition with the least expenditure of labor. In order that the vegetables may be so arranged, it is necessary to know the proper time for planting each crop. This depends primarily upon the temperature and moisture requirements of the particular crop in question.



The arrangement of the garden as to length of rows and time of planting, is not the only labor-saving feature that should characterize the typical farmer's garden. Field methods should be practiced in preparing the land for planting, and as much preliminary work done in the fall as is possible, for the sake of both securing an early garden and reducing the amount of labor in spring. After the land is cleared of refuse from preceding crops it should be heavily manured and plowed in the fall. The amount of manure to be applied will depend somewhat upon the fertility of the land, but more largely upon the crueness of the farmer's conception of the plant food requirements of garden crops. The best gardens are possible only where plant food is supplied much more liberally than is considered ample for field crops.

If the land has been manured and plowed in the fall, and is worked at the proper time in spring, very little labor is necessary in the preparation of a seed bed for the early planting. Soil containing sufficient humus to grow vegetable crops advantageously, can be fitted for planting without the use of hand tools, if the precaution is taken to work it at the exact time it reaches the right degree of dryness. It will then crumble readily and a seed bed can be prepared by the use of a disk, harrow and planker. A sled marker is also very useful. The use of these tools saves an enormous amount of labor, and is a vast improvement over the old method of using only a hoe and a rake.

EXACT MEASURES IN FEEDING

Practical Way Is to Weigh Definitely What Each Vessel Will Hold—Guess Work Unprofitable.

It is always best to be exact in feeding. Too much "guess work" is done on the farm. That is one reason why some of us find farming no more profitable.

In computing rations and feeding, the various feeds should be weighed. It is not always necessary to weigh every feed, as this may take considerable time. It is not always practical to weigh every feed, as feeding is sometimes done after dark or before dawn. The practical way is to weigh a definite quantity as the amount a measure will hold and estimate each feed.

A quart measure is a convenient vessel in which to estimate grain and other concentrated feeds. A quart of the following common feeds weighs: Cottonseed meal, 1.5 pounds; wheat bran (coarse), .5 pounds; wheat middling, coarse (shorts), .8 pounds; wheat middling, fine, 1.1 pounds; corn meal, 1.6 pounds; oats, 1.2 pounds; gluten meal, 1.7 pounds; gluten seed, 1.2 pounds.

FEEDING MILK TO CHICKENS

Has Most Favorable Influence on Growth of Young Fowls—Abundant Exercise Is Urged.

The feeding of milk to young chicks has a most favorable influence on the growth, and on lessening the mortality average.

Sweet and sour milk are of equal value in chick feeding. The degree of sourness does not affect the nutritive value.

Chicks fed milk freely should have abundant exercise. This applies particularly to earlier hatches or brooder chicks.

In no way is milk injurious, but whether you feed sweet or sour milk, the same should be fed continually until the end of the milk feeding period. Whichever is most convenient, adhere to consistently.

THE RULWORK OF PROSPERITY.

Mr. William J. Combs, president of a large savings bank in Brooklyn, writes to the New York Times predicting that, instead of diminishing, American industry has every prospect of expanding enormously when the European war comes to an end.

The line of reasoning adopted by Mr. Combs is convincing. He argues that at present Europe—that part of Europe that can trade directly with America—is doing two things in relation to this country. First, they are buying all the war supplies they can get; second, they are buying just as sparingly of other things as possible. He then points out that in the mean time Europe's supply of finished steel for building and domestic purposes is exhausted; that only enough cotton is carried for immediate necessities; that all the necessaries which will be demanded by Europe, including Germany in the period of reorganization, will be hard to get in Europe after the war, and that the trade of all of Europe with America must, therefore, be very brisk when the war ends.

All this is true, and are seemingly the additional deductions that America's trade with Europe after the war promises to be healthy for the reason, that, while it may diminish gradually as those countries regain power to supply themselves there is not likely to be any sudden end to exports of the kind that is predicted in the war munitions trade when the treaty of peace is signed.

All of this is infinitely more plausible than the wild predictions that Europe, immediately after the war, and despite the deaths of her trained artisans and the destruction of her factories, will at once begin to "dump" manufactured goods upon this country in ruinous quantities—that is, if it be admitted that it is "ruinous" for a country to be able to buy cheap goods.

An important fact, however, which seems to have been overlooked by Mr. Coombs, is that Europe cannot continue to trade actively with the United States after the war without money to pay for the goods. The war loans will come to an end with the signing of peace. Europe will want many things from this country, but, unless she can sell goods in America, she must limit her purchases.

Instead therefore, of menacing the future prosperity of the U. S. the Underwood tariff bill holds out the only hope of continued foreign trade.

William Lorimer Acquitted.

William Lorimer, former United States Senator and once a great political power, in Illinois, last Wednesday night was acquitted of a charge of having wrecked the La Salle Street Trust and Savings Bank, of which he was president His partner, Charles B. Mundy was found to be guilty of the same charge in a trial at Morris, Ill, several months ago and sentenced to a term in prison The crash of the Lorimer institution brought woe to hundreds of depositors who had faith in him or who were led to deposit their money in his bank through political consideration Lorimer was bitterly arraigned by the State in its closing arguments

Having voted the $200,000 bonds for building roads and bridges in this county it is the duty of every good and loyal citizen to lend his influence to the acquiring of the greatest benefit possible from the fund. Don't be a knocker and throw every obstacle possible in the way, seeking to become "I told you so." Boone county can now come to the front with a rush if every body will lend her road policy their moral support and refrain from an effort to intimidate those whose duty it will be to carry forward the county's road work.

This is the way they do business in Indiana:

Democratic Auditor Dale J. Crittenberger says "there is not a bill ever allowed to lie on the auditor's desk twenty-four hours and unpaid. The state's credit has not been in such excellent shape in a hundred years and the balance in the treasury is large enough to eliminate worry or advance calls on the counties."

Twenty men, escorting a load of two tons of dynamite from Harrodsburg to the Chinn mineral mines at Munday's Landing, on the Kentucky river, had a narrow escape when the wagon in which the dynamite was being conveyed turned over on a steep hillside and the boxes containing the explosives were dumped out and rolled down the hill without exploding.

Better Stock In Laurel.

For many years Laurel county has been producing a comparatively large number of medium to poor grade cattle. From year to year these cattle have been selling on the Richmond, Lancaster and Stanford markets at a price which would not have secured for the purchaser cattle of the first grade.

Farming, until recent years, having been only a secondary matter in that county, the people have not realized the value of good cattle, and the fact that it costs just as much to feed a poor animal as it does a good one. But it is encouraging to note that in recent years increased attention is being given to farming. Scientific principles are being applied, abandoned fields are being reclaimed and much interest is being taken in the improvement of live stock.

In the last several years, a few pure bred cattle have been brought into the county, more attention has been given to breeding, and consequently the cattle standard has been materially raised in some sections of the county. With these conditions revealing the ripeness of the time for rapid improvement of the live stock, Samuel Morgan, Laurel-co., Agent, turned his efforts during the winter months to the aid of this industry.

First, by means of farmer's meetings over the county he tried to interest the farmers in the co-operative buying of a number of pure bred cattle. The milking strain Shorthorn was decided upon as the desired breed. The plan was to have any farmer or group of farmers desiring to buy a Shorthorn bull or heifer, put up the necessary amount of money, and the group select a man, or two men, from their number to purchase the cattle—each man getting the animal at exact cost.

This plan did not work successfully. Every man was in favor of better cattle but there were few who cared to put up their money until they saw the product. And it must be said here that this is the greatest hindrance to co-operation among farmers. The man who was never known to make a good trade will not risk the judgment of his neighbor, who is a successful stockman, to make for him the purchase of a calf. When this condition ceases to exist, and not until then, will there be successful co-operation With co-operation will come successful farming.

It was not felt that the movement should be given up with the failure of one plan, so Mr Morgan went to the business men and succeeded in raising the money with which to buy as many cattle as he thought advisable, arrangements being made with the bank and no limit set. The business men agreed to pro rata any loss that might occur.

Prof. T. R. Bryant, of the State Experiment Station, and Mr. Morgan were selected by the business men to exercise judgment in selecting the cattle. Eight fine, young Shorthorn bulls were purchased, three coming from near Lexington, and five from near Eminence. The prices paid were: $75 for one, $91 each for two, one hundred dollars each for four, and $150 for one.

They were kept at the county seat and sold at private sale. Five weeks elapsed before the last one was sold. They sold at a total loss of $44.50.

This county agent is also interested in better hogs. Two business men have put up $100 each to be used in the improvement of the swine of the county. Eight registered Poland China gilts have been purchased at Danville, Ky., and placed with boys under written contracts. Each boy is to be a member of the State pig club and governed according to the regulations of that organization. In payment for the original gilt each boy will deliver to the business men four choice gilt pigs. These pigs will be given to other boys under the same contract except that they will only return two of the pigs of the first litter. These will be given away, and so on.

Each boy agrees to keep all progeny from the original gilt registered for a period of two years unless sold for immediate slaughter. The original gilts given away this winter have already farrowed, and the required number of pigs will be returned and replaced in time to start the feeding contest on May 15th. Each boy will feed his pig until fall, and the winner will be given a trip to the State Fair.

This spirit of co-operation on the part of the business men of the town is making possible some things that will mean wealth to the county, and for which they will always have cause to be proud. "We hope to see this spirit continue," says Mr. Morgan, "and also a co-operative response on the part of the farmers. My efforts are to this end."—From Bi-Weekly Farm Bulletin.

Sheep Raising.

Sheep raising has become one of the leading industries in this county and many farmers are turning their attention to the work in earnest. Some few are even depending solely upon sheep as the money crop. This should not be done because it has been proven that it is not well to put all the eggs in one basket, but it we are to raise sheep and sell lambs we should raise the best. It has been learned that lambs should be fed as well as grazed and that the ewes should receive a variety of feed while suckling the lambs. Mill feed and ground oats make a fine feed, while the grass is young and there is not strength enough in it to make lambs do well or even get in to good shape for the market. It pays to feed stock for market.—Owen County Democrat.

The Commonwealth Life Insurance Company very promptly paid the $1,000 policy on the life of Grover C. Riley, who died April 10th, to the Equitable Bank & Trust Company, administrators of the estate, Mr. Riley applied for the insurance Feb. 22d, and the policy was delivered to him March 7th. He became ill with typhoid fever on March 26th and died April 10th, and the full amount of the policy was paid to the administrator 23 days thereafter, and would have been paid in eight or ten days but for the delay in qualification of an administrator. This is one of the record cases. The insured was dead in 47 days after he applied for the insurance and the money was in the hands of the administrator 23 days after death. This is the kind of a settlement the Commonwealth always makes where there is no question. D. B. Wallace is the agent and the settlement was made through him to the Equitable Bank and Trust Company of which he is also the cashier.

EASTERN CIRCUIT

Central Community Chatauqua System—Outline of 1916 Program.

To Be Held at Walton, Ky., June 16 to 20 Inclusive.

First Day—

The Meistersingers Male Quartet will give the full afternoon program and the prelude at night. This organization has been before the public for many years, both in the winter Lyceum and summer Chautauqua. Each member is a soloist of more than ordinary ability and their ensemble singing shows careful training and sympathetic blending of voices. Besides their vocal solos, duets, quartets, readings, etc., they will give selections on a set or organ chimes valued at several thousand dollars.

Dr. E. L. Williams, pastor of the Grace Methodist church of Chicago, will lecture at night. He is a man of dynamic personality and for many years has figured prominently in social service work in that city. He not only knows the great cities and their problems but he is conversant also with the smaller communities and the dependency of one on the other. This subject is discussed in a masterful way by Mr. Williams in his lecture, "The City and the Soil," which was delivered on the opening night of one of the Chautauqua circuits last summer and was considered the strongest number on the course.

Second Day—

The Collegian Trio which will give a prelude both to the afternoon and evening programs, is a company composed of three very clever entertainers—two men and a woman. Their program will consist of tenor solos and duets, pianologues, readings, sketches and novelty numbers of great variety. One particularly novel feature of the program will be the male soprano voice of Mr. Ball. While ordinarily singing as a tenor, Mr. Ball is able to sing a perfect soprano and can reach within half a note as high as can Tetrazzini.

Either Dr. J. H. Sowerby or Jas. Hoffman Batten will lecture in the afternoon. Each will be on this circuit a portion of the season. Both have had long experience on the lecture platform, are effective and polished speakers and their messages are full of profound thought and virility. Dr. Sowerby will deliver a lecture on popular psychology entitled "Man's Two-Fold Nature," while Mr. Batten will deliver his great biographical lecture on Abraham Lincoln, entitled "The Pathfinder of Democracy."

Gilbert Allee Eldredge, character portrayalist, impersonator and reader, will give the principal program at night. He will present a widely varied and artistic repertoire of costume interpretations of a high order, changing quickly from humorous to pathetic, and from dramatic to sentimental representations. His line of work reaches all classes from those who like the subtle honor of good old "David Harum to the tragedy of "Julius Caesser."

Third Day—

The Fairchild Entertainers will give the full afternoon program and a prelude at night. This company is composed of four young ladies, three of whom are sisters, who specialize in orchestra work, using two violins, piano and cello. They are also capable vocalists and their program will include readings, whistling and pianologues, as well as their instrumental and vocal solos, duets and quartets.

Albert Edward Wiggam will lecture at night on the subject of "Heredity and Human Progress." Mr. Wiggam is one of the foremost scientific lecturers on the American platform today. He combines the ability to please the popular audience with a thorough scientific knowledge of his subject. He is one of the men who has helped make the Lyceum great and one of the highest salaried men among the professional Lyceum lecturers.

Fourth Day—

The New York City Marine Band, led by Vincent Lo Zito, will give the afternoon prelude and a grand concert at night. This Company for the past two seasons has been over chautauqua circuits in the West and the South and previous to that time, furnished music at the Palisades Park in New York City for three years in succession. It has always been in great demand at the big conventions and on noted occasions. Their music is of both classical and popular character and their repertoire is practically unlimited.

W. Powell Hale will deliver in the afternoon "Bob" Taylor's lecture entitled "The Fiddle and the Bow." During his life Senator Taylor was one of the most popular lecturers ever on the American platform, and in all the poetic beauty of his diction, all the humor and pathos of his anecdotes and in all the splendor of his eloquence, Mr. Hale makes the famous Senator live again.

Fifth Day—

The afternoon prelude and the full evening program will be given by The Handel Choir, led by Mme Wagner. They will appear during the first part of their program wearing choral vestments and will render masterpieces of sacred music. The second part of their program is made up of humorous and entertaining sketches, in which they combine both vocal and instrumental work. Their program at night will include a portion of Madame Butterfly and a sketch entitled "In the Days of 64," in both of which striking and appropriate costumes will be worn.

In the afternoon and for a short time at night J. Franklin Caveny, cartoon lecturer, cartoonist and clay modeler, will appear. Mr. Caveny is not only popular as an entertainer, but is also a well known artist. He is very clever and his crayon sketches are revelations of beauty and caricature. He works with rapidity, deftness and skill as before his audiences he changes dead paper and dull canvas to glowing pictures.

Warsaw, May 2.—A telegram was received yesterday by Geo. Washington Sisson, a farmer of Sugar Creek, Gallatin county, five miles above Warsaw, stating that his son, Frank Sisson, had been wound on a battlefield in France and had died at St. John's Hospital Etaples, April 29, as a result of his wound. The Kentucky soldier was a private in the ranks of the Fifth Canadian Grenadiers and enlisted in the spring of 1915. He was 25 years old and left this county seven years ago, going from here first to Illinois. He farmed in that country several years and last spring enlisted with the Allies in the European war. The telegram apprising the father of the death of his son was sent from Ottawa, Ont., under date of April 30.

Miss Lula Blanton was killed when an automobile in which she was riding was halted between Fleming and Neon in Letcher county, by a man who walked close to the car, took aim and fired. Jas. Thompson, who has been attentive to Miss Blanton and was with her earlier in the evening, is under arrest at Whitesburg to await an examining trial.

A Half Century.

During a half century I have watched the ebb and flow of public opinion, the growth of science, the crumbling of creeds, the waning influence of the orthodox pulpit, the loss of confidence in special providence and the decadence of faith in the efficacy of prayer. I have lived to see the church on the defensive and to see the shot and shell of science batter into shapelessness the fortresses of Christian superstition. I have lived to see Agnostics, Free thinkers and Infidels become the intellectual leaders of the world, the mental giants of the human race. During the half century I have seen the passing of the ox-cart, the toll-gate and the old time bar-room. I have lived to see the automobile and the flying machine. Meanwhile all progressive people stand in utter amazement as they behold antiquity in passing show.

We Are all Americans.

Richard Barthholdt of Missouri, former member of the congress, a sympathizer with Germany in the European conflict, sounds the true note of Americanism when he says, in the presence of the critical emergency of the day, "We are all Americans." In this crisis there is no place for a hyphen. As Barth holdt well says, "In this crisis there are no German-Americans." Barthholdt, a citizen of St. Louis, can speak with historic accuracy and authority when he adds: "History has shown that the German always were the most loyal citizens of the U. S. in time of war." It was at St. Louis the supreme test was put on Germans at the time of the outbreak of our civil war. The Germans in St. Louis organized their battalions, drilled and armed their trained men and were ready at the crucial time to act with promptness and effectiveness on behalf of the movement to save the Union. The German troops fought well for the Union and made a record of undying glory. Barthholdt rightly interprets the spirit of our citizens of German extraction when he ringingly declares, "We are all Americans." There is no excuse of any question or doubt in the matter. We are all for the flag, and the flag over all.—Editorial in Indiana Daily Times.

A Big Proposition.

The Fiscal Court, will, in all probability, soon have on its hands the largest proposition with which it has ever been confronted. Heretofore the road propositions with which it has had to deal were easy to handle and of small dimensions, but not so in the future, and the court should hold a session for the purpose of arranging to meet in a just and businesslike manner the demands that will be made upon it from the several voting precincts in the county. Each precinct knows within a small amount to how much money it will be entitled under the order of the court made a few months since, and, no doubt, each precinct will want to get busy with its roads as soon as possible, therefore, to expedite matters it would be well for the court to have each precinct to select an advisory committee of say five of its citizens to recommend what roads should receive attention and to look after such other details as would assist in the construction of roads and redound to the benefit of the precinct. The work the court will undertake should be systematized, and demands that a thorough understanding of its program be had before dirt is broken anywhere in the county, and this cannot be had until properly considered by the whole court. The fact that the road bonds will be nontaxable ought to be a strong inducement to the farmers of Boone county to invest in them. There is plenty of surplus money in the county to take up all the bonds and they will be a good and safe investment. There is no reason why a single bond should be owned by any person other than a Boone county farmer.

Will Elect Congressmen this Fall.

Candidates for Congress will be elected again this fall at the same time a President is chosen. In so far as this Congressional District is concerned there does not appear any desire on the part of the Democrats to have any opposition to the present very efficient and popular representative, Hon. A. B. Rouse, who has proven to be the most acceptable member the district has ever had. His critics are few and far between, while, on the other hand, his praise is sung in every town, village and hamlet in the district. When it comes to serving the people Democrats, Republicans and Mugwumps all look alike to him and he wants each and everyone to receive all that is coming to him. By his earnest and impartial service he has acquired the confidence of all the people and all the people want him continued as Congressman.

More Whisky and Less Beer Being Drank.

Notwithstanding the fact that prohibition laws have become effective in seven States since July 1, approximately 7,500,000 gallons more whisky has been used in the United States so far during this fiscal year ending June 30 than ever before. Returns to the Internal revenue bureau approximate the total increase for the year at 10,000,000 gallons.

During the same period the use of beer has fallen more than 1,-500,000 barrels, or 45,000,000 gallons, from last year's figures. The total use of beer for the year ending June 30, it is estimated, will be about 60,000,000 less than it was in the last fiscal year.

An extraordinary increase in the amount of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco is reported for the current year. The tax collected during the nine months ending March 31 shows an increase of approximately $5,000,000 on tobacco, which includes cigars and cigarettes over the last fiscal year.

Sending Better Men as Delegates.

"A careful perusal of the list of delegates to the Republican national convention that meets in Chicago June 7th, so far, reveals the fact that the South will have the stronges delegation of any Republican convention in the history of the party," reads a statement giv en out by the Root publicity managers. With every State delegation chosen, with the exception of Texas and Alabama, the southern delegates to the national convention have been elected. The list shows that lawyers, doctors, business men, manufacturers and farmers are among those who will represent the South in the convention. With the two hundred or more votes the South, it is pointed out, will contribute toward the nomination—it will hold the balance of power in the convention.

Long before the church doors were opened for the graduating exercises of Florence High School last Thursday evening, throngs gathered on the lawn fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, kindred and friends of the graduating class, patrons of the school and friends of education, all eager to attend and enjoy the delightful exercises of the evening.

At the appointed time the church was filled to overflowing and many could not find room. The graduating class led by Prof. A. M. Yealey, principal of the school, and accompanied by Supt. W. P. King, of Campbell county, and Supt. E. C Riley, of Boone county, marched up the aisle to the strains of the grand march from Tannhauser, and took their places on the rostrum.

The graduating class presented a fine appearance, the beauty of youth and happiness shining from every countenance and hope gleaming in every eye. The orations showed deep thought, careful preparation and were full of purpose and the aspirations of their beautiful young lives for success and happiness. The piano selections by members of the class were well rendered and well received, the class acquitting itself in an admirable manner, doing great credit to the community of Florence. The violin and piano selections by Mr. Albert Metzger and Miss Nellie Rouse were beautiful and much appreciated by the large audience.

Supt. W. P King delivered a masterly address to the graduating class and Supt. E. C Riley, with some happy and felicitous remarks, presented the diplomas to the members of the class.

The patient toil and care of Prof. A. M Yealey, principal of Florence schools, were everywhere manifest in the exercises and contributed largely in making such a success possible.

managed the schools of the community. The evening was in every way a delightful occasion. It is the hope of many that the interest manifested in the schools and the cause of education will continue to grow until its quickening influence is left in every home.

QUICK WORK

Officers With Aid of the Telephone Land Horse Thief in the County Bastile.

Last Friday morning when Benj. Carpenter, of Richwood neighborhood, went to his barn he found the lock on the door broken and one of his horses gone. Mr. Carpenter called Sheriff W. D. Cropper, informed him of what had happened and gave him a description of the missing horse. After an hour or so the sheriff succeeded in getting deputy sheriff Tanner of Grant county to the phone in Williamstown to give him a description of the stolen horse, when the Grant county official answered that a man with a horse of that description had left the town about an hour before, and that he would go in pursuit. In about an hour the deputy sheriff called sheriff Cropper and informed him that the man and the horse had been brought back to Williamstown. It was about noon when sheriff Cropper and his deputy L. A. Conner left for Williamstown, stopping at Mr. Carpenter's and taking him with them to identify his horse which he did, and at six o'clock that evening the prisoner was in jail in Burlington. Pretty quick work.

The prisoner gives his name as Sylvester Welcher, and Casey county, this State as his home, but says he has resided for several months in Covington, where he has a wife and two children. He claims that he started south on a freight train Thursday night and got off the train at Dry Ridge, Grant county, where he bought the horse of a man named John Miller for $25, but afterward said he bought the horse of a man named King.

Welcher tried to sell the horse to a Williamstown liveryman for $100 but when the liveryman demanded that he identify himself the trade was off.

The officers claim that Welcher gets his wires crossed in conversation, and they have no confidence in what he says.

At intervals since Welcher was lodged in jail he has been crazy or is playing crazy. He says he is an epileptic, and that he was in the asyium at Lakeland for several months. He knows the name of the superintendent of that institution, and the county attorney has written to Dr. Peddicord to ascertain what, if anything, he knows about Welcher.

Graduating Exercises of Floreuce H. S.

The graduating class of the High School at this place certainly should appreciate the interest the citizens here have shown in their graduating exercises.

First a dance was given for their benefit at the Shelby street theater, chaperoned by some of the members of the Mothers' Welfare Club of this place. Next, as a preliminary exercise, Rev. G A. Royer delivered the Baccalaureate address to a large audience at the Baptist church Sunday May7. His remarks were well received, being broad minded and liberal, closely fitting the channel created by the trend of modern times. On May 11th, at the Christian church the graduating class met, composed of the following pupils; Miss Gertrude Stephens, Charles Corbin, Miss Mary B. Conrad, Miss Pearl Long, Cecil Tanner, Miss Annita Tanner Miss Martha Williams, to receive their diplomas. The pupils certainly rendered their parts well, the girls in particular, after which Supt. W. P. King, of the Newport schools, delivered the class address, which was conceded to be the most interesting talk on education ever delivered in the town. You could plainly read between the lines of his beautifully woven paragraphs, "progression." The trustees did their share in the exercises, being not so much backward as the trustees were 30 years ago, when the trustees purchased a lot and levied a tax to build the first school house in this district. At that time the citizens called an indignation meeting to protest against the first act of progression in this district, and that only thirty years ago. I almost forgot to say the music was furnished by Mr. Albert Metzer, violinist, and Miss Nellie Rouse, pianoist, and it was enjoyed by all.

Fifty-four years ago in this town school exercises were held in the Baptist church and no music was allowed in the building. I don't call it progressing or anything else. The readers can call it what they like, but it is different now and it may be more different at the end of 50 years from now to you that are living and are liable to eat the goose that eats the grass from our graves.

The drug store is one of the handsomest to be seen anywhere and is another evidence of the excellent good taste that Mr. Jones displays in all such matters.

Simon Billiter and J. W. Beagle, of Williamstown, were visitors here last Saturday enroute to Cincinnati, in their auto. Mr. Billiter is now filling an extensive contract in Gallatin county in the rebuilding of some of the important roadways. He is an expert road builder, and his work gives the best of satisfaction.

Allphin & Dudgeon held their sale of Holstein cattle last Saturday and disposed of the herd at very reasonable prices, ranging from $30 to $90 per head. W. B. Johnson was the auctioneer and sold 45 head in 55 minutes. Allphin & Dudgeon have about 10 still on hand that they will sell at private sale.

The members of the Walton Christian church at a meeting last week virtually decided to erect a new church edifice on the lot they own nearly opposite the Baptist church. The building will be of brick and the estimated cost is eight thousand dollars. The contract will probably be let inside of a couple of months.

At the election for school trustees held last Saturday, S. H. McCartt was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the removal of G. E. Carroll from the district, and S. W. Bevarly was elected to fill the place of John C. Miller whose term expired. Both the new trustees are interested in good schools and better selections could not be made.

Roy D. Stamley spent Saturday at Falmouth looking after his interest in The Duncan, the moving picture show he owns at that place. Mr. Stamley and his partner Spencer Chambers have bought a moving picture show at Williamstown and also own the one at Walton. All are giving good entertainments and are doing a fair business.

Wm. Clore of LaGrange, Old-Veter-an, was here Saturday on business connected with the Pension Bureau.

were offered for sale for dairy purposes the tuberculin test had to be applied to meet the requirements of the State law before their sale would be permitted.

Judge J. G. Tomlin was honored last week by Gov. Stanley by appointment as a delegate to the Farmers' National congress to be held at Indianapolis, Ind., October 17th to 20th inclusive. Judge Tomlin is largely interested in farming lands and he is not only progressive and up-to-date in all the methods employed on his farms, and gives a great deal of encouragement and assistance to the farming class of this section, and his appointment as delegate was most worthily bestowed.

E. B. Northcutt entertained his Sunday school class last Tuesday night in a most happy manner at his home where nice refreshments were served, and a delightful meeting spent together. A business man's class was organized with the following officers: President, J. Cloyd Powers; first Vice President, Geo. P. Nicholson; 2nd Vice President, Ed. Fullilove; 3rd Vice President, S. H. McCartt; Teacher, E. P. Northcutt. The class will be enrolled with the Southern Baptist Sunday school Board at Nashville.

John C. Roberts, an old and very Piner neighborhood, Kenton county, died very suddenly at his home last Wednesday. He was in the field driving some sheep when he was stricken with paralysis. He leaves a wife and two daughters, Mrs. Ormal Carlisle and Mrs. E. N Dixon, of Kenton county. The funeral took place from the Goshen Christian church last Saturday, the services being conducted by Rev. H. C. Runyan, after which the remains were laid to rest in the Independence cemetery. Mr. Roberts had many warm friends who tender the bereaved ones their heartfelt sympathy. He was a native of Kenton county and sixty eight years old.

Last Thursday morning James Bagby died quite suddenly at the home of his brother Dr. D. M. Bagby. He had been a sufferer from asthma for about 15 years and that primarily caused his death though it was not thought that his end was so near. Mr. Bagby was born at Bracht Station, Kenton county, 70 years ago, and was never married. Two brothers, Dr. D. M. Bagby of Walton, and Rev. D. Y. Bagby, of Wichita, Kansas, and one sister Miss Lizzie Bagby of San Antonio, Texas, survive him. The funeral took place Saturday from the Baptist church, the services being conducted by the pastor Rev. Olus Hamilton, after which the remains were interred in the Baptist cemetery.

E. L. Kelley of the Walton Electric Light Company is giving excellent service and as a result has taken a number of new contracts to install the light service in a number of additional residences. He is contemplating the establishment of a day service if he can secure enough contracts to use the current for domestic purposes. Mrs. Kelley is quite competent to manage the plant during her husband's absence, and perhaps she is entitled to part of the credit for the good service, but nevertheless Mr. Kelley is up-to-date in the service and is constantly looking out for improvements that will afford his patrons better satisfaction.

Jno. L. Vest, E. M. Johnson, J. R. Wallace, A. J. Thomas, Charles S. Boles and D. B. Wallace attended the Masonic Lodge at Big Bone Springs last Saturday night when the Master's degree was conferred on Stanley Rich. Samuel K. Rust, and Kenneth Hodges. There was a large attendance, the lodges at Rising Sun and Patriot, Indiana, Rabbit Hash, Union, Burlington, Verona Walton and Hyde Park, Cincinnati, being represented. A splendid supper was enjoyed and the spirit of good fellowship pervaded everywhere. D. S. Wilber of Rising Sun and Chas. S. Boles officiated as Master in conferring the degrees. Dr. J. E. Carlisle acted as Senior Deacon, and Jno. L. Vest delivered the stereopticon lecture in a most impressive and entertaining manner.

The Commonwealth Life Insurance Company very promptly paid the $1,000 policy on the life of Grover C. Riley, who died April 10th, to the Equitable Bank & Trust Company, administrators of the estate. Mr. Riley applied for the insurance Feb. 22d, and the policy was delivered to him March 7th. He became ill with typhoid fever on March 26th and died April 10th. and the full amount of the policy was paid to the administrator 23 days thereafter, and would have been paid in eight or ten days but for the delay in qualification of an administrator. This is one of the record cases: The insured was dead in 47 days after he applied for the insurance and the money was in the hands of the administrator 23 days after his death. This is the kind of a settlement the Commonwealth always makes where there is no question. D. B. Wallace is the agent and the settlement was made through him to the Equitable Bank and Trust Company of which he is also the cashier.

Administrator's Notice.

All persons having claims against the estate of Grover C. Riley, deceased, are hereby notified to present them at once to the undersigned, properly proven. All persons owing said estate must settle with the undersigned at once.

EASTERN CIRCUIT

Central Community Chatauqua System—Outline of 1916 Program.

To Be Held at Walton, Ky., June 16 to 20 Inclusive.

First Day—

The Meistersingers Male Quartet will give the full afternoon program and the prelude at night. This organization has been before the public for many years, both in the winter Lyceum and summer Chautauqua. Each member is a soloist of more than ordinary ability and their ensemble singing shows careful training and sympathetic blending of voices. Besides their vocal solos, duets, quartets, readings, etc., they will give selections on a set or organ chimes valued at several thousand dollars.

Dr. E. L. Williams, pastor of the Grace Methodist church of Chicago, will lecture at night. He is a man of dynamic personality and for many years has figured prominently in social service work in that city. He not only knows the great cities and their problems but he is conversant also with the smaller communities and the dependency of one on the other. This subject is discussed in a masterful way by Mr. Williams in his lecture, "The City and the Soil," which was delivered on the opening night of one of the Chautauqua circuits last summer and was considered the strongest number on the course.

Second Day—

The Collegian Trio which will give a prelude both to the afternoon and evening programs, is a company composed of three very clever entertainers—two men and a woman. Their program will consist of tenor solos and duets, pianologues, readings, sketches and novelty numbers of great variety. One particularly novel feature of the program will be the male soprano voice of Mr. Ball. While ordinarily singing as a tenor, Mr. Ball is able to sing a perfect soprano and can reach within half a note as high as can Tetrazzini.

Either Dr. J. H. Sowerby or Jas. Hoffman Batten will lecture in the afternoon. Each will be on this circuit a portion of the season. Both have had long experience on the lecture platform, are effective and polished speakers and their messages are full of profound thought and virility. Dr. Sowerby will deliver a lecture on popular psychology entitled "Man's Two-Fold Nature," while Mr. Batten will deliver his great biographical lecture on Abraham Lincoln, entitled "The Pathfinder of Democracy."

Gilbert Atlee Eldredge, character portrayalist, impersonator and reader, will give the principal program at night. He will present a widely varied and artistic repertoire of costume interpretations of a high order, changing quickly from humorous to pathetic, and from dramatic to sentimental representations. His line of work reaches all classes from those who like the subtle honor of good old "David Harum to the tragedy of "Julius Caeser."

Third Day—

The Fairchild Entertainers will give the full afternoon program and a prelude at night. This company is composed of four young ladies, three of whom are sisters, who specialize in orchestra work, using two violins, piano and cello. They are also capable vocalists and their program will include readings, whistling and pianologues, as well as their instrumental and vocal solos, duets and quartets.

Albert Edward Wiggam will lecture at night on the subject of "Heredity and Human Progress." Mr. Wiggam is one of the foremost scientific lecturers on the American platform today. He combines the ability to please the popular audience with a thorough scientific knowledge of his subject. He is one of the men who has helped make the Lyceum great and one of the highest salaried men among the professional Lyceum lecturers.

Fourth Day—

The New York City Marine Band, led by Vincent Lo Zito, will give the afternoon prelude and a grand concert at night. This Company for the past two seasons has been over chautauqua circuits in the West and the South and previous to that time, furnished music at the Palisades Park in New York City for three years in succession. It has always been in great demand at the big conventions and on noted occasions. Their music is of both classical and popular character and their reportoire is practically unlimited.

W. Powell Hale will deliver in the afternoon "Bob" Taylor's lecture entitled "The Fiddle and the Bow." During his life Senator Taylor was one of the most popular lecturers ever on the American platform, and in all the poetic beauty of his diction, all the humor and pathos of his anecdotes and in all the splendor of his eloquence, Mr. Hale makes the famous Senator live again.

Fifth Day—

The afternoon prelude and the full evening program will be given by The Handel Choir, led by Mme Wagner. They will appear during the first part of their program wearing choral vestments and will render masterpieces of sacred music. The second part of their program is made up of humorous and entertaining sketches, in which they combine both vocal and instrumental work. Their program at night will include a portion of Madame Butterfly and a sketch entitled "In the Days of 64," in both of which striking and appropriate costumes will be worn.

In the afternoon and for a short time at night J. Franklin Caveny, famous lightning cartoonist and clay modeler, will appear. Mr. Caveny is not only popular as an entertainer, but is also a well known artist. He is very clever and his crayon sketches are revelations of beauty and caricature. He works with rapidity, deftness and skill as before his audiences he changes dead paper and dull canvas to glowing pictures.

Warsaw, May 2.—A telegram was received yesterday by Geo. Washington Sisson, a farmer of Sugar Creek, Gallatin county, five miles above Warsaw, stating that his son, Frank Sisson, had been wound on a battlefield in France and had died at St. John's Hospital Etaples, April 29, as a result of his wound. The Kentucky soldier was a private in the ranks of the Fifth Canadian Grenadiers and enlisted in the spring of 1915. He was 25 years old and left this county seven years ago, going from here first to Illinois. He farmed in that country several years and last spring enlisted with the Allies in the European War. The telegram apprising the father of the death of his son was sent from Ottawa, Ont., under date of April 30.

Thirty-eight thousand farmers, from all over the United States have signed petitions which were introduced into the Senate protesting the passage of any law that would prevent the shipment of prison-made goods from one State to another. The objection interposed by the farmers was mostly due to the shipment of binder twine considerably of which is made by convicts. A law of this kind would enable the manufacturers to raise the price in States where the twine is manufactured.

A Half Century.

During a half century I have watched the ebb and flow of public opinion, the growth of science, the crumbling of creeds, the waning influence of the orthodox pulpit, the loss of confidence in special providence and the decadence of faith in the efficacy of prayer. I have lived to see the church on the defensive and to see the shot and shell of science batter into shapelessness the fortresses of Christian superstition. I have lived to see Agnostics, Free thinkers and Infidels become the intellectual leaders of the world, the mental giants of the human race. During the half century I have seen the passing of the ox-cart, the toll-gate and the old time bar-room. I have lived to see the automobile and the flying machine. Meanwhile all progressive people stand in utter amazement as they behold antiquity in passing show.

Miss Lula Blanton was killed when an automobile in which she was riding was halted between Fleming and Neon in Letcher county, by a man who walked close to the car, took aim and fired. Jas. Thompson, who has been attentive to Miss Blanton and was with her earlier in the evening, is under arrest at Whitesburg to await an examining trial.

We Are all Americans.

Richard Barthholdt of Missouri, former member of the congress, a sympathizer with Germany in the European conflict, sounds the true note of Americanism when he says, in the presence of the critical emergency of the day, "We are all Americans." In this crisis there is no place for a hyphen As Barthholdt well says, "In this crisis there are no German-Americans." Barthholdt, a citizen of St. Louis, can speak with historic accuracy and authority when he adds: "History has shown that the German always were the most loyal citizens of the U. S. in time of war." It was at St. Louis the supreme test was put on Germans at the time of the outbreak of our civil war. The Germans in St. Louis organized their battalions, drilled and armed their trained men and were ready at the crucial time to act with promptness and effectiveness on behalf of the movement to save the Union. The German troops fought well for the Union and made a record of undying glory. Barthholdt rightly interprets the spirit of our citizens of German extraction when he ringingly declares, "We are all Americans." There is no excuse of any question or doubt in the matter. We are all for the flag, and the flag over all.—Editorial in Indiana Daily Times.

A Big Proposition.

The Fiscal Court, will, in all probability, soon have on its hands the largest proposition with which it has ever been confronted. Heretofore the road propositions with which it has had to deal were easy to handle and of small dimensions, but not so in the future, and the court should hold a session for the purpose of arranging to meet in a just and businesslike manner the demands that will be made upon it from the several voting precincts in the county. Each precinct knows within a small amount to how much money it will be entitled under the order of the court made a few months since, and, no doubt, each precinct will want to get busy with its roads as soon as possible, therefore, to expedite matters it would be well for the court to have each precinct to select an advisory committee of say five of its citizens to recommend what roads should receive attention and to look after such other details as would assist in the construction of roads and redound to the benefit of the precinct. The work the court will undertake should be systematized, and demands that a thorough understanding of its program be had before dirt is broken anywhere in the county, and this cannot be had until properly considered by the whole court. The fact that the road bonds will be bonfiable ought to be a strong inducement to the farmers of Boone county to invest in them. There is plenty of surplus money in the county to take up all the bonds and they will be a good and safe investment. There is no reason why any single bond should be owned by any person other than a Boone county farmer.

Will Elect Congressmen this Fall.

Candidates for Congress will be elected again this fall at the same time a President is chosen, so far as this Congressional District is concerned there does not appear any desire on the part of the Democrats to have any opposition to the present very efficient and popular representative, Hon. A. B. Rouse, who has proven to be the most acceptable member the district has ever had. His critics are few and far between, while on the other hand, his praise is sung in every town, village and hamlet in the district. When it comes to serving the people Democrats, Republicans and Mugwumps all look alike to him and he wants each and everyone to receive all that is coming to him. By his earnest and impartial service he has acquired the confidence of all the people and all the people want him continued as Congressman.

More Whisky and Less Beer Being Drank.

Notwithstanding the fact that prohibition laws have become effective in seven States since July 1, approximately 7,500,000 gallons more whisky has been used in the United States so far during this fiscal year ending June 30 than ever before. Returns to the Internal revenue bureau approximate the total increase for the year at 10,000,000 gallons.

During the same period the use of beer has fallen more than 1,500,000 barrels, or 45,000,000 gallons, from last year's figures. The total use of beer for the year ending June 30, it is estimated, will be about 60,000,000 less than it was in the last fiscal year.

An extraordinary increase in the amount of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco is reported for the current year. The tax collected during the nine months ending March 31 shows an increase of approximately $5,000,000 on tobacco, which includes cigars and cigarettes over the last fiscal year.

Sending Better Men as Delegates.

"A careful perusal of the list of delegates to the Republican national convention that meets in Chicago June 7th, so far, reveals the fact that the South will have the strongest delegation at any Republican convention in the history of the party," reads a statement giv en out by the Root publicity managers. With every State delegation chosen, with the exception of Texas and Alabama, the southern delegates to the national convention have been elected. The list shows that lawyers, doctors, business men, manufacturers and farmers are among those who will represent the South in the convention. With the two hundred or more votes the South, it is pointed out, will contribute toward the nomination—it will hold the balance of power in the convention.

Long before the church doors were opened for the graduating exercises of Florence High School last Thursday evening, throngs gathered on the lawn, fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, kindred and friends of the graduating class, patrons of the school and friends of education, all eager to attend and enjoy the delightful exercises of the evening.

At the appointed time the church was filled to overflowing and many could not find room. The graduating class led by Prof. A. M. Yealey, principal of the school, and accompanied by Supt. W. P. King, of Campbell county, and Supt. E. C. Riley, of Boone county, marched up the aisle to the strains of the grand march from Tannhauser, and took their places on the rostrum.

The graduating class presented a fine appearance, the beauty of youth and happiness shining from every countenance and hope gleaming in every eye. The orations showed deep thought, careful preparation and were full of purpose and the aspirations of their beautiful young lives for success and happiness. The piano selections by members of the class were well rendered and well received, the class acquitting itself in an admirable manner, doing great credit to the community of Florence. The violin and piano selections by Mr. Albert Metzger and Miss Nellie Rouse were beautiful and much appreciated by the large audience.

Supt. W. P King delivered a masterly address to the graduating class and Supt. E. C Riley, with some happy and felicitous remarks, presented the diplomas to the members of the class.

The patient toil and care of Prof. A. M Yealey, principal of Florence schools, were everywhere manifest in the exercises and contributed largely in making such a success possible.

managed the schools of the community. The evening was in every way a delightful occasion. It is the hope of many that the interest manifested in the schools and the cause of education will continue to grow until its quickening influence is left in every home.

QUICK WORK

Officers With Aid of the Telephone Land Horse Thief in the County Bastile.

Last Friday morning when Benj. Carpenter, of Richwood neighborhood, went to his barn he found the lock on the door broken and one of his horses gone. Mr. Carpenter called Sheriff W. D. Cropper, informed him of what had happened and gave him a description of the missing horse. After an hour or so the sheriff succeeded in getting deputy sheriff Tanner of Grant county to the phone in Williamstown to give him a description of the stolen horse, when the Grant county official answered that a man with a horse of that description had left the town about an hour before, and that he would go in pursuit. In about an hour the deputy sheriff called sheriff Cropper and informed him that the man and the horse had been brought back to Williamstown. It was about noon when sheriff Cropper and his deputy L. A. Conner left for Williamstown, stopping at Mr. Carpenter's and taking him with them to identify his horse, which he did, and at six o'clock that evening the prisoner was in jail in Burlington. Pretty quick work.

The prisoner gives his name as Sylvester Welcher, and Casey county, this State as his home, but says he has resided for several months in Covington, where he has a wife and two children. He claims that he started south on a freight train Thursday midnight and got off the train at Dry Ridge, Grant county, where he bought the horse of a man named John Miller for $25, but afterward said he bought the horse of a man named King.

Welcher tried to sell the horse to a Williamstown liveryman for $100 but when the liveryman demanded that he identify himself the trade was off.

The officers claim that Welcher gets his wires crossed in conversation, and they have no confidence in what he says.

At intervals since Welcher was lodged in jail he has been crazy or is playing crazy. He says he is an epileptic, and that he was in the asylum at Lakeland for several months. He knows the name of the superintendent of that institution, and the county attorney has written to Dr. Peddicord to ascertain what, if anything, he knows about Welcher.

Graduating Exercises of Floreuce H. S.

First, a dance was given for their benefit at the Shelby street theater, chaperoned by some of the members of the Mothers' Welfare Club of this place. Next, as a preliminary exercise, Rev. G A. Roger delivered the Baccalaureate address to a large audience at the Baptist church, Sunday May7. His remarks were well received, being broad minded and liberal, closely fitting the channel created by the trend of modern times. On May 11th, at the Christian church the graduating class met, composed of the following pupils: Miss Gertrude Stephens, Charles Corbin, Miss Mary B. Conrad, Miss Pearl Long, Cecil Tanner, Miss Annita Tanner Miss Martha Williams, to receive their diplomas. The pupils certainly rendered their parts well, the girls in particular, after which Supt. W P. King, of the Newport schools, delivered the class address, which was conceded to be the most interesting talk on education ever delivered in the town. You could plainly read between the lines of his beautifully woven paragraphs, "Progression". The trustees did their duty in the exercises, being not so much handicaped as the trustees were 30 years ago, when the trustees purchased a lot and levied a tax to build the first school house in this district. At that time the citizens called an indignation meeting to protest against the first act of progression in this district, and that only thirty years ago. I almost forgot to say the music was furnished by Mr. Albert Metzger, violinist, and Miss Nellie Rouse, pianoist, and it was enjoyed by all.

Fifty-four years ago in this town school exercises were held in the Baptist church and no music was allowed in the building. I don't call it progressing or any thing else. The readers can call it what they like, but it is different now and it may be more different at the end of 50 years from now to you that are living and are liable to eat the goose that eats the grass from our graves. TO COOK MUSHROOMS

METHODS OF PREPARATION THAT ARE ALL DELICIOUS.

Appetizing and Nourishing Food Is Feared by Many Because of Danger From Poisonous Imitations—Some of the Recipes.

Broiled Mushrooms.—Broiled mushrooms are easy to prepare and delicious to eat. Use fresh mushrooms. Trim and peel them and put them in a wire broiler. Broil on each side over a slow fire and serve on thin slices of hot buttered toast.

Deviled Mushrooms.—Deviled mushrooms are not much different from broiled mushrooms; in truth, they are a sort of broiled mushroom. But the slight difference adds to their delicacy. For deviled mushrooms peel and trim the mushrooms and then dip in melted butter. Broil slowly and slip immediately to a hot dish to serve.

Mushrooms au Gratin.—For this very appetizing dish select a dozen big mushrooms, trim and peel them, and separate the tops and stalks. Chop the stalks fine, with two tablespoonfuls of parsley and two tablespoonfuls of fat bacon. Add salt and pepper to taste and two eggs, beaten well. Put the dozen tops of the mushrooms in a buttered baking dish and then add the chopped mixture. Sprinkle the top with fine breadcrumbs and melted butter and bake until brown.

Cream Mushroom Soup.—Peel and trim a pint of mushrooms and boil them gently until very tender with a pint of water. Then rub through a sieve. Mix a pint of boiling water with a pint of hot milk. Rub together a tablespoonful each of butter and flour and with this thicken the milk and water. Season with salt and pepper and a grating of nutmeg and add the mushroom paste just before serving.

Mushrooms for Garnishing.—For garnishing, canned mushrooms answer the purpose very well. Fresh mushrooms should be peeled and trimmed and boiled tender and then used whole or chopped, in gravy or sauce.

Creamed Mushrooms.—Boil the mushrooms until tender, after peeling and trimming neatly. Then make a thick white sauce and add the mushrooms to it. It should be well seasoned and rich.

Mushroom Patties.—Heat patty shells, crisp, rich ones, and have ready creamed mushrooms. Put a tablespoonful of the creamed mushrooms into each hot patty shell and serve.

Mushroom Omelet.—Beat the whites of four eggs stiff and beat the yolks until creamy. Fold together and add a little salt. Pour into a hot omelet pan and cover. Cook slowly. When ready to fold sprinkle half the omelet with a half cupful of minced mushrooms, fold, put in the oven for two minutes and serve.

Mushrooms in Brown Sauce.—Brown two tablespoonfuls of butter with two of flour. Then add a cupful of the water in which mushrooms have been slowly boiled. When thick and smooth season well with salt and pepper and add the mushrooms. Cut small.

Chicken and Mushrooms.—Broiled chicken is delicious with mushrooms. Have ready some creamed mushrooms and put them, in tablespoonfuls, on small pieces of hot buttered toast around the broiled chickens on a platter.

Mushrooms and Sweetbreads.—Mushrooms and sweetbreads are delicious together. Boil the sweetbreads and mushrooms separately and cut into small pieces. Mix with rich cream sauce and serve, seasoned with salt and pepper.

Baking Powder Biscuit.

Sift together two cupfuls flour, one-half teaspoonful salt and four teaspoonfuls baking powder. Cut in (with two knives) two tablespoonfuls butter and wet with about a cupful of milk to make a stiff dough. Turn on well-floured board, pat and roll lightly to an inch thickness and cut with biscuit cutter. Put in buttered pan, let stand ten minutes and bake in hot oven about 20 minutes. When done, brush over with melted butter. They will melt in your mouth.

Cold-Meat Relish.

Take any cold meat, cut into small bits and put a layer in a baking dish, then add a layer of sliced onions, one of tomatoes, more meat, onions and tomatoes. Fill dish in order given, season with salt and pepper, moisten with gravy or stock. Make a crust for top and bake one hour. First half-hour cover with a plate, then uncover to make a rich brown.

Nut Bouchees.

Cut some delicate slices of thin white or brown bread and butter, making them into sandwiches with a thick filling of grated or finely chopped walnut or other kernels moistened with mayonnaise or any suitable sauce, and well seasoned with salt and red pepper; divide into triangles, and garnish with watercress.

SANDWICHES OF MANY KINDS

Some of Them in the Nature of Departure From the Well-Known Fillings Generally Used.

Olive Sandwiches.—Thin slices of bread evenly buttered, cut hexagon shape. Between each two slices place a layer of neufchatel cheese mixed to a paste with equal quantities of cream and salad dressing and covered thickly with chopped olives.

Fig Sandwiches.—Thin slices of bread cut in fancy shapes and buttered, with fig filling between each two. The fig filling should be prepared as follows: One-half pound finely chopped figs, one-third cupful sugar, one-half cupful of boiling water, add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. Mix these ingredients and cook in a double boiler until thick enough to spread.

Chicken Salad Sandwiches.—Between two thin, oblong slices of bread, buttered, place a layer of chicken salad on a lettuce leaf. In making chicken salad for sandwiches chop the chicken and celery much finer than for ordinary purposes.

Ham Sandwiches.—Chop ham very fine and season with mustard, make into a paste with melted butter, spread between two thin slices of bread, thinly buttered.

German Sandwiches.—Mix equal parts of cream cheese and chopped walnut meats with French dressing. Spread between thin slices of bread.

Russian Sandwiches.—Stir grated cheese into mayonnaise and spread between thin crackers.

SOUR BEEF WITH DUMPLINGS

Recipe Which Will No Doubt Find Favor With Anyone Who Is Moved to Try It.

Put three to four pounds of beef (the round is best) in a bowl and pour over it sufficient vinegar to cover. Set aside for 24 hours, turning and basting frequently. Brown two large onions, chopped fine, in two tablespoonfuls butter. Place meat in roasting pan, pour over it the brown onions and the vinegar in which it was soaked; add a few cloves, a blade of mace and a bit of allspice. Bay leaves and lemon peel may be added if desired. When browned and thoroughly cooked the liquor should be strained and thickened either with flour or grated ginger snaps.

Potato Dumplings.—Cream a piece of butter the size of an egg, add yolks of two eggs, half cupful stale bread crumbs and a cupful of cold boiled potatoes; put through the ricer; season with salt and nutmeg, and, lastly, add the beaten whites of the eggs. Make into small dumplings and drop into the boiling liquor in which meat was cooked, and boil, closely covered, for ten minutes.

Noodled Ham.

Make the noodles by beating one egg with a saltspoon of salt till very light. Add as much flour as it will require to make a stiff dough. Roll thin, cut in narrow strips, shake them out, then break or cut in pieces when dry. Put two cupfuls of them in stewpan, cover with boiling water and boil ten minutes. Chop enough boiled ham to make a large cupful. Butter an earthen dish, drain noodles and alternate layer of ham and noodles, with ham for the last layer; beat two eggs, add one cupful of cream or rich milk and pour over top. Cover with layer of crumbs and dots of butter. Bake a delicate brown and serve in dish in which it was baked.

Apple and Honey Pudding.

Four cupfuls raw apple cut in small pieces, two cupfuls bread crumbs, one-half cupful hot water, two teaspoonfuls butter, two teaspoonfuls cinnamon and one-half cupful honey. Put a layer of the apple in a well-buttered pudding dish; then a layer of crumbs. Mix the honey and hot water. Pour part of this over the crumbs, sprinkle with cinnamon and dot with a few bits of butter. Fill the dish with alternate layers of apples, crumbs, honey, etc., having a layer of crumbs on top. Cover and bake 45 minutes. Serve with cream.—Mother's Magazine.

Potato Caramel Cake.

Cream together two cupfuls granulated sugar, two-thirds cupful of butter and yolks four eggs; add one cupful hot mashed potato and one-half cupful of milk, one teaspoonful each clove, cinnamon and nutmeg, one cupful grated chocolate, two teaspoonfuls baking powder in two cupfuls flour, and last stir in lightly the whites of eggs and one cupful broken or chipped English walnuts.

Hot Fricassee.

Cut into small pieces the remains of a roast, either beef, lamb or veal, put into a frying pan, dredge thickly with flour. Season with salt and pepper, cover with cold water and cook gently. Serve very hot with mashed potatoes. At this time of the year potatoes are much nicer mashed or scalloped than boiled. They go farther also.

Chili Salad.

Half a green sweet pepper shredded, one whole tomato skinned and cut in thin slices, half a large cucumber pealed and sliced, French dressing with a drop or two of onion juice. Arrange on a lettuce leaf and serve.

HIGH TEMPERATURE OF MILK

Bitterness Will Not Be In Evidence During Winter If Liquid Is Kept at 50 or 60 Degrees.

Maybe you have had experience with bitter milk and cream in the wintertime and wonder why you are never bothered that way in summer. Is it the feed?

All the changes that occur in milk and cream, such as souring, are due to the action of bacteria—the little microscopic plants that nature has provided to tear down the larger plant and animal tissues. If it were not for bacteria nothing would decay.

But as in the higher plant life we have weeds—so in the microscopic plant life we have weeds—the undesirable bacteria. The lactic acid bacteria that sour milk and cream are beneficial. They can quite readily be controlled so as to be made useful rather than harmful. But there is a class of weed bacteria that causes the milk and cream to become bitter in winter. These weed bacteria only flourish in very low temperatures. They are like some of the snow flowers of the high mountain peaks, resistant to cold.

In summer, and in winter, if the milk and cream are kept at summer temperatures, they are kept in check by the other kinds of bacteria, just as ragweed is kept smothered out by a good growth of clover. In winter when you allow your milk and cream to get clear down to freezing the lactic acid, or souring bacteria, are not growing. The bacteria that cause the bitter flavor have full swing because they flourish in cold milk.

If you want to overcome this bitter flavor all you have to do is to keep the milk and cream at a higher temperature—say around 50 or 60 degrees—and the bitterness will not be in evidence.

MAKING BUTTER AND CHEESE

Culture Starter Mailing Packet and Method for Making It Is Invention of Chicago Man.

In illustrating and describing a culture starter mailing packet and method for making it, invented by B. Barlow of Chicago, the Scientific American says:

REMEDY FOR CHAPPED TEATS

Trouble May Be Slight, or It May Develop Into Deep, Gaping Sores—Use Vaseline.

Chapped teats may be caused by anything that irritates them, as, for example, the sudden chilling of the teat in winter after the calf has just let go, milking with wet hands, or contact with cold, dirty water. The trouble may be slight, or it may develop into deep, gaping sores.

The use of vaseline at the first sign of the trouble will usually check and cure it. If the teats are badly chapped, thorough washing in warm water, followed by application of glycerite of tannin or equal parts of spermaceti and oil of sweet almonds is to be recommended.

"Forewarned is Forearmed."

The milk strike has taught the dairymen of the Middle West a lesson in true preparedness. A great deal of loss could have been prevented had the farmers been provided with separators for emergency use. Butter fat fed to the pigs is practically lost. But, when the milk is separated, the cream sold and the "skim" fed to the stock, the dairymen often realizes more than from selling the whole milk.

Quarantine regulations, storms and other unavoidable occurrences often cause severe loss to shippers of whole milk. But, the dairy man who owns a good separator is always prepared to "cash in" on his whole milk right at home.

Careful investigations have shown that in many sections the price paid for whole milk is only a trifle more than the cream alone would bring. Milk must be delivered at the station daily while three times a week is sufficient for cream in summer, and in winter once or twice a week will suffice.

The skim milk can be kept at home for feeding the calves and pigs. And, we are told on good authority that 100 pounds of skim milk equals in feeding value one-half bushel of corn. In this way the fertility can be kept on the farm, since practically no plant food is removed, when the cream alone is sold.

Think this over. Perhaps after all, the milk strike was a blessing in disguise which will lead you to adopt a more profitable and satisfactory method of selling your milk. A nice herd of young shoats and a thrifty bunch of calves will do much toward starting you upon the up-hill road toward prosperity.

Now, a word about selecting the separator. It should have a high skimming efficiency, whether turned fast or slow—skim to a trace or leave not more than .02 per cent. of butter fat. This is more important than you may realize because neither the "hired man" nor yourself can turn always at the speed stamped upon the crank. Hence, get a separator that will skim clean even if you don't turn it at the right speed all the time.

There are also many advantages in buying a separator that delivers cream of uniform desity, even though the speed of the crank be varied from time to time. You can then estimate very closely what your cream check will be; and the butter will be of a better and more even quality. Experts recommend a cream density of not less than 30 per cent.

Of course, the separator should be durable. It should last for a dozen years or more. Other factors to be considered are ease in cleaning and simplicity of construction. The fewer parts there are in the separator bowl, the better for you.

Get a good separator and either use it regularly and sell your cream or else keep the separator in readiness for emergency use. It may save you a lot of loss and will give you a feeling of independence.

Hart Wallace lost a valuable Jersey cow that he purchased a short time ago at a sale in the county from an unusual cause last week. The animal had been sick for two weeks or more, but the veterinary called in to attend her was unable to diagnose her ailment. The animal continued to grow worse and Mr. Wallace decided that it would be best to put her to death and end her suffering. He phoned the veterinary to come out and kill the cow and hold a post mortem. The animal died before the veterinary reached the farm, but the examination of her carcass revealed a piece of wire about five inches long in her heart. The wire was of the kind and size used to bale hay and the animal had evidently eaten the wire with hay and it had gradually worked into the heart. She was perfectly healthy except for the wire in the vital organ.—Shelby News.

What is believed to be the first time on record of a hen laying an egg in midair was the unusual accomplishment of a brown leghorn in the express office at Graham. The hen was confined in a coop of chickens. After the coop had been placed on a truck the brown leghorn escaped and while flying dropped a snow-white egg into space. John Jones, a colored roustabout, who was pursuing the hen, caught the egg as it dropped.—Mayfield Times.

HORSES WELL MATCHED

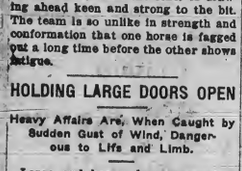
Skill and Judgment Required to Bring Them Together.

Color and Markings Are Not the Only Desirable Characteristics—Strong, Clean Movements Attract a Purchaser.

Matching horses is an art and it requires some skill and judgment to bring together a pair of horses that resemble each other in all the characteristics sufficiently to work in harmony. In order to do this successfully it is necessary to have more than the color of the animals in mind. While it is desirable to have a team of horses closely alike in color and markings, these are not the only characteristics.

Action comes first when considering matching of horses. Proper action, strong, clean, vigorous movements of the feet and legs attract a buyer more quickly than anything else. Style is required in the action of any class of horses. Snappy, straight and balanced movement of the motive apparatus, each animal standing up to the bit in about the same way, makes an attractive team, and is pleasing to the eyes of the buyer and of the man who drives it.

In a farm team strength and conformation might possibly be placed before action, at any rate it should come second. A team ill matched in regard to strength and staying powers is a mighty poor asset, as far as a team is concerned. In selecting horses to work against each other in a team it is important to get them in general conformation as nearly alike as possible, good and strong behind, and muscled well in the back and loin, short and thick in the middle, with muscles—not fat—beneath the hide.



Size to a certain extent may be sacrificed for strength and conformation, but only within certain limits. A difference of 100 pounds or so in weight does not matter much when a pair is being matched up, but if much more than that, the difference in size will be too clear and detract from the value of the team. Size is an important matter, but it comes after strength, and conformation follows action in relative importance.

Color comes last of all in the major points to be taken into consideration. A difference in color, however marked, is among the least objectionable features of a team. Yet, strangely, some horses are matched up so unlike in action and temperament that the whiffletree of one is always scouring the wagon wheel, while the other is drawing ahead keen and strong to the bit. The team is so unlike in strength and conformation that one horse is fagged out a long time before the other shows fatigue.

Large and heavy doors are, when caught by sudden gusts of wind, about as dangerous as anything around the establishment. A good many ways are employed to hold them open, but a strong wind readily tears a heavy door free from its anchor.

The illustration shows how a cheap, practical and simple lock-open arrangement can be made from a piece of seven-eighths or one-inch round iron. It is capable of holding a door of considerable size open, no matter how strongly the wind blows, and on account of its shape it will not break loose.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

AVOID OLD ASPARAGUS ROOTS

Important That Soil for Plant Be Well Drained—Set "Pips" Six Inches Below the Surface.

Never plant old asparagus roots or try to divide them. Plant the "pips" instead. Set plants about six inches below the level of the ground in furrows. Put well-rotted manure in the furrows and mix with the soil. The first year level and cultivate the ground. The second year put on a good coat of manure early in the spring, then harrow and cultivate between the rows. It is important that soil for asparagus be well drained.

EARLY POTATOES IN GARDEN

Seed Brought to Light and Allowed to Sprout Make Short, Sturdy Plants —Set Carefully.

Potatoes brought out to the light and allowed to sprout may be used to produce early potatoes in the garden to go with the early peas. Potatoes sprouted in this way make short, sturdy sprouts. It is well to cut the potatoes in halves the long way and set out carefully with the cut side down. Do not break the sprouts off but set out with care as you would in transplanting and you will be rewarded with very early new potatoes.

Whitesburg, May 15.—Authentic reports received here from the Cumberland River and Cumberland Mountain sections, east of here is to the effect that a large number of men are in the mountains fighting back the flames from destructive forest fires, which have been burning for two or three days, due to the continued drouth prevailing in the mountains, the worst in many years. It is believed the fires caught from farmers carelessly burning stubble and logs in the settlements. Thousands of dollars' worth of fine young timber is daily going up in smoke. Other sections of the mountains are having much less serious forest fires.

DEFINITION OF PERFECT SOIL.

Sand, Clay, Lime and Organic Matter Are Named as Necessary Ingredients by Ohio Experts.

Prof. Alfred Vivian, head of the department of agricultural chemistry of Ohio State university, defines a perfect soil as "one which contains the ingredients in perfect proportions; sand, to enable it to absorb air and moisture in proper amounts and to render it warm and friable; clay to keep it cool, and prevent a too rapid leaching or evaporation of water; lime, to assist in the decay of vegetable matter, and organic matter to retain the best amount of moisture and to furnish material for the various chemical processes [illegible] going on as good soil."

A Great Outpouring.

On April 3d an intimation was given out that the Fiscal Court of Jefferson county would, on the following day, and, probably adversely, on the County Agent proposition, not that there has been even the slightest fault found with our agricultural adviser, but as a matter of economy of the court. The farmers of the county got the wind of it and on April 4th the court room was packed full of the best men in Jefferson to protest against the movement. Two hundred and fifty farmers encored each speaker in favor of continuing our demonstration work—and there was not a single voice against it—so the work was unanimously endorsed and voted for. Kentucky Farming not only is gratified at the action of our Fiscal Court and the co-operation of our farmers, but we want to see the scope of our county demonstration enlarged and extended. To make it more effective, Mr. Merriman should have an assistant, the county is large and thickly populated and the work would keep two good men busy all the time. Hundreds of farmers were present eager to tell of the benefit that Mr. Merriman had been to them, and, in the face of this great outpouring, the Fiscal Court was pleased to get off as easy as it did. Our editor wishes to say that Merriman's fitness for the work and his personality have won him hundreds of friends, because he is helping them to solve the problems of farming, better education for the children, better roads and improved home conditions.—Kentucky Farming.

Quit Waisting Good Manure.

Every forkful of manure should go back to the soil. Farmers back East are paying out at the rate of $2.50 for the sacked condensed plant food equal to that contained in one ton of manure—and are getting no humus-forming material either.

We are heading for their fix fast unless we quit wasting the manure. The manure from one cow is worth anyway $20 a year. Why throw it away? It would be just as logical to dump the cream into the creek.

Corn planted now is expected to come up and make a rapid growth

Plant Bed Notes.

Plants are exceptionally fine in Fleming county.

Some complaints of bugs in Graves county, but prospects are good for sufficient plants.

Since the rain young tobacco plants in Montgomery county, Tenn., are growing rapidly and seem to be plentiful.

There is every prospect that the new crop will be one of the largest ever planted in Christian county. Plants are plentiful and look fine.

An abundance of plants growing nicely, in fact doing better than any other young stuff on the farm is the report from Clark county.

From most every part of the Burley tobacco district of Kentucky, reports indicate that tobacco plant beds are in excellent condition and that plants are plentiful.

The reports from Nicholas county show that the tobacco plants are presenting an unusually good prospect for this season of the year, considering that they were planted late in the spring.

Tobacco plants are doing well, and practically no complaint is heard in Montgomery-co. Some tobacco growers claim that they have plants now as large as a half dollar, and that with good warm sunshine and seasonable weather that many of the growers will put out their fields late in this month. The largest portion of the crop, however, will be transplanted early in June as is customary.

Regardless of the large hemp acreage planted in Clark county, there will be some Burley grown. Some of the land is being plowed and will later be worked into order. The plants are growing fast and there is every indication that there will be lots of plants at the right time to set the crop. One of the draw-backs for several years past has been the scarcity of good healthy plants at setting time causing a good part of the crop to be late.

Speaking of the result of the recent vote on the road bond issue in this county, an exchange says: "This is a great victory for the spirit of progress in Boone county and its people are to be congratulated on the uplift movement."

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good. I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its tiring me, and am doing my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of wonderful success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. SEEKING TO ADJUST THE TELEPHONE TROUBLES.

Special from Warsaw:

E. C. Riley, of Burlington, and C. C. Sleet, of Beaver, representing the directors of the Consolidated Telephone Company, together with a number of former subscribers, held a meeting at the Walton Bank & Trust Co. building, last Friday, to ascertain as to whether the aforesaid subscribers had a just cause for complaint or Dr. M. C. Crouch, the president and general manager, was to blame. N. E. Westlake, Commercial Superintendent of the Cincinnati and Suburban Telephone Company was present to learn the particulars relative to the grievance and to protect the company's interest. Edgar C. Riley, of Burlington, was made chairman of the meeting. After hearing the evidence on both sides and several speeches were made the meeting adjourned and the directors are to meet at Union in the near future and take action calculated to adjust the differences at least in part if not fully between the subscribers who have grievances and Doctor Crouch.

Most of the trouble was produced by the arbitrary methods employed by Dr Crouch in the management of the business, his desire being to pull the company out of debt and put it on a good paying basis caused him to do some things that were resented by some of the subscribers and there is an opinion that he should not be so exacting, as it would have paid better to have been more reasonable. However, to give the devil his dues (and we do not mean to say that Dr. Crouch is the devil, but we are merely using a quotation) it can be said that Dr Crouch has accomplished much for the company, getting it out of debt and paying off $3000 of its bonded indebtedness and putting the service in excellent condition. The bonded indebtedness of the company was $8 000 when he took charge and he has reduced it to $5,000 and if he would not suffer his zeal for his company to cause him to give the patrons a proper consideration there would be very little complaint.

A New Ruling at Frankfort.

Frankfort, May 15.—County Superintendents in the future will not be permitted to "carry any side lines." State Superintendent Gilbert said to day that it has come to his ears that some superintendents are not devoting their whole time and energies to school affairs, but are engaged in private enterprises. He said that investigations will be made and those who are not devoting their entire time to the interests of the schools will be required to resign or give up their outside business.

He also stated that County Superintendent R. J. McDannell, of Gallatin county, has restored to the county school fund $903 in conformity with the order of the State Board of Education and made bond. Inspector M. F. Pogue reported that McDannell owed the fund that amount, and as a result of his failure to make bond, railroads were refusing to pay traded school taxes. The board directed State Superintendent Gilbert to institute proceedings to remove McDanell unless he made restitution and gave bond.

Burlington Officered.

Last Tuesday the County Court appointed the following board of trustees for the town of Burlington:

Dr. E W. Duncan.
Newton Sullivan, jr.,
Dr. M. A. Yelton,
O. P Phipps,
J. M Eddins.

They are known as progressives, and there is no doubt what there will be an effort to make some improvements in the sidewalks and the main streets of the town half an early date, and a local bond proposition may be proposed as the (with ns for raising money for the purpose.

Our Schools in Early Days.

Interesting light was thrown on the history of education in Kentucky last night by Mrs. Mattie Black Tucker, principal of the Washington School, who read the principal paper before the Filson Club, which met at the main library. The title of her treatise was, "The Development of Education In Kentucky."

"One feature of the early history of Kentucky was the establishment of schools thruout the country, as it was then," Mrs. Tucker said. As early as 1787 the "Kentucky Society for the Promotion of Knowledge" was spoken of in the Kentucky Gazette. The first school in the State, she said, was at Harrodsburg, established by a Mrs. Coombs, wife of a settler. It was for boys only. The first school offering a grammar education for girls was established in the fall of 1806 at Paris by the Rev. John Lile, a Presbyterian minister. "This was the first female seminary in the West, and perhaps in the entire United States," Mrs. Tucker said. "It was closed in 1810 because of objection to the reading of the Bible."

Loretta Academy and Nazareth Academy were the next schools founded, Mrs. Tucker asserted, and each filled an important mission from its inception.

The first show ever exhibited in Louisville was on April 28, 1809, Mrs. Tucker said, and produced a general uprising in the school by pupils demanding a holiday. They barred entrance via doors and windows and when the professor climbed down the chimney they made a quick fire of dry leaves. The professor was compelled to go home to doctor his wounds, hence the pupils had the entire day and several succeeding days to themselves.

Transylvania Seminary was established in 1783 and it became Transylvania University in 1789, the first university in the West. The first law school in the West was established there in 1799 and Col. George Nicholas was the first professor. The first colored school was in 1825, the masters paying all tuition, and the first colored school in Louisville was some time later at Hancock and Walnut streets. Centre College was established in 1819 and Georgetown College in 1829.

In 1838 the first law was enacted for the establishment of general system of common schools in Kentucky. Louisville was the first town in the general education of all her children. This step was taken June 5th, 1829, when the Mayor and Council voted free education. The first free school was at Fifth and Walnut streets.

Beginning with the first free school at Fifth and Walnut streets Mrs. Tucker traced the history of education in Kentucky to the present day.

The Rev. Dr. Ignatius Mueller, during the general discussion, praised the Kentucky educational system, saying the State, in his opinion, had been the most liberal in the Union. He said he was glad Louisville had so many beautiful and costly schoolhouses, but that he would rather see a few humbler buildings and better salaries paid to the teachers, not only in this city, but over the entire country. He regretted that the average salary of teachers was only $300 a year.

The New York World is still insisting on the proposition that the Republicans should also nominate President Wilson. Among other things, it says: "Many Republican newspapers have jeered mightily at The World's suggestion that the Republicans also nominate President Wilson, and profess to find weighty reasons of principle which make it impossible even if it were otherwise practicable. Yet some of these newspapers are actually advocating the nomination of Roosevelt, with all that that implies. Whatever difference may exist between the Democratic party and the Republican party in respect to principles of government, those differences are trivial in comparison with the differences that exist between the Republican party and the Progressive party, whose creed is the Roosevelt creed. As for the nominal differences between the Democratic and Republican parties, there is not one of them today that is vital. There is not a legitimate partisan issue between them except the tariff, which is dead. There is no partisan question in Mexico. There is no partisan question in foreign relations. There is no partisan question in preparedness. There is no partisan question in the Philippines, or the shipping bill or rural credits, or in any of the other things which professional politicians strain to twist into partisan issues. Even in respect to the tariff the nominal dispute between Democrats and Republicans is no more acute than the dispute between Republicans and Republicans and Democrats and Democrats. The main trouble with the Republican party at this time is that it has no principles and no issues that relate to actual conditions of government, and does not know where to find them. It is passing through a period of readjustment, and all the claim it can make to power is the egotistical assertion that while there may be no party issue, Republicans are ipso facto smarter than Democrats and so ought to govern. No opposing party ever overturned a national administration on such a platform, and we doubt if one ever will. The World has pointed out a way by which the Republican party could render a noble, patriotic service to the United States and also rehabilitate [illegible] The only obstacle [illegible] out of that segg[illegible] partisan[illegible] to put it[illegible] [illegible] ties Park [illegible] three years [illegible] always been [illegible] the big coll[illegible] occasions

KENTUCKY CROPS.

Officially Reported To Be in Exceptionally Fine Condition.

Frankfort, May 10.—Reports to Commissioner of Agriculture Cohen from the hemp-growing districts show an increased acreage planned for this crop over what has been raised for the past years. These reports say that about one-fourth of the sowing is completed.

The original acreage of wheat sown last fall is given as 93 per cent of a normal crop, 85 per cent of it was left standing May 1, and the condition of this crop is given at 83 per cent.

The original acreage of rye sown was 93 per cent, with 79 per cent standing April 25. Its condition is 90 per cent. Much of the rye was plowed up this spring.

The acreage planned for burley tobacco is given at 91 per cent, with a condition of the plant beds at 81 per cent. The dark tobacco acreage planned is 86 per cent. The condition of the plant beds is given at 90 per cent. Tobacco plants are reported plentiful, but are small, and there is some complaint of bugs.

The pastures are in an unusually good condition, with the exception of old clover. Much of that is reported as being winter killed. The present clover conditions are 87 per cent, blue grass 90 per cent, alfalfa 88 per cent and orchard grass 92 per cent.

Commissioner Cohen says the out look for good crops is favorable.

HIGHLY ENJOYED

Was the Entertainment Given by The Pupils of Woolper School.

Thursday afternoon May 11th, Miss Pauline Kelly closed a very successful term of school at Woolper. The plays and recitations by the pupils showed skillful drilling and preparation on the part of their teacher.

In "No Girls Admitted" the pupils each handled their parts fine.

We must not forget "Grandma" and "Deaf Uncle Zed," in "Deaf Uncle Zed," for they surely acted their parts to perfection.

Mention must also be made of Dr. Brown His medicine seemed to cure all the dolly's ailments, so all the little mothers were happy.

Lastly "The Flower Drill," by eight of the young pupils, was acted out so nicely. It showed very careful training.

A great number of patrons and visitors were present to enjoy the afternoon and all were sorry when the exercises were over.

Miss Kelly is a very talented young lady and endeared herself in the heart of every child and her efforts have certainly been crowned with success, for nearly, if not all, were promoted to a higher grade. She certainly did her part to make the school a success, and all who we have heard say, want her to come back and continue the good work again next term.

Here's wishing her success in any line of work she may undertake. A Patron.

What Democrats Have Done.

Says Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, former Republican Secretary of the Treasury.

"I have no hesitancy in admitting grave doubts whether the Republican party can, even if it should try, and also whether it ought to try to defeat the party now in power upon an issue of excoriation because it has failed to accomplish in four years what we failed to do in forty years. If we have a small and inadequate army and navy, the Republican party is 80 per cent responsible for its inefficiency, for the Republican party has been in power 80 per cent of the last half century. If our coast defenses are silly, I submit it does not lie in the mouth of the Republican party to say much about it. Let the next administration be a business administration, and while preparing for peace let it also do what we all agree should be done—prepare for eventualities that may ensue."—Indianapolis News.

Nashville, Tenn., May 12.—W. W. Darden, race horse owner, was awarded $40,000 damages against the Adams Express Company today in the Federal Court. Darden asked $50,000 for the loss of five race horses killed in a wreck near Cincinnati during the big storm last summer.

Local Happenings.

Sunday was a summer day.

W. L. Kirkpatrick has kept his truck rolling since he put it on the road.

The High Schools of the county have brought forth a good sized crop of graduates this year.

Judge Cason had a jury in his court one day the past week on which were two doctors and a lawyer.

Part of the time last week James E. Smith had ten horses in harness preparing the ground and planting corn. With that kind of an outfit it does not take long to plant a considerable acreage.

Union was the banner precinct in the matter of the bond issue voted on the 9th inst., voting over seven to one in favor of it, and the people over there are very proud of their performance.

Business at the local creamery has been increasing in a very satisfactory manner the past several weeks, and there is a strong probability that Mr. Huey, the lessee, will do well with the business.

Snow balls bloomed last week and immediately it turned cold and began raining. Blackberry bloom followed closely after the snow ball consequently the remainder of this month may be off in weather.

The work of reconstructing the Burlington and Florence turnpike is making rapid progress. It will be a splendid stretch of road when completed, and, no doubt, would be made more substantial were it given a good coat of oil.

The bridge that spans Gunpowder creek near Geo. E. Rouse's gate on the Burlington and Florence pike was out of commission a day or two last week and traffic had to go around it. The bridge was receiving a new floor.

Fred Bentler, of Erlanger, was in town, last Friday, representing the Chattfield & Woods large paper house in Cincinnati. He will be pleased to have Boone county merchants who handle school supplies give him their orders.

Supt. Riley spent part of last week piloting a traction engine that was drawing a gang of plows on his farm below Petersburg, Thursday night he delivered an educational address at Florence High School Commencem ent.

When it came to voting on the cow-up proposition in the Petersburg precinct B. H. Berkshire was a stupendous failure, but on the bond issue he guessed exactly the number of votes that would be cast "Yes" and the number that would be recorded "No."

The graduation of common school pupils is having its effect in this county in increasing the interest in the country schools. Year by year the number of graduates increases, while the teachers are prompted to more industry and better work in the school room.

Cattle seem to be bloating worse than usual this spring, and much trouble because of it is being experienced all over the State and many cattle have died of it. Very often an animal is found dead in the pasture before the owner is aware that it is in trouble.

The Democrats of the county should bear in mind that a county convention will be held in the court house next Saturday afternoon to select delegates to attend the State convention to be held in Lexington on the 24th inst., to choose delegates to the National convention, and attend to other business of the party.

The State Board of Valuations and Assessment has assessed the capital stock of banks at 100 per cent and the surplus and other assets at 80 per cent. Last year the capital stock was assessed at 80 per cent. If all other taxable property in the State was assessed as near its full value the State debt would be wiped out in one year.

Erlanger will soon acquire two of Idlewild's most esteemed citizens, Courtney Walton and R. C. Gaines. In this instance Erlanger's gain will be Idlewild and Boone county's loss. In a few years, the way things are going, there will be enough Boone county people residing in Erlanger to have it annexed to Boone county.

Mrs. Jane Craven, 82, widow of the late John Craven, was before Judge Cason and a jury, last Friday, for the purpose of determining as to whether she was in a condition to look after her business affairs. The jury decided that she was not and her nephew, James M. Craven, was appointed a committee to take charge of and look after her estate.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Hensley, residing in North Conde street, welcomed a sweet baby daughter to their home Sunday evening and they are of the opinion and quite properly that the newcomer is a veritable May queen. Rev. H. B. Hensley, pastor of the Baptist church, is the proud grandfather and he imparted the news of the arrival with a pardonable pride. The many friends of the family extend good wishes for the parents and their little one. —Tipton Ind., Times.

FORTY YEARS AGO TO-DAY.

From the Recorder of Forty Years Ago.

The bridge near town on the Belleview road is in a very dangerous condition.

John O. Campbell has gone to Big Bone to take charge of the hotel.

Rev. I. B. Grandy will preach at the Universalist church next Sunday.

The cut worm has begun its work of devastation.

The county clerk is copying the assessor's book for the auditor.

The notorious Terrill prosecution for the killing of Harvey Myers, which was taken from this to Grant county will be sent back to this county for trial again at the next term of the criminal court

The pavement about the court house is now completed, and, likely, this is the last link in the chain of repairs the building and the grounds will receive.

Waterloo—Corn is coming up slowly. The fly and the dry weather are injuring the tobacco plants. Fruit is falling off badly.

Plattsburg—Corn planting has come to a halt because of the bad condition of the land. Chas. Finn gave an unexpected performance with his trick mule a few days ago.

Beaver—There yet remains an average amount of fruit. There was a grand hop at Jas. McCabe's recently. Sorry to hear that Thomas Baker has abandoned his old home and sought refuge elsewhere.

Shows Twenty Medicinal Properties.

The Recorder has on its table a copy of the prospectus of The Big Bone Springs Hotel and Water Company. The prospectus carries a quality analysis of Big Bone Springs water, showing that it contains twenty medicinal properties, the sulphates predominate while there is iron in abundance. The following three paragraphs are copied from the descriptive part of the prospectus:

"Nature never endowed more bountifully any one spot with an abundance of health-giving waters, beautiful landscape scenery, hills attaining mountainous proportions and wide fertile valleys, than she did Big Bone Springs. Centuries before the advent of white man in this section of the world, prehistoric animals thru that wondrous instinct possessed by all animals for the self-cure of their ailments, were drawn by the thousands to this spot to drink of these medicinal waters.

"In 1739 the first white man (a representative of the French Government) visited the Springs and found the valley around them literally covered with the bones of the Mastodon, Elephant, Buffalo and other prehistoric animals. In 1830 an entire skeleton of a Mastodon was exhumed and purchased by the British Museum, where it is now on exhibition.

"Beginning early in the nineteenth century and continuing until about fifteen years ago, Big Bone Springs was the most famous health resort and gathering place for the social elect of the Southern States, but owing to poor transportation facilities and continued litigation over boundary lines and titles to property the hotel was abandoned. The titles to all the property have now been cleared by the Courts, turnpikes have been built leading into the Springs and it is now only a matter of a pleasant hour's ride by automobile from Cincinnati.

It Can Be Done in Boone.

A man who owns fifty acres of land in the sweet clover county of Pendleton, and three good cows and a cream separator and a bunch of chickens, can keep his family and have a net income of $500 a year, besides the increase in value and productiveness of the land. If you don't think it is the truth, try it, and put your labor and brains in it and see the results.—Falmouth Outlook.

It can be done in Boone county as well as in Pendleton county. All that is needed on the part of the man is brains and industry.

Will Have to Brace Up.

The Burlington base ball team went over to Hebron, last Saturday afternoon, and got a drubbing it will not forget this season. It was out classed all around by the Hebronites who were generous enough to let them collect four runs while they made four. Hebron has secured the services of a pitcher who had so much on his balls that the Burlington batters saw one only occasionally last Saturday. Bell struck out 15 men and allowed 4 hits, while Tolin and Huey struck out 12 men and allowed seven hits. Hebron will come to Burlington next Saturday afternoon to repeat the dose they administered last Saturday, but Burlington will endeavor to brace up.

Why Should He Worry?

One evening last week Dr. Yelton received a draft for $75 from a bank with which he did business while residing in Bracken county. Accompanying the draft was a letter from the cashier of the bank explaining that several years ago the doctor made a deposit of $75 which was placed to the credit of another depositor, and that the mistake was discovered but recently, hence the draft and the doctor is $75 better off and is not at all worried about the mistake having been discovered and corrected.

Recipe for Bloat.

Seeing that many of the farmers of Boone county are losing cattle from bloat, I will send you for their use and benefit the following recipe given to me about twenty years ago by J. W. Hogan, which I tried and which saved a very fine cow for me. "Fill about half full an ordinary meal sack with common salt; wet, and lay it across the loins of the cow and watch the swelling disappear and the animal relieved."

Gregory-Riggs Marriage.

Miss Katherine M. Gregory and Mr. Charles H. Riggs were united in marriage May 3, 1916. The former is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gregory, of Patriot, Ind. The latter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Riggs, of Rising Sun, Ind. They were married at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Lowe, in Patriot. Their many friends extend congratulations and the very best wishes to both the young people.

Would Open a Good Section.

The proposed change in the road leading up Gunpowder creek from Limaburg was surveyed by a State road man last week. If a pike is built to fill the gap between Limaburg and the Anderson Ferry pike it will accommodate a considerable section of country that is now handicapped by a bad road.

A Heavy Burden.

The improvement of the Lexington pike through the town of Erlanger will prove a considerable burden on a few people, if the abutting lot owners are required to put up the necessary funds. It looks like the entire town and the county as well should bear a portion of the cost of that improvement.

Getting Worse.

The condition of the four main streets in Burlington will probably be allowed to get considerably worse before anything is done to improve them. The longer they are neglected the more expensive will be the repairs which are bound to come. There is no economy in delaying the work.

Will Make Dirt Fly.

As soon as the corn is planted dirt will be made fly on the Hopeful pike. The distance the company will build is not yet determined as the trustees of the church have granted the company the privilege of building across the land owned by the church.

The work of constructing concrete sidewalks in Burlington will commence in a few weeks, and how far it will progress is problematical.

have to say about cream separators this week

IT will be worth your while to find out what some of your neighbors who use De Laval Cream Separators think of their machines before you buy any separator.

About the best thing we can say for the De Laval is that all the farmers around here who use it are boosters.

It does good work for them and pleases them, and we know it will please you.

Make it a point to ask your neighbor about his De Laval

There are nearly two million satisfied De Laval users throughout the world. More De Laval Separators are in use than all other makes combined. It isn't the cheapest, but the majority of separator users have found out by experience that it is the best and by far the most economical separator to own.

We want to tell you about an arrangement we have whereby you can make partial payment at time of purchase and pay the balance on such liberal terms that the De Laval will save its cost while you are paying for it.

Come in and see us the first time you have a chance and talk it over.

Sooner or later you will buy a DE LAVAL

FERTILITY OF SOIL AND KEEPING STOCK

Close Relationship Demonstrated at Experiment Stations and By the Farmers.

The problem of the American farmer today is how to conserve the fertility of the soil and yet insure a reasonable income. In considering changing from grain farming to the raising of live stock, the farmer asks himself if this change has been successful in maintaining soil fertility. From the New England states westward to the Dakotas, he sees a trail of once-depleted soils reclaimed by substituting dairying and stock farming for exclusive grain farming. The result of profitable systems of live stock farming on even the poorest of soils is to be seen in Holland. Denmark is another example of a country whose soils were becoming depleted by wheat producing but where a system of live-stock production conserved the soil fertility.

Permanent success from exclusive grain farming has not yet been demonstrated, so modern farm practice is showing the importance of the development of animal husbandry. The close relation between the fertility of the soil and keeping of live stock is demonstrated at experiment stations and by the successful farmer. Productiveness of the acre of land is the main factor for which the farmer is everywhere striving. Because the productiveness of the land is maintained and often increased is sufficient reason for the keeping of animals on the farm, not even taking the increased profit from the live-stock farm.

Farm manure is now, and always has been, the greatest available resource for maintaining soil fertility on the typical middle-West farms. Generally speaking, the most prosperous farms of this section today are those on which live stock is a large, if not a chief, factor in production.

While the practice of plowing under clover and that of adding the humus or vegetable matter to the soil will unquestionably keep up the humus or vegetable matter supply, such materials are too valuable for the nutrition of animals to be thus employed.

At the Missouri agricultural experiment station for two years the average income of clover pastured off with hogs amounted to $40 per acre.

All such materials, as stover, hay, straw and grass can be profitably marketed through animals and at least 50 per cent of their soil-building value saved, and at the same time a considerable profit from feeding the animals.

Want to Change Allegiance.

The news from Vienna that 50,000 of the Russians who were taken prisoners by the Austrians, and who have been at work as prisoners for many months on farms in Austria, have signed a memorial to the Government of Francis Joseph asking that they be permitted to remain in Austria at the close of the war and become subjects of the Austrian Emperor, is not surprising when a person stops to consider and compare the conditions of farm laborers in Russia with those of the same class of workers in Austria and Germany.

It can then be well understood why 200,000 other Russians held as prisoners are eagerly awaiting a favorable reply of the Austrian Government to the signed memorial of the 50,000, which, as soon as received, will be the signal for the applications of the 200,000 to be signed and forwarded.

The knout and autocracy once escaped from the poorer classes subject to the Czar will be avoided for all the time of their future lives by those who have at one time been their victims.

The news item from Vienna as to these prisoners, so desirous of becoming subjects of Austria rather than return to their native Russia at the close of the war, gives no intimation of their races or of their religious beliefs, which may possibly be factors in their action of petitioning to be allowed to remain in Austria.

Numbers of them may be Hebrews, and, if so, the world will readily understand why even monarchial Austria would be a veritable land of liberty to the men of this persecuted race.

The Russians have not failed to have the Hebrews fully represented in the armies of the Czar called upon to war on Germany and Austria, and no intelligent person but will be surprised if even 10 per cent of the Hebrews from Russia who are taken prisoners by either Turks, Bulgarians or the soldiers of the Central Powers ever return to the yoke of the Czar.

Numbers of these prisoners may be Poles—liberty loving Poles—with hatred of Russia and the fervor of Catholicism in their hearts, and far more in harmony, politically and religiously, with the people of Austria than with the Russians of Russia proper or the Tartars of the Ukraine.

However, this may be, it seems very probable that through these Russian desertions the agricultural districts of Austria, and probably those of Germany, will make up to some degree the numbers of men the prime of life who have been sacrificed in this regrettable war.—Enquirer.

House and Senate conferees on the Army Bill agreed on a standing army of 286,000 men, capable of being expanded to 254,000 and backed by a federalized national guard of 454,000 A report to Congress will be made early, and passage of the bill will be the first of President Wilson's preparedness programme.

Special Notice.

The Farmers' Mutual Telephone Directory says, I handle any kind of rubber tire; and that I have the exclusive agency of the Republic Rubber Tires. That contract just cost me $200 of which of some of my customers will attest. I guaranteed those tires and I filled same to the letter. Now, right here I do most solemnly resign and swear that I will never again change the old and tried for any new thing whatsoever. Furthermore, that I will not use any Rubber Tire except Kelly's Springfield—the first rubber tire ever made and the best. ought to know for surely I paid last year to find out. It is just like a boy changing the old girl for the new or a man leaving his aid and tried wife for a new one. Now, isn't it a fact that they always go back to the old and tried love, is it not so boys? That's what I have done with Kelly's Springfield Rubber Tire—gone back to my old love. While they cost me more money they will cost my customers $12.00 per set or $3.00 per tire; these tires I give a guarantee on for being as represented. They will not stuff out nor will they peel, but will wear smooth like a good tire should.

Now, in regards to repainting: I have tried to get a quick system and do good work, but I find it a failure so I give it up and must stick to the old system. All my work I guarantee to be as represented. I do anything in the carriage line. Bring me your work if you want it done right. I solicit your trade.

Walter Winans is a solid chestnut sorrel; 16 hands high; weighs 1,250 pounds; disposition is perfect; his colts are uniformly good size and color, and the only one that has been raced has a race record of 2:11.

Walter Winans' breeding is fashionable, and is in line with the greatest sires in the world, being a half brother to the Great Crescius, 2:02½ and the fine breeder, Wilstar 2:17½, whose colts always sold for high prices throughout Indiana and Kentucky.

Walter Winans sired by Robert McGregor 647, dam Rilee, (dam of Kate Ham 2:28¼, etc.) by Hotspur, Jr., 3612; g-dam Tugles by Mambrino Gift 584, etc. (See Rilee Vol. 13) bred by Geo. H. Ketcham, the owner and breeder of the celebrated Crescius. Robert McGregor was sired by Major Edsall, 2:11, dam Nancy Whitman.

Colts from Walter Winans from good mares will be large, and if not great trotters, will make fine road horses.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents but we will not be responsible should any occur.

DAIRY

PREPARING A DAIRY HEIFER

Kindness and Gentle Handling Will Remedy Kicking Habit—Halter-break While Young.

You must have foresight in preparing the dairy heifer for her first milking period. If you handle the udder and teats so as to develop the udder, do this at least twice a week for six or eight weeks before calving, the heifer will then be quiet and gentle and will not be afraid when her udder is touched after she has calved. Also her udder will be developed so that it will almost resemble a cow's udder.

It is natural for the cow to stand while being milked, consequently the heifer knows nothing about kicking until hurt or frightened into it. It is a good plan to halterbreak a heifer when she is young, always being careful not to hurt or frighten her. If by accident anything should be done to cause the heifer to kick it is not the part of wisdom to punish her for kicking.

Kindness and gentle handling is the only remedy. If one lets his reasoning for the cause be based upon the principle that she never kicked until she was injured, the remedy will at once suggest itself. No cow was ever broken of kicking by striking with the stool or anything else. That practice only puts the cow on her guard, and as one comes near her with the stool she uses nature's defense and kicks.

CLEANLINESS OF THE CHURN

Rinsing Out With Warm Water Will Remove Any Particles of Buttermilk Remaining in Wood.

After the butter is taken from the churn, the latter should be rinsed out with warm water, and the rinsing followed by a thorough washing with very hot water. The rinsing out with warm water will remove any buttermilk which may remain in the pores of the wood. The hot water will remove any fat which may be left in the churn.

It is never well to use soap powders on the interior of the churn, but the occasional use of a small amount of dairy washing powder or lime water is beneficial. To keep the churn sweet and free from odors and taints a small handful of lime placed in some water in the churn or in the last rinsing of the churn is very effective. It is very essential in good butter making to see that all apparatus used is absolutely clean and free from undesirable odors and taints, as these are quickly absorbed by the butter.

PROPER LOCATION FOR SILO

Huge Receptacles Should Be Placed as Near Animals to Be Fed as Possible to Save Labor.

Silos should be located close to the animals to be fed from them, according to the Oregon agricultural college plans.

They should not be inside the barn since they take up a good deal of room and may give off offensive odors that will taint the milk.

They would also be inconvenient to fill, and silos should be where they may most readily be refilled.

It requires about a quarter of a ton of ensilage daily to feed twelve cows each forty pounds a day, so that the silage should not have to be moved any farther than is necessary.

CONSTRUCTION OF PIT SILOS

Builders Must Be Careful About Plastering—Good Sand Is of Utmost Importance.

Builders of pit silos should be careful about the cement plastering. Make the plaster of one part good sand and 2½ parts Portland cement, in two coats, each about three-quarters of an inch thick.

Let the first set slightly before putting on the second. Keep it wet for a week. If the earth walls are dry to plaster on, wet them before plastering. Keep the plaster shaded for several days.

Indictments against about 100 men, charging possum hunting, were continued by Judge McKenzie Moss, in the Butler Circuit Court today. The defendants were in court trying to get a settlement of their cases by paymenf of fines, which Judge Moss agreed to, after he found the alleged organization broken up and peace and order restored. The defendants were unable to meet the demands of the Commonwealth at this time and the cases continued. Two of the alleged possum hunters of Butler county were tried in Warren county, found guilty and sent to prison.

At a meeting of the Fayette County Road Improvement Commissioners it was decided to send Roger H. Smith, a member of the commission, and S. R. Murray, who is directing the asphalt road construction on the Nicholasville pike, to Washington and New York to study the most improved methods of road construction. County Judge Bullock stated that he was thoroughly satisfied with the plans the commission had made for reconstructing the county's roads, but that the visit East would be made for the purpose of seeing if any new points had been developed elsewhere.

Circuit Judge Fryer instructed the Nicholas county grand jury at Carlisle to investigate the alleged taking of liquor, which was being used in evidence in a case in the Nicholas Circuit Court. It is said that while a case was being tried in the court on a charge of an alledged violation of the local option law, a quantity of liquor confiscated was being used as evidence and it is alledged that some unknown person took the liquor during the trial. Judge Fryer stated to the grand jury that the liquor was part of the record in the case and that the law made it a felony to take or destroy any court record. He asked for a thorough investigation of the matter, buf the missing liquor could not be be found. Possibly it evaporated and the bottles walked away.—Fleming County Gazette.

The Poultry Industry In Pendleton County.

J. J. Austin, the poultry dealer of Falmouth, one day last week shipped twelve thousand one hundred and ten dozen eggs to Cincinnati and Covington. He runs two big auto trucks five or six times a week to Cincinnati, loaded with chickens, turkeys, ducks and eggs. He has shipped as high as fifteen thousand dozen eggs in one week, and will average ten thousand dozen a week the year around. This enormous amount of poultry produced in the sweet clover county of Pendleton and handled by one dealer will amount to over two hundred thousand dollars a year, and does not include that handled by the many other dealers in the county, besides the annual turkey crop sold to the Eastern dealers in November and December. All of this enormous amount of poultry and eggs is raised in a county that a few years ago the principal crop was tobacco. The farmers were then moving off their farms to the city to make a living for their families and land was selling at from seven to ten dollars per acre. Today the county is the largest shipper of milk, honey and poultry of any county in the State, and the farmers are most prosperous and contented. The county is just beginning to find out its agricultural possibilities. The poultry industry of Pendleton county amounts to over $500,000 annually.—Falmouth Outlook.

The Battle Against Cut-Throat Merchants.

There is a consistent demand from all parts of the country, favoring early action at the present session of Congress with reference to the Stephens-Ashurst bill. This measure is intended to protect the merchants in the smaller towns against the practical methods of metropolitan merchandising that have resulted so much to their injury. The trading stamp, coupon, mail-order and cut-rate department store establishments have come out in the open and are no longer hiding their identity in attempting to defeat the efforts to "clean house" at their expense. All of the biggest well-known manufacturers and national advertisers, and almost every country store keeper in America is demanding federal supervision, such as the investigations of the Federal Trade Commission show to be required in the interests of honest dealers. The Bureau of Corporations, together with the Department of Commerce reached the same conclusions. A majority of the members of Congress have committed themselves in favor of this legislation. However there is always "too much politics" in Washington during a presidential campaign year. Particularly for this reason the letters pouring in on the Congressmen, demanding legislation, are having their stimulating effect—and there ought to be more such letters.—Oldham Era.

Worse Than the Bull Ring.

Simultaneously the Ky. Derby and the automobile race, called the Metropolitan Trophy, were run Saturday afternoon. The most regrettable feature of the Derby was that Star Hawk, because he "got away" several lengths behind the other horses, was whipped and spurred in an effort to bring him under the wire first despite his early disadvantage. In the Metropolitan Trophy two men were killed. The wife of one of them was in the grandstand when he was hurled 100 feet in the air and impaled upon an upright piece of timber.

The bloody spectacle which marked, but seemingly in the view of the automobile race "fans" —did not mar the Metropolitan Trophy, occurred in a State in which the racing of horses has been for a long time bitterly attacked by crusaders upon the ground that it is a brutalizing sport. The yellow journals which, ten years ago, were loudest in their condemnation of the race track, not as a scene of gambling merely, but as a malign social influence because it encouraged the congregation of a sporty and tough element and catered to a demand for excitement, have said little or nothing against automobile racing, although it is far worse than the American prize ring or the Spanish bull ring as to fatalities and as a catcher to the morbid taste of bloodshed.

Not even the Circus Maximus, in the days of Rome's consuming decadence, presented horrors more shocking than that witnessed at Sheepshead Bay last Saturday.

Not a great while ago the New York yellows were howling that it would be a great day for the State of New York when the Sheepshead Bay race course should be divided into residence plats and occupied by cottagers. What have those organs of the uplift to say about automobile racing, of which horrible "accidents" are a standing feature, in the absence of which the mob does not feel that the thrills of the contest have been sufficient?

Kentucky kept well ahead of New York when its race courses remained race courses for horses instead of becoming saucer tracks for the bloodspilling automobile race.

If there is upon the face of the earth a costly object without practical value it is the automobile built to run 100 miles an hour, an illegal speed upon roads and the gift of death upon the saucer track. The racing car, unlike the thoroughbred, transmits no qualities to the utility breed. The racing driver runs—for money—100 times the risk encountered by the bull-necked bull fighter. The "sport" for the crowd is witnessing a spectacle of imminent danger in which death in horrible form and in plain view is an always anticipated, if not actually desired, element.—C. J.

Burlington 67 Years Ago.

The following items appeared in the Burlington Advertiser of date Saturday, September 1, 1849. William H. Nelson, Editor and Proprietor:

The pupils of Miss Mary A. Thompson's school held a picnic in the woods near town, on Thursday afternoon. In the examinations of the different branches the scholars acquitted themselves well, and with credit to their accomplished instructress. At the close of the exercises a beautiful little girl, with angel eyes and raven tresses was crowned queen, and then the whole school formed a procession, with their blooming little queen at the head, and marched in regular order, a short distance, to the table, which we believe, was tastefully and bountifully supplied with "dainties and delicacies." This over, the party dispersed, having passed quite a pleasant evening.

We think the merchants of Petersburg would derive considerable by advertising with us. Suppose you try it a while anyhow. A person who advertises liberally, is regarded as a liberal fellow; and liberality begets many friends.

We heard a floating rumor a few days ago, to the effect that some man out in the county, near this place, had beaten his wife quite severely. No particulars.

The second session of Morgan Academy under the management of Rev. P. C. Scott closed yesterday.

The subscriber wishes to purchase several young negro men and a good house servant for his own use, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

Joseph T. Field.

Died, Saturday, August 25th, of cholera, Miss Jane Voshell in the 17th year of her age.

We learn that the Universalist church, near Middle creek, is in a state of forwardness, and will probably be completed this fall.

We learn that there is quite a limited attendance, recently, at the Sabbath school in the Methodist church. What can be the delinquency? Parents should attend to this matter; it is better that their children be thus nobly employed than in idling their time away in the streets on Sunday.

A subscription is at present on foot for the purpose of raising funds to build a new house on the Morgan Academy lot, the old house being almost unfit for use. This is an excellent moce, and we hope, for the honor of the town, that it may succeed.

In speaking of the suit for bonds threatened by some officials should have been $75,000 thousand dollars. My purpose was to show a part of the amount of debt that would be piled upon the county. Many Remian Who Fought Against Mexico.

The Commissioner of Pensions informs me personally that there are still living 563 men who fought in the old war with Mexico.

It is seventy years since the war began, and it will be sixty-eight years on July 4th since it was officially ended.

There were 105,000 United States troops in that two-year conflict, of whom 31,000 were regulars and the others were militia and volunteers.

These figures are an index of the price our country, would pay today were it to attempt a complete subjugation of Mexico. That republic's population is now three times as great as it was seventy years ago, when it required 105,000 American soldiers two years to make the conquest.

Military men of high rank told me recently that we would now need an army of 400,000 men, of whom 100,000 would be lost during the two years it is expected a second conquest of Mexico would require.

War widows have a way of surviving their husbands many years. Thus, while there are 563 soldiers living who actually fought under Scott or Taylor seventy years ago, there are 3,929 widows who are receiving pensions on account of their husband's service during the Mexican war.

The last widow of a soldier of the Revolution died not many years ago; but the last soldier of that war expired in 1869.

It seems highly probable that at the bi-centennial of our national independence in 1976—sixty years hence—there will be widows of the Civil war soldiers drawing pensions from the government.—Philadelphia Ledger.

COUNT OF BIRDS.

...Farmers, Especially in the West, to Count Birds on Farms and Woodland Tracts.

...annual bird count of United States will be made ...Bureau of Biological Survey of the department during the ...ding season in May and June. ...making this survey the bureau will rely largely on persons interested in bird life who agree to act as volunteer enumerators and count the different kinds of birds found in a 40 or 80 acre farm or woodland tract near their homes. The counts thus made by unpaid observers during the last two summers have furnished to the department valuable data on the character, number and distribution of the bird population.

This year the ornithologists of the department wish particularly to secure the number of volunteers in the West to report on the bird life in the plains, the semiarid regions, the deserts, and the mountains in that part of the United States. Especial attention also is given to securing data as to birds in the fruit districts of the Pacific coast and in the South Atlantic and Gulf States.

The information collected this year it is believed will be of special value in enabling the department to test the effect of State and National bird laws, and also in determining what relation ship exists between bird life and the prevalence of locusts, grasshoppers, and other insect pests in different localities.

As it is impossible to make an actual count of all the birds in any extended district, each enumeration is asked to report only upon the number of birds breeding in a selected area of 40 to 80 acres in country or suburban districts. From the figures thus obtained, those in charge of the work are able to approximate the total number of birds of each kind in different sections of the country.

Enumerators who wish to report on birds on farms are asked to choose an area which includes farm buildings, shade trees, orchard, or meadow) or swamp, but not very much woodland. The enumerator begins his survey at daylight some morning and zigzags back and forth in the selected area, counting the male birds. Early in the morning during the last of May or the first week of June every male bird should be in full song, and therefore easily counted. The count of one day is to be verified by observations on several mornings.

The height of the breeding season should be chosen for this work. In the latitude of Washington, May 30, is about the proper date for the count. In the latitude of Boston, the work should begin a week later; and south of Washington even an earlier date should be selected.

In addition to reports on farms and suburbs, enumerators who can do so will be asked to report on the birds in a timber area of about 40 acres or in an isolated bit of woodland of from 10 to 20 acres. In the Northeastern states separate reports on the number of birds found in the wilder portions of farms, preferably those surveyed in the earlier counts, are desired.

Those wishing to take part in the survey can obtain complete instructions by writing to the Bureau of Biological Survey, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. The work, however, calls for a considerable knowledge of birds, and only those who can readily distinguish the different kinds should undertake to make returns for their localities.

Dog Barks.

A dog will remember a kick longer than most men will a favor.

A good dog invariably regards it as a special duty of his to protect children.

Beware of the man whose dog crawls under the barn when he sees him enter the gate.

An honest man is one who owns up to the possession of a female cur when the tax assessor comes around.

Don't believe that anything is good enough for a dog, or that a sick dog can cure himself by eating grass.

In stopping a dogright a large pailful of cold water thrown over the dogs' heads will almost always prove effective.

This we take from the "Hobo's Companion:" "And when thou runnest afoul a canine-infested yard, breeze thou on thy way."

Do not feed a dog anything, any time, just any way; have regular feeding hours and feed him wholesome food, as you would any other animal.

Some folk get the idea that every dog that barks at him is a ferocious beast. They should remember the old saying, "The bark is worse than the bite."

It's mighty convenient to have a dog announce the arrival of company by barking even though you be in a back field you will know when anybody comes.

It is not always wise to pet a strange dog's head. Better say, "Are you friend?" and walk on about your business. Few dogs are always in the mood to have their heads stroked by strangers.—Birmingham Ala., Age Herald.

FALSIFYING THE NEWS.

Silly For Newspapers To Print Distorted Facts About War.

Saturday's cable dispatches reveal the fact that even General Joffre's popularity and great services have been so far forgotten that a formidable movement to deprive him of command is under way in France.

The reason for popular dissatisfaction is the steady progress of the German attacks at Verdun.

This news must be an astonishing surprise to Americans who read and believe the newspapers which have continually asserted the German attacks at Verdun to be failures. And here we have a curious example of unreasonableness in war times.

Thousands of people complain that newspapers lie to them, and the same people bitterly denounce as pro-this or pro-that the few newspapers which will not lie to them.

We have never been able to account for this silliness among grown men, though it certainly exists on all hands. We should think that every man would want to know facts, no matter how unpalatable they might be.

Take the war situation today, for example. The facts are that the German assaults upon Verdun have proceeded with clock-like regularity; that they have been carried on by methodical artillery pulverization of one point after another with a minimum of infantry assaults, and, of course comparatively small losses of men; and that this slow, careful engineering process has moved steadily forward until the vital railway lines behind Verdun, which are the real objective, are almost in the German grasp.

These are plain facts, stated without the slightest bias, as a newspaper should state them, and yet we do not doubt that, instead of being thanked for telling facts instead of lies, many persons who ought to be ashamed of such childish behavior, will angrily denounce us as pro-German—probably as un-American.

As we say, it is hard to explain such silliness in grown men. Yet we know that thousands of grown men are thus afflicted.

Seriously, don't you think we Americans ought to be big enough and sensible enough to want our newspapers to tell facts and not childish falsehoods which are only told one day to be exposed perforce on the next day?

The Selfishness of Parents.

A great deal is said, and said justly, about the selfishness of American children. In our novels parents are represented as slaving and sacrificing themselves so that their children accept the sacrifice and expect it. If those things appear in stories, it is because they appear in reality. They are one of the natural results of a democratic society, in which every one strive to get upward, and to have his children get upward, even if he himself is used as a stepping stone.

But democracy does not really change human nature, or, like other social forces, change it only very slowly. And even in America all parents are not yearning to give up their own comfort for their children's, not all children are desciples of Ibsen in asserting their own individuality at the expense to others. Many a child quietly and obtrusively sacrifices the purpose of life because a selfish, or even a careless parent refuses to sanction and support it.

This happens to daughters more frequently than to sons. A boy gets out into the world for education or for business, and, after the first heartache, his parents grow accustomed to his absence, in time become even to prefer it to the disorder and tobacco smoke that his presence is likely to carry.

Also, some [illegible] are not very greatly mi[ss]ed when they go to colleges or [illegible] which is of their own. But with [illegible] days rain [illegible] on the [illegible] ville, al[illegible] lovliest and the [illegible] gether different. [illegible] early years, a busy, the [illegible] or an invalid mother [illegible] or [illegible] her things to think of besides her school. It explains why she don't go to college. 'Mary is domestic. She does not wnat to go to college,' says her mother. What Mary would say no one knows.

The sacrifices are not always demanded for a material object. Perhaps mother is social, and Mary is hopeful about making things go off well. Perhaps mother is lonely, and must have Mary at home for company. And do not suppose that these bold reasons of selfishness are never alleged or even appreciated. It is all Mery's good—so much better for her to learn practical usefulness or social ease. So much more comfortable for her to have a good home than to go out into the hard world and provide for herself! And Mary refrains from comment, but not always from tears.

There are all classes of people in the world: those who think first of their own duty, and those who think first of the duty of others. Which class to you belong to? —Youth's Companion.

DRY RIDGE HI-SCHOOL TEAM

Defeated By Burlington-Hi The Second Time Last Thursday.

Burlington High School base ball team journeyed to Dry Ridge Grant county, last Thursday afternoon and defeated the High School team at that place 12 to 6. The Burlington players were loaded with pep and swamped their opponents in the early innings, notwithstanding Kelly was wild as a March hare and had considerable trouble locating the home plate, eight men walking as a result of his lack of control, but while he was liberal to an excess with his passes he was particularly stingy with bingles and allowed the Ridgers only three hits in seven innings. He was relieved by Brown, off of whom four hits were made in two innings. It was in the ninth that Dry Ridge made a rally and put over four runs, shaving down Burlington's big lead which it was fortunate to have. One of the pleasing features of the game was the throwing of Milner, who caught several runners off of third base.

Prof. Cannon did the twirling for his team and his work was excellent, but his support wabbled badly while its hitting was weak.

Owing to the excellent treatment accorded the Burlington athletes are always glad when they have a date at Dry Ridge.

The Burlington team's record has not been punctured this season and if its string of victories is not broken soon it will begin to think it is some ball team and will want to extend its sphere of operation.

Patrick Riley Deadt

Patrick Riley who died at his home near Sparta, Gallatin county, on the 8th inst., was a native of Ireland, where he was born March 17, 1850. In early manhood he came to America with his parents, coming to Kentucky shortly after his arrival and located in Boone county, where he met and married Miss Mollie Ryan, daughter of the late Mike Ryan. He is survived by his wife and several children, Mr. Ryan was a devoted member of the Catholic church, and in all his dealings with his fellowman he was actuated by the strictest integrity, was just, generous and kind. His death was the result of paralysis. He will be missed greatly.

"A History Making Day."

"Although our Children's Day has accomplished great things in the past, it is on the threshold of far greater things for the future. It is well to remind ourselves that the observance of Children's Day began back in 1880 in a gift of less than $1.00 from two little boys, and that last year the total receipts from this source for the twelve months were $93,688.

What argument can withstand the children's happy songs, the joyful saving up of offerings over many weeks, and the pouring out of rich service in gift and life on the great festival day. Nearly all of our younger ministers and our missionaries have received some of their first and most lasting impressions with regard to missionary endeavor from Children's Day.

Without doubt, more than a million people gather together on the first Sunday in June to listen to the Children's day service and participate in this annual festival. Can anyone measure the possibilities in this great challenging day? Suppose each Sunday-school should average $1.00 per pupil on the first Sunday in June for Christ's cause across the sea. How the hearts of the missionaries would leap, and how a host of young people would be encouraged to enter the field of service, and how our churches would warm with the pulsating life of Christ! This is by no means impossible. Our schools are able to do it and more, and we would be refreshed and enriched by the experience. May we not hope that a great number of schools will set this goal as their ideal for the coming Children's Day? This sort of enlistment so sadly needed in the fields would be a great joy to the heart of Christ and a blessing to those participating."—Missionary Intelligencer.

Plant Bed Notes.

Vigorous plants, large as a dollar are reported by some growers in Woodford county. The prospect for plants is fair.

In Bath county, plants are growing fast and seem to be abundant, notwithstanding cool weather and lack of rain.

In Jessamine county plants are excellent and growers are beginning to make a season to set them in the field preferring to do this than wait for a rain.

Reports from Madison county indicate that plants have not fared very well thru the spring and will be very scarce. An acre age as large and possibly larger than last year is probable.

In Nicholas county the work of preparing the tobacco ground is claiming the attention of the growers. The plants are growing slowly and give fine promise. Reports from different sections of the county indicate there will be a large acreage this season.

Plants in Montgomery county have grown rapidly and there are many of them. Some transplanting may be done this month but the entire crop will not be out until probably the 10th or 15th of June. Some are planning to start transplanting next week, if there is a good season.

Last year conditions were favorable for white clover and the result has been an exceptional growth of the plant and a good promise for white clover honey this season. White clover in the chief dependence for honey in some parts of the State, and those having bees should see to it at once that they are in condition to take advantage of the "honey flow" which soon will be here.

Colonies should be examined to see if the queen is a good one; if not a new one should be introduced. A little feeding with equal bulks of granulated sugar and water will help in the case of weak colonies, since but little forage has been collected thus far.

The frames and supers to be used should be got in readiness, so there will be no delay when the flow is on. Look after these things now, or have that young man or woman member of your family who has been to the State University, attend to it. These are the youngsters who will do the successful beekeeping in the future. Give them the advantage of your own experience, as well as that they secure in school.

One other suggestion: You are interested in sweet clover. No matter how I have learned this, I want to urge that you sow some of it in odd corners of your place where other things will not grow. By so doing, you will make your beekeeping more profitable and increase the fertility of your farm.—Farm Bulletin.

Prather Baber, of Nicholasville, 12 years old, was badly injured when a can of concentrated lye which he was opening exploded. He will lose the sight of one and probably both eyes. His entire face is badly burned.

The farmers in Montgomery-co. took advantage of the favorable weather the past week and planted considerable corn. Some of the earliest planting has come up. Many sheep have been sheared. Cattle are doing as well as could be expected.

During the past week the farmers of Nicholas county have been busy shearing sheep and delivering wool. The work of planting corn has been claiming the farmers' attention. The prospects for an abundant apple crop are very promising.

Wheat, in Christian county is not in a promising condition; and the crop is certain to be much smaller than the average. There is also doubt as to the quality. Last year the crop was practically a failure owing to Hessian fly and drouth. Farmers are again reporting flies in all parts of the county.

President Wilson has accepted an invitation to go to Hodgenville, September 4, to take part in exercises marking the formal presentation to the Federal government of the farm on which Abraham Lincoln was born. The property, which was bought with money raised by popular subscription, has already been offered to the government and accepted by Congress.

What is said to be one of the largest deals in tobacco ever made in Bourbon county, Ky., was consummated May 13 when Abner & Mussinon, of Paris, Ky., sold to the Louisville Tobacco Company 650,000 pounds of tobacco at 11 cents straight, the amount realized being $116,000. Forty hogs heads of the tobacco are in storage in a Cincinnati warehouse and the remainder is in warehouses in Paris. Abner & Mussin on will clear about $30,000 on the deal.

Owensboro, Ky., May 21.—The jury in the case of Sanford McGalin, who is charged with murder, was allowed to separate by Circuit Judge Slack. The trial was not completed and Judge Slack did not desire to keep the jury over Sunday. This is the first time in the history of the Daviess Circuit Court that a jury has been allowed to separate during a murder trial. The Court of Appeals recently rendered a decision to the effect that a jury could separate in a murder trial if the attorneys for both the Commonwealth and the defendant agreed to it.

Prospects for getting out good crops in Clark county are very favorable. The bulk of the corn is planted, but some are still working on their soil, dragging and harrowing. Some fields are working very mean, being hard and cloddy in spots over the field. The grass is growing nicely and the stock is doing well. Sheepshearing is over and there was a heavy clip, bringing in more money to the farmers than ever before in one season. The lamb crop is very promising and the lambs now are fat. The market will get more than the usual number of lambs from here this year. Young cattle and calves are growing well, there is some loss from bloat. The dairy herds were never doing better and the milk pails were never fuller than now. The butter is at its best, and a customer ready to take every good pound. Gardens are in good shape and the most of them are planted.

"Uncle Henry" Floyd, of the western part of the county, who claims to be 100 years old, was in the city yesterday, and was as well and hearty as a man of forty years. In conversation with a reporter of the News, "Uncle Henry" said: "I have been here a long time, but at that it seems very short, and I hope to be able to live at least fifty years more. I have made more whisky than any man that ever lived in this section and drank less; and I used to be one of the best story tellers the State ever produced, but, thank God, since I have joined the church I am living an altogether different life—and a much more pleasant one. I remember many instances that occurred during the war of the rebellion, and at one time I knew the history and life of nearly every man in Pulaski county. If I always feel as I do this morning sah, I will live always, and I hope it will. Just tell the readers of the News that I am always glad to come to the county seat, and while there have been many changes during my short stay here on earth, I recognized the town from one of the old familiar landmarks that was here during my boyhood days, and which is now called 'the Temple of Justice.'"—Somerset News.

P. A. puts new joy into the sport of smoking!

YOU may live to be 110 and never feel old enough to vote, but it's certain-sure you'll not know the joy and contentment of a friendly old jimmy pipe or a hand rolled cigarette unless you get on talking-terms with Prince Albert tobacco!

P. A. comes to you with a real reason for all the goodness and satisfaction it offers. It is made by a patented process that removes bite and parch! You can smoke it long and hard without a comeback! Prince Albert has always been sold without coupons or premiums. We prefer to give quality!

Prince Albert affords the keenest pipe and cigarette enjoyment! And that flavor and fragrance and coolness is as good as that sounds. P. A. just answers the universal demand for tobacco without bite, parch or kick-back!

Introduction to Prince Albert isn't any harder than to walk into the nearest place that sells tobacco and ask for "a supply of P. A." You pay out a little change, to be sure, but it's the cheerfullest investment you ever made!

Prince Albert is sold everywhere in tidy red bags, 5c; tidy red tins, 10c; handsome pound and half-pound tin humidors—and—that clever crystal-glass pound humidor with sponge-moistener top that keeps the tobacco in such splendid condition.

WHAT IS A DEMOCRACY?

Much Depends on Way United States Answers This Question.

What is Democracy, anyway? Up on the way the United States answers this question will depend not only the future course of American history, but, as well, real democracy the world over in all its large outlines and broader purposes. Is democracy a thing without duties, obligations or responsibilities? Is it a thing with out a spiritual content, without world purpose and world destiny? Is it without an aim higher than "pork?" Is it a theory of a nation built upon a theory of oneself, an incoherent and unmobilized mass of men and resources in heterogeneous juxtaposition, without vertebrae to hold it together, without a soul to save it from damnation? It has been said that in this country there is no thinker to every 25,000 of its inhabitants. The rest are orators. With only one person in that number with a national, to say nothing of an international consciousness can it be said that we are a nation?

When we think of the mission of the United States, we are coaxed to think of a tendency to isolate a certain territory within our people may make money and save their skins; to create a Dead Sea civilization into which everything flows, but which has no outlet. We do not think, and it seems as if we cannot think, of our country as a nation among nations, as each man thinks of himself as a man among men. We talk of ourselves as being a world power without apparently the slightest conception of either the opportunities or the obligations of a nation that has assumed its proper place in the world. Are we to sustain relations with the world? Are we to conduct foreign affairs? Are we to have policies which we can make good, or are we to keep on bluffing in a way in which every one knows that there is no possibility of making good? Are we to be a first-class nation or a second-class nation? On the way in which we answer this question will largely depend the future of mankind.

Mrs L T. Flanery, wife of the High Sheriff, who has been acting as office deputy ever since her husband has held office, has always by her businesslike methods and pleasant ways, proved to all who ever have business in the Sheriff's office her ability to hold down the job One day this week she turned a trick that is new in the annals of Lee county and one that, so far as we know, has never been tried in any other county in Kentucky It seems that when Circuit Court met Monday a witness who had been recognized to appear failed to show up, and so a warrant of arrest was issued This witness lived about four miles in the country, and as the High Sheriff and other deputies were all busy it devolved upon the office deputy to do the job Rising to the occasion Mrs Flanery mounted her trusty steed and set out armed with the warrant of arrest, and, needless to say, she delivered the goods to the satisfaction of the court and all concerned For the benefit of those who do not know we will say that Mrs Flanery is not a suffragette.—Beattyville Enterprise

May Be Sent Back to the Asylum.

It looks very much like Sylvester Welcher, who stole Benj. Carpenter's horse, and has been in jail here several days, will be returned to the asylum at Lakeland. The authorities in this county have been furnished with a copy of the proceedings in the Casey county court when he was adjudged of unsound mind and committed to the asylum, from which he escaped. Some think he ought to be tried and sent to the penitentiary for stealing Carpenter's horse, but how that can be done with the lunacy record in force, does not appear to the officers, as the law says a crazy man cannot commit an offense.

Editorially The Cincinnati Daily Commercial of May 19, 1866, says: "When President Lincoln in April 1861, called for 75,000 militia for three months' service the army of the United States had on its rolls 14,000 men. During the ensuing four years 2,688,532 men were enlisted, of whom 2,408,103 left the army alive. Of the balance 96,099 died in battle or of wounds, while 184,330 died of disease. The number of white troops enlisted was about 2,5000,000 and the number of deaths among them was 251,122, or one death out of ten. The number of colored troops was 180,000, of whom 29,298 died, or about one in six, being nearly double the rate of deaths among the white troops. Out of every eight deaths among the white troops three died on the field of battle and five from disease. Out of every nine deaths among the blacks one died on the field of battle and eight from disease. The mortality among the volunteers was nearly 15 per cent. greater than among the regulars. The statistics are taken from the official records; but while they give the number of those who died in the service, they make no mention of the host obliged to leave the army and who went home to die."

A very recent decision of the Court of Appeals has created in the minds of some a doubt as to the legality of the election held in this county on the eighth of this month at which the proposition to issue road and bridge bonds was carried. The decision referred to held that a bond election held on a day other than the regular election day was illegal and void. [illegible] and her pupils Friday [illegible] CHAS. [illegible] M. Gov. Furguson on Mexico.

Gov. Furguson, of Texas, who has been anxious for a war with Mexico all along, says of the border trouble:

"A temporary protection of the border will accomplish nothing, if we capture and punish one bandit another takes his place tomorrow. If a ruler is put in power today, he is betrayed tomorrow. Loyalty to any leaders is lacking and patriotism is unknown. The ruthless killing of American blood on American soil never gives us justification and it is our duty to do what we can to [illegible] Mexico cry for food and protection from bandits. As one who has hoped against hope that a ruler might arise to restore peace in Mexico; as one who has studied the Mexican people a lifetime, I have come reluctantly to the conclusion that it is now the solemn duty of the United States to enter Mexico and assume control of that unfortunate country and give to the Mexican people that stability of government which they are now unable and helpless to establish.

BASE BALL.

Hebron Trimmed Burlington Again Last Saturday Afternoon. Locals Not in the Hunt. Score 7 to 1.

Hebron, with the strongest line-up and about the best battery it ever presented, came over last Saturday afternoon and defeated the local team without an effort, Burlington's playing being especially distinguished by the number of bone head plays that the score sheet does not show, while Hebron played an even game of almost errorless ball.

The game by Innings:

NOTES.

Conner was worked out of his regular position.

Zimmer caught a good game as he always does.

Vance is one of the best second basemen among amateurs.

The Burlington team has a date at Petersburg next Saturday.

Sullivan and McGlasson, umpires, handled the game impartially.

Had Huey's support been equal to Bell's the game would have been a crackerjack.

In the first two innings the teams went out 1, 2, 3. In the third inning every man in the Hebron team was at bat; they got two hits, two bases on balls, and were given the benefit of two errors and a few bones, and four runs resulted.

Ludlow White Sox defeated Erlangen last Sunday afternoon 7 to 6. The outfielders on each team did some spectacular work. Mont Slayback played short for Erlanger. He was at bat four times and swatted the ball each time. but succeeded in getting only one over into safe teritory.

Now, the RECORDER will say for the information of a few overenthusiastic fans who were here from Hebron, last Saturday afternoon, that, while it is for its home team first, last and all the time, it has always been fair in its reports of games. and is so accredited by those whose opinions are formed by brains and not prejudice, and has so far, submitted, without a word, to scurrilous and uncalled for sarcasm hurled at it in large and small crowds during games at home and abroad until a longer silence would be abject cowardice. Therefore for the benefit of those who had so much to say about, "what will the Recorder say next week?" and "the Recorder will have to call in Harrison Minor to get it out next week," and so on and so forth for quantity, and senseless babble, will listen, the Recorder will say to them that their stupid attempt to ridicule and belittle it, was disgusting, and had it been necessary to supply assistance to get out this issue the presence of Harrison Minor, tho a negro he be, would be far preferable to a person whose silly vaporings indicate an abnormal condition in the upper story. Now do you know "what the Recorder will say next week?" It is probable you do if you are not too closely related to that animal which is so easily distinguished by its ears and the noise it makes, but to the credit of which it can be said never attempts to heap an indignity upon anyone.

Erlanger will play the strong Lick Run ball team at the fair grounds next Sunday afternoon.

What Goode & Dunkie of Covington have to say about cream separators this week

IT will be worth your while to find out what some of your neighbors who use De Laval Cream Separators think of their machines before you buy any separator.

And the best thing we can say for the De Laval is that all the farmers around here who use it are boosters.

It does good work for them and pleases them, and we know it will please you.

Make it a point to ask your neighbor about his De Laval

There are nearly two million satisfied De Laval users throughout the world. More De Laval Separators are in use than all other makes combined. It isn't the cheapest, but the majority of separator users have found out by experience that it is the best and by far the most economical separator to own.

We want to tell you about an arrangement we have whereby you can make part payment at time of purchase and pay the balance on such liberal terms that the De Laval will save its cost while you are paying for it.

Come in and see us the first time you have a chance and talk it over.

Sooner or later you will buy a DE LAVAL

FARM ANIMALS

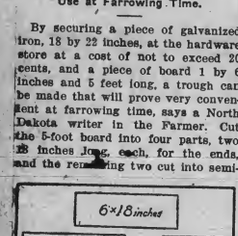
SWINE REQUIRES SOME GRAIN

Expert at University Farm Gives Results of Three Tests of Feeding Corn to Hogs.

Can you afford to feed grain to your hogs this summer?

R. C. Ashby, in charge of swine at University farm, St. Paul, says you cannot afford to grow them without grain. He gives the results of three tests of feeding corn to hogs on rape pasture to prove his claim.

Six 50-pound pigs were put in each of three lots, about a quarter of an acre in size, on rape pasture. The pigs in the first lot were fed a half ration—2 per cent of corn; that is, two pounds of corn for every one hundred pounds of live weight. Those in the second lot were fed three pounds of corn for every one hundred pounds of pig; that is 3 per cent. The pigs in the third lot were fed a full ration, 4 per cent of corn. The pigs were on good rape pasture eleven weeks—from July 10 to September 26. Their gains were counted as worth 7 cents a pound and corn was charged at 55 cents a bushel.



The returns paid for the rape pasture an acre were: Lot No. 1, $52.80; lot No. 2, $66.72; lot No. 3, $65.60. If the corn is figured at 75 cents a bushel, the balance for the pasture on the three lots would be $43.16, $51.36 and $45.80, respectively.

Without the feeding of grain, the pigs would have gained little, Mr. Ashby says. Rape may be expected to pay $50 an acre as pasture only with the proper feeding of grain.

FEED TROUGH IS CONVENIENT

Piece of Galvanized Iron and Few Boards Make Handy Device for Use at Farrowing Time.

By securing a piece of galvanized iron, 18 by 22 inches, at the hardware store at a cost of not to exceed 20 cents, and a piece of board 1 by 6 inches and 5 feet long, a trough can be made that will prove very convenient at farrowing time, says a North Dakota writer in the Farmer. Cut the 5-foot board into four parts, two 28 inches long, each, for the ends, and the remaining two cut into semi-circles 10 inches in diameter. Nail these pieces together, using the semicircles for the form of the trough. The sheet iron is then bent into these forms to make the body of the trough. A 1 by 2-inch strip nailed between the ends close to the outside edge of the iron, to which it may be tacked, adds greatly to the strength of the trough. The above makes a very convenient, light and economical trough for farrowing time and has given the writer very satisfactory results.

BEST ANIMALS FOR BREEDING

Get Boar Acquainted With Surroundings Before Using Him—Select Sows From Spring Litters.

Select the boar for use before you are ready to use him. Get him acclimated to your surroundings and method of feeding and care. Never use a young boar until he is past ten months of age if you want large, strong litters. Some breeders claim by using a young boar on mature sows one can produce hogs of greater size when a year old.

Select the breeding sows from early spring litters when they are six months old. One can form an opinion which ones are most likely to prove long-bodied, good-formed, of quiet disposition, good feeders and size rather than put on an excess of fat. Breed the gilt when about ten months old and if she proves herself a good breeder, raising uniform litters of strong, healthy pigs, keep her for several years, or as long as she is profitable.

PASTURE SHEEP WITH COWS

Great Objection Is That Former Nibble Grass So Closely That the Latter Are Starved.

The great objection to pasturing sheep with cows is the fact that the sheep nibble the grass so close that the cows cannot get a bite.

This would not be very troublesome if there was plenty of grass and the pastures were abundant.

In dry weather where pastures are thin and overstocked the sheep would nearly starve the cattle out, and prevent their getting a fair share of the grass.

Thin Animals Cold.

The thin animal is always cold. Put a blanket on it and give it cornmeal.

Special Notice.

The Farmers' Mutual Telephone Directory says, I handle any kind of rubber tire; and that I have the exclusive agency of the Republic Rubber Tires. That contract just cost me $200 of which of some of my customers will attest. I guaranteed those tires and I filled same to the letter. Now, right here I do most solemnly promise and swear that I will never again change the old and tried for any new thing whatsoever. Furthermore, that I will not use any Rubber Tire except Kelly's Springfield—the first rubber tire ever made and the best. I ought to know for surely I paid last year to find out. It is just like a boy changing the old girl for the new or a man leaving his old and tried wife for a new one. Now, isn't it a fact that they always go back to the old and tried love, is it not so boys? That's what I have done with Kelly's Springfield Rubber Tire—gone back to my old love. While they cost me more money they will cost my customers $12.00 per set or $3.00 per tire; these tires I give a guarantee on for being as represented. They will not stuff out nor will they peel, but will wear smooth like a good tire should.

Now, in regards to repainting: I have tried to get a new system and do good work, but I find it a failure so I give it up and must stick to the old system. All my work I guarantee to be as represented. I do anything in the carriage line. Bring me your work if you want it done right. I solicit your trade.

Trial Record Over Half-Mile Track, 2:19.

Season of 1916 at W. B. Arnold's stable near Belleview, Boone County, Kentucky, at $10 to insure a living colt, money due when colt is foaled or the mare is parted with after being bred.

Walter Winans is a solid chestnut sorrel; 16 hands high; weighs 1,950 pounds; disposition is perfect; his colts are uniformly good size and color, and the only one that has been raced has a race record of 2:11.

Walter Winans' breeding is fashionable, and is in line with the greatest sires in the world, being a half brother to the Great Crescius, 2:02½ and the fine breeder, Wilstar 2:17¼, whose colts always sold for high prices throughout Indiana and Kentucky.

Walter Winans sired by Robert McGregor 647, dam Rilee, (dam of Kate Ham 2:28¼, etc.) by Hotspur, Jr., 3612; g-dam Tugles by Mambrino Gift 684, etc. (See Rilee Vol. 13) bred by Geo. H. Ketcham, the owner and breeder of the celebrated Cresius. Robert McGregor was sired by Major Edsall, 2:11, dam Nancy Whitman.

Colts from Walter Winans from good mares will be large, and if not great trotters, will make fine road horses.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents but we will not be responsible should any occur.

THE FINE BELGIAN DRAFT HORSE

Don Degozee

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Don Degozee, despite his great size and weight is well balanced throughout, perfectly proportioned and symmetrically built. He has as light action as a stallion of much smaller type, and his disposition is much better than is usually found in horses of blood strains. He is a beautiful dark sorrel, 17 hands high, weighs 1800 pounds, has a broad foot, heavy bone, fine style and action. This great breed of draft horses is especially known for better action than anyother draft horse for heavy, good bone and good hoofs, and gentle kind workers.

FOODS FOR CHILDREN

EXPERTS GIVE ADVICE ON QUESTIONS OF IMPORTANCE.

Directions for the Bodily Needs of the Small Members of the Household—Pure Milk the One Great Thing to Be Desired.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Simple bills of fare, helpful recipes, and practical directions for the preparation of foods for children between three and six years of age are contained in Farmers' Bulletin 717, "Food for Young Children," issued by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The author has carefully avoided the use of all technical dietary terms or systems of grouping and has so classified foods that any mother can meet the following definition of a satisfactory diet for a little child:

"A little child three to six years of age, who is carefully fed in accordance with his bodily needs (as these are now understood) receives every-day at least one food from each of the following groups:

1. Milk and dishes made chiefly of milk (most important of the group as regards children's diet); meat, fish, poultry, eggs, and meat substitutes.
2. Bread and other cereal foods.
3. Butter and other wholesome fats.
4. Vegetables and fuits.
5. Simple sweets."

The relation of food to the condition of the bowels is also an important matter. Grains, particularly those containing the outer or branny layers or coats, are laxative; so, too, are such mildly acid fruits as apples, oranges and grapefruit. So far, therefore, as the important matter of preventing constipation is concerned, coarse grains and mildly acid fruits serve the same purpose. When fruits are to be obtained in abundance, the kind of cereal served is not of great importance. When they are not, the coarser cereals should be used.

The basis of a child's diet should be clean, whole milk—at least a quart a day. Such milk, in addition to water contains about half a cupful of the very best food substances—butterfat, milk, sugar, lime and other materials needed by the child to make muscle, bones, and teeth. In addition, milk contains a substance thought to promote growth by helping the body make good use of other foods. Where good whole milk is not obtainable, clean, fresh skim milk supplies these substances with the exception of the butterfat, and is, of course, preferable to dirty or questionable whole milk. Milk, however, contains very little iron and therefore spinach and other green vegetables and egg yolks, which are rich in iron, combine well with milk.

The child should drink the milk with the chill taken off, or should consume his full quart a day with cereals and in milk toast, cocoa, milk soups and stews, in cereal puddings, egg-and-milk puddings, custards, junkets, or simple ice creams. Milk stews may be made with vegetables or fish, or to vary the diet these can be combined with cream sauce and served on milk toast. The bulletin therefore gives a large number of recipes for the preparation of various milk dishes which will help children consume the requisite amount of milk without growing tired of this valuable food. Those for milk soups will be found particularly useful, as they give the mother an easy means of preparing many vegetables which are essentials in the child's diet.

Well-baked bread and thoroughly-cooked breakfast cereals are both good for children, and with milk should make up a large part of the diet. Bread and cereal mushes are, to a certain extent, interchangeable, but neither can take the place of milk, meat, eggs, fruits and vegetables. An ordinary slice of bread is equal in food value to about half a cupful of boiled or steamed cereal and about a cupful of flaked or puffed cereal. Different kinds of bread may be used for variety.

The yeast-raised bread given to young children should be at least a day old, or should be toasted or twice baked. Hot breads are likely to be swallowed in large pieces, and are therefore not desirable. Hot breads which are almost all crust, like thin tea biscuits or crisp rolls, are best of the hot varieties.

Under the heading "Meat, Fish, Poultry, Eggs and Meat Substitutes," the author states: "In some families children do not get enough meat and eggs; in others they get too much. A good general rule commonly followed is to give a child, two years old or over, an egg every other day and about the same amount (two ounces) of meat, fish, or poultry on the intervening days. Where meat is omitted, care must be taken to see that other suitable foods take its place—preferably an extra amount of milk and eggs."

Fried meats should not be given to a child, because they are likely to be overcooked and tough and also because the fat may be scorched and thus changed in composition. Scorched fat is almost certain to be harmful to children.

Meat is best given as broiled chop meat or in simple meat stews combined with vegetables. Poultry may be boiled and served with rice. When roasted, only the tender portions should be fed. Highly-seasoned stuffing or rich gravy should not be given to a young child.

Dried and other fish, and oysters, may be used in milk stews. Well-boiled fish is good for variety. Eggs must not be overcooked or they are likely to cause indigestion. The best way to cook eggs is to poach or coddle them. Scrambled eggs may be served occasionally, provided care is taken not to scorch the fat or to overcook the eggs.

Fat is an important part of the food of children. There is more than an ounce of fat (at least two and a half level tablespoonfuls) in a quart of whole milk. If the healthy child is given a quart of milk, has butter on his bread, and meat or an egg once a day, he gets enough fat, and that which he received is in wholesome form. It is well, therefore, not to give such fatty foods as pastry, fried meats and vegetables, and doughnuts or rich cakes. If the child is constipated, the occasional use of cream or salad oil is desirable, for fat in abundance is laxative.

Bacon or salt pork, cut very thin and carefully cooked, may be given occasionally. It is very important not to burn the fat.

Vegetables and fruits are grouped together because they are similar in that both supply iron, lime, and other mineral matters, and also mild acids. Vegetables are an important but often a neglected part of the child's diet. They should be served at least once a day, as they help to keep the bowels in good condition. Fruits are important for their flavoring, for their laxative effects and doubtless for other reasons, and should be served in some form at least once a day. Fruit juices and the pulp of cooked fruit, baked apples and pears, and stewed prunes, are the safest. The child should not be allowed to eat the skins unless they have been made very tender by cooking.

Sugar is a desirable part of the diet provided it is given in simple sweets and not allowed to take the place of other foods and spoil the child's appetite. Simple sweets are such things as lump sugar, maple sugar, sirups, honey, and plain candy, and those foods in which sugar is combined in simple forms with fruit juices (in lemonade, water ice, jelly, etc.), with flour or starch, as in plain cakes (cup cake, sponge cake, cookies), and with fruit, as in jams, marmalades, and similar things.

Kitchen Measurements.

One kitchen cupful equals one-half pint, or two gills.

Four kitchen cupfuls equal one quart.

Two cupfuls of granulated sugar equal one pound.

Two and one-half cupfuls of powdered sugar equal one pound.

One heaping tablespoonful of sugar equals one ounce.

One heaping tablespoonful of butter equals two ounces or one-quarter cupful.

One cupful of butter equals one-half pound.

Four cupfuls of flour (one heaping quart) equal one pound.

Eight round tablespoonfuls of dry material equal one cupful.

Sixteen tablespoonfuls of liquid equal one cupful.

Cinnamon Rice Pudding.

Buy four ounces or so of the red cinnamon drops, or perhaps two ounces would do for a large, creamy rice pudding, or for half a dozen of individual size. Allow twelve or eighteen drops to each cupful of milk used, and also to each cupful of milk allow one well-washed tablespoonful of rice and about a tablespoonful of sugar. If it is to be served with a sweet sauce do not add any sugar.

Put into buttered baking dish or dishes or into the glass baking molds, and bake from one hour and a half to two hours in a moderate oven, stirring in the top every half hour or even oftener. A meringue may be added and across this strewn some pink sugar or some of the cinnamon drops ground up in a mortar.

Chocolate Cream Pie.

Here is a chocolate cream pie which everybody likes and it has the merit of being cheap. Into your double boiler put one pint of hot water. Blend together one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, four tablespoonfuls of flour, two of cocoa, butter size of small egg, a pinch of salt and stir into the water. Cook until thick. Cover a deep pie plate with rich pastry and set another plate inside and bake a nice brown, fill with cocoa mixture, cover with whipped cream and sprinkle with chopped nuts.

Succotash.

Take the amount of kidney beans desired and soak overnight. In the morning place on stove and add fat salt pork, cut into rather small pieces, to taste. Salt. Let simmer until beans are soft. Do not have too much water. The beauty of it is to cook slowly. Just before serving add one can corn and heat it through. Serve hot. Succotash is also made from lima beans with corn added. Some prefer it that way.

Carrot Stew.

Here is a carrot stew that was sent into the column some years ago by W. D., and I will copy it for you, as I think it is delicious: Cut the carrots in small pieces and cover with milk enough to stew them. Add salt and pepper to taste, and a small piece of butter.

The Newest Rolling Pin.

A recent invention in rolling pins is made of glass, and may be used when making biscuit and cookies, but it is especially satisfactory when working with pastry, as it is fitted with aluminum caps which can be removed for the insertion of ice.

Democratic Mass Meeting

The Democratic mass convention to elect seventeen delegates to the State convention which met in Lexington yesterday, was called to order at 2 p. m., last Saturday in the court house, by W. W. Grimsley in the absence of the chairman of the county committee, B. B. Hume.

Judge Sidney Gaines was elected chairman and T. F. Curley, secretary.

The following 34 delegates were appointed to cast Boone's seventeen votes in the State convention at Lexington:

A. B. Rouse,
David Haley,
J. M. Eddins,
B. E. McElroy,
W. D. Cropper,
T. F. Curley,
N. E. Riddell,
L. A. Conner,

A. A. Roter,
Harry Baily,
W. W. Grimsley,
Thos. Huff,

Lee Masters,
Stanley Rich,
Harry Riley.

The delegates were instructed to vote as a unit on all questions coming before the convention and to vote for J. C. W Beckham, A. O. Stanley and Ollie M. James for delegates at large to the national convention.

The following resolutions were adopted:

Be it Resolved by the Democracy of Boone county, in convention assembled:—

That we believe in an honest, efficient and economical administration of the governmental affairs, whether of the national, state, county or municipal governments.

That we unreservedly endorse the unparalleled achievements of the administration of our great President, Woodrow Wilson, which has faithfully fulfilled the promises made by our party four years ago by the enactment of many needed laws, which protect the people against special privileges usurped by designing interests, and which has patriotically and successfully met every serious question arising in our foreign relations.

That we unreservedly believe that our great President, with comprehensive mind and stout heart, correctly interprets the aspirations and hopes of the people of this republic for honorable peace, exact justice, righteousness and humanity.

We especially commend to the people of this State the splendid record of our able and faithful Governor Hon. A. O Stanley, and his associates in office, under whom many beneficial and reform measures have been enacted into laws.

We heartily commend our Democratic Senators and Representative in Congress and in our State Legislature for the loyal support they have rendered the National and State administrations and the many wholesome and beneficial laws they have aided in enacting.

We, the Democrats of Boone county endorse most heartily the official record of our distinguished countyman, Hon. A. B Rouse, and present him to the other counties in this Congressional District for nomination and reelection to Congress.

It is remarkable and regrettable that the gambling craze has obtained such a hold on a large number of the women of Central Kentucky. During the Lexington races it was positively appaling to see some of the leading women of this section, many of them with grown sons and daughters, grabbing form sheets and betting with even more recklessness than many of the men. Now, frankly, is it any wonder why boys and girls go wrong when such examples are set by those from whom they are supposed to emulate? They should know, if they would only stop to consider, that money obtained in this way never "sticks" but goes just as easily and as recklessly. We know it is of little use to "fuss" with men of the Bluegrass for they have been reared to take a chance, but we do think that the wives and mothers had best be very careful or else prepare themselves to endure the results that are sure to follow such an example.—Winchester Courier.

Christian county has the most bountiful crop of strawberries this year that was ever known, in consequence of which they are selling very cheap. Fresh picked berries, sound and ripe, can be bought at retail for 25 cents to 40 cents per gallon, and even cheaper in large quantities. There is such an over supply that a number of growers are seeking outside markets for them.

Farmers of East Christian county are using goats extensively for the purpose of ridding their farms of sassafras bushes, one of the banes of farming.

In Nicholas county growers have been hauling water to keep their tobacco plants growing.

Bulletin No. 1

A Mistake in the Policy of the Bethlehem Steel Company

To the People:

The Senate of the United States has passed a bill to spend $11,000,000 of the People's money to build a government armor plant. The measure is now before the House of Representatives.

It is said that manufacturers of armor have "gouged" the country in the past, and that a government plant is necessary to secure armor more cheaply.

The mistake of the Bethlehem Steel Company has been that it has kept quiet.

We have allowed irresponsible assertions to be made for so long without denial, that many people now believe them to be proven facts.

We shall make the mistake of silence no longer.

Henceforth we shall pursue a policy of publicity. Misinformation will not be permitted to go uncorrected.

It is and has been the policy of our Company to deal with the American Government fairly and squarely.

We shall henceforth place the details of our relations with the Government before the American People.

The United States has for twenty years obtained the highest grade of armor and has paid a lower price for it than has any other great naval power.

Figures officially compiled for the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs from the Naval Year Book show that under conditions prevailing just before the European war, the chief naval powers of the world were paying these prices for armor:

England, $503 per ton; France, $460; Germany, $490; Japan, $490; UNITED STATES, $425.

A government plant cannot make armor any cheaper than we can do it; and—

We are prepared to manufacture armor at any price which the Government itself shall name as fair. THAT BEING SO, SHOULD $11,000,000 OF THE PEOPLE'S MONEY BE WASTED TO BUILD A GOVERNMENT PLANT?

State News.

The hay crop of McLean county will not be very good this year, as indications now point to just about half as much as was grown last year. Many of the meadows are filled with weeds, especially the timothy crop.

One of the largest road bond issues ever disposed of in Kentucky was sold by the Daviess county Fiscal Court, when the bid of Seasongood & Mayer, of Cincinnati, for the entire issue of $600,000, was accepted. The premium was $4,200.

Mrs. Delia Campbell, of Georgetown, who completed a sixty day sentence in the county jail on the charge of selling whisky without a government license, was rearrested by Leon L. Calvert, Deputy Sheriff, and taken to Hazard, where she is indicted in the Circuit court for bootlegging.

A Good Roads Association has been formed to look after the expenditure of the money appropriated to the use of the western end of Powell county. The sum of $20,000 of the $40,000 bonds recently voted will be spent near Clay City, and the association will advise with the Fiscal Court in the selection of the roads to be improved and the kind of roads desired by the citizens here.

Collins Gentry, county agent of Mercer county, has been busy combating black leg. Many farmers, especially in the western portion of the county, suffered severe losses and quarantine regulations are being rigidly enforced. He states that there is little hog cholera in the county, as practically all the raisers have had their herds vaccinated. He has vaccinated several hundred head in the last few weeks.

An automobile started a genuine panic on South Trimble street, Paducah, when the steering gear gave way, throwing the machine to the side of the street, where it hurdled a gutter, tore down a shade tree and cantered up the front steps of a negro dwelling, badly damaging the front of the house and narrowly missing two children, who were playing in front. The machine was practically undamaged and went off under its own power after repairs.

It is said there is danger of many apple orchards in the country not bearing fruit this year because of the presence and damaging work of millions of little green bugs that are sapping the life out of young buds and leaves. A well known fruit grower advises that the infected trees be sprayed with a tobacco solution. To make an effective solution take a pound of tobacco stems and four gallons of boiling water. Mix well and thoroughly cool, before using. To rid the trees of the little pests it is important that very necessary that every bud be sprayed. If one cannot get the tobacco stems other tobacco will answer the purpose. A strong tobacco solution is the only remedy.—Frankfort Courier.

Judging from expressions at this time, a full quota of farmers from Western Kentucky will make the trip on June 6-10 to Pendleton, Fayette and Jefferson counties under the auspices of the State and national agricultural bureaus for the purpose of studying farm conditions and methods there, and as a return visit for the one paid to Warren and Christian counties in this part of the State last summer. Ever since the announcement was made recently that arrangements were being made for the trip, interest among the farmers has been high, and in every county, the trouble will be in holding the number down to the limit specified. Christian and Warren, the hosts of last summer's visit, are not to be limited, and large delegations will go from both counties.

PINCHOT ASKED TO DEFINE HIS POSITION

Answers Demanded to List of Pertinent Questions.

Gifford Pinchot, former chief forester and for several years accepted authority on conservation questions, has been challenged by the Water Power Development Association to define his position as to water power legislation and to explain to the country why he is opposed to pending legislation to encourage the development and use of water powers. In an open letter addressed to the Pennsylvania Bull Moose-er, signed by Harry W. Hand, chairman of its executive committee, the Development association, an organization of manufacturers of water wheels and hydraulic and electrical equipment and supplies, challenges Mr. Pinchot to be specific in his charges that certain bills in congress are in the interests of water power monopolies and to produce proof that there is, as he has alleged, a powerful lobby at work in Washington to pass these bills.

The letter is as follows:

"You have charged President Wilson and a majority of the members of the United States senate with having failed to defend public rights in permitting the passage of the Shields bill authorizing water power development on navigable streams.

"This association holds no brief for any particular bill and is anxious only for legislation that will stimulate new industries and national prosperity through development and use of water powers now flowing to waste. We believe the Shields bill to be such a measure. We believe that it offers terms to capital which will encourage investment in water power development. We believe that the indorsement of this bill by former Secretary of War Garrison, and by the senate committee and the fact that among the senators who voted for its passage after four weeks of exhaustive debate were representatives of the Democratic, Republican and Progressive parties, while only twenty-two votes could be mustered against it, is evidence that the bill gives full consideration and protection to all public rights and interests.

"You have written and talked much about a water power trust. Do not all students of economic conditions agree that the power business is a natural monopoly and that there cannot be economic competition in the distribution of electric current in any given locality?

"You have complained that the Shields bill proposes to give away water powers without compensation. This, of course, ignores the big fact that a large part of the expenditures in construction of any dam and power plant must go for improving navigation and that this public benefit is to be rendered without cost to the government. Without raising this argument, however, why do you want a charge made by the government for use of water power?

"We want to see the water powers of the United States developed and used. Do you?

"Is it not a fact that under the kind of restriction and high rentals in the present laws, approved by you, development has come practically to a standstill and no large powers have been or are being developed in the national forests and the public domain?

"Is it not true that under the present general dam laws, which do not offer terms attractive to capital, only eight dams and water power plants, with a total development of less than 140,000 horsepower, have been built on navigable streams in the last ten years?

"Is it not a fact that in this same period water powers in Europe have had the greatest era of development known to history?

"Do you not know that under the restrictive policies of the United States for ten years past not a single electrochemical plant using water power has been built in this country, while in the same years Europe has developed more than a million horsepower of hydroelectricity devoted to fixation of atmospheric nitrogen alone?

"Are you aware that restrictive laws and water power failures in this country have so discouraged investment that some of our largest power enterprises of recent years have had to be financed abroad?

"Is it not true that, excepting in the cases of a few of our largest and most attractive powers, the margin of competition is very close between water power and cheapened cost and increased efficiency of steam plants?

"Do you not know that very cheap power is essential to the establishment of the electrochemical, electrometallurgical and other new processes and industries necessary in this country to enable us to keep abreast of the industrial and agricultural progress of other countries?

"Is it not true that every kilowatt of [illegible] produced by water power is the approximate equivalent of two [illegible] of coal saved for future consumption?

"Are you not aware that every dollar [illegible] cent added to the cost of water power development adds to the [illegible] applying power to the consumer [illegible] the possibilities of [illegible] power cheap enough [illegible] build great new industries, [illegible] margin of economy [illegible] power by water [illegible] the number [illegible] ecc [illegible] in [illegible] the hope of conserving the fuel supply?

"If you are aware of these facts why should you want to hamper and retard water power development by adding rentals, taxes or any other items unnecessarily to its cost?

"You and your friends have told the country that a great and powerful lobby is at work in Washington to influence water power legislation, with the implication that this influence is improper. Will you, for our information and that of the public, identify this lobby, say who composes it, what interests they represent and show any improper or vicious efforts on its part to influence legislation?

"You have declared that in taking over power plants that might be built under the provisions of the Shields bill the government would be required to pay for an unearned increment in lands taken by power of condemnation granted under the act. As a matter of fact and of law, are you not mistaken in this declaration?

"You charge that the bill does not protect public rights, because at the end of fifty years, in buying the plants, the government would be compelled to take over transmission and distributing systems dependent upon the water powers for their value. Would you have the government discourage investment in such utilities by proposing to destroy the value of these properties at the end of fifty years? If the government did buy the generating plant and not the distributing system, what would you propose it might do with the power? You may say that the whole cost of the plant should be amortized and the property turned over to the government free of cost at the end of the period. If so, do you not know that the amortization cost would have to be added to power prices and would operate to discourage water power development in the same manner and for the same reasons as would be the imposition of any other form of rental or taxation adding unnecessarily to the cost of power? Also, why should the present and the next generations be asked, during the pioneer stage of the enterprise, to build and pay for a plant in order that future generations might be given the property free of cost and so allowed to enjoy cheaper power?

"We consider use to be the highest form of conservation of water power. The senate seems to agree with this belief. Are you of the same opinion? If not, why not? If so, do you not agree that legislation which will encourage and stimulate maximum development and use is the most desirable form of water power legislation?

"You seem to see an impropriety in the fact that hydraulic engineers and water power men—men who know the water power business—have been consulted by congress about this legislation. Whom would you consult to obtain the facts? If you were going to build a house, would you employ an architect or a poet to draw the plans?

"Since the sole aim and purpose of this association is to give the widest publicity possible to all the facts concerning water powers, in the hope that such publicity will bring about enlightened public sentiment in favor of legislation that will result in their development and use, we are giving this letter to the press and invite you to do the same with your reply to these questions."

NEW LAWS NEEDED TO GIVE JOBS TO JOBLESS MEN.

It is estimated that fully 30,000 engineers are more or less affected by the stagnation which for three years has existed in water power development. Up to three years ago plants under construction, begun before the operation of the new laws had put a stop to planning new enterprises, gave work to these engineers and to hundreds of thousands of skilled and unskilled workmen. Today engineers of long experience are haunting the offices of power companies and contractors begging for jobs.

One capable engineer recently announced that he had written 1,300 letters asking for employment without receiving an offer. Pages of advertisements of "Positions Wanted" appear regularly in engineering papers, while there are practically no "Help Wanted" advertisements. One manufacturing plant in Philadelphia with $2,000,000 invested in buildings and machinery for the building of water wheels was shut down for ten months last year and this year has had only one order for one small wheel.

Power a National Need.

The public needs both steam power and water power. It is to the interest of the whole country that our water power should be developed as rapidly and as efficiently as possible. This development can be carried on only in one of two ways—either by government ownership and operation or by the employment of capital worked under the incentive of private property. Nobody but a visionary proposes today that the government should build and operate water power plants. Some system must, therefore, be devised for the development of water powers as a natural resource by private genius and private capital.—Outlook.

True Meaning of Conservation.

I believe that conservation in its broadest term means not the mere saving of a resource against the possible future need, but making of the conserved resource as widely useful to the greatest possible number in the shortest time consistent with the elimination of waste.—Professor Thomas H. Norton, Ph. D., Sc. D., Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, United States Department of Commerce, in Scientific American.

MOST IMPORTANT BILL NOW BEFORE CONGRESS

How Water Power Legislation Will Build Up the West.

By HENRY L. MYERS,
United States Senator From Montana.

In my opinion the bill now before congress for leasing power sites on the public lands is more important and fraught with more possibilities of good, more benefit to our country, than any other piece of legislation which will be considered at this session of congress. This bill proposes to make available for development and use the cheapest source of electricity—water power. It offers a new hope of wonderful development and marvelous possibilities for new industries to the great west.

The water powers of that part of the country are among its greatest resources, and to the present time they have been almost wholly neglected. We have stopped developing water powers because the laws have not been adapted to their development. The proposed legislation will encourage water power development, offering reasonable terms and conditions to investors, while it fully protects the public rights in this national asset. It opens the door to development on fair terms to investor and consumer alike and puts up the bars against speculation in or exploitation of the public need for individual or corporate greed.

A few of the uses to which electrical power has been put successfully in recent years and will be applied more successfully in the next few years to come are:

Cheap electricity for fuel and power, light and heat in the cities and on the farms.

Reclamation by irrigation of vast areas of land now idle and useless.

Establishment of new industries, around which will grow new towns and cities, creating employment for hundreds of thousands of people and new markets for agricultural products.

New steel and iron industries in new sections.

Cheapened production of metal from low grade ores.

Cheaper agricultural fertilizers and consequent larger agricultural crops.

One of the greatest benefits which will arise in the west from this legislation is the irrigation of arid lands which are not now susceptible to irrigation by the gravity system. It is estimated that there are at least 10,000,000 acres of arid lands located in the far western states lying above the reach of gravity water that can only be reclaimed through water raised by pumps operated by cheap hydroelectric power now latent and wasting in the various streams from which the water would be pumped. In other words, we can make the water pump itself on to the land. Given water, these lands will produce every fruit, vegetable and grain that is native to the temperate zone and are capable of supporting a population of 2,000,000 people.

With a bill of this kind enacted into law and in successful operation I believe capital will become interested to such a degree in water power development and power will be produced so cheaply that there will be no excuse for a single quarter section of land in the western states remaining arid and unproductive. Statesmen, economists and theorists have long sought a way for reducing high cost of living. In this legislation I believe lies a direct road to this end.

I am assured that capital is waiting only for fair legislation of the kind contained in this bill to invest in great water power development that will accomplish all the benefits to which I have referred. The establishment of electrochemical plants for the fixation of atmospheric nitrogen located in these western states, where there are mountains of lime, phosphates and other minerals and ores awaiting cheap power for their manufacture into useful products, means among other things cheaper fertilizer for the whole country.

Here is the opportunity for the farmers of the United States to have put into their hands the greatest possible agency of restoring the fertility of their lands, increasing their crops and making this country the storehouse of the world for agricultural products.

Legislation of this character will enable both the government and individuals to engage in the business of the fixation of atmospheric nitrogen. This will not only aid in the production of fertilizers, but it may be utilized by the government in the manufacture of munitions of war. Now we are dependent for our nitric acid, an essential in explosives, upon the nitrate of soda we get from Chile. If by war or any other cause we should be cut off from this source of supply the United States would have no way of obtaining at short notice the materials of which to make gunpowder. Imagine the nearsightedness of such a situation brought about by our neglect of our water powers and our failure to encourage the great electrochemical industries which other nations have created to furnish them with this highly necessary munition of defense.

This measure is not only a development measure and a conservation measure in the true sense of these words, but it is a highly important part of the preparedness program which should be adopted by congress for the purpose of putting this country in a position to defend itself against possible invasion by a foreign foe.

MAKING HISTORY.

Pendleton County Attracting Farmers—Alfalfa, Sweet Clover, Increasing Land Values.

From the fact that Pendleton county has made such remarkable strides during the last ten years in developing her agricultural resources, the county is attracting the attention of farmers and the agricultural press not only in Kentucky but throughout the Central states. June 8 a delegation of 500 Western, Central and Eastern Kentucky farmers will go to Pendleton where the will be conveyed over the county by two routes, one through the northern and the other through the southern section of the county in automobiles, the parade being about seven miles long. This will be a demonstration by farmers never before witnessed in this and perhaps in no other State.

This will afford opportunity for the visiting farmers to see the alfalfa, sweet clover and bluegrass field; and the dairy herds, sheep and beef cattle grazing on the picturesque hill sides. The route of the parade will be along the crest of winding ridges for the most part over good turnpikes. About 40 miles will be covered by the trip in the forenoon and practically the same distance in the afternoon. The route will be definitely settled by a committee which has spent several days inspecting the proposed routes.

The farmers of the county are elated over the coming visit of their brother farmers from other sections of the state and are feeling some little pride in their achievements which are attracting so much interest in agricultural circles. They are tendering their automobiles to carry the visitors, and are preparing to entertain them with an old fashioned basket dinner at the beautiful county Fair Grounds near Flamouth. Arrangements are now being made to have a free moving picture matinee at the Duncan Theatre in Falmouth for the benefit of the wives and children while the men folks are with the visitors out in the county.

The reason for so much interest being taken in Pendleton county's agriculture lies in the development of her resources under conditions so adverse as to discourage farmers anywhere else. Ten or fifteen years ago most of the hill lands were thin, gullied and bare, except for bushes and rocks. Sweet clover was the first harbinger of a new era, then alfalfa, good pastures and then herds of dairy and beef cattle, sheep, hogs, poultry and honey bees. The dairy products of the county now amount to about $50,000 a month, poultry products $500 000 per year, the honey crop one half million pounds, and the county is grazing more beef cattle perhaps than any other in the State. The problem of managing steep hill lands and preventing ruinous washing and gullying has been well worked out here, and is one of the things of special interest to many of the visiting farmers. Land values in the county have made increases in keeping with improved conditions, but men of wide acquaintance and experience express as their judgment that farm lands can be had in Pendleton county for less money according to productiveness and convenient markets, than anywhere in the country; and also that the farms of the county are paying their owners more in proportion to the investment than any lands in the United States.

Nothing in It.

How often have you picked up a paper and after glancing at it thrown it aside with the remark, "nothing in the paper this week." Did you ever stop to think what that phrase means? It means that in the past week no misfortune has befallen any one in your community; that no fire has wiped out a neighbor's worldly goods, that the Grim Angel of Death has crossed no threshold of a friend; that no man driven by liquor hatred or fear has taken the life of a fellow human; that no poor devil, haunted by the past misdeed of some other has passed the great divide by his own hands.

So the next time you pick up a paper that doesn't announce a tragedy, give a little thanks instead of grumbling because there's no news. Or, if you would rather shall we dish you up a choice bit of scandal?

Would your eyes go round and you smack your lips with a relish if we were to write up a sensation? Well, we can do it. Shall we begin on you? Do you think that you've got that little secret all locked up away from everybody? Well if you look over the stories in the editor's little book, you will be surprised in all probability to see your name written there, and further, a story in detail, which you fondly thought was all your own? Nothing in the paper? Do you long to see a procession of skeletons marching past your door? Do you court such a procession? We all have feelings and none are immune.—Ex.

THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER DAM AND POWER PLANT AT KEOKUK AND THE MAN WHO BUILT IT.

By HUGH L. COOPER, Builder of the Keokuk Dam.

American farmers are going to school. They are learning that farming is a manufacturing business; that every garden, farm, orchard and ranch is a chemical laboratory.

The chemists are the agricultural schoolmasters of today.

The virgin soil contains certain elements which furnish plant food and grow crops. As these elements are taken from the soil by cropping year after year, its productivity diminishes and the crops fall off.

Every intelligent farmer knows nowadays what these vital elements are and in what proportion they must be restored to the soil to keep up his crop yields and make his business pay. With farmer and manufacturer alike the present day problem is to secure an adequate supply of necessary raw materials and labor at prices that will give him a profit on his finished product.

The war, for instance, has shut off our potash supply from Germany, and the government experts are almost hysterically seeking to devise processes for converting seaweed into potash or making available the immense supply of this salt locked up in the common rocks of our hills and mountains and scattered broadcast over the earth.

Earth a Vast Cemetery.

The most important of the plant foods, though, and the most costly, is the nitrogen, which is vital not only to plant life, but to all forms of life. We commonly think of oxygen as the life giving element, but the scientists tell us that were the supply of nitrogen cut off the whole of the earth would soon become a vast cemetery.

So lavishly has natnre supplied us with nitrogen that four-fifths of the atmosphere is composed of this element.

Agriculturally we must supply nitrogeneous plant food in the form of ammonia. Through countless ages a very small part of the nitrogen in the air has been made into ammonia, deposited in the soil by lightning and other natural processes. It is this tiny deposit of ammonia or nitrous acid which gives the virgin soil its plant building properties. These deposits, however, are so small that additional means must be found of changing the form of air nitrogen and putting back into the earth the ammonia consumed by plant life if the soil is to remain fertile.

The processes of animal digestion fix some part of the nitrogen consnmed by the body in the form of ammonia valuable as plant food. It is these processes which give stable manure its fertilizing qualities.

For many years we brought guano from Peru and supplied our ammonial soil needs from the deposits of bird droppings accumulated there through countless ages. These Peruvian deposits are exhausted, and while there are similar deposits in several parts of the earth they are so remote and inaccessible as to be practically unavailable.

City sewage and garbage waste, very much of which is carelessly drained into the streams and ocean, contain valuable fertilizing qualities because of its ammonial content. In our desperate need for nitrogeneous fertilizers we are extravagantly using millions of tons a year of cottonseed meal for fertilizer manufacturing. Because of the high cost of chemical fertilizers, farmers in many sections find their use unprofitable and are obliged to lose the use of their land during frequent seasons, planting it in clovers, cowpeas and other plants of the small family of legumes which have the property of extracting nitrogen from the air, converting it into nitrates and leaving these in the soil in the form of small nodules or pimples which form on the roots.

Costly Makeshifts.

These are some of the cumbersome and costly makeshifts to which farmers have been obliged to resort for plant food. Only three other sources of nitrogen supply are known. At present and for many years past the world's greatest supply has been saltpeter or nitrate of soda from the deserts of Chile, where in the conrse of past ages nature has impregnated great beds of soda with atmospheric nitrogen. Until a few years ago the whole civilized world depended upon these Chilean nitrate deposits for its supply of saltpeter, nitric acid and ammonia. Today the United States relies mainly upon this source, and American manufacturers and farmers pay tribute to the Chilean government, which collects an export duty of 00 per cent on the product, to the tune of npward of $12,000,000 a year. Even at this cost the Chilean supply is giving out, and we must face the prospect of still higher prices. The total export of saltpeter in 1860 was 70,000 tons. In 1915 it was nearly 2,000,000 tons. Robert Kennedy Duncan, late professor of chemistry in the University of Kansas, says the best deposits of saltpetre in Chile will be exhausted by 1925. Then what are we to do for ammonia and nitric acid?

In the process of coking coal some ammonia is obtained as a byproduct, but this is only a drop in the bucket as compared with our national needs, and to burn coal primarily for the production of ammonia means a fuel waste and cost that is unthinkable.

Nitrogen From the Air.

From where, then, is our future supply to come?

Science has answered the question, as it answers most questions. Other civilized nations more progressive than we have accepted the aid of science and freed themselves from the Chilean monopoly, saved their coal, increased their supply of fixed nitrogen and reduced its cost by harnessing their water powers, converting into electricity the energy in flowing waters and using this cheap electricity to burn the oxygen out of the air and change the free atmospheric nitrogen into forms of acids and compounds available for chemical, manufacturing and agricultural uses.

The supply of nitrogen in the air is inexhaustible so far as it can be expressed in human terms. Above each acre of land on the continent there are 84,000 tons of nitric acid in the form of free nitrogen. Europe is using 1,400,000 horsepower of hydroelectricity to capture this nitric acid from the air. Germany is waging war with gunpowder made from the atmosphere and furnishing agricultural fertilizers to her farmers at one-half the price paid by the American farmer.

The astounding thing in the United States today is that we do not wake up and take advantage of our opportunities. Our natural resources, the richest in the world, are largely neglected. Of our water powers, which compare favorably with those of any other country, we are using only 10 per cent. It is said that only 5 per cent of our agricultural lands are productive.

A Waste of Two Billions.

In comparison with the enormous development and use of water powers in Europe not a single large hydroelectric plant has been built in the United States for several years. Not one electrochemical plant has been established in this country. Not an ounce of atmospheric nitrogen is being produced within our borders. In the last ten years we have, by neglecting our water powers, destroyed and wasted more than $2,000,000,000 worth of fuel and labor that could have been saved.

The only reason the United States is so far behind other civilized countries in this respect is that the federal government controls the use of our best water powers, and for nearly ten years, under a mistaken conception of conservation, they have been locked out of use by inadequate laws. American capital and investors have sought to develop the water powers and establish the new industries dependent upon cheap power, which would make us free of the Chilean monopoly, but the laws have said "No." To induce investment in these industries investors must have assurance of reasonable security and some hope of fair return or profit, and the laws deny either the security or hope of return.

To no class of American citizens does this situation come home so closely, perhaps, as to the farmers. There is absolutely no relief in sight from the high prices of fertilizers or for fertilizers at all, except through development of cheap water powers.

Not only does the water power question affect the future of fertilizer supply and prices, but it is closely related to the labor question. For several years farm labor has been increasingly expensive and hard to secure. Immigration has stopped and is not likely to be resumed for years or generations to come. Europe will need all the men she has left after the war. Conservation of American labor means abolishment of nnnecessary work and the releasing of workmen for better occupations.

Our Undeveloped Water Power.

The United States figures show that there is now undeveloped in this country about 35,000,000 horsepower of water power. To develop and use even half of this means conserving the labor of 300,000 men now employed in coal mining. If applied to furnish power for present uses it would relieve the railroads of the United States of the necessity of transporting more than 110,000,000 tons of coal a year, most of it for their own use.

Electrification of the railroads means better and cheaper transportation. To bring 300,000 men from the bowels of the earth and put them to work in the sunshine, in factories and on the farms, means not only a new supply of farm and manufacturing labor, but bettering the condition of these men and making this country a better place to live in from every human point of view.

But to get these results, to get any development and use of water power we first must have federal legislation that will open the water powers to use. The United States senate the other day passed the Shields bill by a vote of 46 to 22. This measnre gives water power companies the right under careful restrictions to dam navigable streams and build power plants therein. A bill providing for leasing of power sites in the public domain has passed the house and is now being debated in the senate. Certain men and interests are trying to defeat the purpose of this constructive and beneficial legislation by loading it up with unworkable terms and conditions. They are making charges and statements, generally vague and containing more inuendo than argument, intended to create suspicion and mistrust and prevent legislation. It behooves the American manufacturer, the American farmer, the American citizen who has any direct, indirect or patriotic interest in this subject to study this legislation for himself and arrive at his own conclusions.

A Suggestion to Citizens.

Instead of taking the opinion of somebody else I urge every interested citizen to write to his congressman in Washington for copies of the Shields bill and the Myers bill and read them carefully, thoroughly, impartially and critically. After reading these measures and making up his mind as to their merits, I urge him to write his representative in congress exactly what he thinks of them, demanding their passage if he thinks them good bills, and their defeat if he thinks them bad bills.

Secretary Lane on Water Power.

Under existing conditions, due largely to inadequate laws relating to the matter, a condition of stagnation exists, and water power resources are not being used. Existing law is not fitted for the uses to which it is put. • • • There is that mystifying miracle of drawing nitrogen from the air for chemical use, which can be done only with great power, but is being done in Germany, Norway, Sweden, France, Switzerland and elsewhere, by which an inexhaustible substitute for the almost exhausted nitrates of Chile has been found. To increase the yield of our farms and to give us an independent and adequate supply of nitrogen for the explosives used in war we must set water wheels at work that will fix nitrogen in time.—Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior.

WHY EUROPE GROWS BIGGER FARM CROPS

The European farmer uses 200 pounds of chemical fertilizer per acre of cultivated lands. The average use of fertilizers in the United States is twenty-eight pounds per acre. As a result the comparative crop yields per acre in bushels of European and American farms are:

	Wheat.	Oats.	Barley.	Potatoes.
Europe	32	47	38	158
United States	15	29	25	96

We must increase our crop yields per acre if farming in this country is to pay and if we are to continue to feed ourselves without excessively high cost of living. To do so means using more chemical fertilizers, and at present prices of even normal before the war prices of both fertilizers and crops it doesn't pay to nse more fertilizer on small grains and general farm and forage crops. The increased crop yield won't pay for the fertilizer used to produce it. In Enrope the bigger crop yields pay because fertilizers are cheaper.

The German farmer buys fertilizer for about half the price paid by the American farmer. We pay twice as much for potash to a German monopoly. We pay twice as much for nitrates or ammonia to a Chilean monopoly. The nitrates are the most expensive element in fertilizers. European farmers are getting their supply from the air, made by water power. Our water powers, which would give us cheap fertilizers, are not used.

We must use the resources of the nation, not lock them out of use.—Woodrow Wilson.

USE OF DYNAMITE ON SOILS

Its Usefulness May Depend Largely Upon Local Conditions—Test at Pennsylvania Station.

The Pennsylvania station has reported to the department of agriculture the results of experiments conducted to determine the influence of dynamiting on the physical condition of soils; soil, moisture and drainage, newly planted fruit trees, mature trees, field crops and insects in the soil.

While the results cannot be taken as conclusive for all conditions, yet they may indicate that the useful application of dynamite as a soil improver is limited. Its usefulness may depend largely upon local conditions. No definite benefits were derived from its use in either orchard or field crops. What it might do under different conditions, or over longer periods, is yet to be determined. One pond was drained and the other was not. Its usefulness in shooting an open ditch, blasting bowlders and blowing stumps cannot be questioned.

It may be very useful in draining land where no outlet can be found for a tile drain. How permanent its effect may be is not known. As to destroying insects (ants), it has not proved to be of any use. It is probably safe to conclude that the application of dynamite as a soil improver is greatly limited and that it would always be advisable to try it out in a small way before investing much money in its use."

BARREL FOR FILLING SACKS

Four Curved Nails Placed at Equal Distances in Rim of a Barrel Will Prove Quite Useful.

The clumsy performance of holding a sack and filling it at the same time can be simplified if the sack is hung in a barrel. Four curved nails are placed at equal distances in the rim, and the sack is suspended from these.

Keeping Bag Open.

When it is filled, the sack can be easily removed.

By the use of this device one man can do the work of two and in less time, with practically no outlay.—Popular Mechanics.

BENEFIT OF LIME ON SOILS

Will Correct Sourness and Assist in Getting Stand of Alfalfa—How to Distribute.

On a few soils which have a tendency to sourness, the use of lime is beneficial in getting a stand of alfalfa, and in some cases is necessary to success. To begin with, one should use lime experimentally and if possible learn to grow alfalfa on land that does not need lime. Where lime is used it should be applied at the rate of 3,000 to 4,000 pounds an acre in any convenient form except that from gas works, which contains injurious compounds. Where only a small area is to be limed, the ordinary barrel lime allowed to air slake or water slake to a powder may be used. The ground limestone is the cheapest form where large amounts are to be applied. This is best applied by means of a lime distributor after plowing and before working the ground down so that the preparation of the seedbed may work the lime into the soil. For a small area, however, it will be more feasible to scatter the lime from a wagon box with a shovel by hand.

The limestone so common in middle West states is now becoming available through the use of a machine which grinds the stone into suitable form.

EXPERIMENTING WITH GOATS

California Station Gives Complete Record for Year—Comparison Made in Milk Cost.

Three milch goats at the California station completed a year's record as follows: A two-year-old pure Toggenburg, 2,158 pounds of milk and 72.8 pounds of milk fat; a two-year-old Toggenburg, 1,118 pounds of milk and 40.7 pounds of milk fat; and a yearling grade Toggenburg, 1,283 pounds of milk and 49.72 pounds of milk fat. The cost of feed of one pound of milk from these goats was approximately 90 per cent that of one pound of milk of a similar average fat content produced by a group of five cows in the university dairy herd.

GETTING START WITH DUCKS

Demand for Fowls Has Been Built Up in Large Eastern Cities and on Pacific Coast.

Don't rush into the duck business because you have heard of someone who has made a pile of money in raising ducks. Just remember that he spent years in learning the business before he ventured far.

The demand for green ducks (ten to twelve weeks old) has been built up in the large eastern cities and on the Pacific coast. There is very little demand for such ducks in small cities and towns.

SPEECH

Of Gov. A. O. Stanley Delivered At the Democratic Convention Last Wednesday.

Speech of Gov. A. O. Stanley, as temporary chairman of the State Democratic convention at Lexington last Wednesday:

Fellow Democrats: Words fail me in any attempt to express my profound appreciation of this signal evidence of the continued and continuing esteem of my countrymen. A few days ago 2,000 delegates, speeking through and for more than 200,000 Democrats, assembled in local conventions in practically every county of the Commonwealth, from the mountains to Mill's Point, declared their confidence in and their approval of the present administration, and in the good work it has just inaugurated, to be the fortunate and grateful recipient of such an unequivocal and universal expression is a distinction a king might covet, and I shall endeavor not to express, but to demonstrate, my gratitude to those who have thus honored me, by an assiduous devotion to the best interests of the noblest party and the greatest State in all this world.

It is fitting that at this time we should briefly review the history of this administration, that those who have heartily indorsed may the better know how well it has deserved the commendation, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant," so emphatically recorded by the Democracy of this Commonwealth.

Program of Reform.

On August 31, 1913, the Democracy of Kentucky, in convention assembled, committed its nominees to a program of reforms far reaching in its scope and thorough in its operation, embracing at once every department of the State government and the whole field of commercial and industrial activity. It promised:

To foster and promote agriculture and to protect the producer from extortion or exploitation by combinations in restraint of trade.

To improve our school system and to prevent unnecessary waste and expense in the purchase of text books.

A more extended control and regulation of common carriers and other public utilities.

The protection of the electorate and of legislative assemblies alike from corruption or control by privileged or corporate interests.

Retrenchment and rigid economy in the expenditure of public funds.

A complete revision of the present inefficient and antiquated system of taxation, and, the maintenance and enforcement of the present county unit law.

Today you may contemplate with pride the completion, in no small measure of the noble and arduous task so recently imposed.

Administrtion's Work.

This administration enacted a pureseed law, and before its close we will see the great Department of Agriculture and the University of the State in thorough harmony and perfect cooperation, providing the farmer with a bureau of markets, and, with the assistance of the Federal government, expending nearly $300,000 in the highest development of the art of agriculture and in bringing in concrete and tangible form to the cottage and to the field, the rich fruits of scientific discovery—the fertilization of soils and the higher cultivation and development of every form of plant and animal life.

It has written upon the statute books an anti-trust law, so wisely drawn as to give perfect freedom of action to every legitimate enterprise, while preventing and punishing the oppression of the poor and the exploitation of the public trust and continuations in restraint of trade.

It has entered the school room and protected the pupil and the necessitous parent from the cunning of avaricious book companies by forever preventing useless and sweeping changes in the textbooks inaugurated for the sole benefit of those who patent and print them.

Insurance.

When this administration came into power property was insured by a kind of sufferance. No man knew and no insurance company could say just what its duties or responsibilities were. Insurance laws have been rewritten in such a way as to both protect the insured and to give stability and confidence to business.

A quarter of a century ago, the framers of the constitution wisely prohibited the granting of offering of transportation to public servants, realizing that a rebate by a common carrier is a naked and indefensible abuse, an iniquity that no good man can defend, or wise legislator tolerate. Yet, in all that lapse of years, every effort to make effective this just and righteous provision of the constitution of the Commonwealth was doomed to ignominious defeat. Every bill introduced for that purpose was strangled in the darkness by a conspiracy of greed and silence. Common carriers are essential alike to the development of the country and to the necessities of the citizens. Wisely and justly operated railroads are absolutely essential to the happiness and prosperity of the community.

The Secret Rebate.

The secret rebate is, nevertheless, the mother of monopoly. There is no discrimination in [illegible] freight rates, [illegible] the same obligation from every form of discrimination in the transportation of passengers as of freight. Legislators have been bribed, courts cajoled, citizens flattered and corrupted by this pernicious and insidious practice. Thus, the last General Assembly, almost without a dissenting voice, forever abolished the free pass to official and citizen alike, and under the present law common carriers will be compelled to serve all men, without regard to wealth or place or power, with equal and exact justice.

Legislation has been cleansed and ennobled by the prompt and cheerful response of courageous statesmen to the demand of a progressive democracy.

Corrupt Practice Act.

A corrupt practices act insures the freedom of elections from slush funds provided by designing interests, and an anti-lobby law throws the light of day upon those who seek by "cunning, sly, insinuating art," to debauch the public servants in the discharge of an official duty.

The interests of the shipper have been safeguarded by acts placing the sole responsibility for loss in transit upon the initial carrier. The watering of stock has been interdicted by wise regulations preventing the overcapitalization of corporations and the manipulation of their securities. The powers of the Railroad Commission have been extended over other public utilities. Legislation has been enacted regulating the operation of railroad, telegraph telephone insurance and banking corporations, and yet no great business interest has been heard to utter one complaint to make one charge of demagogy or injustice against this administration.

It has relieved the necessities of the laborer by providing a two weeks' pay bill, and has provided for those dependent upon him in the case of accident or death by a workmen's compensation act.

It has protected the home by making the desertion of wife and child a felony, and has shielded from violence and wrong, unprotected womanhood by a severe anti-pandering law.

It was codified and written the entire body of laws prdviding for the regulation and organization of the militia and for the operation and maintenance of our common schools.

Public Highways.

It has cheapened the cost of public highways by utilizing the labor of convicts in their construction and by wise legislation, has extended and rendered available to the poorest counties the aid of the State in extending these great thoroughfares to the most remote sections of the Commonwealth.

Pledged to retrenchment and reform and facing a deficit of more than $3,000,000, it has practiced the most rigid economy in the appropriation and expenditure of public funds. The last General Assembly utilized less than half the employes required by its predecessors, thus affecting a saving of more than $200 for each day of its deliberations. The custodian and the Sinking Fund Commissioners are now perfecting a plan by which the cost of maintenance of the public buildings and grounds at Frankfort will be reduced at least 30 per cent.

Outstanding Warrants.

The act providing a fixed date of maturity for outstanding warrants will save in interest to the taxpayers of the Commonwealth not less than $50,000 per annum.

An able Tax Commission is now tirelessly and assiduously devoting itself to the task of completely revising the present archaic and inefficient system of taxation.

The acts of the last General Assembly constitute a unique volume of well-digested, wisely-constructed and progressive legislation which has placed Kentucky in the vanguard of forward-looking states. This administration, entrusted with power for less than six short months may well stand erect before the Democracy of the Commonwealth. Every platform pledge made by the great convention which commended it to a work well and nobly done.

Contract Kept.

In behalf of those associated with me in this administration, I can say to you who have so generously commended us, that we have regarded the last Democratic platform as a solemn covenant, a contract to be executed, in spirit and in letter. Every promise fulfilled, every pledge redeemed, we who have kept the faith, well may merit this magnificent expression of your approval and esteem. We have done more than crystallize into law those specific reforms incorporated in the last platform. We have abstained from doing those things which were by necessary implication absolutely prohibited.

Friend of Temperance.

The Democratic party has ever been the true friend of temperance and the righteous champion of every reform designed for the intellectual or moral uplift of the Commonwealth. The Democracy of Kentucky believes with the President of the U. S that temperance and Democracy are consistent and that the sale of alcoholic liquors can be regulated, or prohibited without abandoning or destroying the sacred principles of local self government. The maintenance of home rule and an inflexible opposition to centralized power are fixed and established principles first proclaimed by Thomas Jefferson and from time immemorial, honored and maintained by the Democracy of Kentucky.

County Unit.

For that reason, in 1911, a Democratic convention declared in favor of the county unit in order that the "citizens of each and every county in the State may determine for themselves whether spirituous, vinous or malt liquors may be sold therein." The last Democratic platform declared that "We reaffirm and reassert our unqualified approval of the present county unit law and of the declaration of the Democratic party in the convention of August 15th, 1911, pledging the party to its adoption," and it asserted in no uncertain terms, its allegiance to the great leader of a national Democracy declaring that in "Any legislation affecting the moral welfare of the people and the party we may well be guided by our great leader whose wisdom and righteousness are the priceless boon of a triumphant Democracy. We unqualifiedly commend to the Democracy of Kentucky his sage admonition that 'the questions involved in such legislation are social and moral

Got The Spirit.

A communication from Kansas City has the following to say about J. B Sanders, of Grant county. When Billy Sunday called for converts Thursday night a man got to his feet in the center row of seats, some 200 feet back, a tall thin man with a dark mustache. He was the first man up. He hurried to get out from his seat, He almost ran down the "sawdust trail" as Bunyans pilgrim may have run, fleeing from his sins, and as he rushed up to the evangelist with extended hand, his face aglow, and then he turned and sat down, the first man to hit the trail in Kansas City.

As if a great burden had rolled from his back he bent low in his seat and with both hands covering his face, he wept; tears trickled between his fingers and dropped into the sawdust and his whole frame shook.

Who was the first trail hitter? Not a Kansas Citian, but a man who journeyed 560 miles to seek salvation. No wonder he wept.

J. B Sanders was his name. He came from Dry Ridge, Ky. He is in the furniture business there, married and has two daughters. He read that Billy Sunday was going to have a revival in Kansas City and he bought a railway ticket.

What Goode & Dunkie of Covington have to say about cream separators this week

IT will be worth your while to find out what some of your neighbors who use De Laval Cream Separators think of their machines before you buy any separator.

About the best thing we can say for the De Laval is that all the farmers around here who use it are boosters.

It does good work for them and pleases them, and we know it will please you.

Make it a point to ask your neighbor about his De Laval

There are nearly two million satisfied De Laval users throughout the world. More De Laval Separators are in use than all other makes combined. It isn't the cheapest, but the majority of separator users have found out by experience that it is the best and by far the most economical separator to own.

We want to tell you about an arrangement we have whereby you can make partial payment at time of purchase and pay the balance on such liberal terms that the De Laval will save its cost while you are paying for it.

Come in and see us the first time you have a chance and talk it over.

Sooner or later you will buy a DE LAVAL

PLAN FOR RAISING GOSLINGS

Hen Will Cover Only Five or Six Eggs, While Mother Goose May Hatch From 12 to 15.

Geese usually begin to lay in March, and if not allowed to sit will lay from 20 to 30 eggs each. The first goslings are not hatched until the grass begins to come in green. A hen will cover only five or six goose eggs, while the mother goose may hatch from 12 to 15. Although the period of incubation averages 30 days, it will vary from 28 to 33 days. As the time for hatching is half as long again as for hen's eggs, only hens that are in good condition and kept free from lice and properly fed will stay on the nest long enough to bring off a good hatch.

Since the first gosling may appear as early as the twenty-eighth day, and the last one not until the thirty-third or thirty-fifth day, it is a good plan to remove the goslings from the nest to a warm, flannel-lined basket as fast as they hatch. If this is not done the hen may become restless before the hatch is finished and leave the nest. It is not wise to assist goslings from the shell. It is important, however, to see that the eggs are kept moist.

When incubator hatching all nonfertile eggs are removed upon testing, the sixth day. It is important to know that goose eggs need more cooling than hen's eggs. After the tenth day the eggs are sprinkled daily with lukewarm water.

INCREASING THE EGG OUTPUT

Success in Poultry Business Depends Largely on Attention and Care Given to Eggs.

Keep the hens' nests clean and have plenty of nests.

Gather eggs twice daily in warm weather and daily during other seasons.

Handle eggs as little as possible, as handling deteriorates them.

Market eggs of the correct size, 24 to 28 ounces a dozen.

Cut out all very large or very small eggs.

Sell nothing but clean eggs; never wash them for market.

Produce only infertile eggs by removing all roosters as soon as the breeding period is over.

Keep all eggs in a cool place.

Don't let eggs come into contact with vegetable or kitchen odors.

Don't hold eggs too long, as they deteriorate rapidly; market at least twice a week.

Keep only one breed of chickens and raise eggs of one color.

Market your eggs in clean, 30-dozen cases, or in cartons holding one dozen eggs, depending on the demand.

Don't expose eggs to flies and dust.

Confine broody hens at once and remove them to the hatching department.

Never expose market eggs to the direct rays of the sun, to extreme heat or rain.

Keep poultry houses free from vermin.

Feed wholesome, clean feed and provide pure water in clean vessels and often.

Sell your eggs only to buyers, who buy loss-off and who are willing to pay for quality.

Disinfect the Coop.

To keep down lice and mites spray the roosts and walls of the chicken-coop with a good disinfectant. If you cannot do this, you can at least clean out the coop and kerosene the roosts well with a rag on the end of a stick. Take the same precautions with the nests.

Avoid Heat-Producing Foods.

Care should be exercised to avoid feeding too much heat-producing foods, but we should strive to maintain the breeding animals in a good, vigorous flesh-forming condition by feeding them a ration made up of clean, wholesome blood, bone and muscle-forming foods.

Guineas Prove Profitable.

Guineas are proving profitable with some of our farmers. These birds are easy to raise and keep and furnish the finest kind of fowl meat for the table.

Sposial Notice.

The Farmers' Mutual Telephone Directory says, I handle any kind of rubber tire; and that I have the exclusive agency of the Republic Rubber Tires. That contract just cost me $200 of which of some of my customers will attest. I guaranteed those tires and I filled same to the letter. Now, right here I do most solemnly promise and swear that I will never again change the old and tried for any new thing whatsoever. Furthermore, that I will not use any Rubber Tire except Kelly's Springfield—the first rubber tire ever made and the best. I ought to know for surely I paid last year to find out. It is just like a boy changing the old girl for the new or a man leaving his old and tried wife for a new one. Now, isn't it a fact that they always go back to the old and tried love, is it not so boys? That's what I have done with Kelly's Springfield Rubber Tire—gone back to my old love. While they cost me more money they will cost my customers $12.00 per set or $3.00 per tire; these tires I give a guarantee on for being as represented. They will not stuff out nor will they peel, but will wear smooth like a good tire should.

Now in regards to repainting: I have tried to get my quick system and do good work, but I find it a failure so I give it up and must stick to the old system. All my work I guarantee to be as represented. I do anything in the carriage line. Bring me your work if you want it done right. I solicit your trade.

DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

Following is the Democratic platform adopted by the convention at Lexington last Wednesday:

"The Democracy of Kentucky, in convention assembled, rejoices over the unchallenged and unprecedented prosperity of the American nation. While more than half the peoples of the world are engaged in the most terrible war in the history of mankind, we of America are at peace. Fully appreciative of this dual blessing, priceless peace and bounteous prosperity, the Democracy of Kentucky at the outset does hereby gratefully express its boundless gratitude to the one citizen of America whose superb statesmanship and matchless leadership have been responsible for this condition—Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States.

"We hereby reaffirm our historic allegiance to the teachings and tenets of our party and pledge again our unfaltering support to the progressive principles and policies of President Woodrow Wilson.

"We heartily commend and enthusiastically indorse his masterly conduct of the affairs of the republic, both foreign and domestic. Under the inspiration of his incomparable leadership, we call upon the patriotic citizenship of Kentucky to unite with us in our efforts in behalf of the re-election of President Wilson, so that the era of progressive administration and legislation ushered in to our national life by the President may continue.

"We commend the spirit of true, lofty Americanism in thought and deed characterizing the President's course in dealing with the grave international issues which have confronted us. No President in the history of our nation has ever been called upon to meet problems so grave and difficulties so stupendous and questions of such great moment, in maintaining American integrity and honor in our relations with other nations of the world. Nevertheless, amid false accusations and harsh criticisms, from sources lacking in comprehensive vision or conception of our true duties and rights as a neutral nation, he has maintained for our country an unwavering position of honorable neutrality, devoid of sacrifices to the prejudices of men upon the one hand and sacrifices of American rights upon the other. We congratulate the American people that we have his clearness of mind steadfastness of purpose and our ageness insistence upon the highest national ideals to guide our policies through this great crisis. We assert that it is the manifest duty of American citizens to uphold and support the President in his work, and we hold that a change in the National Administration at this juncture would be nothing short of an invitation to disaster. Therefore, we voice the unanimous demand of the Democracy of Kentucky for the renomination of the President by the Democratic National Convention at St. Louis, and do hereby instruct our delegation in the national convention to vote for and support his renomination, and to vote as a unit on all matters coming before said convention.

"We enthusiastically and unreservedly commend the foreign policy of the President and give our sincere approval to the notable achievements of his administration in the field of international diplomacy.

"First—We direct attention particularly to his distinguished success in maintaining American neutrality in the face of seemingly insuperable obstacles and at the same time preserving the peace of the nation, insuring the prosperity and security of the American people.

"Second—His great diplomatic victories whereby he has compelled the acknowledgment of American rights, and of all neutral rights, even amid an orgy of destruction, without parallel in the world's history. He has forced universal acknowledgment of the principle that human life has a claim upon civilization superior to military necessity; and that civilized nations in an enlightened age must hold unjustified any mode of warfare when conducted so as to place in jeopardy the lives of innocent neutrals and noncombatants.

"Third—His wise and patriotic course toward our distracted sister Republic of Mexico. By declining to place a premium upon murder and treachery in refusing recognition of the unspeakable Huertas and by remaining sternly deaf alike to the abuse and pleading of those seeking to turn the power of the United States to private uses, he has adhered to a policy based upon the Democratic doctrine that the people of all nations have an inherent right to settle by and for themselves internal governmental problems. We applaud his prompt and vigorous action in the use of the army of the United States for the apprehension and punishment of the perpetrators of the massacre at Columbus, N. M., and we express our confidence in his wisdom and foresight in dealing with the Mexican problem, declaring our belief that his policy will ultimately result in adequate redress for American wrongs inflicted by irresponsible bandits and in the restoration of peace and order in the republic.

"Fourth—His maintenance of the Monroe Doctrine and his consistent policy of fair dealing with all our sister republics in the Western Hemisphere. In the field of domestic endeavor we believe that no National Administration has ever made an equal record of progress and reform. We commend the multitude of splendid legislative achievements brought about by a Democratic Congress under the leadership of the President during the last three years.

"We commend the practical and efficient action of Congress which though dedicating America to the cause of peace, assures without excessive military burdens or conscription, immediate expansion of our armed forces so as to provide adequate means of military defense against foreign aggressors.

"We commend the Federal Reserve act, which has forever freed American business from financial panics and established permanently a democracy of credit. In striking contrast to the crude and vicious banking system developed and fostered under Republican regimes, productive of periodical financial disaster, the present law has carried our national business life through a period of depression produced by world war into an era of unexempled prosperity.

"We direct special attention to the fearless enforcement of anti-struct laws and the enactment of legislation for the complete eradication of monopoly and the restoration of competitive methods of trade in accordance with the pledges of the Democratic party.

"We express our gratification that the Underwood Tariff act, substituted for the infamous Payne-Aldrich law, has demonstrated the wisdom and statesmanship of the Democratic Congress framing it. We especially approve the income tax system, which places the burden of taxation upon those best able to bear it, in complete accord with traditional Democratic doctrine.

"We call attention to the elimination of invisible government at Washington, resulting thru fearless exposures in investigations conducted by a Democratic Congress.

"We invite the attention of business men to the successful operation of a Federal Trade Commission, established by a Democratic Congress, thereby providing a governmental agency for guiding and prompting our broad and growing commercial relations.

"We urge the prompt enactment of the pending legislative programme recommended by the President and conceived with the same patriotic purpose characterizing his entire administration. We particularly indorse the following measures:

"The Ship Purchase Bill, which offers the only feasible plan for the creation of an American merchant marine for the carriage of American products to the eager markets of the world.

"The nonpartisan Tariff Commission Bill, whereby American interests may be conserved against any emergency following the European war.

"The Rural Credits Bill, which will insure a market for the sound securities of American farms and enable the farmer to obtain credit on fair and reasonable terms. We are heartily in favor of Government aid to the States in the construction of good roads.

"The Democratic party has earned the continued confidence of the American people because it has made good its pledges. It awaits the further opportunity to serve them, and gives assurances that if the affairs of the Government are continued in its charge that it will favor full and adequate preparation for national defense, the maintenance without abatement or compromise of the rights of American citizens under international law, the establishment of the closest relation of amity and mutual helpfulness between the United States and other republics of the Western Hemisphere for the maintenance of peace and the promotion of the prosperity of the two continents.

"We further recommend all such measures of constructive or remedial legislation as may be necessary and adequate for the creation of better conditions or better facilities, for the promotion of business enterprise for the removal of unfair conditions of competition, either in the United States or in the dealings of America with foreign competitors, and for the increase of scientific efficiency in industrial and commercial undertakings.

"The scrupulous conservation of the national resources of the United States by provisions of law which do not prevent their use, but which do prevent their waste or monopolization.

"The most rigid economy in all expenditures for the support of the Government consistent with wise and efficient administration, and to that end, we favor standardization and uniformity of expenditure established and waste and duplication in the public service avoided.

"We heartily commend the record, achievements and conduct of our Democratic Senators and Representatives in Congress.

"We heartily commend and indorse the present Democratic State administration under the leadership of Gov. Stanley, for its fidelity to the promises made to the people in advance of its election, and point with pardonable pride to the pertinent fact that its every promise has been fulfilled and all of its pledges redeemed within six months following its election. We heartily commend and indorse the faithfulness and efficiency of the last General Assembly in its cooperation with the executive force of the Commonwealth in carrying out the pledges of the party platform adopted by the Democratic State Convention of last year.

"We reaffirm our allegiance and devotion to the Democratic platform adopted at Louisville, Ky., August 31, 1915, and to the principles therein enunciated."

State News.

Tobacco plants came up well in Estill county, but the cold, dry weather retarded their growth greatly.

The rain Monday of last week came at the right time in Madison county, and put tobacco ground in good condition for planting.

In Bracken county plants at the beginning of last week showed the lack of water and that the cold weather had retarded their growth.

A splendid first planting in Todd county was made the first days of last week, and indications point to one of the largest acreages in years.

The outlook for a large acreage in Montgomery county is excellent. Plants have grown rapidly, and many fields have been transplanted.

The preparation of the ground occupied the growers in Fleming county the greater part of last week. Plants are growing nicely and present a promising prospect. Reports from all over the county indicate a large acreage.

It was necessary the first of last week that tobacco plant beds all through the Burley district should be watered to save the plants. The plants escaped the frost and will be ready to transplant as soon as there is a season. Preparations for an increased acreage this year have been made.

Paducah.—Petitions requesting the county judge to call an election to vote on $400,000 worth of bonds for county roads are being circulated. As soon as the required number of signatures are secured the petitions will be filed with the county judge. The vote will be taken at the regular election in November.

Paris.—A windstorm accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain and hail passed over the Little Rock and North Middletown sections of the county late Saturday afternoon, doing considerable damage. The telephone wires and poles were blown down over a large area, and several tobacco barns were unroofed. The hail did considerable damage to gardens.

Humphry Marshall while at work in the field near his home Monday afternoon, saw a strange looking bird flying near where he was working. He shot the bird and dis covered it to be an Eagle. Mr Marshall brought the bird to town Monday night where it created a great deal of interest. The bird measured six feet eight inches from the tip of one wing to the tip of the other.—Lawrenceburg Register.

Some tobacco has been set in Clark county. While on most of the farms plants are too small, yet there is enough plants in the near future if the weather is favorable to put out the bulk of the crop. The plants are in much better than at this time a year ago. All the tobacco land in the county will soon be in shape for planting. No pains are spared in the preparation of the ground and the result will be a good crop.

Tobacco prices at Hopkinsville soared again last week, with an average of $8.34 for the 425,165 pounds sold on the loose-floor market. The recent high prices have raised the season's average more than $1.75. The boom has had the effect of causing the acreage of the new crop to bematerially increased. Plants are plentiful, the season is especially favorable so far and the crop is being planted as fast as hills can be made.

Barbourville.—For many miles in advance of the established producing areas test drilling for new petroleum fields is now going forward in Kentucky. The performance of some of the districts developed this year has attracted operators from many sections of the country, who formerly regarded this field with suspicion. Last year's record in wells drilled and production developed, already exceeded by the figures of the first four months this year, the season will constitute the most active year in the history of Kentucky developments.

Following the advice of experts who have made a careful study of the situation of figures furnished by stastiticians both of America and Europe the farmers of Christian county are engaged in setting out the largest tobacco crop that has been planted in years. The most conservative tobacco dealers are confident that the law of supply and demand will assure high prices for the weed next season. Plants are plentiful and the rains the past week made a fine season, and everybody on the farms have been busy from break of day till night in the tobacco fields. Thousands of acres already have been set out and the next rain will be followed by similar work.

Lexington.—When he receives the degree of Doctor of Laws, which will be conferred upon him at the commencement exercises of the University of Kentucky next Thursday, Gov. Stanley will wear a cap and a gown made for and presented to him by the young women of the sewing class in the Department of Home Economics. Many degrees have been conferred upon distinguished men by the University, but no other recipient of such honor ever had the articles of apparel which go with such distinction presented as a token of honor and admiration by the young women of the University. The gown and cap, or rather hood, which goes with it, are being made of the finest corded silk with every seam and tuck sewed with the most exquisite care. The young women are taking great pride in making the beautiful garb of a scholar for the Governor of the Commonwealth, in whom the university takes a special interest because he was a student of the institution.

Why We Are Opposing A Government Armor Plant

To the People:

Some people say that the very fact that the Bethlehem Steel Company is so aggressively fighting the proposal to build a Government armor plant is conclusive proof that the Company is seeking to assure for itself the "vast profits" derived from private manufacture.

The fact is that armor making is the least profitable feature of steel manufacture.

The reason we oppose a Government plant is very simple. It is this:

Even though there is but little profit in the making of armor, we have invested over $7,000,000 in our armor plant;

That plant is useless for any other purpose; if a Government plant is built the usefulness of our plant is destroyed.

It would be good business for us to make armor for the Government at any price over and above the actual shop cost, RATHER THAN SACRIFICE OUR ENTIRE INVESTMENT.

We do not seek to save big profits; our purpose is very frankly to save our armor plant—itself built solely for the use of the Government—from going to the scrap heap.

To do that, we are prepared to agree for any period to any terms of manufacture which the Federal Trade Commission shall say absolutely protects the Government of the United States.

Wood Flour.

More than 20,000 tons of wood flour, valued at $300,000, is used annually in the United States in two widely different industries, the manufacture of dynamite and the manufacture of inlaid linoleum.

Wood flour is also used in making composition flooring, oatmeal paper and in several other industries. It forms one of the means by which the huge waste product of our lumber mills is beginning to find some better means of disposal than the burner. Since a total of 36,000,000 cords of such waste is produced each year at saw mills in the United States, of which about one half goes into the furnances as fuel, while the rest is burned as refuse to get rid of it; there is no lack of raw material for industries which can develop ways of turning this waste to account.

All wood flour-using industries require a white or very light cream-colored flour having good absorptive powers. The wood species that may be used are confined to the light, non-resinous conifers, and the white broad-leaved woods like poplar. Spruce, white pine and poplar are the species most used. Mill waste, free from bark, furnishes much of the raw material for making wood flour.

For use in dynamite the trade demands are said to require a white wood flour, since the freshness of dynamite stock is indicated by a light color. Dynamite flour must also be very absorptive, so there will be no leakage of nitro-glycerin from the finished product. Waste flour mill refuse and infusorial earth have also been used in dynamite making, but wood flour has practically replaced them in this country.

In the manufacture of linoleum either wood or cork flour is used. The flour is mixed with a cementing material, spread out on burlap and rolled or pressed to a uniform thickness. The cement is the expensive constituent. Cork linoleum is the cheaper because less cement is necessary. The patterns are printed on, leaving a dark base. For inlaid or straight line linoleums wood flour is used exclusively. Cork linoleum is always dark, and slightly more elastic than that produced from wood flour. The wearing qualities are about the same.

Two methods of producing wood flour are practiced; one using mill stones, the other steel burr rollers to pulverize the wood. The latter requires only one fourth as much power to operate as the former, and was developed on the Pacific Coast to handle sawdust as a raw material. The mills of Norway, which produce much of the European wood flour, are of the stone type.

Wood flour mills are scattered over the country from Maine to California, wherever the proper combination of wood and water power is available, and the domestic wood flour competes with the Norwegian product, which, before the European war was delivered at Atlantic ports for $12 to $15 a ton.

"I came here to get salvation he said. "I have been serving the devil, and I wanted to serve the Lord. I had got here this morning. It seemed that a new feeling came over me as soon as I struck the town. I have been praying all day and I heard Mr. Sunday this afternoon and tonight. Suddenly in the midst of the sermon tonight it seemed that a great light came to my heart. I found what I came for. I am going to start for home in the morning, and I will go back a new man bound for heaven, instead of hell."

When he arrived in Cincinnati from Chicago he concluded not to wait for the train but to complete his journey in an automobile, and arrived at a late hour of the night. He had an idea that he would remember the old homestead, but the building of a new house and other changes in the landscape caused him to visit several places before he found the home of his sister. Mr. Campbell is a fine old gentleman and it is to be hoped that his sojourn in Kentucky will be of a most enjoyable nature.

STANLEY'S SPEECH.

and are not susceptible of being made parts of a party program. Whenever they have been made the subject matter of party contests they have cut the lines of party organization and party action athwart, to the utter confusion of political action in every other field.""

Opposes Agitation.

With the President, we "Do not believe that party programs of the highest consequence to the political life of the State and of nation ought to be thrust on one side and hopelessly embarrassed for long periods together by making a political issue of a great question which is essentially non-political, non-partisan, moral and social in its nature," and, therefore, we oppose further agitation and legislative experiment, holding that existing laws, if fairly tried, will achieve the ends for which they were designed.'

Statewide Prohibition.

This administration and the last General Assembly were not at liberty to choose between Statewide prohibition and local option without disregarding the emphatic and unanimous demand of more than 2,000 delegates speaking, and authorized to speak, for the whole body of Kentucky Democracy.

To have abandoned the county unit was to repudiate the platform upon which Senators and Representatives were elected. Each of these Representatives, before his name could be printed on a ballot, was required, by the law of the land, to solemnly assert his acceptance of the principles of his party and his purpose to carry them into effect. To have abandoned a principle so well established and so forcibly and so lucidly asserted, would have been the height of perfidy and dishonor. Statewide prohibition and local option and the county unit is local option are absolutely irreconcilable.

Effect of State Action.

The existence of one necessarily implies the abandonment of the other.

When the State as a whole determines this matter, the counties are necessarily denied any right or independent action, and that right cannot be denied them by honorable men in the teeth of a platform which expressly guaranteed to every county in the State absolute control over the vending of spirituous liquors, and further provided that no county shall be deprived by any outside interference of the right to determine this matter for itself.

Strengthened County Unit.

This administration has done more than uphold the county unit. It has strengthened and perfected it. It has given it a virility and efficiency never attained before. In order that each county might the better prevent the violation of laws designed to regulate or prohibit the sale of alcoholic liquors, bootlegging has been made a felony, and the Governor of the State has been entrusted with the right to remove recalcitrant officials wherever saloons were opened on prohibited days or during prohibited hours, and this law has been enforced with such rigor that today, for the first time in the history of the Commonwealth, no barroom dares open its doors to the public upon the Sabbath day in any city or in any hamlet in the Commonwealth of Kentucky. More than that, executive clemency has been absolutely denied to any man convicted of a violation of any of the laws designed to effect the liquor traffic. This administration has been indeed the sincere champion of true temperance, but it has been the champion of Democracy as well:

No good cause demands broken faith, and the cause of temperance is not so weak in Kentucky as to require the repudiation of a Democratic platform in order to properly safeguard the moral welfare of the community.

Those who attempted to obstruct this program, to bring into this proceedings of deliberative bodies by unsuccessful efforts to distract their councils by bitter harangues or useless and unwarranted personal abuse, were treating with defiance and contempt not the Governor of the State or the Speaker of the House of Representatives, they were spurning and repudiating the platform upon which they were elected. They were vainly endeavoring to prevent the representatives of a great party from keeping faith with the people who elected them. This insurrection has been wisely and sternly rebuked by those who believe that platform declarations are and should be binding, upon all honorable men, and that those who insist upon the inviolate observance of pre-election pledges, deserve from their official associates not traduction and slander, but co-operation and support.

Today the Democracy of Kentucky, determined and harmonious files in solid phalanx behind the greatest leader of the Western world. Your action is the certain earnest of a glorious victory in November, and you do well to stand as one man in this crucial hour. Never since the Civil war has any man faced such grave responsibilities and attempted the solution of such world embarassing problems. Upon the success of Democracy depends the honor of the flag and the peace of America. The eyes of all mankind are upon you. Life and death, the horrors of war and the blessing of peace and tranquility await the wisdom of your action. Today old Kentucky salutes her sister States from Maine to California. She unfurls her triumphant banners from her flaunting standard floats the signal "All is well in Old Kentucky." United we stand with that great and wise and patient chieftain who is, and in the providence of God for four years more shall be, the President of the United States.

The commencement exercises of the Petersburg High School took place at the M. E. church Friday evening. On account of the storm just before the hour for the exercises to begin the church was not filled to its entire capacity. The music was the harp and violin and several beautiful selections were rendered before the graduates and the attendants took their places on the platform. Rev. J. R. Nelson offered the invocation and after a musical number he was followed by the introduction of the speaker by Dr. J. M. Grant. Rev Harris took as his subject "The Book of Memory," and treated it as one of the most important of the books of the Heavenly library. His entire address was splendid and his thoughts were expressed in the most beautiful words. If the graduates will heed his wise advice and follow it, there is no doubt that they will live lives the memory of which will linger long after their deaths.

After the close of the address and a musical number Dr. J. M. Grant, former chairman of the board of trustees presented the diplomas to the graduates, Miss Mayree Campbell and Miss Agnes Thompson. The graduates were truly the "sweet girl graduates, both in soft floating white and carrying large clusters of white carnations, the class flower. Mrs. Lulu Edwards Tolin, principal of the High School, wore white and looked as girlish and pretty as the graduates, indeed if seen by strangers, might easily have been thought a graduate herself. The church was very prettily decorated with ferns, palms, honeysuckle and carnations.

We wish to commend Mrs. Tolin on her work of the past years in the High School and her presence will be missed in Petersburg and especially in the school where she was esteemed very highly by her pupils.

A large crowd attended the funeral of Fernando Carpenter, last Thursday a. m. Rev. Bedinger conducted the funeral services at the Richwood church, assisted by Revs. Hill and DeMoisey. "Bud," as we called him, was a whole souled good hearted, well met fellow, who was loved by all, and tho blind he was jolly and good natured, and altho he suffered untold misery, he met it all with a game and true manly spirit, and when his agony became beyond further endurance he quietly prepared and crossed the silent river. The family has the sympathy of all, and especially, his wife, who for years, was ever at his side and ever his helpmete.

Pasteurize Skim Milk.

In the operation of creameries and cheese factories it is customary to return to the patrons the by-products skim kilk; buttermilk, and whey, to be used for feeding calves and pigs. The material that each man receives is necessarily from the mixed milk of many herds, some of which may be diseased. For this reason, unless precautions are taken, the creamery and the cheese factory, through their by-products, may become disseminators of such animal diseases as tuberculosis, foot and mouth disease, and contagious abortion, should these diseases exist in the community.

Pasteurization of by-products has been advised as a preventive measure and has been practiced to a limited extent; at least two States have enacted laws requiring the pasteurization of all skim milk and whey returned to patrons for feeding purposes. In Denmark a law of this kind has been enforced for several years.

The advisability of pasteurization was illustrated during the recent outbreak of foot and mouth disease in the United States. At a recent creamery in N. Y, State raw skim milk was being returned to seven patrons. Later, five of these patrons were found to have foot and mouth disease in their herds. Of the other two, one boiled the milk before he fed it and the other threw it away for fear of possible infection. It appears very probable that the disease was spread by feeding raw skim milk from a diseased herd.

At another creamery in the same State skim milk was being returned to 30 patrons but in this case the milk was pasteurized properly before being returned. Foot and mouth disease was discovered in the herd of one of these patrons, and in the judgment of the inspectors the disease had then been present for at least five days. During this time the milk had been taken to the creamery and pasteurized skim milk returned to the 30 patrons. The disease, however, did not appear on any of the other farms Had the skim milk not been pasteurized at this creamery, it is possible that the disease would have been carried, by way of the creamery, from the one infected farm to all the rest of the 30 farms.

Skim milk, buttermilk and whey may be pasteurized at a fuel cost of about 2½ cents for every 1,000 pounds—a cost that is negligible when compared to the financial loss that may result from feeding the products raw.

Skim milk, buttermilk and whey may be heated by the use of steam jets while being elevated into a tank. This practice, however, causes the milk solids to "cook" on to the interior of the pipe and cleaning is difficult. If cleaning is properly done each day, however, this method is not objectionable.

The simplest method of pasteurization may be to turn steam directly into the liquid in the tank until the desired temperature is reached. In this case a temperature of not less than 145 degrees F. should be maintained for a half hour. When, however, it is desirable to draw milk or whey from the tank as it is running in, it becomes necessary to complete the pasteurization before the product reaches the tank. This can readily be done by running a steam pipe into the skim, milk, buttermilk, or whey pipe near the tank. A device of this kind is on the market and is known as a skim-milk pasteurizer. When this method is used the skim milk or whey should be heated to a temperature of 180 degrees F.

As creamery and cheese factory by-products may, under certain conditions, be agencies, in spreading live-stock diseases, and as pasteurization of these products is a preventive measure that is easily and cheaply effected, the adoption of this practice by all creameries and cheese factories is earnestly recommended by the department.

It is not generally known that Jefferson county, Ky., is the most northerly point where extensive crops of Irish potatoes are produced twice in the same year. The first crop is the larger and usually comes in early in July. The second crop is planted during July and is harvested after the first killing frost, which generally comes about October 10 to 15. A normal acreage of the first crop is being cultivated this year, the planting of which, however, was delayed.

Rural carriers in Kentucky will be interested in learning that the Senate committee on postoffices and post roads has just voted in to the postoffice appropriation bill a provision under which each of the 42,000 rural mail carriers in the United States will receive the $100 increase in salary which they failed to get last year because of the inability of Congress to agree on the postoffice bill. If this action stands the $100 will be a permanent addition to each carrier's salary.

Farmers and dairymen in this county have been heavy losers during the past month from bloat killing cattle. It is estimated that over two hundred head have died from the trouble this spring, principally dairy cattle, but the loss of a number of big export cattle has been reported. Cases discovered in the early stages respond to treatment, but a delay of a few hours has invariably been fatal. As a result farmers have found it imperative [illegible] Six, were elected [illegible] Six for the e[illegible] honor most wor[illegible] highly merited.

Chicago's "Fighting Parson" to Speak On Opening Day of Chautauqua

"THE trouble with most reforms is that they stop too soon. The decent people of any community can have a powerful influence in public affairs if they will but pay the price. But you cannot achieve anything if you sit and sing 'Hold the fort, for I am coming,' and then never come.

"If you want your prayers answered put them in your boots and send them out into your neighborhood to do the things you're praying for."

These are but a few of the strong right arm punches that make up the lecture of Dr. E. L. Williams, who will speak on the opening day of the Chautauqua, and no words could better reflect the character of the man. Dr. Williams has been a fighter for the public good—so much so that he is known as the "Fighting Parson" of Chicago—and is hated and feared by every boodler and divekeeper on the famous North Side.

Dr. Williams' lecture here will be on the close relationship existing between the small community and the large city and will be entitled "The City and the Soil."

Lagrange.—Judge S E. DeHaven's idea that the county will crush all the stone that the people will haul is being put into practice on an extensive scale. Four crushes are now at work and more will be put into commission as soon as they can be procured. The stone is being hauled and placed on the roads as rapidly as it is being crushed.

The Executive Committee of the Old Stemming District Association has decided to send out pooling pledges to growers in Henderson, Webster, Union, Hopkins and Crittenden. If enough growers enter the organization by July 1, the pool will be operated this year. Committeemen report growers in favor of another pool. It is planned to secure 80 per cent. of the growers in the five counties.

Fletcher Deaton, 70 year old Breathitt county feud leader, will be taken to the State Reformatory to serve a life sentence following a conviction of a charge of complicity in the assassination of Sheriff Ed. Callahan of Jackson several years ago. Deaton's case has been carried through all of the State courts and into the Supreme Court of the U. S where his appeal was refused. Deaton is said to be the last of the leaders of the celebrated Deaton-Callahan feud that waged for years in Breathitt county.

Attorney General M. M Logan, at the request of the Kentucky Medical Society, has filed an injunction suit in the Pulaski Circuit Court asking that he be further prohibited from practicing.

SAYS, I'M READY.

New York, June 1.—In the same unflinching manner in which he heard the jury's verdict of guilility Dr. Arthur Warren Waite today received his sentence to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing Prison during the week beginning July 10.

The condemned man, who for the love of mammon committed all sorts of thievery, culminating in the murder of his wife's parents, made a dramatic speech in court today.

"I am glad, very glad, that I can give up my life in expiation in some small way for the things that I have done," said Waite before Justice Shearn sentenced him. "I regret that I have nothing more than my life I can give and I also freely give my soul for the same purpose and I hope that it may go on and serve forever in any way that there may be for it to purge itself."

Waite spoke with strong tones and clear enunciation, heard thruout the large room. He was one of the most composed men present. When Justice Shearn asked him if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced there was silence for brief space. Then the convicted slayer began his dramatic recital.

"I would just like to say that I want to thank this court for the very fair and just trial that was accorded to me," Waite said. "I also want to say that I believe that the Prosecutor, Mr. Brothers, was very conscientious in doing his duty and at the same time he was very fair to me.

"Also that my own counsel was always kind and above reproach and entirely sincere in his behalf in regard to me.

"That is all I have to say."

As soon as Waite had finished Justice Shearn pronounced sentence.

Walter Deul, Waite's counsel, made the usual formal motions for a new trial and for a dismissal. He has not filed any notice of appeal, but will do so within the ten days' limit.

Immediately after the proceedings Deputy Sheriff Burke snapped the handcuffs on Waite's wrist and on his own. Waite walked with firm stride and a long swing. With one keeper accompanying him, the Deputy Sheriff put his prisoner on a wagon and drove to the Grand Central Station. They took the 11.07 train for Sing Sing where Waite will be lodged in the death house.

Waite sat up until after midnight last night reading the Bible and writing a note to Dr. Prior The latter was in a cell adjoining Waite's before the latter's trial and after confidential talks with Waite gave valuable information to the District Attorney. Waite wrote him:

"I understand you have been criticised by fellow prisoners for any part you may have taken against me in my trial, I do not believe my forgiveness is necessary because I feel that any one who was against me was justified."

Parallel Political Conditions.

In 1880 James Abram Garfield went to Chicago to present the name of John Sherman, of Ohio, to the Republican National Convention as a candidate for President. He left that city and convention himself the nominee of his party.

Conditions within the Republican party 36 years ago were similar in many respects to conditions that obtain in 1916. Schism and dissension the leadership of the brilliant New York Senator, Roscoe Conkling, had planned to nominate for a third time General Ulysses S. Grant, and had succeeded in bringing to his support the strong party organizations of New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois. It was their avowed purpose to stampede the unpledged delegates in favor of Grant, whose election they deemed certain to follow.

Opposed to the stalwarts a faction advocated and was attempting the nomination of James G. Blaine, of Maine, who four years later was accorded the honor only to be defeated by Grover Cleveland, of New York. Still another faction was marshaled behind the standard of John Sherman, whose fame as a financier had already made of him a national figure.

Bitter, apparently irreconciable, differences made the convention the stormiest since the formation of the Republican party. In this seething caldron of animosity and strife the strong, rugged figure of Senator Garfield arose to place Sherman in nomination in one of the most memorable speeches of his career.

The early balloting disclosed the hopelessness of the situation. Each candidate held in leash of steel his supporters, and ballot after ballot showed the impossibility of breaking in favor of any of the candidates' combinations already made. Grant and Blaine lead in the voting and for 23 ballots no appreciable change was effected. Then wearied by the struggle, a little handful of delegates voted for the massive man whose eloquence had had been expended in a futile attempt to nominate Sherman. That started something, and another ballot brought more votes to the Ohio Senator. The stampede arranged for Grant was sidetracted and a rush for Garfield ensued, which ended with his nomination on the thirty-sixth ballot.

The convention that will assemble in Chicago next month, like the one of 36 years ago, finds itself without a real popular favorite. There will be again a former public idol, twice President and with a glamor of a shorter martial career, bidding for renewed recognition. There will be a dozen favorite sons from as many States, but not one of such sommanding strength and dominance as the three in 1880. There will be wide divergence of opinion on plat form, and over all the fear that a misstep of any kind will incur renewal of the guerrilla warefare of 1912 and defeat at thepolls in November.

Under these trying conditions there will arrise opportunity for someone. Perhaps the Chairman of that great gathering, Mr. Harding, of Ohio, may be tagged by fate and commandeered to leadership to which he does not aspire or even dream. Should the Ohio Senator sound a keynote pitched to a high degree of progressive Americanism, unclogged with reactionary ideas, should his ringing speech rouse the vast assemblage to patriotic fervor, who can tell now what may happen? A speech made Garfield. Another speech nominated William Jennings Bryan and gave him lasting fame. Anything may happen at Chicago.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Man.

Less than six years ago Bristol Taylor, then a poorly paid young public school teacher in the Kentucky Mountains, set out a small plot of land in ginseng. He kept extending it. A day or so ago Taylor brought 753 pounds of dry ginseng from his Rockhouse creek ginseng farm to Whitesburg for shipment to New York dealers for which he received in return $3,800 in cash, and that, too, from a spot of a little less than an acre. Besides Mr Taylor will sell a considerable quantity of seed taken from the ginseng, so remunerative is the culture of ginseng. Mr Taylor plans the setting of about two acres additional this year, and will make other increases in his ginseng farm back in the Rockhouse creek mountains. Taylor has transformed the Rockhouse Creek mountains. He has built a model roadway from his home to settlements in the Rockhouse creek valley; has built a splendid home and now is independent alone from his ginseng garden, one of the largest in Kentucky.—Ex

$11,522,835 GAIN IN ASSESSMENT

Estimated Revenue $57,914,04 Over Last Year's.

Equalization Board Boosts Returns $22,605,025.

Frankfort, Ky., June 3.—With an equalized valuation of property $11,522,835 greater than least year the estimated State revenues from general property assesment this year will exceed those of last year by $57,614 04 and the 5-cent road tax will yield $5,761 41.

The State Board of Equalization, which has completed its work, raised the total assessments returned by County Assessors $22,605,025 The total equalized assessment is $888,663,954, which will yield $4,493,319 64 on the State tax rate of 50 cents on the $100, while the road fund will receive $449,331 95.

All the counties were raised excepting Anderson, Boone, Bourbon Boyd, Bullitt, Calloway, Campbell, Casey, Christian, Clay, Garrard, Franklin, Graves, Harrison, Henderson, Hickman, Jackson, Jefferson, Jessamine, Johnson, Kenton, Knott, Letcher, Madison, Mercer, Lincoln, Martin, Monroe, Perry, Pike, Russell, Shelby, Trimble, Warren, Wayne and Woodford, all of these, save Anderson, Bullitt, Calloway, Monroe Trimble, Warren and Wayne, having returned an assessment this year in excess of their equalized valuation last year

In its report to State Auditor Greene the board said it accepted without change the assesments of thirty-six counties and made raises of from 2 to 25 per cent in eighty-four Of this number nineteen accepted the raise without protest The board reported that it did not reduce the assessment of any county

It stated that County Judges, appearing before the board were urged to appoint as supervisors only such men as would help secure a proper assessment and to join with this board in an effort to reduce the tax rates and equalize the burden of taxation by requiring every person to assess his property at its fair cash value"

To the County Assessors the board sent a letter calling attention to the requirements of the law and the oath they take, and stating: "The Board of Equalization has become convinced that if the laws are literally enforced by the assessors the burden of taxation can be properly equalized and the tax rate of counties, cities and the State materially reduced

"The Constitution and the statutes require you to assess all property, except such as to exempt from taxation, at the fair cash value of such property The tax laws are sufficient, if enforced uniformly throughout the State, to produce all the revenue to support the city, county and State governments on a rate much lower than the present rate This uniform assessment can be obtained only through the co-operation of the Assessors We urge you to join this board in an effort to reduce the tax rate and equalize the burden of taxation by requiring every person to assess his property at its fair cash value"

A Remedy for Clover Bloat.

During the spring of 1913 an unusual growth of white clover in the pastures of Central Kentucky, and the occurrence of several cases of clover bloat in the Experiment Station dairy herd served to call attention to the necessity for further studying this condition with the view to discovering if possible an efficient remedy therefor. It was, therefore suggested to us by Dr Kastle that we undertake an investigation of this problem. As is well known tympany or bloating may follow the ingestion of certain feeds. Alfalfa and clover, especially the red and white varieties, while in fresh bloom, are particularly dangerous in this respect.

"Cadeac maintains that paresis of the rumen is the essential cause in all cases," but the following experimental work proves conclusively that when bloating follows the ingestion of certain feeds it is caused by rapid fermentation in the rumen. It therefore occurred to one of us, Healy, that fresh clover blossoms may contain an appreciative quantity of sugar, which, undergoing a rapid fermentation in the rumen would account for the acute distention by gas. We were able to demonstrate that fresh white and red clover blossoms and also alfalfa blossoms contain a considerable quantity of sugar. The amount of sugar varies from 3.6 per cent by weight in red clover blossoms to 2.8 per cent in alfalfa blossoms, and 2.4 per cent in white clover blossoms; whereas in the blossoms of the bluegrass and in the leaves of the clover and alfalfa the quantity of sugar present is less than 1 per cent.

That a natural fermentation will occur whereby the sugar present in these blossoms is largely converted into carbon dioxide gas is shown by the following experiments. The conditions are similar to those which would occur if a cow ate heartily of fresh, moist clover blossoms. A quantity of fresh white clover blossoms was thoroughly ground and mixed with a quantity of sterile, distilled water; the resulting mass was distributed among six sterile, Smith fermentation tubes, and the tubes were then kept at 37 degrees C. for 24 hours. An active fermentation occurred and at the end of this period the quantity of carbon dioxide gas which had been formed equaled 45 per cent of the volume of the original clover blossom mass. A quantity of fresh, white clover blossoms was placed in a closed jar and fermented at room temperature for six days. The blossoms turned brown, then dark brown, and finally almost black. At the end of this period fifty of these fermented clover heads were tested for sugar and found to contain none. A wild, top fermentation yeast of the variety S. ellipsoideus II was isolated from the water which had collected in the bottom of the jar.

That this process is a true and active fermentation was demonstrated in the following manner: A quantity of fresh, white clover blossoms was placed in a closed bottle, which was then connected with a flask containing freshly prepared lime water. Fermentation was allowed to proceed at room temperature, and at the end of 72 hours the flask contained a heavy precipitate of calcium carbonate.

In view of the fact thus demonstrated that fermentation is the cause of bloating following the ingestion of fresh clover and alfalfa blossoms, Dr. Kastle suggested the control of this condition by the administration of formaldehyde. This we succeeded in doing in the following cases reported by Mr. Nutter;

Lad's Oona bloated badly on white clover June 13, 1913. She was drenched with one liter of water containing 40 c. c of formalin; a block of wood was at the same time placed in her mouth thus keeping it open. At the end of 20 minutes she had entirely recovered. No bad after-effects followed this treatment.

Valentine's Valentine 2d bloated badly on white clover May 23, 1915. She was drenched with 300 c. c of a 4 per cent solution of formalin and a block of wood was placed in her mouth. At the end of 25 minutes she had entirely recovered. No bad after-effects followed this treatment.

These and four other cases of clover bloat were promptly and thoroughly relieved by the administration of formaldehyde. Two of these cases following the bloating with formaldehyde treatment refused their dry feed, and suffered diminished milk secretion for a period.

To test the effect of formaldehyde on the digestion and milk secretion, Baronetta's June while quite normal, was drenched with 300 c. c of a 4 per cent solution of formalin. For the succeeding two days she refused her dry feed, but ate grass. Her milk was not diminished and at the end of two days she was again normal.

We have also demonstrated that under laboratory conditions urotropin, which is frequently administered in human medicine, and which in the body splits into formaldehyde and ammonia, will act as efficiently as formalin, although it requires a somewhat larger dose For the present we strongly recommend for acute bloating one quart of a 1¼ per cent solution of formalin, followed by placing a wooden block in the animal's mouth, and gentle exercise if the animal can be gotten up. Formalin is a trade name for a 40 per cent solution of formaldehyde gas in water and may be obtained at any drug store for 40 cents per pint. One-half ounce of formalin in one quart of water makes the proper solution with which to drench the animal. In our next cases of clover bloat we propose to try solutions of urotropin of equivalent strength to the solutions of formalin hitherto employed.

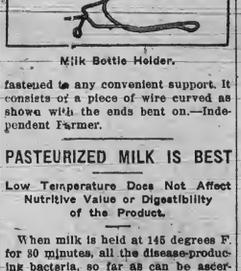
DAIRY FACTS

PROFITABLE TO SELL CREAM

Burdens of Farm Women Lightened and Income Not Decreased—Separator Is Most Essential.

Some farmers are churning butter and selling it for less that they would receive from the sale of the cream which is used in making the butter. Prof. C. H. Eckles of the Missouri College of Agriculture points out three very good reasons why it is to the advantage of the Missouri farmers to sell cream rather than to make butter to be sold at the local store. (1) Selling cream means lers work for the women than making butter. (2) The cream will nearly always bring as much as the butter and often considerably more. (3) The cream buyers offers a market for any quantity of cream at any time.

Any system that will lighten the duties of the women on the farm without decreasing the income should certainly be adopted. When cream is sold all that is necessary is to see that the cream is cooled after being separated and to take it along to town twice a week in winter and three times in summer.



It may be that a few farmers' wives will find special customers that will take the butter at a price equal to that secured for cream, but that does not apply to many. Even then surplus butter will be left on hand at times. Again there may not be enough to supply the customers and dissatisfaction will result. When selling cream these troubles do not come to annoy. Any quantity, much or little, can be sold to the cream buyer at any time and cash received on the spot.

As a rule, unless the homemade butter can be sold at an average price of 25 cents or more the year around, the income will be more if the cream is sold. At an average of 25 cents the income will be about the same, but a large amount of work will be saved by selling the cream. If the farmer does not have a cream separator he should get one if four cows or more are milked. A machine will more than pay for itself within a year when ten cows are kept by the additional butter saved. Four cows with a separator will make as much butter as five of the same grade without a separator. The fifth one represents the loss in butterfat in the skim milk.

PASTEURIZED MILK IS BEST

Low Temperature Does Not Affect Nutritive Value or Digestibility of the Product.

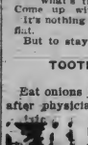
When milk is held at 145 degrees F. for 30 minutes, all the disease-producing bacteria, so far as can be ascertained, are completely destroyed. At the same time a larger percentage of the bacteria that cause milk to sour and a smaller percentage of those that cause it to rot are left than when a higher temperature is employed. Pasteurized at a low temperature, milk undergoes no change which affects its nutritive value or its digestibility. Subjection to a temperature of 150 degrees F. or more, however, does result in certain chemical changes. The time is coming when virtually all market milk sold at retail in cities will be pasteurized.

PREVENT GROWTH OF HORNS

In Using Caustic Potash the Application Must Be Made Before Calf Is One Week Old.

Caustic potash is the chemical used for preventing the growth of horn on young calves. The application must be made before the calf is one week old, in order to be effective.

The hair is clipped away from the small buttons which may be felt and which are the future horns. A stick of caustic potash is then moistened and rubbed on the spot until the skin bleeds slightly.



The calves must not be permitted to run out in the rain for several days after the application of the caustic, as the water is likely to wash the caustic down into the eyes with damaging results.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

You are beaten to earth? Well, well, what's that?
Come up with a smiling face.
It's nothing against you to fall down flat.
But to stay there, that's disgrace.

TOOTHSOME DISHES.

Eat onions in May, and all the year after physicians may play.

Creamed Onions With Parsley.—Cook peeled onions in boiling, salted water until tender. For six onions melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour, a half teaspoonful of salt and paprika; stir until well blended, then add a cupful of rich milk and half a cupful of the water in which the onions were boiled; cook until smooth and pour over the onions; sprinkle generously with finely-minced parsley just before serving.

Chestnuts With Bermuda Onions.—Select small, even-sized onions, and parboil for 15 minutes; drain and set in a buttered casserole. For six onions take a cupful of tomato puree, chili pepper, cut in shreds, four sprigs of parsley, a teaspoonful of salt and boiling water or broth to just cover the onions; let cook an hour, then add a cupful of blanched chestnuts and cook another hour. Serve when both chestnuts and onions are tender. Thicken the sauce with butter and flour before serving.

Cheese and Onion Sandwiches.—Cream or cottage cheese mixed with seasonings of salt, red pepper, and finely minced onion or chives spread on buttered white bread.

Adelaide Canapes. — Have ready rounds of bread fried in butter, two for each service. Mix a teaspoonful of curry to a paste with four tablespoonfuls of worcestershire sauce and let it heat to the boiling point, then add two-thirds of a cupful of cooked chicken and one-third of a cupful of cooked ham. Spread the mixture on the slices and place in sandwiches. On top of each place a ball of parmesan cheese which has been mixed with butter. Place in the oven to get hot. Serve at once.

Shred bacon in fine strips and brown, then add a can of green string beans, turned into the hot bacon, heated and seasoned with a little salt, pepper and onion juice, with a very little vinegar, makes a most tasty dish.

GOOD THINGS TO KNOW.

A very good and inexpensive breakfast food may be prepared as follows—

Take one and a fourth cupfuls of graham flour and three-fourths of a cupful of bread flour sifted and well mixed together. Cook this until of the right consistency to serve and serve with cream and sugar.

Cough Sirup.—Take a tablespoonful of molasses and stir it thick with ground ginger. Make only a small amount at a time, and it will always be fresh. Take a teaspoonful, or as much as is needed.

If you burn soft coal in your grate, save all paper bags and use them filled in the wood basket, thus the coal is more convenient to handle. To replenish the fire just drop in a sack of coal.

Discard all enamelware that has begun to wear off, as the chipping of the bits, as sharp as glass, falling into the food, may cause serious trouble.

Homemade hard soap that you know is sweet and clean is easily made, costs but a few cents, and saves several dollars' worth of the purchased article. Put into a crock one can of lye, pour on it a quart of water. Let cool. Add a half cupful of borax in water to dissolve, mix together a half cupful each of ammonia and kerosene. Have five pounds of clean grease warmed in a granite pan, pour in the cold lye, then the ammonia and oil and the borax, stirring with a clean stick until all is well blended. Pour into a strong box and in 24 hours cut in bars.

When washing comforters do not wring them. Let them hang and drip from the line. Then before they are quite dry, whip with a beater to make them fluffy and light.

A teaspoonful of dry bran taken after each meal is a simple and helpful remedy in case of constipation.

Dark colored goods will not fade if soaked in salt and vinegar in the water.

In the farm home a fireless cooker is indispensable, at times when a large amount of cooking is done it will work overtime, night or day, without getting out of repair or using up fuel

Certainly Quick Action

For some time the citizens of Petersburg have desired a Sunday morning mail, and recently a petition was sent to Congressman Rouse asking for it, and in 48 hours after the petition was mailed there a telegram was received from him saying the request had been granted by the postal department. This was decidedly quick action and was greatly appreciated by Petersburg people. Mr. Rouse never loses any time in handling requests from his constituents and his district is justly proud of him.

What Goode & Dunkie of Covington have to say about cream separators this week

It will be worth your while to find out what some of your neighbors who use De Laval Cream Separators think of their machines before you buy any separator.

About the best thing we can say for the De Laval is that all the farmers around here who use it are boosters.

It does good work for them and pleases them, and we know it will please you.

Make it a point to ask your neighbor about his De Laval

There are nearly two million satisfied De Laval users throughout the world. More De Laval Separators are in use than all other makes combined. It isn't the cheapest, but the majority of separator users have found out by experience that it is the best and by far the most economical separator to own.

We want to tell you about an arrangement we have whereby you can make partial payment at time of purchase and pay the balance on such liberal terms that the De Laval will save its cost while you are paying for it.

Come in and see us the first time you have a chance and talk it over.

Sooner or later you will buy a DE LAVAL

Letter from Chicago

Dear Sir and Friend:—The dear old paper received this a. m. and it carried me back to other days, but I am reading it with joy in memory of those days that can never be forgotten. I participated in the most stupendous parade gotten up on the most elaborate plans ever witnessed by me or anyother Kentuckian. By special invitation I marched with the Boys in Blue, and carried my grandfather's flag, the old Colonial Flag with thirteen stars and stripes. Across the stripes I sewed a banner, "Kentucky." To say that I was cheered would be putting it modest. I received a continuous ovation along the five mile march, being the only Confederate in line with a Kentucky gray uniform, but we have in this wonderful Chicago 15,000 Southerners, among them 1,500 Kentuckians, none of whom have forgotten the place of their birthright.

I see many names in your paper that are very familiar to me. I regret to hear of Joe Revill's illness. I had intended to come to dear old Burlington to be present at the sale of the farm of Miss Therese Lassing my niece, but feel that the Judge and Commissioners are men of sterling Ky. "Worth" and will abide by what they think is justice in caring for my interest, but hope some time to return to my native county, that I left forty-three years ago.

Thanking you for promptness in sending paper, hoping that you may live long to gather the news and send it on to me to read.

Sincerely, W. C. PIATT.

Meistersingers Male Quartet to Give Opening Number of Chautauqua

MEISTERSINGERS MALE QUARTET.

"THE boys made a great hit."

This expression from one delightful critic reflects the universal sentiment of all who hear the Meistersingers Male Quartet, which appears here on the opening day of the Chautauqua, for the Meistersingers are all finished entertainers, singers of ability and real musical artists. Their program includes vocal solos, duets and quartets from classical, operatic and popular compositions, humorous sketches, comic readings and character impersonations, and then, to add a delightful variety to the whole entertainment, the Meistersingers will play melodious selections on a set of organ chimes valued at several thousand dollars.

At Walton, Ky., June 16th to 21st.

Benjamin L. Stephens.

B. L Stephens, one of Clark county's most influential and highly respected citizens, passed from this life Monday morning, May 29, after a sickness of several weeks. Mr Stephens was taken sick a month ago with rheumatism, which developed into pneumonia, and later into other complications.

Benj. L Stephens was born on a farm in Boone county, Ky., December 10, 1855, the son of John and Emily M. Stephens, who were also natives of Boone county. Mr Stephens received his education in the public schools of Boone county and assisted his father with the duties of the farm until twenty-one years of age, when he engaged in the mercantile business on his own account at Bullittsville, Ky. To begin the business he borrowed $1,000 from his father, which sum he was able to refund at the end of the first year He remained in the mercantile business nine years, until 1885. On May 19 of that year he wedded Lulu M. Kendall and with his wife came to Kansas, making his wedding trip his journey to this state Mr. and Mrs Stephens came by railroad to Harper, Kansas, where he bought a wagon and team and from there drove to Clark county, which at that time had no railroad. They located on government land, in the northeast part of the county. In October, 1886, Mr. Stephens, with others, organized and platted the townsite of Lexington. A postoffice was established with Mr. Stephens as the first postmaster. He opened the first store in the town; and he was the town's first inhabitant and the last one to leave it, when the site was abandoned on account of the new rail road missing it seven miles. In 1896 he removed to Ashland with his stock of goods, and conducted a general store here until 1909, when he retired from active business, having spent 33 years, the greater part of his life in active business pursuits in which he was very successful.

During his business career in Clark county he never refused credit to anyone. He often accomodated to the extent of $2,000, and at times had over $25.000 on his books. This was during the hard times, following the panic of 1893, and he carried many of his customers for their supplies for from two to five years. He thus helped many of them to remain in the country, when otherwise they could not have done so, and a majority of them are here yet, owners of good farms, having paid their indebtedness and accumulated a goodly share of this world's goods.

During the past few years Mr. Stephens has looked after his extensive ranch and land interests, and in his town property, which includes the Ashland Telephone Co. and the Stephen's opera house.

Politically Mr. Stephens was a Democrat but he never had political aspirations. However he has served as chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, and has been a member of the city council for several terms.

Mr. Stephens is survived by his wife, one son, John, and a daughter-in-law. Besides these he has three brothers and two sisters living, R. K Stephens, of Bullittsville, Ky.; E R., of Delhi, Ohio; R. J., of Woodland, Mo.; Mrs. Willis Arnold, Hannibal, Mo. and Mrs. J S. Gaines, of Denver. All were present at the funeral, also a nephew, Bernard Arnold, of Hereford, Texas, and Mr. Willis Arnold.

The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Presbyterian church. The large church could not hold the many friends who came to pay their last tribute to a friend. The casket and altar were one mass of roses and flowers [illegible] as a very weak expression of the love in which he was held. [illegible] discourses was given by Rev. Hawkins of the Christian church, and Judge F. C Price, a friend and neighbor for more than 30 years, gave a number of intimate glimpses into the life of Mr. Stephens. More than one hundred cars followed the mortal remains to the Ashland cemetery where interment was made. The services at the cemetery were in charge of the Mason, of which order Mr Stephens has been a member for many years.

And thus ends the life journey of B. L Stephens, a man—with all the meaning of the word—because he lived not unto himself, but for his neighbors and friends. It is useless for us to attempt to picture the nobility of his life, for words are expressionless things, and those who know him do not need to be told of his sincerity, helpfulness, generosity, kindness, good judgment and all of the other many good qualities he possessed, while those who did not know him could not understand. As was said he was a common man, no sham aristocracy about him. He made friends with all, and was always ready to help and took great pleasure because of his ability to lend assistance. He will be missed greatly by his family, by the community life of his city and county, by his old neighbors and business associates. The vacancy left in our lives by his passing on will not soon be filled, the example he led will be an inspiration to those who live after him, and his memory will not soon be forgotten.—Ashland, Kansas, Record.

The Tobacco Crop.

Transplanting in Fleming county is progressing nicely

Woodford county farmers set out a great portion of the crop last week

Practically all the tobacco is set in Jessamine county and the acreage is larger than last year

Hundreds of acres have been set in Tennessee during the past week and indications are that an average crop will be planted

Growers in Nicholas county are awaiting another season to complete the work of transplanting the 1916 tobacco crop, which was begun during the past week Reports indicate that from the rainfall of last week considerable tobacco planting was done and that there are now plenty of plants

The tobacco outlook in Clark county continues to be good Many crops in the county were set out the past week and there is none of the raisers that did not get out a part of their crop. The plants have grown very rapidly and the farmers observing this have gotten most of their land in shape for transplanting. The plants put out the first season lived well, but there was not enough large plants to make much show on the setting of the crop. On the whole the Burley crop will go out much earlier than usual this year. Cultivation will begin within a few days on many farms.

The rains of Sunday night and Monday of last week were welcomed by the Madison county farmers after the long dry spell, and the county was pretty well covered. The most important benefit was the tobacco season, and many farmers were hunting farm hands to get out their crop before it was too dry. The plants, that have already been set out, by those who have setters, will be very much benefitted, as will the ground which has not been properly prepared in other places on account of the cloddy and rough condition that has resulted from the dry weather. Madison county should have one of the largest tobacco seasons that has been known in several years, pro vided nothing should happen to retard the crop.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

All things come to him who waits
But here's a rule that's slicker,
The man who goes for what he wants
Will get it all the quicker.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

Brown a cupful of well washed rice in two tablespoonfuls of butter, then add a small onion cut in shreds; stir and cook until the onion is slightly browned; add two cupfuls of hot broth, half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of paprika; cook until tender, adding more broth as it is needed. When done add two tablespoonfuls of sausage fat and two canned pimentos cut in bits. Turn out on a platter and surround with cooked pork sausages.

Calf's Liver en Casserole.—Fry five slices of fat salt pork until brown. Add to the hot fat one dozen potato balls, one dozen carrot balls, one stalk of celery, six onions sliced. Cook very slowly for ten minutes, then place in the casserole. Cut in thin slices a liver and lay it on top of the vegetables. Season with salt and pepper, add a pint of boiling water and a tablespoonful of kitchen bouquet. Cool one hour.

Goette.—Boil two pounds of flank beef until tender, then put it through the meat grinder. Put into the liquid left from boiling the meat one pound of coarse oatmeal; cook thirty minutes then mix it with the meat; season with pepper and salt and pour into a mold to cool. Cut in slices and fry brown. This is a dish similar to scrapple and is served with or without sirup.

Potato Pancakes.—Peel and grate six potatoes after they have soaked in cold water two hours. Mix with a grated onion, two eggs, half a teaspoonful of baking powder and enough flour to make a thin batter. Fry the cakes until brown.

Philadelphia Scrapple.—Cook a pig's head in boiling water until the flesh slips from the bones; chop the meat fine. Remove the fat from the liquid when cold and reheat the liquid to the boiling point, adding a teaspoonful of salt for each quart of liquid with pepper to taste; sift in carefully, stirring constantly, cornmeal, to the consistency of mush. Let it boil vigorously for a few minutes then cook more slowly for half an hour. At the last stir in the meat and turn into pans to cool. Cut in slices a half inch thick and fry brown. Serve hot for breakfast.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Among all the basic principles of economic life, none is more vital than this—that every able-bodied adult should have a job; that he should work at the thing for which he is best fitted, and that he should be paid the full value for what he produces.—Scott Nearing.

MORE RICE DISHES.

In America, rice is more commonly used as a dessert than as an entree.

The wholesome dishes in combination with other foods are legion.

Rice Czarina.—Butter a baking dish and put a layer of boiled rice in the bottom. Over this sprinkle fine chopped fresh tomatoes, season with salt and pepper and dot with butter; place another layer of rice somewhat thinner, and over this spread finely-chopped green peppers and so alternate the tomatoes, peppers and rice until the dish is full, having a layer of rice on top. Pour two tablespoonfuls of melted butter over all, cover and cook in a slow oven 20 minutes.

Belgian Rice Dessert.—Add a half cupful of boiled rice to a pint of hot milk and a half cupful of currants; stir in the yolks of two eggs well beaten and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Remove from the fire, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and form into croquettes. Roll in egg and crumbs and fry a golden brown. Serve with currant jelly and roll the croquettes in powdered sugar.

Rice Creole Style.—Chop fine one onion and two green peppers, saute with half a cupful of raw ham, shredded fine, in a fourth of a cupful of butter; cook ten minutes, then add a cupful of cooked rice and three cupfuls of broth, simmer 20 minutes and add four sliced tomatoes and a teaspoonful of salt. Cover and cook slowly in the oven or in a double boiler.

Indian Rice.—Boil a cupful of rice in chicken broth until tender, add salt and pepper to taste, a pinch of curry powder and a half teaspoonful of saffron. Serve very hot.

Rice With Orange Marmalade.—Cook rice in milk add season well, then mold in a ring mold. When ready to serve fill the center of the mold with orange marmalade. This combination is especially good when served with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with grated orange rind.

KEEP GOOD OLD BROOD SOWS

Pigs From Mature Animals Average Twenty Pounds Heavier Than the Produce From Gilts.

Many swine raisers select their brood sows from the early spring litters and breed them in November and December for March and April farrow. These immature gilts are frequently bred to boars of their own age, which makes this practice all the more to be condemned. The Wisconsin station found that pigs from mature sows average 20 pounds heavier at eight months of age than the produce from gilts.

The farmer who breeds his gilts to farrow at 11 to 13 months old is the one who says that he cannot afford to keep old sows. He fattens the gilts as soon as they have weaned their litters, turning them off in September and selects another bunch of spring gilts to produce his next year's pig crop. By following this practice for a few years the size and vitality of the herd become impaired and the business unprofitable.

Keep the tried brood sow as long as she produces large litters of strong pigs. When it becomes necessary to replace the old sow, select a gilt from a large litter, feed her for growth rather than for fat, and don't breed her to farrow her first litter before she is 15 to 18 months old. A gilt bred at 7 or 8 months old cannot produce a strong litter and at the same time attain normal development without special care and it is questionable if such special attention is at all times profitable.

LAND ROLLER IS DESIRABLE

Device Is Especially Useful on Soils Likely to Become Cloddy—Drag Is Also Favored.

There are soils where it would be just about impossible to do good farming without the use of the land roller, the plank drag or some of the other similar implements in this class. On soils which are likely to become cloddy, they are very necessary. On those light porous soils, almost ashy in consistency, they serve the purpose of packing the earth particles. There are sections where practically every farm is equipped with a land roller, and anywhere from 15 to 30 per cent of all the work done on the corn crop is done with the roller in these regions. The plank drag is also in high favor in the corn belt.

NEW CORN DISEASE IS FOUND

Trouble Manifests Itself In a Weakening of Stalk, So That Plant Is Easily Blown Over.

"Fifteen million dollars annually is my estimate of the loss caused in Iowa by this corn disease," said Dr. L. H. Pammel of the Iowa State college botany department, speaking of the new fusarium cornstalk disease before the Iowa Corn and Small Grain Growers' association recently.

The disease, which was discovered only last year, is closely related to destructive diseases of cotton and flax. It manifests itself in a weakening of the stalk, so that the corn plant is easily blown over, some fields being so affected that nearly all of the stalks are broken. A pink mold is often found in the pith of the stalk, and the pith is completely destroyed, usually, at the point where the stalk breaks.

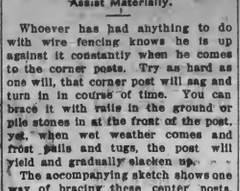
DUSTING BATH FOR POULTRY

Almost Any Fine, Dry Powder Will Make Good Material—Excellent Formula Is Given.

"Fowls will keep themselves free from vermin if given a convenient place to dust," says M. J. Klipatrick, poultry expert, Ohio State university extension service. "A box 30 inches square and 12 inches deep, may be built in one corner of the pen, or such a box may be made with legs so as to raise it 16 inches off the floor. Almost any fine, dry powder will make good dusting material. The particles should be fine enough so that they will choke up the breathing pores of the parasites which live on the fowl's body. Equal parts of loam, sand and sifted coal ashes, to which has been added a little kerosene oil and the whole thoroughly mixed, is often used for the dust."

GOOD FENCES ARE FAVORED

Save Farmer Trouble of Chasing Around in Search of Stock—Add to Beauty of Grounds.



Good fences insure the farmer knowing right where he will find any stock he may desire to see. They not only save the time many farmers expend in chasing around over the country searching for their stock, but they prevent the neighbor's stock from breaking in one's premises. In short, they add to the beauty of the home grounds, give the whole farm a neater, more businesslike appearance, add materially to the value of the farm, and keep one on better terms with his neighbors.

BRACE FOR THE CORNER POST

Use of Two Large Stones, Attached by Wire to Adjacent Posts, Will Assist Materially.

Whoever has had anything to do with wire fencing knows he is up against it constantly when he comes to the corner posts. Try as hard as one will, that corner post will sag and turn in in course of time. You can brace it with rails in the ground or pile stones in at the front of the post, yet, when wet weather comes and frost gulls and tugs, the post will yield and gradually slacken up.

The accompanying sketch shows one way of bracing these center posts.

Corner Post Braced.

While stones have been used for bracing at the front and they give good service, the use of two other larger stones farther from the base and attached by wire to the other posts adjacent to the center post will materially assist in lightening the burdens the center post must bear. Further description of how this is done is not necessary, since the sketch shows this very plainly.

TREAT POTATOES FOR SCAB

Disease Cannot Be Prevented From Spreading If Infected Seed Is Used —Treatment Is Simple.

While it is true that potato scab cannot be completely controlled by treatment of the seed, it is equally true that the disease cannot be prevented from spreading if infected seed is planted.

Potato scab remains in the soil as well as on the potatoes and it is therefore necessary to practice crop rotation in addition to treating the seed. It is seldom safe to grow potatoes upon the same soil for more than two years in succession and, in case scab is evident, it is unwise to plant even the second crop, if other land is available.

The treatment of seed is so simple and inexpensive that all seed potatoes should be treated. Place one pint of formalin in 30 gallons of water which makes sufficient material to treat about twenty bushels of potatoes. Immerse the potatoes in the solution for about two hours, then remove them and spread them out to dry. A convenient method is to place about a bushel of potatoes in a sack and suspend the sack in a barrel. The length of time before planting that the treatment is made is unimportant.

LIMESTONE TO CORRECT SOIL

Some Experts Have Especially Favored It Because of Its Lower First Cost—Lasts for Years.

Pulverized limestone has recently been much recommended and some experts have especially favored it because of its lower first cost. Although it is sold at a relatively low cost a ton, farmers should study its availability in connection with their own specific soil conditions and always remember that the results from its use cannot be expected promptly.

Limestone is carbonate of lime and it will require twice as much an acre to furnish as much actual lime as is contained in burned lime.

Pulverized limestone is "fool proof." It can be applied to a soil in any desired quantity within reason, so as to suffice for many years, without in any way endangering the soil. It leaches out very slowly.

CONSTRUCTING A WIRE FENCE

Where Mixed Types of Live Stock Are Kept General-Purpose Woven-Wire Fabric Is Needed.

The best kind of wire fencing to erect depends on the purpose for which the fence is used. On a farm where mixed types of live stock are kept, a general-purpose woven-wire fabric is needed. If only cattle and horses are to be pastured, a coarser and less expensive woven fence can be used. When fencing is needed to inclose extensive pastures where only cattle or horses are to be kept the excessive cost of a woven-wire fence would not make it desirable, for losses to stock by injury on barbed wire would not be large enough to counterbalance the difference in the cost of maintaining the two different kinds of fences. This applies to the extensive farming areas of the West.—Department Bulletin 331.

FOR IMPROVEMENT OF SOILS

Give Legumes Benefit of 100 to 200 Pounds of Acid Phosphate Per Acre—It Will Pay.

Remember that there is no place where fertilizers pay better than on the legumes grown for soil improvement. By all means give the peas and soy beans the benefit of 100 to 200 pounds of acid phosphate per acre. It will pay. If acid phosphate is too high this year, try basic slag, if you can get it in your market.

The Mexican Question.

The Republican hope to get a prosperous issue out of what is called the "Mexican Question." What is the Mexican question? Just what Woodrow Wilson said it was—enormous lying. That is the phase it presents to our country; but in Mexico the Mexican question is a contest between freedom and slavery. If there were no concessions to foreigners in Mexico, that country would be as tranquil in a political way as the District of Columbia, and it would enjoy political repose if all the foreign concessionaires were like Amos Pinchot and William Kent, member of Congress from Cals, who declares that willingly would they lose all their investments beyond the Rio Grande, sooner than have a drop of American blood shed to conserve them. But there are concessionaires who would reap a fat dividend from the slaughter of American youth on the bloody field of battle in war made to order by as precious a set of knaves as the devil himself ever admired. That is the Mexican question.

American citizens have been murdered in Mexico, and some of our sham patriots have shed an ocean of hypocritical tears over the outrages, and many excellent folk have been lead to join in their knavish clamor for war against that distressed and helpless people. The President of the United States has been denounced as a spineless imbecil. He has been stigmatized as a coward. He has been branded as a disgrace to American citizenship, who has brought dishonor to the flag and planted shame in every household.

Had Wilson been the weak, vacillating, languid imbecil he is pictured by some of his unscrupulous critics, he would have surrendered to their clamor and waged a war of extermination and devastation against unhappy Mexico. But Wilson is a strong man, and that is why they hate him with such venomous and impotent rancor. He refuses to be their tool and wage a war to sustain slavery in a neighboring republic to swell the dirty dividends upon their dirty capital. That's what's the matter with Wilson.

Here is an incident in American history pertinent to this discussion. In 1873 a Spanish man-of-war captured on the high sea the ship Virginius, with an American register and sailing under the star spangled banner. Spain shot the captain and thirty-six of her crew and twelve of her passengers. Did President Grant go to war about it? He did not. Did the then Republican Congress take militant action? It did not. Suppose that thing had happened last year, or this year, with Woodrow Wilson in the White House—what a howl would have gone up! "Mongrel, puppy, whelp, and hound, and cur of low degree," would usurp Jove's power to thunder, and with horrible revilings they would split the unwedgeable and knarled oak and play fantastic tricks before high heaven. Fancy—and you can't—the demoniac ravings of the unspeakable Hearts if Wilson had acted as Grant did under identical conditions!

And that is not all. While Abraham Lincoln was President of the United States Americans were murdered in Mexico under circumstances precisely identical with these that now maintain. Mr. Lincoln was urged to intervene. Did he comply? He did not. The same character of murders of American citizens occurred in Mexico when William H. Taft was President and Philander Knox was his Secretary of State. Did war follow? It did not.

And that is not all, nor the worst! Nobody will dispute that Theodore Roosevelt is the greatest hero the world has known since Joshua laid siege to Jericho. When he was President American citizens were murdered in Mexico under circumstances precisely like those that have existed since Wilson became President. Was there a war about it? Certainly not.

All of Wilson's critics, from Roosevelt to Borah, from Lodge to Fall, from Nocholas Murray Butler to William Alden Smith, condemn Wilson for not recognizing the cut-throat usurper Huerta as head of the Mexican government. Now, Hureta stood for slavery, and had he prevailed American concessionaries would have reaped rich bounty from the sweat of miserable peons. Suppose John Wilkes Booth, when he assassinated President Lincoln, had mustered sufficient force to set up for President? Would any decent nation have "recognized" him? I trow not. But that was the case with Hureta. He murdered the President of Mexico and seized the reins of power, and it is that regime of butchery and blood with which Roosevelt and Knox, Nicholas Murray Butler, and Henry Lane Wilson, are so voluptuously in love!

Republicans love to call theirs the "Party of Great Moral Ideas." In its infancy it denounced African slavery and the Mormon Church as those "twin relics of barbarism." In 1912 one-half its vote in the electoral college came from the Mormon Church, and in 1916 it is not only the apologist for, but the advocate of, human slavery in Mexico. And to this complexion has it come at last!

And what a dual affairs is this sham patriotism that is so hysterical as it contemplates Wilsons' foreign policies! When confronted with Mexico its as brave as Hector of Troy and as firm as Hotspur of Northumberland; but when Germany is involved it is as discreet as Sir John Falstaff and as craven as Sir John Aguecheek—vide the vote in the Senate on the three resolution of surrender and the vote in the House on the McLemore resolutions of surrender. Thus you can fancy how it would be if Mexico was a man of our size.

When any devilment is afoot the Frenchman says, "Who is the woman in the case?" In America we say, "Where is the dollar in the case?"

That is the Mexican question—the dirty dollars down there wrung from the sweat of the wretched peons.—Savoyd in Louisville Evening Post.

The Death of John S. Mosby.

The death of John S. Mosby recalls the fact that he had had no military training when he entered the Civil War as a private. He came from a lawyer's office and became one of the most active, fearless, resourceful and successful "irregulars" of military history.

There are differences of opinion today, as there were in the sixties, as to whether Custer's threat to hang Mosby and all of his men if he should catch them—which he dldn't—was warrantable from the point of view of an officer of a regular army. But there are no differences whatever as to the brilliancy of Col. Mosby in his kind of warfare. There are no differences of opinion as to his having been of great service to the cause he espoused with ardor which did not stick at scruples or balk at military conventions.

It is said nowadays that the time has passed when untrained fighters can be useful. It was said, loudly and in a spirit of false confidence, as the history of the American revolution proved, when Great Britain set out to punish her colonies on this side of the Atlantic for the disorderly conduct of which they had been guilty and the disloyal sentiments they entertained.

If modern military science has subordinated the effectiveness of the human unit to that of the mechanical devices for the destruction of life and devastation of territory, it should at least be borne in mind that the possibilities of volunteers for usefulness are greater in a democracy than in a monarchy, just as the outlook of a young man engaged in business in America, and with no capital but his brains and ambition, is brighter than it is in Germany. There is no limit to the height to which a volunteer and a private may rise in this country if he proves his mettle. That would be so in an American war in the future as it has been in the past, and it would be an incentive to every young man in the ranks. It would not compensate for a lack of preparedness, if there should be a lack of preparedness, but it is not true that the time has passed, in America, when the intrepid and naturally talented fighter may be useful, and may rise to prominence, without the benefit of military training previous to the war. —C. J.

The Fox a Friend of the Farmers.

The Wilmington, Ohio, Journal says: "Mr. Frank Hale, a farmer living near town, recently had an experience that increases his faith in the value of foxes to farmers. In searching around a den of young foxes near his home he found carefully covered near the mouth of the hole 132 ground mice—reserve food—the mother fox had covered to feed her young.

Mr. Hale is a great student of the habits of the fox, and is strong in his belief that they do the farmer great service in keeping their fields free of rats, mice, moles, grasshoppers, and the like."

In bulletins published by the Agricultural Department, Washington, farmers are urged to protect fur-bearing animals. It is said that 90 per cent of the food of the fur-bearing animals consists of pests—field mice, moles, ground squirrels, grass hoppers and the like—that destroy the farmers' crop.

Why Not Face the Facts About Armor Competition?

To the People:

The policy of the United States Government for many years has made real competition in armor-making ineffective.

The Government might have asked the three armor plants for bids and let the entire tonnage to the lowest bidder. That would have made competition effective.

The result of such a course would have been to drive two of the three manufacturers out of business, and leave the country with facilities of only one plant in time of need.

The Government in fact has always asked for bids from the three manufacturers, but no matter what the price quoted, each year's business was divided among them.

Armor makers serve but one customer—the Government, just as a public utility serves but one customer—a community.

The solution of the public utility problem is regulation of rates.

The solution of the armor problem is for the Government to fix the price.

We voluntarily agree to accept any price fixed by the Federal Trade Commission. Isn't acceptance of that offer better than the destruction of an industry built solely to serve the Government?

Senator "Bob" Taylor Will Live And Speak Again at Chautauqua

W. POWELL HALE.

"He has the happy darky dialect, and his stories of negro quarters were in consequence artistic gems. The wonderful versatility of the man can hardly be overestimated. From the broadest humor he jumped in a flash to the highest eloquence. He talked in dialect and blank verse, recited statistics and then sang plantation songs, and between these he would start off on a picturesque description of the charms of the South. It was like the tinkling of bells, the rippling of running water, and the audience seemed to regret the ending when he bowed and retired."

This description by a famous New York critic shows the power and eloquence possessed by Senator Bob Taylor, one of the most picturesque public men the United States ever produced, and for those who were not privileged to hear the famous Senator when he was alive or those who, having heard him, desire again to renew their acquaintance with this master orator, W. Powell Hale, character portrayalist, will deliver on the fourth afternoon of the Chautauqua Senator Taylor's most popular lecture, "The Paradise of Fools."

Mr. Hale makes the picturesque old Senator live again, impersonating him so faithfully in dialect, pose and manner that those who hear him declare that he is fully as delightful as Taylor himself.

There was $2,000 insurance on the house and that was paid some time ago. The property was sold to J. M. Arnold by T. J. This is the reverse side of the 1917 red tin

THE Prince Albert tidy red tin, and in fact, every Prince Albert package, has a real message to you on its reverse side. You'll read—"Process Patented July 30th, 1907." That means that the United States Government has granted a patent on the process by which Prince Albert is made. And by which tongue bite and throat parch are cut out! Everywhere tobacco is sold you'll find Prince Albert awaiting you in toppy red bags, 5c; tidy red tins, 10c; handsome pound and half-pound tin humidors and in that clever crystal-glass humidor, with sponge-moistener top, that keeps the tobacco in such fine condition—always!

Special Notice.

The Farmers' Mutual Telephone Directory says, I handle any kind of rubber tires; and that I have the exclusive agency of the Republic Rubber Tires. That contract just cost me $200 of which some of my customers will attest. I guaranteed those tires and I filled same to the letter. Now, right here I do most solemnly promise and swear that I will never again change the old and tried for any new thing whatsoever. Furthermore, that I will not use any Rubber Tire except Kelly's Springfield—the best rubber tire ever made and the best. I ought to know for surely I put enough of them on to find out. It is just like a man, puts the old girl for the new woman is leaving his old and tried wife for a new one. Now, isn't it a fact that they always go back to the old and tried love, is it not so boys? That's what I have done with Kelly's Springfield Rubber Tire—gone back to my old love. While they cost me more money they will cost my customers $12.00 per set or $3.00 per tire: these tires I give a guarantee on for being as represented. They will not stuff out nor will they peel, but will wear smooth like a good tire should.

Now, in regards to repainting: I have tried to get a quick system and do good work, but I find it a failure so I give it up and must stick to the old system. All my work I guarantee to be as represented. I do anything in the carriage line. Bring me your work if you want it done right. I solicit your trade.

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

Following is the platform adopted by the Republican National Convention is Chicago last Thursday:

"In 1861 the Republican party stood for the Union. As it stood for the Union, as it stood for the Union of States, it now stands for an united people, true to American ideals, loyal to American traditions, knowing no allegiance except to the constitution, to the Government, and to the flag of the United States. We believe in American policies at home and abroad.

"We declare that we believe in and will enforce the protection of every American citizen in all the rights secured to him by the constitution, treaties, and the law of nations, at home and abroad, by land sea. These rights, which in violation of the specific promises of their party made at Baltimore in 1912, the Democratic President and the Democratic Congress have failed to defend, we will unflinchingly maintain.

"We desire peace, the peace of justice and right, and believe in maintaining a straight and honest neutrality between the belligerents in the great war in Europe. We must perform all our duties and insist upon all our rights as neutrals without fear and without favor. We believe that peace and neutrality as well as the dignity and influence of the U. S. cannot be preserved by shifty expedients, by phrasemaking, by performances in language or by attitudes ever changing in an effort to secure groups of voters. The present Administration has destroyed our influence abroad and humiliated us in our own eyes. The Republican party believes that a firm, consistent and courageous foreign policy, always maintained by Republican Presidents in accordance with American traditions, is the best, as it is the only true way to preserve our peace and restore us to our rightful place among the nations. We believe in the pacific settlement of international disputes and favor the establishment of a world court for that purpose.

"We deeply sympathize with the 15,000,000 people of Mexico, who for three years have seen their country devastated, their homes destroyed, their fellow citizens murdered and their women outraged by armed bands of desperadoes led by selfseeking, conscienceless agitators who, when temporarily successful in any locality, have neither sought nor been able to restore order or establish and maintain peace.

"We express our sorrow and indignation at the outrages which have been and are being perpetrated by those bandits upon American men and women who were or are in Mexico by invitation of the laws and of the Government of that country, and whose rights to security of person and property are guaranteed by solemn treaty obligations. We denounce the indefensible methods of interference employed by this Administration in the internal affairs of Mexico, and refer with shame to its failure to discharge the duty of this country as next friend to Mexico, its duty to other powers who have relied upon us as such friend, and its duty to our citizens in Mexico, in permitting the continuance of such conditions, first by failure to act promptly and firmly, and second, by lending its influence to the continuation of such conditions through recognition of one of the factions responsible for these outrages.

"We pledge our aid in restoring order and maintaining peace in Mexico. We promise to our citizens on and near our border, and to those in Mexico, wherever they may be found, adequate and absolute protection in their lives, liberty and property.

"We reaffirm our approval of the Monroe Doctrine, and declare its maintenance to be a policy of this country essential to its present and future peace and safety and to the achievement of its manifest destiny.

"We favor the continuance of Republican policies, which will result in drawing more and more closely the commercial, financial and social relations between this country and the countries of Latin America.

"We renew our allegiance to the Philippines policy, inaugurated by McKinley, approved by Congress and consistently carried out by Roosevelt and Taft. Even in this short time it has enormously improved the material and social conditions of the islands, given the Philippine people a constantly increasing participation in their government, and, if persisted in, will bring still greater benefits in the future.

"We accepted the responsibility of the islands as a duty to civilization and the Filipino people. To leave with our task half done would break our pledges, injure our prestige among nations and imperil what has been accomplished.

"We condemn the Democratic Administration for its attempt to abandon the Philippines, which was prevented only by vigorous opposition of Republican members of Congress, aided by a few patriotic Democrats.

"We reiterate our unqualified approval of the action taken in December, 1911, by the President and Congress to secure with Russia, as with other countries, a treaty that will recognize the absolute right of expatriation and prevent all discrimination of what ever kind between American citizens, whether native born or alien [illegible] regardless of race, religion or [illegible] political allegiance. We [illegible] pledge to observe this [illegible] and to maintain the right [illegible] is willing to [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] hopes [illegible] new deal-lating the world may speedily end, with a complete and lasting restoration of brotherhood among the nations of the earth and the assurance of full equal rights, civil and religious, to all men in every land.

"In order to maintain our peace and make certain the security of our people within our own borders the country must have not only adequate but thorough and complete national defense, ready for any emergency. We must have a sufficient and effective regular army and a provision for ample reserves, already drilled and disciplined, who can be called at once to the colors when the hour of danger comes.

"We must have a navy so strong and so well porportioned and equipped so thoroughly ready and prepared that no enemy can gain command of the sea and effect a landing in force on either our western or our eastern coast. To secure these results we must have a coherent and continuous policy of national defense, which even in these perilous days the Democratic party has utterly failed to develop, but which we promise to give to the country.

"The Republican party stands now, as always, in the fullest sense for the policy of tariff protection to American labor, and does not regard an anti-dumping provision as an adequate substitute. Such protection should be reasonable in amount, but sufficient to protect adequately American industry and American labor and be so adjusted as to prevent undue exactions by monopolies or trusts. It should, moreover, give special attention to securing the industrial independence of the United States as in the case of dyestuffs.

"Through wise tariff and industrial legislation our industries can be so organized that they will become not only a commercial bulwark, but a powerful aid to national defense

"The Underwood tariff act is a complete failure in every respect Under its administration imports have enormously increased in spite of the fact that the intercourse with foreign countries has been largely cut off by reason of the war, while the revenues of which we stand in such dire need have been greatly reduced Under the normal conditions which prevailed prior to the war it was clearly demonstrated that this act deprived the American producer and the American wage earner of that protection which entitled them to meet their foreign competitors, and but for the adventitious conditions, created by the war would long since have paralyzed all forms of American industry and deprived American labor of its just reward It has not in the least reduced the cost of living, which has constantly advanced from the date of its enactment The welfare of our people demands its repeal and the substitution of a measure which in peace as well as in war will produce ample revenue and give reasonable protection to all forms of American production in mine, forest, field and factory

"We favor the creation of a Tariff Commission with complete power to gather and compile information for the use of Congress in all matters relating to the tariff

"The Republican party has long believed in the rigid supervision and strict regulation of the transportation and great corporations of the country It has put its creed into its deeds, and all really effective laws regulating the railroads and the great industrial corporations are the work of Republican Congresses and Presidents For this policy of regulation and supervision the Democrats, in a stumbling and piecemeal way are undertaking to involve the Government in business which should be left within the sphere of private enterprise and in direct competition with its own citizens, a policy which is sure to result in waste great expense to the taxpayers, and in an inferior product

"The Republican party firmly believes that all who violate the laws in regulation of business should be individually punished But prosecution is very different from persecution, and business success, no matter how honestly attained, is apparently regarded by the Democratic party as in itself a crime Such doctrines and beliefs choke enterprise and stifle prosperity The Republican party believes in encouraging American business, as it believes in and will seek to advance all American interests

"We favor an effective system of rural credits as opposed to the ineffective law proposed by the present Democratic Administration

"We favor the extension of the rural free delivery system and condemn the Democratic Administration for curtailing and crippling it

"In view of the policies adopted by all the maritime nations to encourage their shipping interests and in order to enable us to compete with them for the ocean-carrying trade we favor the payment to ships engaged in the foreign trade of liberal compensation for services actually rendered in carrying the mails, and such further legislation as will build up an adequate American merchant marine and give us ships which may be requisitioned by the Government in time of national emergency

"We are utterly opposed to the Government ownership of vessels as proposed by the Democratic party because Government-owned ships, while effectively preventing the development of the American merchant marine by private capital, will be entirely unable to provide for the vast volume of American freights and will leave us more helpless than ever in the hard grip of foreign syndicates

"Interstate and intrastate transportation have become so interwoven that the attempt to apply two and often several sets of laws to its regulation has produced conflicts of authority, embarrassment in operation and inconvenience and expense to the public

"The entire transportation system of the country has become essentially national

"We therefore favor such action by legislation, or, if necessary, through an amendment to the constitution of the U S, as will result in placing it under exclusive Federal control

"The increasing cost of the National Government and the need for the greatest economy of its resources in order to meet the growing demands of the people for Government service call for the severest condemnation of the wasteful appropriations of this Democratic Administration; of its shameless raids on the Treasury, and of its opposition to and rejection of President Taft's oft-repeated proposals and earnest efforts to secure economy and efficiency thru the establishment of a simple business-like budget system to which we pledged our support and which we hold to be necessary to effect any real reform in the Administration of national finances

"We believe in a careful husbandry of all the national resources of the nation—a husbandry which means development without waste; use without abuse

"The Civil Service law always has been sustained by the Republican party, and we renew our repeated declaration that it shall be thoroughly and honestly enforced and extended wherever practicable The Democratic party has created since March 4, 1913, 30,000 offices outside of the Civil Service law at an annual cost of $44,000,000 to the taxpayers of the country

"We condemn the gross abuse and the misuse of the law by the present Democratic Administration and pledge ourselves to a reorganization of this service along lines of efficiency and economy

"Reaffirming the attitude long maintained by the Republican party, we hold that officials appointed to administer the government of any territory should be bona fide residents of the territory in which their duties are to be performed

"We pledge the Republican party to the faithful enforcement of all Federal laws passed for the protection of labor We favor vocational education the enactment and rigid enforcement of a Federal child labor law; the enactment of a generous and comprehensive workmen's compensation law, within the commerce power of Congress, and the accident compensation law covering all Government employees We favor the collection and collation under the direction of the Department of Labor of complete data relating to industrial hazards for the information of Congress; to the end that such legislation may be adopted as may be calculated to secure the safety, conservation and protection of labor from the dangers incident to industry and transportation

"The Republican party reaffirming its faith in government of the people, as a measure of justice to one-half of the adult people of this country, favors the extension of the suffrage to the women, but recognizes the right of each State to settle this question for itself

"Such are our principles, such are our purposes, and policies We close as we began The times are dangerous and the future is fraught with peril The great issues of the day have been confused by words and phrases The American spirit, which made the country and saved the Union, has been forgotten by those charged with the responsibility of power We appeal to all Americans, whether naturalized or native born, to prove to the world that we are Americans in thought and deed, with one loyalty, one hope, one aspiration We call on all Americans to be true to the spirit of America, to the great traditions of the common country, and above all things, keep the faith"

Some sneak thief entered the room of A. M. Boone at his home at New Hope one night last week Securing his pantaloons, he removed from his pocketbook $38, which he took away from him, leaving the pocketbook with some valuable papers and $110 that was overlooked While this was going on Boone slept peacefully for under his head lay a 38 Colt's revolver that would have been troublesome if brought into action, but the thief, as well as Boone was unconscious of that fact—New Haven Echo.

Jew in American Politics

"Although Mr. Brandeis is the first Hebrew to occupy a seat on the Supreme bench of this country there has never been a long period in our history marked by the absence of some member of that wonderful race from high governmental position," said W. H. David, of the New Orleans bar, at the Willard.

"One of the greatest statesmen the South ever produced was Judah P. Benjamin, of Louisiana, who was a United States Senator, later on a member of the Confederate Cabinet, and after the defeat of the South one of the leading lawyers of England Fleeing from the anticipated wrath of the United States Government, he made his way to London, and there by the sheer force of native talent and legal ability he was appointed Queen's counsel. In recent years Louisiana sent another Jew to the United States Senate in the person of Mr. Jonas, and it has not been so long ago that the State of Oregon was represented in the United States Senate by Mr. Simon. Recollection of Senator Guggenheim, of Colorado is still fresh in the public mind, and a cleverer business man probably never came to Washington.

"Any number of Jews have been elected to seats in Congress, and there was never a dullard in the lot.

"The elevation of Mr. Brandeis, of course, meets the hearty commendation of those of his own nationality, and it is also pleasing to broad-minded and tolerant people everywhere."

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good. I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its tiring me, and am doing my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of wonderful success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

The Little Things We Waste

There is an adage which says that "a woman can throw out with a spoon faster than a man can throw in with a shovel" If we are to believe all the scientific persons who have been proving that a European family can live upon what the ordinary American housewife dumps in her garbage can, that America uses more ice than all the rest of the world, then surely it is time we made a study of economy

Beginning in the kitchen how many women let the water in which meat has cooked grow cold that they may skim off the fat? That fat is rich in nutriment and can be used in almost all the ways that expensive lard or shortening are called for Pieces of meat left on the plates are thrown away These could be used in the soup pot or minced for hash or croquettes

Why should not the ice be returned to the refrigerator, the salt dried and used again after the Sunday ice cream has been frozen?

Flour is often sifted wastefully and a ring of it left on the table where it fell from the dish too small to contain the sifter Extra pie crust is thrown out or set away instead of being made up at once into little tarts while the stove is still hot.

Odd bits of cold vegetables are discarded when they might be made with a half package of gelatine into savories or moulded salads The coarse, rough and somewhat rusty leaves of expensive lettuce are thrown away instead of being made into a cream soup.

If the vessel in which milk is to be scalded is slightly buttered the milk will not stick, and if a saucepan is rinsed out with cold water before cocoa or chocolate is made it will not collect the richest part around the sides

There is waste in the use of equipment too The scrubbing brush is left in the water to be softened and loosened Tin and iron pans are put away wet and rust out Knives are used to open cans silver spoons are put to scraping kettles and silver forks to toasting bread Soap is left in the scrub pail or dishpan and mops are never dried but allowed to rot away.

Two ten cent sponges, close heavy ones, will outwear many rags for it they are properly cared for; they will last a season The rags will bring three cents a pound if sold.—Ex.

FISCAL COURT

The Fiscal Court convened in special session, Tuesday, Judge P E Cason presiding and all the justices present. Miss Lizzie Rogers kept records

Turnpike companies proposed to sell their roads to the county as follows:

Bullittsville and Dry Creek, 10 miles for $18,570

Big Bone and Beaver, 3 miles, $3,000

Covington and Lexington pike, 11½ miles, for $17,250

Union and Hathaway, 4½ miles, for $1,000

Beaver Lick and South Fork, six miles, $3,000

Petersburg and Burlington, 10 miles, for $10,000

Hamilton and Big Bone, 2¾ miles for $2,750

Burlington and Belleview, 7½ miles, for $2,800

Verona and Mudlick, Verona and Gallatin county, and Boone and Grant were tendered the county, the only condition being that they be kept

The Burlington and Petersburg pike company, while asking $10,000 for the road do not demand that amount of cash, and only require the county to spend $10,000 on the road in a reasonable time

The proposition of the Covington and Lexington pike was refused, and the county made an offer of $10,000 for that road.

The Florence and Union Turnpike Co's. offer to take $750 a mile was turned down, and the county offered $500 a mile for said road.

The county offered $500 a mile for the Beaver and Big Bone and the Big Bone and Hamilton pike.

Advisory Committeemen for the Fiscal court was selected as follows last Saturday:

Burlington—R. B. Huey.
Bullittsville—Jonas Stevens.
Big Bone—T. A. Huey, Jr.
Beaver—Joe W. Cleek.
Verona—Wm. Sparks.
Union—O. E. Senour.
Petersburg—Elijah Grant.
Belleview—Wm. Green.

Henry E Youtsey, of Newport, probably the most noted convict in the Frankfort penitentiary, has opened a class for shorthand students in the prison Unable to secure a pardon, Youtsey has decided to dedicate that portion of his life that he has to serve in the penitentiary to the uplift of his fellow prisoners He was convicted for participating in the murder of Governor Wm Goebel.

On Monday the county commissioners considered the advisability of oiling the Aurora-Rising Sun pike. The price of oil is doubtful what it was last year. It is estimated that 2,000 gallons would be required and the price per gallon would be four and one-third cents. The matter was carried over until the July meeting of the board.—Dearborn, Ind., News

Tobacco ; Bip of Small Crop

A tobacco manufacturer said to the Editor: "Tell your farmers to grow a large crop of tobacco this year." He explained that the European countries have heretofore grown a portion of their needs and filled up on American tobacco; now they are growing foodstuffs entirely and must be heavy buyers in this country. This manufacturer contends that none of the buyers knew of coming conditions when they hammered the prices down in the Black Belt last winter, and unfortunately the growers got very little for their tobacco. Conditions have changed because of the unforseen developments in Europe, a shortage has occurred and values are way up yonder.

As usual, the farmers have been left, the speculators and manufactures are getting rich, their holdings have suddenly become double in value, actually worth 100 per cent more than they paid for the weed. We do not blame the manufacturers and speculators, that's their game, it is a gamble with them, but we sympathize with our farmers.

The Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Co. comes out in a published statement that Kentucky farmers lost $6,000,000 because they marketed their crop too early. We now see that this is the case but no one, not even the manufacturers themselves, knew of what was coming.

This friend of the Editor contends that prices will be high next winter, whether a big or short crop develops; for the reason that foreign demand will be heavy. "So," he added, "you can safely advise the farmers to put in a big crop and be sure of getting good prices." Kentucky Farming has always advised farmers to cut down on the growing of tobacco and produce more food crops. This may be an exceptional year, hence, we say now, study the situation well; perhaps this manufacturer is correct; but we do suggest that if a large crop is planted farmers should be prepared to hold their tobacco and not have to rush it on the market. Otherwise, grow foodstuffs instead, feed cattle and hogs, build silos and build up the land; this is safer.—Kentucky Farming

Still We Can Worry

Getting well acquainted with the history of one's drinking water has become a mater of conscience It is even considered far more polite, in the long run, to question one's host as to the origin and and quality of the local water supply than to upset the routine of his establishment by coming down with typhoid fever.

We are so critical of drinking water that we suspect of containing almost any evil thing. But not one of us in our most excited moments, ever imagined that water could hold such a surprise as Nemaodes.

But it does Sometimes millions of them in a drop But usually only about 1,000 to a glass of water.

The Nematodes has just been discovered by the department of agriculture He can be cornered any day in sand fliter beds.

There are many species of him but whether he is good or bad for us scientists haven't found out. If it is finally determined that he is deleterious to our health, scientists hope to introduce rival species into one habitat, and let them devour each other, and thus neutralize their danger to the general public.

While waiting for experts to decide what the Namatodes does to us if we swallow him, it is pleasant to speculate on our enlarged opportunity for worrying about our drinking water which his presence therein permits us.—Springfield Journal.

Rumors of an organization of negroes in the form of clubs to control politics, in which blood oaths are said to be administered, were brought to the attention of the grand jury by Judge Carl Henderson, of Marion, who convened the June term of Caldwell circuit court and urged that an investigation of this organization be made The court also called special attention to the violation of prohibition laws He urged that "soft drink" stands be investigated, which the Judge said in many cases were blinds for the illicit sale of liquor

Look Ont for 1917

For those who are anxious there may be some relief in the declaration of a noted woman astrologer of Kansas City that this country will not be drawn into war this year. But 1917 is an ominous year, and in a twelvemonth we are sure to be in the midst of trouble.

This talented lady astrologer of Kansas City pins her faith to the crop outlook in eclipses next year. She says:

"Great disturbances on this planet always result when there are many eclipses of the sun and moon. In 1805, when the battle of Austerlitz and Waterloo occurred, there were seven eclipses of the sun and moon Next year, 1917 for the first time since then, there will be seven more eclipses of the sun and moon. Next year will be the greatest war year the world has ever known."

For the sake of peace we may hope that the lady's astrology is no more accurate than her history. But she counts on the stars as well as on the solar and lunar eclipses. Her explanation of astrological causes and human effects is intensely interesting.

"For instance," says she, "the present era of suffrage agitation, purity movement, marriage and divorce discussions I attribute to the fact that the planet Libra, representing partnerships and marriage, is now casting its rays in our direction Gemini, progressive planet, which believes in community instead of individual advancement, is also watching over us But the most significant fact of all is that Uranus, one of the most explosive, jerky, nervous high-tempered actors in the bunch of celestial stars, is nightly casting a close and fiery eye on us, causing men to lose their natural balance and sanity. Uranus will next year be in conjunction with Aquarius. That fact, together with the seven eclipses of the sun and moon, explains why men have gone mad over war instead of living quiet and peaceful lives"

This Kansas City specialist rejects the idea that she possesses any gift of chairvoyance but she claims that the deductions are based on "scientific facts." But we suspect that "science" in this case should be spelled "psyence" and anyway we for one should hesitate to place any faith in her psyentific deductions until she proves her theory by working out the square root of the hypothenuse of Mars and Jupiter. We have a suspicion that the question of war is always decided more by the phenomenon of political eclipses than by shadows on the sun and moon However, it might do no harm to wear smoked glasses or some device that would neutralize the rays of that nervous, explosive, and ill-tempered Uranus.

As a relief from the complicated influences of planetary perigees, apogees, condjunctions, and what not, it is comforting to observe a plain psychic phenomenon. A Philadelphia medium announces the receipt of messages from the spirits of Bacon and Shakespeare testifying that the plays were written by Shakespeare and no other But real Baconians will probably refuse to accept this spook evidence unless it is corroborated by depositions from the ghosts of Queen Elizabeth and Hamlet's father.

Birds Who Shirk

There are shirks in the bird world, just as there are shirks in every other world. Most persons are familiar with the habits of the European cuckoo, and the cowsicd or black bird of this country both of which lay their eggs in the nests of other birds, and thus impose upon others the task of brooding and rearing their young But the case with which family cares rest upon the grebe is not so generally understood. This bird which lays in marshy places each morning collects a mass of decaying vegetation with which it thickly covers its eggs. The sun soon transforms this covering into a sweltering, heating mass, which does the work of incubation. Mean while, the mother bird spends her day in idleness. At night the grebe returns to her nest, removes the blanket which has covered the eggs during the day, and until the morning, performs her brooding duties in the ordinary way.—Ex.

The Fiscal Courts of Owen and Carroll counties met at Worthville last Friday and decided the Carroll-Owen inter-county-seat road should be built from Carrollton to Owenton via Worthville, but at the same time State Commissioner of Roads R. C. Terrill approved both roads and State aid will be given for the building of both thru Worthville. The route is approved and recognized as the inter-county road, and Owenton will build accordingly to the Carroll county line at Worthville, which will connect Owen with every train on the L & N. Railway All trains stopping at Worthville had much to do in deciding the matter.—Carroll County News.

EUROPE MISUNDERSTANDS.

Three Belligerents Have Idea U. S. Has No Rights To Be Neutral.

To understand the disappointment manifested in Europe over the President's speech on peace it must be remembered that in at least three belligerent capitals the idea still prevails that the United States has no right to be neutral in this war. London clings to a common language, law and literature; Paris to an ancient alliance and republican institutions, and Berlin to the great Germanic element of our population.

In his address the President plainly stated that as to the cause and objects of this war we are not concerned which is the truth. We had nothing to do with the ambitions and intrigues which led to the conflict. When he said that the objects or results of the war must be such as the belligerents may agree upon he recognized the mastery of the sword and once again proclaimed American neutrality.

Eager for favor and assistance, London, Paris, and Berlin naturally find this language cold and forbidding, and there is a disposition to overlook the plain purpose of Mr. Wilson's utterance. "Our interest," he says, "is only in peace and its future guarantees." He is not assessing the blame for the present devastation. He is not proposing any plan of adjustment. Above all, he does not presume to dictate the time or the method of peacemaking.

The settlement of this struggle must devolve upon those who are parties to it. If the United States can be of service in the matter its counsel will not be withheld, but it is the future in which this country has the keenest interest. Not to take sides, not to intrude with unsolicited advice upon maddened nations, but to await the return of reason and then by good offices make an effort to prevent a repetition of hideous crime against civilization—that seems to be the President's attitude, and some day every fighting nation will gratefully comprehend it.—N. Preparations are being made to set a large acreage to tobacco in Franklin county For a number of years Simpson county farmers have harvested a large wheat yield, but it is now conceded very probable a poor crop will prove the poorest yield in years It is the hope of many to recoup their loss from this crop by a larger crop of tobacco

The past week has been a busy one with the farmers of Bracken county, the rains having put the ground in first-class condition for transplanting tobacco Every hand that could be employed was put to work and more would have been used if they could have been gotten Worms have injured a good many beds and have destroyed some that were set out

Montgomery county has the smallest crop of blue grass seed in years Some farmers have begun to strip Some deals have been made at 90 cents per bushel Corn has made an excellent start, free from weeds and disease The acreage is increased over 1916 Outlook is for a good yield of timothy and clover Alfalfa fields are showing up well Wheat and rye damaged by May drouth Rye shows slight improvement

Some of the finest barley in many years, has been grown in Madison county this season, and cutting on it will commence the coming week Wheat coming along a good deal better than other places, and a number of farmers have been offered $1.10 and while a good many have sold, still a number are holding out for higher price, expecting it to go as high as $1.25. A Yawning Chasm

The bridge just outside of town on the Burlington and Florence pike was torn out last Friday for reconstructing and the temporary road around it was in a very bad condition last Saturday and Sunday as a result of the rain, and automobiles could not pass over it for a time last Saturday and Sunday which proved a great inconvenience in many instances The auto in which Stanley Eddins carries the mail and John White's passenger auto were left on the east side of the creek, for several days, from where the mail and passengers were transferred It will be a couple of weeks at least, before the bridge is ready for use again

Youtsey May Be Pardoned

It is persistently rumored that when Senator Thomas A. Combs becomes Gov. Pro Tem on the absence of Governor Stanley and Lieut. Governor Black, when they go to the National Democratic Convention he will pardon Henry E. Youtsey. In the event that the Senator performs this act of justice he will certainly ingratiate himself very deeply into the esteem of the people of this Commonwealth, who have longed to see Mr. Youtsey free. Notwithstanding the fact that most all of the leading papers of the State, have appeared with strong editorials setting forth splendid reasons why this pardon should be granted, notwithstand ing that thousands of citizens and several religious conventions have petitioned former Governors for this act of justice, there has been nothing done for this man, who has been made scape-goat and bears the burden while others go free. It is cruel justice, and The Democrat voices the sentiment of thousands of people in this community when it appeals to Senator Combs to open the prison doors to Henry E. Youtsey. Canning Difficulties

To enable the home canner to overcome some of the difficulties likely to be met with in canning vegetables, the canning club specialists of the department for the Northern and Western States give the following directions:

Sour corn, peas, beans and asparagus.—Cans of these vegetables may show no sign of spoilage and yet when opened may have a sour taste and disagreeable odor. This trouble can be avoided if the canner will use products which have not been gathered more than five or six hours, and will blanch, cold dip and pack one jar at a time and place each jar in the canner as it is packed. The first jars will not be affected by the extra cooking. Rapid cooling of these products prevents overcooking, clarifies the liquid, and preserves the shape and texture of the vegetable.

When peas are keeping well, but the liquid shows a cloudy or hazy appearance, it indicates that the product was roughly handled in blanching and cold dipping, or that split or broken peas were not removed before packing. When peas are too old and blanching is not carefully done the skin becomes cracked and the liquid cloudy. Some waters of peculiar mineral content have a tendency to increase cloudiness.

Corn requires care.—Corn seems to give the most trouble, but with a little care and study this product may be canned as easily as any other. Select corn that is just between the milk and the dough stage. Blanch not longer than five minutes. A plunge in cold water is sufficient. Cut the corn from the cob with a sharp knife and pack at once in sterilized jars. Best results can be accomplished when two people cut and one person fills. If working alone, cut off sufficient corn to fill one jar, pour on boiling water, add salt, place rubber and cap in position, and put the jar at once in the canner. A little overcooking does not injure the quality of canned corn. Corn should not be tightly packed in the jar; it expands a little in processing and each jar should be filled scant full. Corn in the dough stage before being packed has a cheesy appearance after canning. Corn should never be allowed to remain in the cold dip and large quantities should not be dipped at one time unless sufficient help is available to handle the product quickly. Water-logged or soaked corn indicates slow and inefficient packing.

Faded beets.—The older the beet the more chance there is for loss of color. Leave on one inch of the stem and all of the tail while blanching. Blanch not more than five minutes and cold dip. To remove the skin the beet should be scraped, not peeled. Beets should be packed whole if possible. Well-canned beets will show a slight loss of color when removed from the canner, but will brighten up in a few days. Small beets than run 40 to the quart are the most suitable size for first-class packs.

Shrinkage of greens.—This is due to insufficient blanching during the canning process. The proper way to blanch all greens or put herbs is in a steamer or in a vessel improvised to do the blanching in live steam above the water line. If this is done a high percentage of mineral salts and volatile oil is retained by the product.

Too great acidity of tomatoes.—A degree of acidity disagreeable to the taste which is sometimes noted in canned tomatoes may be corrected when cooking by adding one-fourth teaspoonful of baking soda to a quart of canned tomatoes.

Water for home canning.—The hardening of beans, peas and some other products after cooking or processing, or the turning of green vegetables to a dark olive or russet color, usually indicates that the water contains too high a percentage of mineral water. Water used for canning purposes should be pure, soft and as free as possible from objectionable and excessive quantities of mineral matter. If a large quantity of food products is to be canned and there is difficulty with the water available, it would be well to have the water analyzed. It would be well also to secure advice from the college of agriculture or from the Office of Home Economics, States Relations Service, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Pasture for Swine

Plenty of tender, nourishing hog pasture of good quality may be had during the entire season if clover is grown, say men at the Minnesota college of agriculture. As soon as the pigs are strong enough, the brood sows with their litters may be turned into a clover field. If one-third to half of the clover is mown about June 10, the hogs will eat the young shoots that spring up and will not bother the uncut part of the field.

The rest of the field may be cut at the regular haying time. By having the pasture well stocked you need not be afraid that the worry about taking care of the pasture for the rest of the summer. By fall pigs ought to weigh from 50 to 80 pounds each.

This system has worked well with many hog raisers in Minnesota. In a good season, one acre of pasture will provide feed for three broods sows and their pigs. Plenty of cot room and enough room with proper feeding facilities ought to be provided in each pasture. The cots should be located 30 to 40 rods from the feeding floor, so that the pigs will not tire the pasture and [illegible]

Bees and Sweet Clover

I have been keeping bees for a good many years and find them very profitable when the right care is given them at the right time. I generally keep 100 colonies or more, and that amount of colonies, well cared for, will give as much profit as twice the amount half cared for. There is only a short period each year that bees can make honey and if they are not put in the right shape for that period and have supers with comb foundation or foundation starter ready they will not have a chance to get the amount of the flow of honey that they should store. I like to work with bees and use all the latest patent hives and produce both comb and extracted honey. My comb honey is all put up in one pound sections. I have some customers that want comb honey and some want extracted honey and by producing both I can furnish all customers. The bees can make much more extracted honey than they can of the comb honey as they do not have to make the comb every time they fill a super of the extracted honey as the same comb is used several times and as the comb honey sells for more money than the extracted honey it makes both pay about the same profit. The honey made here during the summer season is what we call Sweet Clover honey as it is about 90 per cent made from the blossoms of sweet clover, as there is so much more blossoms of sweet clover than other flowers and the sweet clover blossoms produce so much more honey than any others. The sweet clover honey is the brightest and best flavored honey to be found. The yellow sweet clover is preferred by most bee keepers as it blooms about the last week in May at which time there is nothing much for the bees to work upon and causes the bees to have a longer time in which they can make honey, as the white sweet clover blooms about three weeks later than the yellow, and I prefer to have both kinds of sweet clover for bee pasture for the reason that the two together will give the bees a longer period to work on. If I was to only have the one kind I would prefer the biennial yellow blossom. I sell a great deal of sweet clover seed throughout the state to bee keepers since they come to realize that it is such a great bee pasture. The sweet clover blossom is valued at $5 per acre for bee pasture. The new sweet clover honey will be ready for shipment about middle of June but I always carry a good supply of the old honey on hand so that I can take care of my customers at any time and not have to wait for the new honey crop, and some prefer the old honey even after the new honey is made as this sweet clover honey will keep for years and retain the good flavor and brightness that it has when new.

The honey made in the fall, in the latter part of September and October is what we call aster honey, as it is mostly made from the aster weed which blooms at that time of the year with a small portion of golden rod and a few other fall weeds. This aster honey sells for about two cents less per pound than the sweet clover honey and is a good article, but has not the fine qualities that the sweet clover honey has and will not keep as long in hot weather. I put up my honey in five and ten pound pails for parcel post shipments which can be delivered at the customer's door to any point in the state at a very little cost. I also use 25-50-60 and 70 pound cans for freight and express shipments in which way the price is a little less on the pound for the honey, but many people do not wish that much honey at one time and prefer to buy the smaller pails.

My strain of bees are the Italian, which are great workers and are not bad about stinging and are very gentle, during the busy season I very seldom have trouble with them trying to sting.

There has been a few cases of foul breed found in this county Pendleton, in the past few years, a disease which will soon kill all of your bees if you do not find it and stop it in time, but I have never had a case to be found in my bees up to this time and my bees were inspected last fall by the county bee inspector.

There are more than 300,000 lbs. of honey produced and shipped from Pendleton county each year which is possibly more than is produced in any other county in the United States as Pendleton has the most sweet clover of any other county. The money for the honey crop brought to Pendleton county each year would amount to over $30,000 besides several thousand dollars worth of queen bees that are produced and shipped each year.—John A. Sheehan, in Kentucky Farming.

Fleeing from temptation Henderson Eversole, of Perry county, returned to the reformatory from the prison farm and told Warden Wells he desired to be locked up again. Eversole is serving a six months' sentence for confederating and has been at the prison but a few days. Col. Wells sent him to the farm, first asking Eversold if he had any compunctions about running away and what he would do if he felt the temptation to escape getting the better of him. Eversole said he would get inside the prison walls as quickly as possible if he felt tempted to escape and he literally kept his word today. "Col. I was afraid to trust myself out there with all those trains running past toward Perry county," he explained when he met the Warden at the prison.

The oldest inhabitant can not remember ever seeing as much white top in the meadows as will be found in them today. Of course great damage is done to meadows and much loss to farmers thereby.—Georgetown News.

Postmaster L. B. Owen, we believe, holds the record around here for swarming bees. All the spring most any time during the day you can see the bees swarming at Mr. Owen's but Monday morning they outdid all previous occasions, when four swarms were out before 7 o'clock.—Arlington Courier.

J. J. Leggate, of near Farmington, says he will try to be one of the great hog raisers of Graves county. He brought one litter of pigs, ten in number, eight months old, to the city Monday morning and sold them to Solgel Carrico. They weighed an average of 198 pounds each, making a total of 1,990 pounds, for which he received 9 cents per pound gross, making a total of $179.10. They are Poland China, and Mr. Leggate is very proud of this sale and says he proposes to make a living from now on raising and selling hogs, and if there be any one in the county who can beat this let it be known in the Messenger.

CORN FOR GREEN FEED

Grow in Drills Wide Enough Apart for Sulky Cultivator.

Working Crops Four Times Will Hasten Growth of Plants, Clean Land of Weeds and Put It in Order for Fall Seeding.

Corn for feeding green to cows in midsummer or to cure for winter feed should be grown in drills wide enough apart to be worked by the sulky cultivator. Drill the corn in with about 400 pounds of some good bone phosphate to the acre. The corn should be put in for winter feed not later than latter part of May, says a writer in the Baltimore American. Drill one bushel of large, sound, selected corn to the acre; this will allow ten to twelve grains to the running foot in the 42-inch rows.

The ground should be in good order. After drilling roll the field, the corn can then be worked with the double-section smoothing harrow before the grain germinates. Work the crop four times; this will hasten the growth of corn and clean the weeds and put it in nice order for fall seeding.

If the ground is mellow and rich, nearly every stalk will grow a single ear of corn. The time to cut the fodder is when the grain is in the dough and the lower leaves commence to turn yellow. Cut with the self-rake reaper, make small bundles, let the fodder wilt for a day or so, then set up, putting six to eight bundles to the shock. Make the shock as follows: Take three armfuls for the horse, tie securely in the middle, then set the other five armfuls evenly all around, make an even shock, tie securely with tarred twine. Make straight, even-shock rows. After the fodder settles they should be tied tighter. We do not bind the bundles, the fodder keeps better when the fodder is put into the shock and pressed close with the hands. Drilled corn fodder, set up by this method, will keep dry and sweet and better in the shock than when packed in the barn.

Corn grown by this method for fodder will average four to five tons of cured dry fodder to the acre, by actual weight, and makes, next to first-crop clover hay, a most substantial winter forage for all stock. By drilling early in wide rows and giving thorough culture, the corn gets an abundance of sunshine and air, and has the full benefit of all plant food. The stalks have plenty of silica and are not easily blown down by heavy wind and rain storms, and there is no difficulty in harvesting and curing the crop.

Corn for fodder should never be sown broadcast or too thick in the row, as such stalks contain nothing but water and are worthless for feed. Fodder contains the most sugar and is in the best condition to feed green, or to cure, when the milk is just out of the grain and the grain is in the dough stage.

CLEAN STALLS AND BEDDING

Milk Is Tainted With Foul Odors Very Quickly After It Is Poured Into Receptacle.

The cow should have a clean bedding every night, and all filth should be removed from the stall early in the morning. The milk is tainted with foul odors very quickly after it goes into the bucket. The stall must also be kept scrupulously clean. It is a good plan to keep walls whitewashed and all dust should be well brushed from them.

CHICKENS DUCKS and TURKEYS

PROFIT IN RAISING TURKEYS

Farmers Are Cautioned to Give Marketing Problems More Attention—Best Birds for Breeding.

For those who conduct the business carefully turkey raising is likely to be very profitable. The demand in this country continues to increase, apparently, faster than the supply. Farmers who go into the business, however, are cautioned to give the marketing problem considerable attention in advance.

In the turkey publications of the United States department of agriculture, which is Farmers' Bulletin No. 300, the following rules for selecting turkeys for breeding are given:

First—Always use as breeders turkey hens over one year old. Be sure they are strong, healthy, and vigorous, and of good medium size. In no instance select the smaller ones. Do not strive to have them unnaturally large.

Second—The male may be a yearling or older. Do not imagine that large, overgrown males are best. Strength, health, and vigor, with well-proportioned, medium size, are the main points of excellence.

Third—Avoid close breeding. New blood is of vital importance to turkeys.

The Great American Bird.

Better send a thousand miles for a new male than to risk the chances of inbreeding. Secure one in fall so as to be assured of his health and vigor prior to the breeding season.

BETTER ATTENTON TO EGGS

They Should Be Uniform in Color and Shape, and Regular in Size as Far as Possible.

More attention should be paid to eggs at all times and under all circumstances. This means that they should be uniform in color and shape and regular in size as far as possible. If they had more attention paid to them at our fairs and were brought to the notice of the public and the farmers in particular, much good would come from it. Let us offer good prizes for a display of eggs, say not less than three dozen, and have it stipulated that they be strictly fresh; that no cold storage stock need apply for the sake of selecting for size. If such a plan were carried out at a number of our fairs for a few years the selection of good eggs would get to be a science and would interest the poultry public to a great degree, and be of untold benefit to all of us, whether as producers or consumers of eggs.

GOOD POULTRY FEED ADVICE

Poor Economy to Give Fowls but One Kind of Grain—Make Them Exercise by Scratching.

There is no economy in feeding fowls one kind of grain, for that compels them to eat more than they ought in order to get a sufficient quantity of food elements.

A large part of the egg is water, which shows the necessity of providing layers with an ample supply of pure clear water in fountains or dishes which are frequently disinfected.

A sluggish hen is never a good layer. The flock should be made to exercise by scratching for whole and cracked grains in a deep litter of clean material and jumping for green food, such as a cabbage or mangels.

Fattening Water Fowls.

By putting some care into the fattening of water fowls the farmer's wife will be able to realise more out of them. She will be in shape to solicit orders for fine table water fowl; and once her name is established she will have more orders for them than she can fill.

Cracks Mean Roup.

A draft in the poultry house means roup in the flock. Prevention is the best method and much cheaper than the cure.

SORE SHOULDERS OF HORSES

Don't Let Animals Work Single Hour in Ill-Fitting Collars—Be Watchful in Spring.

(By GEORGE H. GLOVER, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo.)

We know how annoying it is to be obliged to lay a horse off in the midst of spring's work, on account of sore shoulders or sore neck.

Do not forget that it is your own fault.

Some men always make sore shoulders, some never do. A good man is often seen in front of his horses, adjusting their collars and hames. Don't let a horse work an hour in an ill-fitting collar.

The greatest care is needed in the spring when work first starts, for the horse will shrink and the collar will soon be too large. A collar that is too large will injure the shoulders more than one that is too tight.

Imagine a man trying to play baseball before his hands have become toughened. A horse works with his shoulders. Keep them well. Look at them several times a day. Keep the shoulders and the collar clean. If a shoulder gets sore it is the driver's fault; hold him responsible.

"WARBLE" GRUBS IN SPRING

Presence of Insects Is Found in Tumors on Backs of Cattle—Plan for Removing.

(By G. W. HOWARD, Minnesota Station.)

Owners of cattle should be on the lookout for warbles on the backs of their animals this spring.

Evidence of the presence of these flies is found in tumors or warbles on the backs of cattle. In the spring or early summer from these warbles drop grubs which burrow into the ground and after about a month emerge as flies. These flies lay their eggs on the legs of cattle, the cattle lick the eggs off, and after a time the warbles appear on the backs of the cattle.

The grubs may be removed by pressure around the warbles, and then crushed; or they may be destroyed by the injection of grease or oil into the openings of the tumors.

In Europe from 30 to 40 drops of tincture of iodine is sometimes injected to kill the grubs.

PORTABLE RACK FOR FEEDING

So Simple in Construction That Bill of Material Is Not Necessary—It Is Easily Moved.

This race is so simple of construction that we give no material bill for it. Besides, the length and width will depend upon your individual needs.

You can hitch a team to one end of this unique rack and easily move it.

Portable Feed Rack.

The runners are of 2 by 6s, the framework of 2 by 4s and the slats forming the "V" trough are 1 by 4s. The plan clearly shows how to make this feed rack.—Farmers Mail and Breeze.

BUSINESS OF THE BROOD SOW

Failure to Produce Good-Sized Litters and Nourish Them Often Due to Lack of Milk.

The business of the brood sow is to produce good-sized litters of healthy pigs and nourish them liberally until weaning time. In so far as she fails in this she fails in the purpose for which she is kept.

The farmer who keeps a half dozen or a dozen sows for breeding purposes finds half of them, perhaps, capable of fulfilling the maternal function well, while the other half do it only indifferently. Quite as often as not the difficulty is the lack of capacity to give milk enough for the litter, and the pigs are in a state of semi-starvation throughout the entire nursing period.

RIDDING PASTURES OF BURS

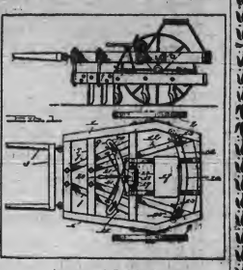
Pests Not Only Cause Annoyance to the Sheep Owner, but Decrease Price of Wool.

Nothing is so trying to the sheep owner as burs. He as careful as he will, these pests will spring up, causing not only annoyance, but often loss. A fleece infected with matted burs always sells for less than clean wool. Thus, burs are a direct loss to every flock keeper.

The remedy? Only one—rid the pasture fields. That's another story, if there are many, but cultivated crops, a system of rotation, and constant use of the hoe will rid any farm of this serious weed pest.

BREEDING PLACES FOR FLIES

Treatment Recommended by United States Department of Agriculture to Control Insects.



Manure piles are flies' favorite breeding places. If farmers will keep manure and stable sprinkled with a solution that will kill the larva, flies need not become numerous. The following treatment, recommended in United States department of agriculture bulletin 118, will control flies and will make a noticeable reduction in the number around a given place: Dissolve three-fourths of a pound of borax in two or three gallons of water. Spray or sprinkle manure piles and stables with the solution about twice a week.

This will kill the larva which hatch from eggs laid in manure. The danger to human health from flies is sufficient to make the wise farmer take these precautions, but if he looks for further justification it can be found in the protection of live stock. Human diseases are spread by flies and live stock are worried by them. The danger to human welfare must be conceded, but the loss to live stock is not so easily seen. Animals which are pestered by flies will lose flesh, and stable flies rob them of blood.

NEW PATENT ON CULTIVATOR

Extra Blades Travel in Advance, Cutting Sod, Weeds or Crust That May Have Formed.

John S. Smith, a Racine county (Wisconsin) inventor, sends in a description of his new patent cultivator to the Farming Business. This cultivator has extra blades that travel in advance and parallel to the cultivator blades for the cutting of sod, roots, weeds and any crust that may have formed, leaving the cultivator blades to do their work of stirring the soil. One lever manipulates both knives and cultivators. This relieves draft, as it is not necessary to tear into the soil so deeply to do both the breaking of the sod and crust and the cultivation with one set of blades. Any one of the four beams used to carry the knives and cultivators can be adjusted independently so as to meet all kinds of conditions of soil and vegetation.

MANURE LOSES BY LEACHING

When Rains Fall Much of Soluble Plant Food Is Carried Away—Moisture Holds Plant Food.

Farmers have been so accustomed to throw the manure from the stable in a pile in the barnyard, and leave it until it is convenient to haul it to the fields, that they do not give the matter of loss by washing and leaching any consideration. Usually but little of the value of the solids of the manure is lost in the stable, but great losses occur after it is thrown in a pile. The manure in the stable, saturated by the urine, contains more than 50 per cent water.

The moisture in the manure holds in solution the greater part of the plant foods which the manure contains. When the rains fall upon the manure the leaching process carries away much of the soluble plant foods and it is lost beyond recovery, for it is either carried away in the water as it flows on the surface to the streams, or sinks into the ground where, for all practical purposes, it is wasted.

TESTING FERTILITY OF EGGS

If Trouble Is With Male Fowl Replace Him—Make Sure Feeding Ration Is Not Responsible.

Those who make a specialty of selling hatching eggs from selected matings should keep a careful test on the fertility of eggs produced, so that poorly fertilized eggs will not be sent out to customers, necessitating replacing the eggs later and causing delay in getting young chicks started toward the showrooms.

If the fertility is not good replace the male bird with another or make sure that the feeding ration is not responsible for the trouble.

TO STORE PERISHABLE FOODS

Every Farm Should Be Provided With Cellar, Storehouse and Refrigerator for Crops.

Farmers lose much every year because their facilities for storing perishable foods are poor.

Every farm home should have a cellar, storehouse and refrigerator so the surplus foods may be saved till such time as they may be consumed.

The fact that producers have inadequate facilities for saving perishable products gives speculators advantages over them.
